7. Art. 15 is not drafted in haste, and I resent any implication otherwise. Indeed, it had much more vetting and thought than ADB and SOD, neither of which arose from the long deliberative process of the Master Plan. It's been worked on for well over one year, pushed off two TM warrants to fine tune it for just the concerns raised. It works with minimal hassle and we've talked to Barnstable extensively. The Zoning Advisory Comm., Planning Board and Advisory Board recommend it, and I hope my Board last Monday did so as well. Granted it's new, different, perhaps innovative, but it is not to be feared. You, the community, have asked us to think and plan, and we have done our best to come up with solutions that meet the town's directives.

Questions & answers on Cook Est. purchase

TO THE EDITOR:

"Why include the 8-pluse acres of town land in the senior housing project?" people ask. Well, although much of the 8-plus acres can't be built upon because it is wetland, when bundled with the Cook parcel, the combined acreage can be counted in determining the housing units to be permitted on the site. Although otherwise the town land has little commercial value because of the wetlands and access limitations, it has real value when added to the Cook estate.

Much of it would be preserved in its natural state, although a walking path could be provided to the contiguous Cohasset Plaza, a significant plus for senior housing. The land is superfluous to school department needs, and had been judged unsuitable for a cemetery, so adding to the Cook parcel is a sensible use of the land. "With all the projected developments, won't we soon have a surplus of affordable housing?" people ask. No, and remember that the market rate units added to the town's housing stock automatically increase the mandated number of affordable units by 10 percent of the addition! If the town adds 200 units of housing, and only 19 are "affordable", we have fallen one unit behind; we aren't 19 or 20 ahead!

The warrant article "requests" $4,500,000, but the town does not supply the funds; the developer does in the simultaneous transfer of the Cook parcel to the Town and from the Town to the developer. The minimum bid specified in the RFP will include the $4,500,000 price for the Cook parcel(s) plus a value determined for the Town land plus most of the Town's costs in developing the concept.

Developers already are casing the Cook estate, so it is going to be developed soon, so we have only one chance (voting yes on article 4 Nov. 17) to guide the development to help satisfy our pressing for housing designed for seniors.

Lobbyists want legislature to gamble on casinos

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

Senators ultimately decided that stimulating the economy with gambling was too, well, dicey, but just by talking it over they did boost one segment: the lobbying industry.

The state capitol was obsessed last week with the tough task of deciding how to help businesses and citizens get out and stay out of the economic difficulties that have plagued Massachusetts even more keenly than the rest of the nation for the past three years.

Were casinos the answer? Slot machines at racetracks? Those were the most difficult questions facing the Senate as it began its jobs bill debate. The governor and House have put economic stimulus plans before the body politic, as mixed signals about the economy continue abounding; while economic growth nationwide was a fantastic 7.2 percent last quarter, Associated Industries of Massachusetts' October business-confidence index showed employers here are more pessimistic.

The debate rages as to whether new gambling venues create new economic activity or merely shift it, but one facet can't be denied: the proposition itself is terrific for the lobbying industry. If you think about it, because the house always wins in the long run, starting a gambling venue is (ironically) one of the safest bets in the risky enterprise of business-building. But gambling has just about the highest barriers to entry of any industry, because the government dictates everything about what form it can take. Therefore, what's in the legislation determines who benefits from this semi-sure thing – to put it more plainly, who gets extremely wealthy.

Only the most irrational would-be operator would lack a lobbyist, and to succeed, the gaming industry combines the rationality of businesspeople with the irrationality of thrill-seeking customers. Thus, there was at least one lobbyist – at least – for every would-be casino or slot mogul on the third floor outside the Senate last week. In the relative quiet of the lobby itself, and the chamber, the leading voices pro and con for gaming among the 40 senators were doing their own lobbying – not in the loud tone of floor debate, but the quiet conversations that really set policy. The anti-casino side won this time, but the issue – and the lobbyists – aren't going anywhere.

It's easy to get caught up in the politics just of the casino question, and forget that the debate really wasn't about gambling – it was about far more. For example, the Senate debate on the jobs bill began with local farming and ended with tobacco control. It's instructive to note that part of encouraging local farming in Massachusetts is not doing too much tobacco control; hundreds of jobs along the fertile Connecticut River valley out West depend on production of the high-quality tobacco cigar wrappers for which the region is famous. That gamut underscored the difficulty lawmakers face when they try to place winning economic-policy bets.

The State House discernibly turned the corner toward the home stretch before the end of formal sessions Nov. 19.

• Senate passes DNA bill; saves stem cell projects— In noteworthy Senate votes, the Upper Chamber sent Gov. Mitt Romney legislation requiring the establishment of a DNA database that will store genetic material submitted by all Commonwealth felons. During debate on the jobs bill, senators turned back an attempt to remove language legally protecting stem cell research by Bay State biotech researchers; stem cells are often obtained from fetal tissue. Provisions allowing liquor sales on Sunday and establishing two sales tax "holidays" made it through the Senate and now will be subject to conference committee deliberations. The House is on record against Sunday liquor sales and House budget chief John Rogers, D-Norwood, called the tax holidays a "bad idea." The fate of the proposals will likely be decided in the next two weeks.

The core of the Senate stimulus package remained intact, supported by revenues drawn from state reserve funds. It includes provisions to:

Provide expanded job training Make permanent the 3 percent investment tax credit Fund $35 million in business assistance to emerging-technology companies Grant $10 million to the health care industry for facility improvement Provide $20 million in assistance to research-based corporations Increase funding for housing and community development by $13.5 million Provide $18.4 million to assist the tourism and hospitality industry

• House approves military pay bill — The measure allows state employees serving in the military overseas to receive health benefits and a state-funded supplement to their military pay, bringing their total pay up to the level they earned working for the state. The Senate approved the measure in May. Lawmakers said the supplement will cost $3.1 million, but said it's the right thing to do for men and women serving their country.

• Subway, bus fare increase approved; rates to rise Jan. 1 — After many months of discussion and controversy, the MBTA Board of Directors made it official: fares on most subway rides will rise to $1.25, and most bus trips will go to 90 cents from 75 cents. Monthly passes in service areas furthest from Boston will rise to nearly $200, fueling speculation that the change will force public transit users back to their automobiles. The T has promised some modest service improvements, but most of the additional revenue will be used to preserve the status quo in an era when the T no longer enjoys a guaranteed subsidy from the Legislature to cover its costs.

• Consumer affairs chief named to state lottery board — Beth Lindstrom, who headed the Lottery under Republican Treasurer Joseph Malone, was named by Gov. Romney to one of the five seats on the state Lottery Commission. The state treasurer heads the commission and the governor appoints two of the other four members; the state comptroller and public safety secretary round out the board. Lindstrom is also the state's consumer affairs and business regulation director.

• Jacques will leave senate to head up gay rights organization — Sixth-term Sen. Cheryl Jacques, D-Needham, accepted the post of president and executive director at Human Rights Campaign, a national organization dedicated to winning legal rights for people with non-traditional sexual orientations.

Neighborhood friendly bylaw changes sought

TO THE EDITOR:

The Special Town Meeting on Monday night provides an opportunity for the residents of Cohasset to strengthen the letter and intent of Town Bylaws as the instrument that individuals, neighborhoods and the community as a whole rely upon for protection from indiscriminate and detrimental development as it affects their respective properties.

Articles 14, 16, 18 and 19 amend or change the Bylaws to provide for public awareness, conscionable lot coverage, building size criteria and a standard for height calculations.

These articles are, in part, a product of the 14-month-long ordeal of the Jerusalem Lane neighborhood and are an attempt to improve and clarify the Bylaws that our Building Department, Planning Board and ZBA will be obligated to enforce. At issue, is not so much a limitation of a developer's plan as the requirement that any property owner would have knowledge of the scope and impact of building activities which may affect their property. Property owners would have the communication necessary for comment before, rather than after a project is commenced. A developer would be required to communicate the scope of work upon issuance of the permit vs. an evolving work in progress.

Had the Articles been in place for the permitting of 3 Jerusalem Lane the ongoing frustration, time, expense and property detriment of the countless meetings, Requests for Enforcement, Appeals, etc. would not have occurred. The neighbors' reactions and input would have had an opportunity, a voice, and perhaps consideration, before the fact, not the pursuit of a runaway train. In a time where right and wrong has given way to the oxymoron "legal opinion", the interpretation of the Bylaws has become a function of a developer's legal coffer and the inability of Town staff, Town Boards and Town Counsel to function fully (and within budget) to protect the community and neighborhoods.

If each of us looks at our neighborhood we will see properties whose alteration might impact our own. The Articles before us are an effort to insure a basic level of communication and understanding of mutual impacts that, as demonstrated by 3 Jerusalem Lane, are not currently controlled by our Boards without extended legal action borne by individuals charged with protecting themselves. Please consider carefully your vote for approval of these Articles.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: BHRC records local representatives' votes on two roll calls and local senators' votes on three roll calls from the week of November 3-7.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT PLAN (S 2127)

Senate 39-0, gave near final approval to a $115 million economic development plan. Provisions include legalizing the Sunday opening of stores that sell liquor, creating two sales tax-free shopping days, making the three percent investment tax credit permanent, banning human cloning and allowing stem cell research on certain donated human embryos. Other provisions include providing $35 million for emerging technologies, $10 million for improvements to health care facilities, $8 million for the Brownfields Redevelopment Fund and $6 million for workforce training and development. Supporters said the bill would be a real shot in the arm for the state by stimulating the economy, creating jobs and making Massachusetts friendlier to business. The House has approved a different version of the measure and the Senate version now goes to the House for consideration. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).

Y

STEM CELL RESEARCH (S 2127)

Senate 3-37, rejected an amendment striking a section that bans human cloning and also allows stem cell research on donated human embryos, three to five days old, remaining after in vitro fertilization for fertility treatment. Supporters of the section said it is important to make cloning illegal. They also argued that current state law is vague and could be interpreted to prohibit stem cell research. They noted the section would clearly legalize this research that could yield treatments or cures for many conditions including spinal cord injuries, juvenile diabetes and Lou Gehrig's disease. Some opponents of the section said it is poorly drafted and noted that they have problems with the specific language rather than the moral issue of stem cell research. They also noted that they would support a separate bill banning cloning. Others said they are morally opposed to stem cell research because it uses human life as research material. (A "Yea" vote is for striking the section that allows stem cell research and bans cloning. A "Nay" vote is against striking the section and favors allowing stem cell research and banning cloning).

SUNDAY OPENINGS FOR LIQUOR SALES (S 2127)

Senate 17-22, rejected an amendment striking a section allowing stores that sell liquor to open on Sundays, prohibiting employees from being forced to work on Sundays and mandating that they be paid time and one-half if they do work. The section also allows cities and towns the option to prohibit these Sunday sales. Current law allows these stores to seek local approval to be open at noon on the Sunday before Thanksgiving through the Sunday until New Year's Day and every Sunday if the community is located within 10 miles of the New Hampshire or Vermont border— two states that allow Sunday openings. Supporters of Sunday openings said it is time to leave this decision up to local cities and towns and noted that communities on the New Hampshire and Vermont border currently have an unfair advantage. They said that Sunday openings would generate up to $2.1 million in additional tax revenue and argued it is unfair that other retailers are allowed to be open on Sundays. Opponents said Sunday openings would force small storeowners who want to remain competitive to work on their only day off or to pay employees extra money. They noted that Sunday is still considered to be different than all other days and argued that Sunday sales would not increase sales but simply shift the same sales from six to seven days per week. (A "Yea" vote is for striking the section that allows Sunday openings. A "Nay" vote is against striking the section and favors the Sunday openings).

PUBLIC EMPLOYEES IN MILITARY SERVICE (H 4307)

House 151-0, gave near final approval to a bill providing that state employees who are granted a military leave of absence for active military service after September 11, 2001, continue to receive their base state salary reduced by their military salary. It also ensures that these employees do not lose any seniority, accrued vacation or leave time. The proposal, effective until September 11, 2005, also gives cities, towns and counties the option to accept the law and apply it to their local employees. Supporters said the bill would assist these brave citizens who are helping the nation in the war against terror and ensure that they and their families do not suffer financially while defending the freedom of the United States and the world. The Senate has approved a different version of the measure and the House version now goes to the Senate for consideration. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).

House 151-0, overrode Gov. Romney's $239,946 veto reduction (from $3,596,891 to $3,356,945) in funding for the operation of the sex offender registry. Override supporters said this is a public safety issue and argued that the $239,946 is crucial in order to pay for six more employees to help eliminate the backlog that is prohibiting the state from properly tracking sex offenders. In his veto message, the governor said the $239,946 cut would reduce the funding to an amount consistent with his original recommendation for this program. (A "Yea" vote is for the $239,946).

who are still living and those who gave the supreme sacrifice," said Steve Wigmore, commander of the George H. Mealy American Legion Post. After saying a few words of thanks, Wigmore turned the podium over to his son Thomas who serves as National Chaplain of the Sons of the American Legion.

"Our nation is making new veterans every day," Thomas Wigmore said, adding it is time for everyone to focus on "these brave warriors who have done their job well."

"We are mostly a gathering of veterans," Thomas Wigmore said of the crowd that day, adding while he has never been called on to fight in a war, he has dedicated his life to supporting veterans. "We cherish our way of life and recognize the sacrifice your comrades made."

He reminded everyone of the importance of Veterans Day, formerly called Armistice Day, which commemorates the signing of an Armistice between the Allies and Germany, ending the four years of fighting endured throughout World War II. And the day is remembered on the 11th day of the 11th month at 11 o'clock, as a tribute to veterans past and present who have given so much for our country.

"God bless this beautiful nation, the United States of America," Thomas Wigmore said.

The crowd fell absolutely silent as Taps was played, and the memorial service was called to a close. As the crowd filed out, "God Bless the U.S.A" could be heard even across the street, and maybe somehow in the hearts of those who are stationed across the oceans defending our country.

Now the real work begins

Graduation takes heavy toll on CHS boys soccer program

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Rob Leary stepped into a pretty sweet situation this year.

Taking over a Cohasset High boys soccer program that finished second in the South Shore League in 2002 and returned seven senior starters and nine seniors in all, much of the work was already done for the former Rockland High head coach.

The Skippers proceeded to go 14-4 in the regular season under their new head coach, blew out Avon in the opening round of the state tourney, 7-1, and then fell to eventual sectional champion Norwell in the quarterfinals, 2-0.

"It was a great year, I felt, especially considering I was bringing in a new system," said Leary. "I'm real proud of what we accomplished, and the kids should be too."

Now the work begins.

Among the nine players the Skippers lose to the caps and gowns are two-time South Shore League all-stars Chris Clark, Conor Buick and Craig Laugelle, and first time SSL all-stars Dave Santiago and Jesse Brewer. Brewer, the team's keeper, also earned All-Eastern Mass honors this year, and Buick, the team's sweeper, just missed the honor. Clark, the team's leading scorer the last two year, was a 2002 All-Eastern Mass selection.

Clark, Laugelle, Santiago and Buick were the team captains. Leary noted that he would miss all of these players on the field, but noted that the off-the-field loss of Buick may be the most difficult to overcome.

"Conor is just a great kid and a great leader," lauded Leary, who also coaches the Scituate boys tennis team and is an assistant with Rockland boys basketball team. "He made my life so much easier coming into a new situation. Honestly, he was one of the best captains and leaders I've ever been around in any sport."

Also graduating will be two-year starters J.T Oronte, a valuable presence in the midfield, and John Andrade, who scored several key goals this year, along with Andrew Wise and Andrew Busk.

"Obviously, it won't be easy to replace any of these guys," conceded Leary. "But I don't think the cupboard is anywhere near bear, and I do think the guys coming back will have the advantage of having my system down. Also, they know me now and I know them. That will help the transition next year."

The makeup of the 2004 team appears as if it will be quite similar to that of the 2002 squad, in that much of the premier talent is a year away.

Character hiring

New CHS hockey coach lauded for what he brings both on and off ice

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Character is the word that kept popping up throughout the endorsement of new Cohasset High hockey coach Ben Virga by CHS athletic director Ron Ford.

"I think it's a slam dunk hire," stated the CHS AD/head boys basketball coach, using an analogy from his sport of choice to represent his feelings over the hiring of Virga, a former B.C. High and Stonehill College hockey standout. "Everyone I've talked to has raved about this guy's character and how good he is with kids, and it seems like he's obviously got a strong background in hockey.

"I'm really excited to have him. I really like his whole values system and everything I've heard of his background."

Since graduating from Stonehill in 1998, Virga has cut his coaching teeth at hockey hotbeds B.C. High and Catholic Memorial, and most recently worked as a varsity assistant with the Milton High team that opened some eyes in last year's state tourney. He's also coached volleyball at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham.

"I think he's one of those young guys who just needs a break to get his first head coaching job, and then will just take off with it, like John did last year," said Ford, referring to Virga's predecessor, John

Midgets 'Bowl' opponents over

Two Cohasset-Scituate youth football teams win Super Bowl

By Dick Cushman
CORRESPONDENT

Defense, defense and some more defense was the difference in both the Midgets Sharks and Stingrays Super Bowl title wins. Both Midget teams hammered out shut out victories over their opponents this past Super Sunday.

Coach Dan O'Brien Sharks Midget team exploded out of the gates with an Alex Courno 63 yard touchdown run on the their first possession. Laying the ground work for a 22-0 slamming of the Silver Lake Warriors midget team.

"Alex Courno had a unbelievable game, he nearly ran for a hundreds yards on offense and his defensive game was his personnel best, he had probably 12 tackles. Those 12 tackles are huge, the (Warriors) had the ball very little on offense." stated Coach Dan O'Brien.

The Division 1 Super Bowl Champion Sharks offensive bite was on it's way. Scituate's second possession would be punched in on a quarterback keeper by Blaine O'Brien. The Sharks touchdown was set up by Sean Cooneys (10 runs for 130 yards) hard running. The 14-0 lead early in the second quarter stunned the well improved Warrior team.

The Sharks defense continued to shut down the Warriors giving them little to no yardage during the first half of play Coach Dan O'Brien went onto say "P.J. Webb (Defensive Coach) did a great job, he had his players ready for this game. They completely shut them down."

Pat Mahoney and Steve Ferriter's defensive play added to the Warriors offensive woes. The overall

Skippers ride Wave

Grid win over Abington sets up winner take all showdown tomorrow at Norwell

SSL football title game
Cohasset at Norwell
Friday, 7 p.m. kickoff

A Battle with the Clippers awaits

Cohasset improved to 7-1, 3-0 in the South Shore League, with a hard fought 20-6 victory of the defending Division 5 Super Bowl Champions, the Green Wave from Abington, on Friday night at Alumni Field before the largest crowd of the season.

The Skippers advance to battle Norwell (6-1-1, 3-0-1 in the SSL) this Friday night for the South Shore League championship. A date in the Super Bowl Tournament awaits the winner.

Cohasset's defensive unit shutdown the high powered passing attack of Abington (4 completions in 15 attempts, with 2 interceptions), while the offensive line had perhaps their best game of the year, routinely blowing the Green Wave five to 10 yards off the line of scrimmage, enabling senior tailback DeWayne Morris to have his best game of the season racking up 197 yards on 17 carries with one touchdown (Overall season totals of 972 yards, 9 rushing touchdowns, and a total of 56 points scored).

The Skippers took the opening kickoff and had a 12 play time consuming march down to the Abington 3-yard line only to be stopped on fourth down on a rush attempt up the middle. The Green Wave returned the favor, as they ate up the clock for the balance of the first quarter, and moved the ball deep into Cohasset territory. Senior captain Chris Bilodeau then stepped in front of an Abington receiver at the 16 yard line and picked off the first of two interceptions he would have on the night and returned the ball to the 49 yard line of Cohasset.

This scoring drive for Cohasset started with a 17 yard pass from QB Mike Dooley to junior fullback Ted Straughn. After a penalty moved the ball back, Dooley hit junior wideout D J Silvia with a 33 yard completion. Another penalty moved the ball in the wrong direction. However, Morris brought it down to the 9-yard line, then Dooley found Bilodeau, this time on the 1 yard line. Following sophomore left guard Nick Arment, Dooley scored on a quarterback keeper (his seventh rushing touchdown of the season). The extra point clanged off the uprights and with 6:14 to go in the second quarter, Cohasset led 6-0.

The lone offensive highlight for the Green Wave occurred on a 63 yard touchdown pass from QB Brian McSharry to wideout Anthony Sulmonte on their next

Now the real work begins

The Skippers featured a number of sophomores who stepped into key roles this fall with the varsity squad, among them forwards Aidan Buick (Conor's little brother) and Ben Libby, center midfielder Matt O'Connell and defenders Nils Sceery, Trevor Brady and Sam McDonald.

Buick and Libby shared playing time opposite Clark for most of the season at striker. O'Connell stepped in as the all-important center midfield spot and was actually the primary quarterback of the offense down the stretch. MacDonald and Brady started he season coming off the bench, but both worked their way into the starting lineup pretty quickly, MacDonald at stopper and Brady at fullback.

Two other sophomores who saw varsity playing time were midfielder Chris Ofsthun and keeper Prescott Busk, who had a very good season at the JV level and Leary sees as a worthy successor for Brewer next season.

"This is a very strong sophomore class and one that should help us remain quite competitive next year," asserted Leary. "All of them should get bigger, faster and stronger, so I'm pretty optimistic."

This is not to say the current junior class is anything to be sneezed at. Sam Steele and Kevin Dinsmore, a transfer from Xaverian, saw a good deal of playing time this season, and Colin Regan and Jake Kovach are two players the coach believes could make the jump from the J.V. ranks next season to help.

Leary also figures seniors-to-be John Grimm and Jon Littauer should figure into the mix in 2004. Both players missed this entire season with leg injuries.

"Some people are saying we're going to really be hurt by graduation, but I like the talent we've got coming back," concluded Leary. "Cohasset's had a good soccer program the last few years, and that means new players have stepped up to fill holes. I don't see any reason that won't continue next year."

possession. Bilodeau broke up the conversion pass attempt with a jarring hit. The teams hit the locker rooms knotted at 6-6.

The third quarter commenced with Abington moving the ball at will, shooting for the go ahead touchdown. The play of the game then took place when junior defensive back Joe Durkin ran down an Abington tailback and stripped the ball. "Ever present" senior captain Tony Truglia (69 tackles on the season to lead the squad, and one and a half sacks on the night) pounced on it and the momentum had swung back to the Skippers.

On the second play from scrimmage, Morris sprinted 72 yards to the end zone, as the entire offensive line— senior Dan Tarpey at left tackle, Arment at left guard, junior Matt Casey at center, senior captain Steve Davis at right guard, and rookie right tackle Dan McCarthy— pushed the Green Wave defensive front five yards off the ball, and junior fullback Ted Straughn then crushed the lone linebacker left. Morris had no sooner caught his breath, when Dooley found him in the corner of the end zone for the two point conversion. Cohasset 14, Abington 6 with 6:36 to go in the third.

The defensive front for the Skippers— junior end Kelvin Ferriera, and senior Sean Connolly (5 tackles, one and a half sacks, several tackles that resulted in negative yardage) was back at the other end slot, along with the "junior rocks in the middle" Matt Baroudi and Leo Clougherty— took turns chasing the Abington backfield around on the next series.

A punt by Abington was returned 20 yards by Bilodeau (102 return yards on the night on two punts and two interceptions) to set the Skippers up on their 45 yard line. Morris went left behind Arment, Tarpey, and Connolly at tight end, for 35 yards, then he went right over Davis for 12, and three up the middle over Casey.

D J Silvia then found the clearing in the right corner of the end zone and hauled in a five yard pass from Dooley, Silvia's first touchdown of the season. After a failed conversion attempt, the Skippers had an insurmountable lead of 20-6 with :54 left in the third quarter.

The fourth quarter was relatively uneventful. Tthe teams each had five possessions in the quarter, as the soggy field conditions deteriorated to the point were rushing and passing attempts had players from both teams slipping and sliding with little success moving the ball.

Soggy turf notes

Cohasset's defensive backfield, Bilodeau, Durkin, juniors Crandon Leahy and Silvia, held Abington to zero completions on ten attempts in the second half.

The linebacking trio, Casey (9 tackles to lead the crew)., Truglia, and Straughn, accounted for 20 tackles and 2 and a half sacks.

Dave McKenna and Rick Grassie combined on a crushing special teams tackle.

Mike Dooley was 6 for 6 passing for 85 yards in the first half, and later threw his fifth touchdown pass of the season, giving him 610 yards through the air along with 300 yards rushing for the season.

Chris Bilodeau has 21 receptions, 4 touchdowns, and 4 interceptions as a d-back on the season.

Kudos to Matt Dooley, the best "waterboy" in the South Shore League. He's always there when needed, through the heat, the rain, the freezing temps, and the mud.

Cohasset (7-1)	3-0
Norwell (6-1-1)	3-0-1
Abington (6-3)	2-2
Hull (1-7)	1-2
Carver (2-7)	1-3
Mashpee (1-6-1)	0-3-1

This weeks SSL games: Abington at Mashpee, Carver at Hull.

This Weeks Preview: The Skippers travel to Norwell tomorrow night, 7 PM Kickoff. The winner clinches the South Shore League Championship and will advance to the Super Bowl semi-final round the Tuesday after Thanksgiving.

Last year, the Skippers prevailed at home, with a dramatic touchdown in the final minute, by the score of 16-13.

The Clippers have been a run orientated offensive team todate, with a stingy defense. They lost in week 1 to Hopkinton at home, and squeaked out a tie at Mashpee, overall they have a 6-1-1 record. They have scored 158 pts and allowed 83.

Cohasset remains in first place in the South Shore League with a 3-0 record, beating Carver 28-0, Mashpee 28-6, and Abington 20-6. They have scored 164 pts and allowed 66. They can move the ball on the ground with carries by DeWayne Morris, Mike Dooley, and Ted Straughn, and have a potent aerial attack with wideouts Chris Bilodeau, D J Silvia, tight end Sean Connolly, fullback Ted Straughn, and tailback Morris, all favorite targets of Dooley.

The offensive line, Dan Tarpey 6-3 205, Nick Arment 6-4 250, Matt Casey 5-10 170, Steve Davis 6-2 250, and Dan McCarthy 6-1 210 have excelled at run blocking as well as pass protection all season.

Defensively, the All League linebacking trio of Truglia, Casey, and Straughn account for the majority of the tackles each game. The backfield of Bilodeau, Durkin, Leahy, Connolly, and Silvia have shutdown so-called high powered aerial attacks of Nantucket, Archbishop Williams, Weston and Abington. And the Fearsome Foursome of Kelvin Ferriera 6 199, Matt Baroudi 5-10 215, Leo Clougherty 5-10 205, and Rob Carpenter 6-0 180 have QBs scrambling and running backs reversing direction with their all out rush.

Head Coach Tony Rolfe, and his assts; Bob Silvia, Dave Terry, Brian Pattison, Tom Ventresca, Chris Bridges, and Don Silvia have an arsenal of offensive plays at their disposal that have not been showcased all season. Defensively the squad is peaking as sacks, hurries, interceptions, and running backs being thrown for losses, are a regular occurrence of late.

So plan on a 6:30 drive over to Norwell to support your Skippers football team tomorrow night, and take in a game you won't want to miss.

The Cohasset Blades won the first session championship of the MaxLax indoor 5th/6th grade division.

Cohasset Lax thrills crowds in OT victories

Two Cohasset teams playing in the MaxLax Lacrosse programs in Hingham provided plenty of thrills and excitement for lax fans as they both produced stunning victories in sudden death overtime. The 5/6 grade BLADES won their Divisional Championship game in a 6 – 5 OT triumph over Marshfield to close out the first session; while their "big brothers" in the HS JV Division used OT to cap off a rousing come-from-behind win to start up their current session.

Blades Win Championship

The core 5/6 grade lax players from Cohasset managed to fend off numerous challenges to reach the Divisional Championship game of the MaxLax College level where they went head to head with their perennial rivals, the Marshfield Lasers. When these two teams met in the regular season, they gave us a preview of what was to come as that match also ended in an OT decision with Marshfield edging out the hometown boys. With that memory still burning bright, Cohasset was determined not to have the replay end the same way.

The first half featured some amazing defensive play from both sides as the game went a full 5 minutes without a score until Marshfield's Zach Robertshaw found a seam and tallied the first goal, only to follow it up quickly with another sniper shot from the right side of the cage on an impossible angle that put the Lasers up by 2. Cohasset got several chances, especially with a penalty situation, but the brilliant play of the Lasers 'keeper Zach Carpman stifled their efforts with one amazing save after another. Not to be outdone, Jack Murphy who was minding the net for the Blades, kept the game within reach by using every trick he knew – kid saves, flying leaps, shoulders, you name it – to keep the ball out of the goal. The Lasers demonstrated that they belonged in the game when William Contento found the corner with goal number 3 on an assist from Conor Bagby after some outstanding ball movement down the court. Olly Forrer (look for his name in lights later on) broke the ice for the Blades on an end to end rush and a finish from a "sick" angle that snuck past the Lasers goalie, but this was immediately answered by a "trickle in goal" that was originally stopped by Murphy only to fall limply into the cage off of the deflection. Forrer wasn't done however, and they showed some finesse ball movement of their own as he fed a sprinting Justin Yeager with a perfect pass in full stride that allowed Yeager to blister one past Carpman for the 2nd Blades score. With the clock running out on the first half, Murphy came out to stuff a "sure thing" only to have the rebound picked up by the Lasers Schiele who got it to Contento who took a zinger from the left side to get it into the upper corner to close out the half with the Lasers up 5 – 2.

Cohasset opened up the 2nd half with a quick score from Alex Everett on a rocket from the top of the cage and then the defensive "freeze" came over the game as both sides shut out the other for an impressive 6+ minutes of frenzied activity. Yeager decided that he had seen enough and single-handedly bulled his way through 3 or 4 Laser defenders to light it up with a low bouncer to bring them to within 1. With time becoming a factor, both squads "Cowboy'd Up" and the goalies both contributed to a highlight reel with one tremendous save after another with both facing down possible situations that could have ended the contest without scoring in a single round. Yeager once again came up big with a blocked return for the score to tie it with less than a minute to play and Murphy made an astounding save stuffing a last break to preserve the tie and to take it into OT. In this sudden death format, usually the first possession proves to be the deciding factor and it's one was more weighted as Forrer won the face off, dodged two defenders and blistered the corner into the lower corner for the victory and the right to meet the Championship squad. Congratulations to both teams as they truly gave everyone a game to remember.

Though this was a tight-style, congratulations go to the OT finisher – Olly Forrer – who earned the MVP Nomination for the Championship and his choice of MaxLax logo'd gear as the reward. Great job Olly!

MaxLax Game of the Week - Cohasset JV Laxers Make GREAT First Impression

In their first debut in the MaxLax program this past weekend, the core JV lax squad tuned up for the season with an unbelievably exciting first installment. Facing a tough BC High Eagles squad, Cohasset seemed to be making a statement in "business as usual" as they took a quick 2 goal lead on scores from Mike Bunstein (A-Jeff Brown) and Ryan Kucinski (A-Dan Trendowicz). They were in for a bit of an awakening from there on in however, as the Eagles took over the game both defensively and offensively, racking up 10 unanswered goals to close out the first half 10 – 2 leaving the Cohasset crew looking a little [illegible] Julien Carbone – Bernhard Rousseau and Mark Mellor – [illegible] Brown, Trendowicz – Jarod Kinch and Bunstein – [illegible] Trendowicz [illegible] Kinch [illegible] MaxLax [illegible]

Player of the Week: [illegible] Kinch (Cohasset JV) – With the game winner in the [illegible] MaxLax logo'd [illegible] his efforts.

Play of the Week: With [illegible] running out on the clock and [illegible] Eagles goalie [illegible] manufactured a miraculous [illegible] save on a "pro-style" quick shot from point blank range to [illegible] Cohasset's BC high JV game.

Blake, who is taking over the head coaching reins at Duxbury High (where he is also an assistant athletic director) after leading the Skippers to a South Shore League title last year.

Off the ice, Virga has taught in Boston Public schools, and is currently the Resident Director of the Berklee College of Music. The Duxbury native also serves as a Youth Minister at St. Paul's Church in Hingham.

"I've always looked for coaches who preach sportsmanship first, and that's especially important in hockey," continued Ford, "and I think Ben is that kind of guy. He wants kids to do the right thing."

The 28-year old Virga has already met with about half his players, and says he plans to forge a game plan based on what he sees in early workouts, which get underway on Dec. 1.

"These last few weeks before hockey starts are always the longest of the year for me," said a laughing Virga, who was the man between the pipes for the 1994 state champion B.C. High hockey team. "I can't wait to get the kids on the ice and start working with them. I'm extremely excited about this opportunity.

"I know Cohasset's a team that's had a lot of success the last few years and I want to see that that continues. It's also a program with some very good community support, and that's something I hope will continue too."

In general, the new coach said he'd like to put a team on the ice this winter that "plays sound fundamental hockey."

"I'm looking to help give the kids a positive experience on and off the ice," offered Virga. "I'd like to put a team out there the community is proud to support. I want to help these kids learn to win and lose with class and grace."

Beyond that, he has only one goal:

"My expectations is to go as far as we can and ultimately win a state championship," states the rookie head coach matter-of-factly.

defense stopped the Warriors again on their third possession, forcing another punt. The Sharks controlled the ball the remaining end of the second quarter giving the Sharks a 14-0 lead going into the half.

Ryan Cooney wasted no time to put another 70 yards of offense in the books. Scituate's second play after the halftime break saw Cooney explode for that touchdown run. The Sharks added the point after giving them a commanding lead (22-0)

The Sharks continued to play tough solid defense throughout the remaining second half, while controlling the clock to take home the Super Bowl Division I Title.

The Stingrays midgets were in control of their Super Bowl Title from the beginning also. Best stated by Bob McQuad at the Super Bowl Award Ceremony after the game at Hingham Hugh School. Great victory kids, you come out like Buzz-saw!" Indeed they were.

The Stingrays first drive pounded the ball 50 yards to watch Kyle Crowley punch in their first score, Kyle Ewanouski added the extra points giving the Stingrays their first blow.

Scituate's first touchdown drive was set-up on a great defensive play by Paul McInerney. McInerney's blocked punt gave the Stingrays excellent field position. The Stingrays man handling of the Middleboro Cougars offense continued throughout the first half.

"Robert Carlezon and cornerback Marty Noenikx steady defensive play all year proved beneficial on this victory." explained Coach Larry McInerney of the Stingrays.

Scituate/Cohasset Stingrays mustered up touchdowns in each quarter of play. Their balanced scoring attack saw four different players score and proved to be unstoppable with a 28-0 victory.

The Stingrays second score by Kyle Ewanouski early in the second quarter gave the Stingrays their second blow. The Cougars failed to respond and the control of the ball by the Stingrays played out the first half clock.

Stingrays defense continued to sting Middleboro completely shutting down all offense. "Al St. Peter did a tremendous job confusing the Middleboro offensive coaches. His using and rotation of players was great 11 added Coach McInerney.

The Stingrays added to second half score on a Chris Morgan on a 50 yard touchdown from Quarterback Dean Kennedy. Kenton Toney would rap up the scoring with a sweep to give the Scituate/Cohasset Stingrays their first Division 5 Midget Title.

Coach McInerney added to the Super Bowl victory. "The best part of coaching this year has been the kids, naturally - but the group of guys that coached with me made our undefeated season and Super Bowl victory a season to remember.

On a sad note to end this article, unfortunately the Scituate/Cohasset other teams being represented in Super Bowl play lost. At the Mites level both teams lost close games to very good Hingham and Barnstable teams. At the PeeWee Stingrays level Coach Cole Hawkins team exploded 20 seconds into the game with a touch down, only to watch a late fourth quarter touchdown by Hanover give them the victory.

Coastal Stars Youth Hockey Report

PeeWee C1 (Ages 11 & 12)

Center Justin Yeager scored a hat trick and goalie John Carrigg earned his third shut-out in only four starts in leading the Coastal Stars Pee-Wee C1 team to a strong 7-0 win over a previously undefeated Brockton 1 team on Sunday. Joe Fitzsimmons started the scoring for the Stars at 13:48 of the first period with a terrific back-hand shot. Gordon Smith, playing left wing, earned an assist on the first goal. The Stars' second goal was scored by winger Mike Caira, who scored the first of his two goals at 5:31 of the first period. Center Andrew Bell and winger Gordon Smith each earned assists on Caira's first goal. Justin Yeager scored the first of his three goals at 15:54 of the second period. Yeager fired a hard shot from the left circle that slipped by the Brockton goalie. Earning an assist on the Stars' third goal was Geoff Evans, who played a great game at left defense. Yeager also scored the Stars' next goal on a terrific break away play that was capped off with a great move in front of the net that enabled Yeager to slip the puck under the Brockton goalie. Scoring the Stars' fifth goal, and his second on the day, was Mike Caira who lifted the puck past the Brockton goalie at 3:27 of the second period. Winger Brian Meehan earned an assist on Caira's second goal of the day with a fine pass from the corner to Caira who was parked in front of the Brockton net and in position to fire the puck past the goalie. Yeager scored his third goal and the Stars' sixth of the day at 11:26 of the third period. Brian Meehan scored the Stars' final goal at 5:01 of the third period with a terrific shot into the top left corner of the Brockton net on a nice pass from center Justin Yeager. Also making key plays all day on defense were Kevin O'Connell, Chris Fazzina and Mike O'Halloran. Winger Phil Murphy also contributed to the Stars' fourth win in five games.

Mite A (Ages 7 & 8)

The Mite A's rose early from their Halloween slumbers Saturday and skated to a 2-2 tie with their Braintree counterparts. The Stars got off to a quick start, buzzing the net for several shots on the game's first shift. Kenny Parnell fed Frankie Lemieux, whose shot from the left was saved. But Tommy Dixon was perfectly positioned on the right crease for the rebound, and he put the biscuit in the basket for a 1-0 lead. Braintree shook off its shaky start and tested the Stars with smart passing and close shots. Connor Maher was sensational in net and saved several shots from in front, but he had no chance on the point-blanker that tied the game. The Stars responded. Terrence Doonan had two wraparound attempts and Will Golden set up Jake McDonough out front twice, but the Braintree goalie was on, and the period ended in a tie. The Stars defense asserted itself in the second period. Connor Maher continued his stingy netminding by stopping an estimated ten shots in the period. Jeremy Duchini and Jared McCrystal sacrificed their bodies to block Braintree shots. Brian Smith was solid on the blue line, allowing the front line of Jonathan Spitz, Will DeCoste, and Colin Whelan to pressure the Braintree goaltender. Andrew Geddes created some offense on a pretty give-and-go with Jake McDonough. Geddes got shots from in tight, but the Braintree netminder smothered the flurry. With about four minutes left, Kevin McDougall made a bold play at the blue line, stepping up against two Braintree skaters to keep the puck in the zone. McDougall slid the puck to Terrence Doonan's feet in the left circle. Doonan danced the puck to his stick and passed to Jake McDonough out front. McDonough faked a forehand, swept the puck to his backhand, and slipped the puck past the down-and-out goaltender for a 2-1 lead. Braintree tied the score on a rebound with about thirty seconds left, but Will DeCoste's rifle shot from the right side at the end of the period created a buzz. The Stars carried the play in the third period. Will Golden was denied by a kick save. Chris Cohen and Jeremy Duchini stopped separate Braintree rushes, and the Stars kept constant pressure in the Braintree zone. The Stars' best chance for the go-ahead came on another blast by Will DeCoste. The goalie just tipped the puck with his glove just before it reached the top corner, and it ricocheted off the crossbar. The Stars played most of the last two minutes shorthanded after a tripping penalty, but Braintree couldn't capitalize. Nice plays by Jared McCrystal and Andrew Geddes denied potential breakaways, and Terrence Doonan threatened a short-hander from close range. But for the second time in as many games, the Stars were snake-bitten by a hot goalie.

Mite C3 (Ages 7 & 8)

Coastal Stars Mites C-3 extended their unbeaten streak to four games, remaining undefeated for the season. The team traveled across the Bridge to Gallo Ice Arena and sailed home with a 5-0 victory over the mites of Cape Cod I. The team's third shut out of the season came as the result of continued strong blue line play by defensemen Andrew Tautkus, Jake Denton, Ryan Davis and Robert Gargano. Goaltender, Garrett Leahy, was outstanding in net, stopping all the shots fired at him and denying the Cape Cod shooters on several breakaway attempts to preserve the shut out. The overall team hustle enabled the Coastal Stars to control and maintain the play in their offensive zone getting many quality shots on goal only to have many stopped by a "hot" Cape Cod goaltender. Max Hemingway opened the scoring for the Stars in the first period firing a hard wrist shot from just inside the right circle. The goal was the result of a strong effort and good passing by line mates Jeffery Powers and Brian Bowman to control the puck in the opponent's offensive zone. Mark McGoldrick chipped in a rebound of a blistering shot by Sam Topham for the Stars second goal of the period. The second period began with strong offensive zone play by Declan Leahy and Ryan Melia which resulted in a goal scored from the left circle by winger Curtis Golden to make the score 3-0. Ryan Melia continued his consecutive game goal scoring streak in the third period redirecting a shot fired by defenseman Hugh Healey past the Cape Cod net minder. Mark McGoldrick scored his second goal of the game late in the third period by slamming home the rebound of a whistling shot fired by center James Daley. Injured Star, Matthew Tautkus, supported his teammates from the stands anxiously awaiting his return to the ice. Teamwork combined with strong positional and hustling play has propelled the Stars to a great start of the season. The team looks to extend their undefeated season against W/H/K 1 next week. Great job Stars!

Building 19 cartoonist drawing on success

Mat Brown shares the tricks of his trade in library lecture

By Matthew J. Gill
MGILL@CNC.COM

Have you ever wanted to meet the man behind the quirky, creative, and often hilarious Building 19 advertising brochures?

You've seen Jerry Ellis, Building 19's founder creatively parodied in nearly all of the stores' drawings and brochure covers —but what about the man behind the cartoons?

On Nov. 19, local residents will get a chance to meet Scituate artist Mat Brown and see some of the work he's done during nearly four decades with Building 19 during the Scituate Arts Association's program "An Evening with Mat Brown." The program is the latest in the association's "Meet the Artist" series at the Scituate Town Library.

The discussion which will feature a display of several of Brown's favorite pieces from his years at Building 19, in addition to the stories behind them. The free program begins at 7 p.m.

While he's been working for Building 19 for almost 40 years, Brown's first career was in education.

As a math teacher at Scituate High School in 1967, Brown said he responded to an ad in the Building 19 circular seeking a part-time artist, and after a series of interviews and tests, he landed the job.

It was many years later that Brown learned he had been the only applicant for the position, which he still holds today.

"There's no titles at Building 19," he said, "I just draw the pictures."

When Brown started drawing sketches, creating artistic composites, and writing text for The South Shore's most famous over-supply store, it was open only three days a week, and Brown would sit down at his drawing board only after his day teaching math at Scituate High School was complete.

He kept up the schedule — teaching by day and drawing by afternoon —for ten years.

"It was a good job, because I always liked to cartoon," said Brown, who added that he considered the job would "give him something to do before [he] got a real job.

He never thought the store — and the artwork he drew for it would achieve the success it knows today.

"It was half-baked," said Brown. "It wasn't serious, but one thing led to another, and now it's a million dollar company."

When he first started, Brown said every aspect of the advertisements the company produced were completely drawn by hand.

"We put it together like you put together the junior high school newspaper," he said.

In 1978, Brown left teaching after 19 years in education to take on the artist's position full time.

The opportunity allowed his artwork to flourish, he said.

"I finally started doing good pictures. If you draw everyday you get better at it."

Today, Building 19 has 15 stores that are open everyday, and in order to properly advertise the store, Brown and a small team of artists produce one 24-page circular every week, in addition to store signs, radio advertisements, and occasional television spots.

The process for completing the ads has modernized since the early days, and an increased amount of computer work is used today, but the ads' charm —like the store itself —lies within their rough edges, Brown said.

"It's still a slap-dash operation," he said, "but it's funnier now than in the beginning."

"We try very hard to make it not look modern," he added.

At Building 19, each individual artist completes every aspect of an advertisement, from coming up with a creative concept or joke, to interviewing the merchant, drawing the artwork itself, and incorporating any and all text and photographs.

"And you have to be funny," Brown emphasized. "It's hard to find people [that can do all] that."

Scituate artist Mat Brown poses alongside one of his Building 19 works —the company's new calendar which features Building 19 owner Jerry Ellis inserted into various scenes from famous films.

Brown said The Building 19 circulars are very popular with store customers and many South Shore residents, and the artwork within their pages has earned Building 19 artists a variety of awards.

In 1998, The Boston Phoenix named Building 19's flyer "the best avant-garde newspaper supplement" of the year and in 2002, Brown's work was featured in Boston's ONI gallery.

Three of the artists who work alongside Brown in the art and advertisement department — Bill McGowan, Diane Houghton, and Bill White — are also from Scituate.

According to Brown, the reason the store is called Building 19 is simply because when Ellis was just getting started, he decided to rent some warehouse space for one day in the Hingham Shipyard.

It just happened to be called building #19.

Brown said he will discuss a host of humorous Building 19 tidbits like this one, at the meeting.

"As a former school teacher, I can talk until the cows come home."

Something for everyone at the Village Fair on the Common

Be sure to stop by Cohasset Common on from 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 6 for some good cheer and a great start to your holiday decorating and shopping. Hosted by four of the town's churches and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (ASP), the Village Fair has been a wonderful holiday tradition for more than 60 years.

Town crier John Coe will again be on hand to welcome visitors and direct people to the different attractions on and around the common.

"The Fair is a great way to start celebrating the season," says Coe. "So many people come and make a day of it, bumping into old friends and stopping for a bite to eat. Folks can do a little shopping and support local charities at the same time."

Volunteers from the First Parish Unitarian Church, Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Second Congregational Church, The Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church and ASP work together to create this holiday marketplace.

Inside the doors of the Second Congregational Church (next to Town Hall) you'll find a holiday boutique filled with beautiful hand-crafted holiday gifts and decorations. While you shop, children can visit the Kids' Craft Corner where they can make an ornament of their own. The church's popular New England chowder bar and bake table are always a great reason to stop by. And don't miss the churches Surf 'n Turf Raffle where fresh lobsters and filet mignon will be raffled off hourly beginning at 11 a.m.

Volunteers from the Greek Orthodox Church will transform Town Hall into a cozy Athenian Café featuring Greek pastries and delicacies, alongside an array of olives, oils and cheese. Visitors will also find beautiful holiday greens including fresh balsam wreaths and decorative boughs perfect for your front door. Volunteers will also offer a craft activity for children so adults can relax a bit while they eat and shop.

First Parish's Jumble Sale is back by popular demand offering pre-owned treasures of all kinds for adults and children. Stop by their Swedish Bake Shop for their popular home-made cinnamon buns, coffee, tea or hot chocolate. A small boutique will offer Table-top Christmas Trees in 12 in., 18 in. and 24 in. sizes in traditional Christmas designs as well as theme-oriented trees sure to delight lovers of birds, teddy bears, the sea shore and others. Visitors will also find delicious homemade soup mixes and a tree of new and used ornaments. Tickets will be on sale for the Annual Christmas Concert at First Parish held Dec. 14 at 4 p.m.

St. Stephen's Country Store is the place to find the perfect hostess gift and wonderful Herbes de Provence. Its Bake Shop is famous for its homemade toffee, fudge, cakes and pies, while their snack bar will offer donuts and bagels, hot dogs and homemade soups. Volunteers have been busy collecting hundreds of used books, CDs, tapes and videos for their popular Book Sale.

Santa Claus will be the guest of honor on the Common (or the Second Congregational Church Nursery, if it rains) from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Children can visit with Santa and have a picture taken by an ASP volunteer. And every child should be sure to visit the Secret Room at St. Stephen's Church where ASP volunteer elves help little ones select and wrap the perfect surprise for Mom and Dad, a sister or brother, even the family pet! All gifts are priced for a child's wallet and start at just 50 cents. Proceeds support ASP's home repair program.

Last, but not least, the Rusty Skippers will be performing their Annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church at noon the day of the fair. The Skippers have been preparing a variety of holiday selections sure to appeal to all ages. The concert is free, and a freewill offering will be taken for the Cohasset Food Pantry.

First Parish gears up for Village Fair

First Parish Unitarian Church is bustling with the preparation for its part in this year's Christmas Fair on the Common on Dec. 6. Its jumble sale and Swedish Bake Shop in the Parish House across from the Common will accompany the sale of table top trees, bean soup mix and an ornament sale — all surrounded by the excitement of the Rusty Skippers Band playing at noon and the annual Christmas concert ticket sale .

The famous jumble sale is back by popular demand in the newly renovated Parish House! Don't miss this great selection of pre-owned treasures of all kinds for adults and children. Accompanying this sale is the Swedish Bake Shop with cinnamon buns and coffee, tea and hot chocolate as well.

Tickets are available at the Parish House for the 25th First Parish Christmas Concert (concert date Dec. 14 at 4 p.m.) featuring Margo Euler and the Unicorn Singers performing John Rutter's "Magnificat," included is an audience-participation sing-a-long of familiar and less-familiar carols. The concert's beneficiary is the "Artist in Residence Program" at Mass. General Hospital — Hingham artist Joan Drescher and her "Imagination Kart" of art supplies help children with cancer express their feelings through art. Concert Patron donations of $50 or more may be sent to First Parish in Cohasset (two tickets included and published acknowledgement); advanced tickets at $10 go on sale Nov. 24 (781 383-1100); tickets are $12 at the door.

This year's concert is being dedicated to the late Rev. Ed Atkinson who conceived of the idea in 1978 to raise funds for a local charity. Proceeds over the past 24 years have benefited many local, regional, and international charitable organizations.

The First Parish Coming of Age youth group will be selling table-top Christmas trees in 12 ins., 18 ins. and 24 ins. sizes. These hand-decorated trees include traditional and fun Christmas designs as well as theme-oriented trees sure to delight lovers of animals, birds, sports, gardening, baking, the sea shore and teddy bears! The Coming of Age group will also sell its popular nine bean and barley soup mixes and a Christmas ornament sale too.

Jingle Bell walk is November 28

The South Shore Community Center invites family and friends to join in the holiday spirit at the Jingle Bell Walk. The Jingle Bell Walk, a Cohasset tradition offered by the SSCC, begins at 2 p.m. on Nov. 28, when Santa Claus arrives by boat with his elves at Cohasset Harbor (Border St.). After Santa distributes jingle bells to the children, he and his elves will board a hayride and the walk continues along the sidewalks of Elm to Main St. in Cohasset. At 2:30 p.m. the South Shore Community Center welcomes you to partake in cookies, a beverage, and a holiday-sing-along. Holiday music and carols will also be sung by all.

Santa will be upstairs in the Center to pose for pictures with you and your children. Please stroll through the village to share in the local shops' holiday ambiance.

At 3 p.m. on Cohasset Common there will be a "Turkey Tot Trot" for ages 3 to 10. You may pre-register for this event for $2 or post register the day of the event for $3 per participant. Proceeds will go to benefit the Nursery School. All participants will receive a prize!

Listen to the bells of St. Stephen's playing from 2:30 to 4 p.m., while enjoying a hayride around the Common. Hayrides will be available from 3 to 4 p.m. At 3:45 p.m. gather around the Cohasset Common to listen to the Rusty Skippers Marching Band. The festivities culminate on Cohasset Common at 4:15 p.m. with the lighting of the tree.

There is something for everyone this year at the Jingle Bell Walk. It's a great way to appreciate our picturesque surroundings, while involving the whole family in a Cohasset tradition.

In the event of rain, all outdoor activities will be cancelled and Santa will arrive in the Community Center Gym at 2 p.m.

Collecting box tops for education

The Deer Hill School has been participating in the Box Tops For Education program, sponsored by General Mills. It is a great opportunity for the school to earn extra money. They have slated the money earned, to purchase new books for the school library. The students have been collecting box tops from many General Mills products, and sending them into the company for cash! Last year alone, they collected more than $1,500 in box tops for the Deer Hill library. Their efforts earned the students an ice cream party for the entire school last spring! The prospect of purchasing some very needed books for the students, has greatly pleased Mrs. Murphy, the school librarian at Deer Hill.

Cohasset residents can participate in this program as well. Collecting the Box Tops for Education labels, found on many food products from General Mills, and sending them over to the Deer Hill library, will help the students earn new books.

People all over town have been collecting these box tops for the school. The employees of the Cohasset Recycling Center have been collecting the box tops as they take in cardboard boxes to be recycled. They were responsible for collecting more than one third of the funds earned this past year. Please thank them as you drop off you recycling each week. Deer Hill School appreciates their efforts, as well as the efforts of the students and their families.

The school is hoping that all residents will get into the box top groove. For more information, contact Pam Wilson-coordinator for the Deer Hill PSO at 781-383-3076.

Send in your school news

The Cohasset Mariner wants to develop a school news page to run every week. Short news items from teachers and school organizations are welcome. Photographs of events, accompanied with a short article or longer story are also sought. If you have "Stars of the Month", an interesting program or student volunteer effort, artwork, student writings, interesting field trip, or special projects, please share them with us.

Also, if you would like to request a photographer for your school event, please let us know. Contact editor Mary Ford at 781-741-2933. News items my be sent by email to mford@cnc.com or dropped off at Cohasset News on Brook Street in the village.

Buttonwood hosts Donna Green, Nov. 22

Buttonwood Books & Toys presents Donna Green, Author/Illustrator for "To My Son, With Love: A Mother's Memory Book" (Vermilion, $12.95) on Saturday, Nov. 22 from 2-4 p.m. at Buttonwood Books & Toys in Cohasset.

Green has recently completed her 14th book, "To My Son, With Love; A Mother's Memory Book", which follows the very successful "To My Daughter With Love", now in it's 24th printing. More than a record book of a child's life, each chapter is filled with gentle suggestions and artwork to help the reader/recorder reflect and write on important events. Both books are a tribute to the precious memories of the relationship with either a son or a daughter. Green's signature artwork is captured on dozens of new oil-on-canvas and watercolor paintings she has created especially for this book. Along with paintings of her son Adam, the book depicts many local children.

On Nov. 22 there will be a raffle for "The Pumpkin Patch" , a numbered, signed, limited edition print by Donna Green. Each Donna Green book purchased will qualify the buyer for a raffle ticket. The ticket will be entered into a drawing for the "The Pumpkin Patch". A selection of Green's other books will also be available. This is a free event and the public is welcome. Please call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 to order your signed copy or online at www.buttonwoodbooks.com if unable to attend.

Cohasset residents can participate in this program as well. Collecting the Box Tops for Education labels, found on many food products from General Mills, and sending them over to the Deer Hill library, will help the students earn new books.

People all over town have been collecting these box tops for the school. The employees of the Cohasset Recycling Center have been collecting the box tops as they take in cardboard boxes to be recycled. They were responsible for collecting more than one third of the funds earned this past year. Please thank them as you drop off you recycling each week. Deer Hill School appreciates their efforts, as well as the efforts of the students and their families.

The school is hoping that all residents will get into the box top groove. For more information, contact Pam Wilson-coordinator for the Deer Hill PSO at 781-383-3076.

Send in your school news

The Cohasset Mariner wants to develop a school news page to run every week. Short news items from teachers and school organizations are welcome. Photographs of events, accompanied with a short article or longer story are also sought. If you have "Stars of the Month", an interesting program or student volunteer effort, artwork, student writings, interesting field trip, or special projects, please share them with us.

Also, if you would like to request a photographer for your school event, please let us know. Contact editor Mary Ford at 781-741-2933. News items my be sent by email to mford@cnc.com or dropped off at Cohasset News on Brook Street in the village.

Buttonwood hosts Donna Green, Nov. 22

Buttonwood Books & Toys presents Donna Green, Author/Illustrator for "To My Son, With Love: A Mother's Memory Book" (Vermilion, $12.95) on Saturday, Nov. 22 from 2-4 p.m. at Buttonwood Books & Toys in Cohasset.

Green has recently completed her 14th book, "To My Son, With Love; A Mother's Memory Book", which follows the very successful "To My Daughter With Love", now in it's 24th printing. More than a record book of a child's life, each chapter is filled with gentle suggestions and artwork to help the reader/recorder reflect and write on important events. Both books are a tribute to the precious memories of the relationship with either a son or a daughter. Green's signature artwork is captured on dozens of new oil-on-canvas and watercolor paintings she has created especially for this book. Along with paintings of her son Adam, the book depicts many local children.

On Nov. 22 there will be a raffle for "The Pumpkin Patch", a numbered, signed, limited edition print by Donna Green. Each Donna Green book purchased will qualify the buyer for a raffle ticket. The ticket will be entered into a drawing for the "The Pumpkin Patch". A selection of Green's other books will also be available. This is a free event and the public is welcome. Please call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 to order your signed copy or online at www.buttonwoodbooks.com if unable to attend.

Police arrested seven in October

October was a very quiet month for the Cohasset Police Department. There were seven arrests, three for Malicious Destruction of Property, two for Assault and Battery, one for Possession of a Class D Substance, and finally one for Protective Custody, Police Chief Robert Jackson said.

During the month of October the police department investigated 19 motor vehicle accidents, four of which resulted in personal injury. There were 62 Motor Vehicle citations issued totaling $1,750 in fines. Additionally, there were 21 parking tickets issued for $600 in fines, Jackson said.

Also in the month of October the Emergency Dispatch Center received a total of 917 calls for police services, of those 108 were Emergency 9-1-1 calls, he said.

In the month of October there were no Breaking and Enterings. Additionally there were four Criminal Complaints issued for the month.

During the month the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau announced the Cohasset Police Department would be awarded a $7,000. Traffic Enforcement and Equipment Grant. This grant will fund five traffic mobilizations starting with the November Click it or Ticket mobilization from Nov. 10 to 30, and $3,000 for purchases of traffic enforcement equipment.

Police receive grant for traffic enforcement

Chief Robert W. Jackson announced the Cohasset Police Department received a $7,000 grant to conduct extra traffic enforcement during the second year of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau's (GHSB) Click It, or Ticket and You Drink & Drive. You Lose. Campaigns. The GHSB, a program of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Public Safety, is providing $2.2 million in grant funding for these two campaigns to 217 local police departments and to the State Police.

The first Click It or Ticket Mobilization will take place from Nov. 10 to 30. The first You Drink & Drive. You Lose. Mobilization will be from Dec. 15 to Jan. 4, 2004.

"This Click It or Ticket Mobilization will reduce the danger we all face from motor vehicle crashes during the heavily-traveled Thanksgiving Holiday period," said Chief Jackson . "In addition to preventing aggressive and impaired driving and speeding, this mobilization will allow us to increase compliance with the Massachusetts safety belt and child passenger safety laws so more people will be protected."

The GHSB's Click It or Ticket and You Drink & Drive. You Lose. Campaigns, made possible by federal highway safety grants, combine traffic enforcement, public information, as well as community education. The Click It or Ticket Campaign helped to increase safety belt use from 51 percent in 2002 to 62 percent in 2003. For more information, go to www.mass.gov/ghsb.

There were four motor vehicle crashes that resulted in four fatalities during the four-day Thanksgiving Holiday period in Massachusetts in 2002.

Chief Jackson provided the following information on safety belts, booster seats and child safety seats:

• Safety belts reduce the risk of death or serious injury in a motor vehicle crash by up to half. Yet a 2003 statewide survey conducted by the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau found only 62 percent of front seat occupants wear safety belts in Massachusetts as compared to 79 percent belt use nationwide. The lowest usage rate was among teen drivers at 58 percent.

• Massachusetts law requires all drivers and passengers to be properly restrained in a safety belt, booster seat or child safety seat. A driver may be stopped by police solely for having a child 12 years of age or younger improperly restrained ($25 fine per unbuckled occupant).

• Massachusetts law requires children under five and weighing 40 pounds or less to ride properly secured in a child safety seat. Children five and older and weighing more than 40 pounds must wear a safety belt. For maximum safety, children 40 to 80 pounds should ride in a booster seat. Children over 80 pounds and taller than 4 feet 9 inches are ready for an adult safety belt.

• Children 12 years of age and under, especially those riding in a rear-facing child safety seat, should always ride properly restrained in the back seat away from an air bag.

'Fence-gate' results in DA ousting police prosecutor

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

What the arresting officer described at the time as a "minor altercation" outside the American Legion Hall on Summer Street on a Saturday night in October involving the police chief's son continues to have major reverberations at the Cohasset Police Department.

After conducting an investigation, the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office has removed the Cohasset police prosecutor, Officer Rick Grassie, from Quincy District Court because he didn't sign a complaint involving the arrest of the police chief's son, Keith A. Jackson, and two other men. The complaint, therefore, did not go forward and there would have been no court record of the proceedings.. The men were arrested following an alleged fight at the Legion Post during which they reportedly broke the railing to the handicapped ramp.

Grassie's action caught the attention of the Norfolk County District Attorney's office that convinced Judge Mark Coven to issue the complaint. Keith Jackson and the two others involved in the incident at the Legion, Jerry Cogill of Cohasset and Adam Thibault of Hingham, were scheduled to be arraigned in court this morning on the charge of malicious destruction of property (valued over $250). The court proceeding is taking place more than a month after the men were arrested the night of Oct. 11.

"I continue to have the utmost confidence in Rick Grassie as a police officer."
— Town Manager Mark Haddad

Grassie had held the post of court prosecutor for 18 months. Chief Robert Jackson appointed Grassie to the specialty position that includes an annual stipend of about $1,250 and a regular daytime schedule with weekends and holidays off, after Jackson became chief in March 2002 when Brian Noonan retired.

The Norfolk County District Attorney's office has jurisdiction over police prosecutors. The DA's office had a State Trooper present Chief Jackson with a letter late Thursday afternoon, informing him Grassie was out as police prosecutor.

"The DA in each county has complete jurisdiction over who is the prosecutor in criminal matters unless the Attorney General asserts jurisdiction over a matter," said David Traub, spokesman for the DA's office.

Grassie is out sick until the end of the week, according to sources close to the police department. Grassie did not return phone calls to his home from the Mariner.

Town Manager Mark Haddad did not want to speculate on the DA's reasons for dismissing Grassie from the court. "But I continue to have the utmost confidence in Rick Grassie as a police offi-

Voters give nod to Cook estate

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

With senior housing projects being proposed in various locations around town, voters seemed hesitant at first to approve the purchase of the Cook Estate at Monday night's Special Town Meeting. However, after much discussion and a change of motion on the floor, voters passed article four and the process of finding potential developers for the site can begin.

Voters were asked to approve the allocation of $4.5 million for the purchase of the 22-acre Cook parcel of land, which would be marketed and sold to a developer with the adjacent 8.7 acres of town property for $5.2 million for senior housing. There would be a double closing, transferring the property from the Cooks to the developer, and therefore no money would be expended by the town.

The Cook Estate purchase was one of 15 articles of business before Town Meeting which voters tackled over two nights this week.

During the Cook discussion, Tom Gruber, 8 Pratt Court, made the point that the motion on the warrant did not specify the selectmen could not spend

Turkeys have their own Thanksgiving

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The wild turkey is one of the best comeback stories.

And at no place was that more evident than in a clearing in Wompatuck State Park on Tuesday, when four wild turkeys were released in a ceremony that celebrated the 30th anniversary of wild turkey restoration in the state.

One by one the large gobblers were released from the boxes in which they were transported. Then with a big swoosh and lots of applause from bystanders, the impressive birds swooped up into the sky and flew to nearby woods.

The gathering, which was hosted by the National Wild Turkey Federation and the state Division of Fisheries and Wildlife, included hunters, interested citizens, and a handful of elementary schoolchildren from the South Shore Charter School in Hull.

State Secretary of Environmental Affairs Ellen Roy Herzfelder said it best when she opened her remarks by saying, "Let's talk turkey!"

Roy Herzfelder made the event a family affair with her husband, Bruce Herzfelder, and children, Julia, 5, and Desmond, 2-1/2, all of Cohasset, who came along to see the turkeys released.

Decisions etched in concrete

Voters say no to buried wires, brick walkways

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

When construction begins on the downtown streetscape, burying the wires and adding brick sidewalks will not be among the improvements.

The voters have spoken and rejected both proposals at Monday's session of Town Meeting. Instead, voters gave the nod to used colored concrete on the walkways.

Peter Pratt, 75 Ripley Road, who sits on the planning board and spoke as a resident, reminded those in attendance of a special election held in January which tallied a final vote of 750 opposed to burying the wires, in contrast to 350 in favor.

"The taxpayers voted against it at the beginning of the year," he said, adding he wishes the selectmen well in their efforts, but doesn't see how it will pass when the people have already made up their minds.

"I think it is bad public policy. The town has spoken on this."
— Rob Spofford ,
14 Heather Drive

Rob Spofford, 14 Heather Drive, who is school building committee chairman, said he felt having the article come up at town meeting was a "do-over" which did not honor the requests of all the voters who came out to vote the last time.

"I think it is bad public policy. The town has spoken on this," he said.

Andrew Quigley, 38 Jerusalem Road, had stronger words than Spofford and said, "It's absolutely shameful because it's nothing different from what they've already voted down."

Selectman Fred Koed, who presented the article, said Monday night's vote provided an alternate means of financing the project, but it was not enough to sway voters. Paying for the project through a surcharge on utility bills, as was proposed, did not go over well with the majority of people in attendance.

When it was decided the utility poles would stay, voters were given the second option of deciding on streetscape materials. Brick, the more expensive option, could be chosen only if the wires were not buried, because the town does not have the money available in the budget to cover both.

Tom Gruber, 8 Pratt Court, asked how much would be added to the cost of the project, should brick sidewalks be chosen, and Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris informed the group that figure was $250,000. If concrete was chosen, the sidewalks could be extended to expand the area in the revitalization project, she said. The $1.6 million revitalization project is being paid for through grants. By using concrete sidewalks, the town will have a $325,000 surplus that can be used to extend the sidewalk along Deport Court.

Flu vaccine is still available

Flu vaccine is still available at the Cohasset Public Health Nurse office at the Town Hall during the nurse's walk-in office hours: Mon/Wed/Thurs 8:30-11 a.m.

It is urged that the following groups at risk for complications from influenza be immunized:

A yearly flu shot is recommended for the following groups of people who are at increased risk for serious complications from the flu:

Σ persons over 50;

Σ residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities that house persons of any age who have long-term illnesses; adults and children over 6 months of age who have chronic heart or lung conditions, including asthma;

Σ adults and children over 6 months of age who need regular medical care or had to be in a hospital because of metabolic diseases (like diabetes), chronic kidney disease, or weakened immune system (including immune system problems caused by medicine or by infection with human immunodeficiency virus [HIV/AIDS]);

Σ children and teenagers (aged 6 months to 18 years) who are on long-term aspirin therapy and therefore could develop Reye Syndrome after the flu; and women who will be more than 3 months pregnant during the flu season.

Σ People 50-64 years of age who do not have chronic (long-term) medical conditions might not be at high risk for serious complications from the flu. However, about 26 percent of people aged 50-64 years have high-risk conditions and are at increased risk for flu-related complications. Beginning in 2000, a flu shot was recommended for all people 50-64 years old each year to increase the number of high-risk 50-64 year olds who get a flu shot.

Σ Because young, otherwise healthy children are at increased risk for influenza-related hospitalization, influenza vaccination of healthy children aged 6-23 months is encouraged when feasible.

Cohasset to host Wrestling Tournament

Cohasset High School will host the 2004 Division 3 State Wrestling Finals on Feb. 20-21, the weekend at the end of February Vacation.

The school was contacted by the M.I.A.A. Wrestling Committee and asked to host the tournament, which Athletic Director Ronald Ford said he sees as not only an opportunity to showcase the school's new facilities and outstanding wrestling program, but an opportunity for the school's food service, athletic department and the Cohasset Wrestling Booster's to raise some funds.

In addition, because the tournament spans the entire weekend and students from all over the state are invited to participate, Ford said families spending the weekend for the tournament could provide a boost to the local economy.

An M.I.A.A. wrestling tournament host agreement will be signed by the school, which says a stipend will be paid by the M.I.A.A. to cover costs of hiring personnel to work the tournament.

School Committee Vice Chairman Chartis Tebbetts said this tournament could be used as an opportunity to set up a template to gauge how events of this magnitude should be handled in the future, and perhaps if things go smoothly, the tournament can be held in town again.

Ford said the tournament has been hosted in Wayland for many years, and the School Committee approved moving the event to Cohasset providing the proper custodial help and police presence is provided.

Ford said a tournament committee will be formed which will consist of Jack DeLorenzo, Torin Sweeney, Bob Levy, Tony Rolfe, a representative from the Cohasset Wrestling Boosters, and Ford, who will plan and run the tournament.

Hedlund holds Town Hall hours

The November office hours for Senator Robert Hedlund will be held at the Cohasset Town Hall on Thursday. Nov. 20 from 12 to 1 p.m. on the second floor in the 2A vestibule.

Hedlund also maintains a district office at 66 Sea St., North Weymouth that is accessible Monday through Friday for constituents and appointments with the senator. The telephone number is 781-340-9866 or at the Statehouse 617-722-1646.

Water commission appeals ZBA approval of Avalon project

The Water Commission has filed an appeal in state Land Court of the Zoning Board of Appeal's Oct. 27 approval of the 200-unit Avalon housing development.

"We are taking this action because we must," said John McNabb, chairman of the Water Commission. "because the Avalon housing development threatens to contaminate our public drinking water supply, and because the ZBA has not just improperly approved this ill-advised project, but also, in their final written decision, has failed woefully to impose sufficient conditions to minimize the adverse impacts Avalon will have on our drinking water supply."

The Water Commission's attorney said the project cannot move ahead while the appeal is pending.

"The filing of this appeal today stops the Avalon project dead in its tracks," said Kevin O'Donnell. "We are confident that we can convince the Court that the ZBA decision was improperly made and that if the decision is allowed to stand that Avalon will cause environmental damage."

The Water Commission unanimously supports the appeal, said McNabb. In the appeal, the Water Commission asserts that:

Σ Lily Pond is in an eutrophic state and thereby is under great stress, threatening the current water supply. The granting of the comprehensive permit specifically impacts the Water Commission by allowing additional nutrient loading, further stressing Lily Pond and further degrading drinking water quality for the Town's drinking water supply supplied to the citizens of the Town.

Σ Avalon's wastewater disposal plan is insufficiently developed, inadequately investigated and not sufficiently tested to give the Board an adequate basis to determine whether the site is suitable for the new wastewater disposal plan. Avalon has failed to meet its burden of establishing that the new wastewater disposal plan will function in a satisfactory manner for this housing development on this site

Σ Hazardous waste contamination has been identified in the soil and groundwater at the site. The wastewater treatment facility effluent disposal may impact these areas, through groundwater mounding or altered groundwater flow direction, causing increased risk of contaminant migration which would render the proposed effluent disposal site unsuitable.

Σ The ZBA Decision removes all of the conditions pertaining to the wastewater treatment facility that the Board's consultant, Edwards & Kelsey, had previously proposed. These conditions have been relegated to a list of potential suggestions that a peer review consultant may propose to the DEP for consideration. Many of these items, such as providing more frequent effluent monitoring and setting more stringent effluent standards, had previously been suggested by Avalon, or agreed to by Avalon, during the ZBA hearing process.

The appeal is not unexpected. Both the ZBA and Avalon have said they expected the ZBA decision to be appealed.

McNabb said the Water Commission believes it has standing to appeal because the water department has permanent easements on the Avalon property. He also said the project would harm the water resource that the Water Commission has a legal right to protect.

Town counsel pleads his case at special Town Meeting Monday

Voters reconsider pay issue for attorney

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

A wave of panic must have come over both the Board of Selectmen and attorney Paul DeRensis, when residents voted against allocating funds to pay for services completed by Deutch, Williams, Brooks, and DeRensis, the firm the town contracts with as Town Counsel on Monday. However, at approximately 10:30 the same evening, a motion was made to reconsider the vote, and was then adopted by Town Meeting

Perhaps it was because it was the first article of the first night, but initially, the topic did not generate much discussion. The article was explained to voters as being money to cover legal expenses not budgeted for the year, including some zoning board cases which went to trial.

However, when the vote was taken, moderator George Marlette was unable to tell if there was 9/10ths approval, which was required. A hand count was taken with 154 in favor and 42 opposed, and the motion was defeated.

"I think people expected it to pass," said Selectman Michael Sullivan on why he thought the vote didn't carry the first time.

However, the article was brought up again by Leland Jenkins, 198 Jerusalem Road, who had voted against it initially, but thought the topic deserved more discussion. Some residents stood up to state their support for the article, including Bob Sturdy, who sits on the planning board.

"We have to spend the money necessary to defend the town, or you're not going to like what happens in your backyard," he said, noting he spoke as a private citizen and not on behalf of the planning board.

"I seldom agree with Bob Sturdy, but I do now, you pay your debts," said Steve Bobo, Board of Health chairman.

Added Murray Campbell of 75 Old Pasture Road: "We have an excellent Town Manager and he needs to feel he has some flexibility and the means to back him up."

In addition, Town Counsel Paul DeRensis, came forward to ask voters to change their minds.

"We were asked to do the work, we did the work. People in our office did a lot of work to defend Cohasset. We're innocent parties in this. Please pay us."

Those still in attendance voted again, and this time approved the allocation of $73,471 to be paid to Town Counsel for legal services.

TOWN MEETING BRIEFS

Composting commode causes a stir in hallway

When walking toward the doors of the Sullivan Gymnasium Monday night, those who had come for Town Meeting were greeted by various maps and handouts for projects in town, which provided more information to ensure informed votes were cast. However, what many voters may not have expected to see was a composting toilet on a white tiled table, serving as a model for what could be installed in Cook estate bathrooms.

Board of Health Chairman Steve Bobo had pushed for composting toilets at a few meetings leading up to Town Meeting and got the OK to set up a display for voters. While it will be up to potential developers to decide whether composting toilets will be a part of their plans or not, at least now there are a few more people in Cohasset who are familiar with the concept.

Voters OK'ed the purchase of the Cook Estate that will be developed into housing for senior citizens.

What changed on the Warrant?

While voters may have expected to see 20 articles discussed over the two nights of Town Meeting, last minute changes left only 15 articles to be addressed. Article 9 was reserved for the Community Preservation Committee in case any projects came forward that Town Meeting would need to vote on.

While Selectmen had asked the CPC to consider funding the due diligence for the Cook property, it declined. No matters were before the CPC, so it had nothing to recommend and the article was dropped.

Article 10 which dealt with the private way capital account was not necessary because that money was shifted into the reserve fund in article 3 to help offset the school utility costs which were over budget. The article was therefore unnecessary.

Article 18 was discussed at length, but because the meeting was dissolved before a vote was taken, it is as if the article never came forward. Articles 19 and 20 were going to be dropped on the floor because the Planning Board did not take action on them prior to the meeting, so they were therefore unable to be voted on.

Fire department will get new ladder truck

Voters approved the appropriation of $660,000 for a new ladder truck at Town Meeting Tuesday, but it wasn't without some discussion. Fire Chief Roger Lincoln asked for the funding to replace the 1978 truck, which has had many problems over the years.

While he said he wasn't for or against the purchase of the truck, Leland Jenkins, 198 Jerusalem Road, said he didn't feel he had heard enough information on why the town needs a new ladder truck, and motioned to indefinitely postpone the article.

"How many buildings can't be serviced with sprinklers?" he asked. He also wanted to know if the truck will go out on every call, if there will always be someone to man the truck. He asked if anyone talked to neighboring towns about mutual aid.

"I think there needs to be more thought before we spend," he said, adding a group of taxpayers might want to take over the role of independently investigating the need for a new truck.

Lincoln explained having a ladder truck isn't as much for height, as it is for reach. When obstacles like fences and stone walls are in the way, the trucks need to have the reach of a good ladder to get at it.

"I'm one of the guys you pay to fight the fires, so I can give you a quick answer," said Robert Silvia, 65 Forest Avenue. He explained that Cohasset relies on mutual aid all the time and when there is a big fire, the town is not equipped to handle it alone. Cohasset teams up with Hingham, Scituate and Hull on a regular basis and all the towns help each other out.

He also explained the way the department fights fires now, is to ventilate a building to let the heat out, so the fire can be fought from the inside. Without letting some of the heat and smoke out the top, which often requires cutting a hole in the roof or breaking windows up high, the firefighters on scene cannot enter the building to put the blaze out. The ladder truck is the only way to reach that height.

"It's a safety issue," he said.

In addition, Fred Siegel, 4 Bates Lane, said his house burnt down three years ago and a ladder truck was absolutely a necessity for the department.

"The homes in this town deserve a truck that can do the job properly," he said.

Jenkins' motion was defeated and the department can look forward to receiving its new truck.

Wompatuck Park ceremony honors wild turkey comeback

"It's the only bird that has a national holiday in its honor, and that's extraordinary," she said. "But it hasn't always been a good news story."

In fact by the 1930s, wild turkeys that numbered in the millions before colonial settlers arrived centuries earlier, had dwindled down to only 30,000 birds nationwide due to loss of habitat and unregulated hunting.

But today thanks to volunteers from the National Wild Turkey Federation and the state Division of Fisheries and Wildlife, there are more than 20,000 wild turkeys in Massachusetts and 6 million in North America.

Hunters have also helped in the restoration effort through fees on hunting equipment that are earmarked for conservation.

In the early 1970s, MassWildlife obtained permission from the state of New York to trap wild turkeys there that were to be released in southern Berkshire County. Over the years, birds from that growing population were then transplanted to other parts of the state.

Today, the birds are a common sight on the South Shore.

A self-professed turkey fan, Holly Weber, 8, of Hull released the first bird during Tuesday's ceremony.

"It was kind of scary," she said about the gobbler that took off.

State wildlife biologist, James Cardoza, who did the field work and played an integral role in developing the plan in the state to bring the wild turkey back, was gratified to see youngsters show such an interest in the birds.

"I like to see young people enthusiastic — they're the key to our future," he said.

James Earl Kennamer of the NWTF fielded questions from the children, ranging from how a baby turkey breathes inside its egg to the life expectancy of a wild turkey.

"They can run at 45 mph and fly at 45 mph," Kennamer said. "Their eyesight is excellent and they hear very well.

"They like to eat acorns, bugs and even lizards."

Dozens gather at Hingham's Wompatuck State Park to watch the ceremonial release of wild turkeys on Tuesday. The wild turkey is one of the great comeback stories, officials said.

Thanksgiving history facts from the NWTF:

Σ At the first Thanksgiving in 1621, it is not certain if turkeys were served. Historical reports state only that fowl was served.

Σ Thanksgiving was an irregular event after the first Thanksgiving Day in 1621. The day was set aside by a proclamation of the governor of a colony or state until the President of the United States assumed the duty when Thanksgiving became an annual event.

Σ In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln appointed the national day of Thanksgiving. Since then each president has issued a Thanksgiving Day Proclamation, usually designating the fourth Thursday of each November as the holiday.

Σ Benjamin Franklin did not suggest our national symbol be the wild turkey until after the three attempts it took to come up with the bald eagle. Only after the selection process did Franklin say he admired the turkey and enjoyed a good turkey dinner. He also wrote, "I wish the bald eagle had not been chosen as the representative of our country...the turkey is a much more respectable bird, and withal a true original native of America.

Cohasset brothers run (and swim and bike) for their lives

Pair completes Florida triathlon

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

"Anything is possible."

That is the motto of the Ironman competition, an intense triathlon, which pushes contestants to their physical limits as they swim, bike and run their way toward the finish line.

But for Cohasset residents and brothers, John and Bill Cavanaro, who have just completed an Ironman competition, their sense of accomplishment and pride cannot compare with the gratitude they feel for those who supported their efforts along the way.

On Wednesday Nov. 5, John and Bill packed up their wet suits and bikes, and hopped in the car to make the 1,550 mile drive down to Panama City Beach, Fla. Both participated in the challenging 2.4 mile swim, 112 mile bike ride and 26.2 mile run.

"The Ironman has always been a dream of ours," said John, adding he and Bill have worked their way up to the Ironman competition over the years by participating in various athletic competitions, including marathons. Bill has run nine Boston Marathons and John has run eight, and both have run four New York City Marathons. In addition, the two have both been competing in various smaller triathlons since 1992.

"It takes this long to slowly build up to it," said John, adding it would be very hard to wake up one morning decide to start training for a triathlon.

But both say the training that goes into preparing for a challenge such as the Ironman, is harder than the actual competition itself and they wouldn't be able to compete at all if it weren't for the support they receive at home.

John and Bill Cavanaro with their Ironman triathlon medals.

"It needs so much support. You can't do anything in Ironman alone," John said, adding as life goes on its regular course, it's a real adjustment for family and friends to cope with their rigorous training schedule. Both men have committed to a lifestyle where exercise is a focal point and maintaining a level of fitness means dedicating a portion of every day to working out. Both watch what they eat carefully to make sure they are in the best shape possible with foods high in nutrition serving as their fuel.

"We don't drink, we're not big social butterflies," said Bill, adding events like the Ironman are the kinds of activities the two really look forward to.

"For us to go out and run, bike, and swim, it's a treat for us," said John.

"We love doing it," Bill added.

But the brothers say the real unsung heroes are the families and co-workers who "Support the habit," jokes John.

"The commitment other people make to allow us to do this in incredible," said John, adding both he and Bill have businesses they run as well as families. John and his wife Sandra have three children, Timmy, 7, Joe, 5 and Jane, 2. Bill and his wife Cindy have two children, Casey, 14 and Jeff, 11.

"They're our biggest fans," said John, although he said he thinks both families would like to see the men compete in shorter competitions.

As the date of the Ironman drew near, workouts became more and more intense. The brothers worked on two of the three events each day, which could mean an hour and a half swim followed by a four to six hour bike ride. The following day, they might run for 20 miles. If the two are at work, they may sneak out during lunch and swim for an hour, having run that morning prior to coming in. However, because the brothers work so close to each other, last minute plans for a quick workout are never a problem. Bill owns Cohasset Collision on Rte. 3A and John's engineering consulting business is located in the same building.

But the most intense workouts always take place during the weekends, with back to back workouts that begin at 3:30 a.m. and sometimes last for around 10 hours.

"Your body has to rest," said John, adding while they always build up their workouts to the most intense by the end of the week, they reserve Monday as a day to relax so as to avoid injury. But on Tuesday, it's back to work and the exercise cycle starts up again.

Living in Cohasset, the two agree they have the most beautiful place to train, and have come to know its streets and ocean waters very well, having traversed them so many times.

"One time we swam from Sandy Beach to Minot Light," John recalled.

But no matter how much the two prepare before a competition, they realize others are also ready for the challenge. "Everyone's in shape. It comes down to an eating contest," John said.

While eating right is part of their everyday lifestyle — during the marathon, what you eat can make or break the race. The men say they have to eat all day long to keep their energy up, which includes a lot of energy bars and gels, which John describes as almost "like eating apple pie filling." The men drink a lot of Gatorade, which Bill said is to keep electrolytes up, and they take salt tablets throughout the course of the day.

Both men completed the 17 hour triathlon in less than the allocated finish time, with Bill coming in at 13 hours, and John at 11. While they'll leave it up to the professionals to take first place, they enjoy being able to participate and set goals together.

"As brothers, we've always gotten along great," Bill said, and enjoys having this common thread between them.

"We're lucky," said John. "Plenty of people do it alone, but it wouldn't be as much fun."

Even though the memories are still vivid of their latest competition, the two say they don't see any end in sight to their triathlon days just yet.

"We have to have goals and we have to keep going. That's just the kind of people we are," Bill said.

On the day the two got back from Florida, they started talking about trying to reserve spots for the Hawaiian Ironman competition, which Bill said is the "Granddady of all Ironmen competitions," because it brings the competition home to where it started in 1978.

In the meantime, the two have medals they earned at the Florida Ironman competition that serve as a reminder of their accomplishment. But the humble brothers say they're "just regular guys," and it's the people behind the scenes that really deserve the credit for all they have achieved.

"We get all the accolades. The people who don't get that are our friends and family. They deserve the medal," said John.

"Well said," said Bill.

Town meeting voters give nod to Cook estate

the $4.5 million until a suitable buyer was found, and suggested amending the motion. Wayne Sawchuk, 432 Beechwood St., then suggested a second amendment to raise the $4.5 million to $5 million, to ensure the town gets paid for its parcel of land, but Sawchuk's amendment was voted down. Gruber's amendment to the motion was approved and Cook purchase was approved by a two-thirds vote.

The next day Town Manager Mark Haddad met with Drew Leff of GLC consulting to get the process started, and the final draft of the Request for Proposals is being put together, complete with charts, graphs, and pictures, to be advertised beginning next Wednesday.

The Cook Estate purchase generated nearly two hours of debate. Selectman Michael Sullivan presented the article and reminded voters the Cooks will sell the property to someone else, if the town doesn't buy the site.

"The best way to control a piece of property is to own it," he said.

Sullivan said the project would be a positive for the town because the combination of the two properties increases the value of the town land and allows more of that land to remain undeveloped. Portions of the town parcel will serve as a buffer zone to neighbors of the development.

Sullivan also said the town needs to pursue senior housing because there is no way to tell what the outcome will be from other senior housing projects proposed around town.

"We have one [senior housing project] in the proposal stage. We don't know if it will come on line. They're required to hook up to sewer and they've been denied," Sullivan said about the proposed Cedarmere development. "Avalon has been granted conditional approval by the Zoning Board of Appeals, but they need a DEP permit, and we don't know what will happen there," he said.

Sullivan said if the town passes on the Cook property based on other projects that may or may not move forward, the town is at risk of not having enough senior housing and may open the door to the development of single-family homes which could add more children to the schools.

Leonora Jenkins, 198 Jerusalem Road, asked how many affordable units would be offered and what the requirements would be for qualifying to live in them. She mentioned the Harborview Apartments located off Elm Street and asked how the Cook project would be different from those apartments, monetarily speaking.

Plans are for about 85 units to be developed on the property including market-rate and affordable apartments and market-rate condominiums.

Sullivan explained there will be roughly 14 apartments deemed affordable by state low-income standards and 14 by moderate-income standards, for a total of 28 affordable rental units. The state mandates what is considered affordable and rents have to reflect that. Because there is such a shortage of rental units, all 42 rentals — including the market rate units — would count toward the affordable housing stock in Cohasset, which would lead the town toward the 10 percent affordability threshold it needs to meet to be out from under the threat of more 40B projects.

While developers will draft their own proposals and the actual number of units may differ slightly than has been proposed, the RFP will provide guidelines for the contractors to follow, he said.

Kathy Bryanton of the Council on Elder Affairs expanded on Jenkins' comment and said currently, the town has 64 units of state subsidized housing with the Harborview Apartments.

Bryanton said she supports the project because the town needs more senior housing to keep seniors in the community. She said 25 percent of the town's population is over the age of 60 and she's "seen many people move to Duxbury," because they had no place else to go.

"Never before have we had such a large number of seniors coming on board. It's like a freight train coming at us," she said. Bryanton went on to say, "It would make Jane Cook very proud to see this happen," knowing how much support she gave to seniors in the community before she passed away.

Upwards of 200 voters listen to debate on the Cook Estate and whether to bury the village wires during the first session of Town Meeting on Monday.

Kathleen Guinee, 11 Surry Drive, asked what would happen to the Cook house currently located on the property once development begins. Leff said depending on the proposals brought forth by developers, contractors may choose to transform the current residence into a clubhouse for the development, or not include it in the plans.

But with the added volume of homes off of Sohier Street, Bill White, 162 Sohier St., said he worried about what the impact on traffic would be. Stating the street already has cars traveling to Osgood, Deer Hill, the library, the Music Circus and the swim center, not to mention emergency vehicles who use the street, he wanted to know how can the town be assured traffic won't be an issue.

Sullivan said historically senior housing projects generate the least amount of traffic of any development because many seniors have retired and are on a different schedule than those heading off to school or work in the morning. He said it would generate much less traffic than a development of single family homes.

But Edward Woods, 231 Jerusalem Road, said it was a "cut and dry issue," because the property is going to be sold no matter what and the town should take advantage of the opportunity it has in front of it.

The town agreed. Moderator George Marlette ruled the motion passed, and many residents clapped their hands in support of the town's newest senior housing project.

Taffy Nothnagle, 36 Atlantic Ave., said she was against brick not because of the cost, but because of the safety issues it poses. She said for handicapped individuals who need to use wheelchairs or walkers, it is not the best material to navigate on. She said she slipped and fell last winter on paving stone and broke her shoulder and would feel better even having a combination of materials with concrete as the main paving material for safety's sake. With so many projects also focusing on seniors around town, their safety should be a major consideration as well, she said.

If the project is all or nothing, she said she would have to vote against brick.

Peggy Chapman, 25 Virginia Lane, who sits on the board of health, but spoke as a resident, agreed brick is much more slippery and said she wondered if it would be harder to remove snow in the winter.

McMorris said she had spoken with the DPW and was told they would prefer concrete specifically for the reason of snow removal.

Ralph Dormitzer, 111 Atlantic Ave., backed using brick for aesthetic reasons and noted how the concrete used in Scituate Harbor looks "sterile." But he failed to persuade a majority of voters.

Food drive underway at CMHS

The Cohasset High School Social Awareness Organization is sponsoring its 10th annual food drive. We would like to invite the members of our community to participate in this event. All items will be donated to the Cohasset Food Pantry. This event continues through Nov. 26. It would be greatly appreciated if you could donate any of the following:

- Toilet paper
- Shampoo/conditioner
- Soap
- Tooth paste
- Dish or laundry detergent
- Mustard
- Ketchup
- Relish
- Mayonnaise
- Canned fruit
- Coffee grounds
- Spaghetti sauce
- Tuna
- Boxed macaroni and cheese
- Cookies
- Crackers
- Chips
- Granola bars

Collection boxes are located at the main entrance of the Cohasset High School. The CHS Social Awareness Organization says many thanks and have a Happy Thanksgiving.

Illegal apartments will stay that way

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Turning an illegal apartment into an affordable rental unit recognized by the state will not be an option for Cohasset residents. Article 15, which would have provided an alternate means for the town to count what it already has toward the 10 percent affordability threshold it has to meet per order of the state, was voted down Tuesday night, but by the smallest margin possible.

Because the bylaw requires a two-thirds vote to pass, the 63 residents who voted in favor of the bylaw were not enough to cancel out the 33 who were not. By only one vote, the motion was defeated.

"These units are here now, we just think they should count for us," said Selectman Tom Callahan who also sits on the Growth and Development Committee and has worked on the draft Master Plan. He said the Selectmen were in favor of the bylaw by a majority of 3-2, and it is an innovative solution to the affordable housing problem the town is facing.

Selectman Michael Sullivan was one of the two who were not in favor of the bylaw.

"To legalize apartments that are now illegal seems contrary to what the town wants," he said, adding he doesn't think the bylaw is in the town's best interest.

Andrew Quigley, 38 Jerusalem Road, asked why the town is discounting the 200 units approved for Avalon, which would bring the town very close to meeting the criteria it needs to meet from the state.

Callahan said because the Water Commission owns property near the proposed project, it is considered an abutter and can file an appeal, which it has done.

"Avalon is not permitted today," he said. However, Callahan added assuming the project does get developed, the town will still be short by 5 affordable units, at least for now. Because the affordable component is based on a sliding scale which is proportionate to the number of homes in town, the more single family development, the more affordable housing needs to be built.

"It continues to be a moving target," he said.

However, Quigley said zoning is what defines a community and the town might want to "Stop, take a breath and see the overall game plan," adding if the town voted in favor of the Cook estate project the night before, that is another means to reach the end goal which should be considered.

Stuart Ivimey, 7 Sankey Raod, who is Community Preservation Committee Chairman but spoke as a resident, said if he understood correctly, "Does this do nothing more than take a look at the status quo?" He said currently, no one is complaining about illegal apartments, so this would provide the means to take a look at what the town has and use it. "It doesn't create anything," he said.

Planning Board member Peter Pratt said Ivimey was right, the bylaw would not create any new dwellings and would give the Zoning Board of Appeals the power to make illegal apartments legal if they want.

There was a motion to close discussion followed by a vote which was too close to call and a hand count had to be conducted. It was ruled at a loss of one vote and no one asked for a recount.

LIBRARY CORNER

Literature contest

The Center for the Book in the Library of Congress in partnership with Target Stores presents, "Letters About Literature," a national reading and writing contest for children and young adults. To enter Letters about Literature, think about a book that inspired you, then write a personal letter to the author and explain why.

The letter should not summarize the plot, but should explain how the book impacted or made a difference in your life.

This contest is for grades 4-12, and is broken up into three levels. The submission deadline for all levels is Dec. 6. The top essayist on each competition level will receive a cash award and a $50 Target GiftCard. The first place winners in each state Will then advance for national judging. Contest entry forms and rules are available in the Young Adult Room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library and online at www.loc.gov/letters. Bring all entries and completed forms to Mrs. Moody for mailing on or before Dec. 4.

Chittick exhibit

The work of Cohasset artist JoAnne Chittick will be exhibited at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library from now through Dec. 31.

The subjects of these luminous, colorful watercolors include familiar South Shore coastal scenes, still life arrangements, flowers, and a variety of boats. In her paintings, Ms. Chittick depicts the effect of light on form, as it defines shapes and creates interesting patterns. She conveys her own sense of a subject through suggestion and impression as well as careful rendering. Ms. Chittick is a Gallery Artist of the South Shore Art Center and the Cambridge Art Association. Her work has been shown in numerous solo and juried exhibitions in the Boston and South Shore area and is represented in many private collections.

Author event

On Sunday Nov. 30, members of the Kitchen Table Writers will read prose and poetry at the library. Readers include: Frances Murphy Araujo, Kate Young Caley, Marion Reed, Nancy Hewitt, and Joan Stack Kovach. The reading will be held in the library Meeting Room and will begin at 3pm.

Araujo, is a resident of Weymouth whose fiction has appeared in Kalliope, Lynx Eye, Reed Magazine, Washington Square and other journals. Her work has received a Pushcart Prize nomination. Araujo is a contributor to Intensive Care, an Anthology of Prose and Poetry by Nurses, recently published by the University of Iowa Press. Currently she is working on a Master of Arts in English, with a specialty in writing, at the University of Massachusetts in Boston. She is also an instructor of nursing at Boston College.

Reed of Norwell is a psychiatric nurse practitioner. She has published extensively in Nursing Spectrum and writes regularly for the life and religion pages of the Patriot Ledger.

Caley of Quincy is the author of the acclaimed spiritual memoir The House Where the Hardest Things Happened (Doubleday, June 2002). Her poetry has won a first prize from the Academy of American Poets. She is a college English teacher and a well-received speaker at conferences such as the Festival of Faith and Writing at Calvin College in Grand Rapids Michigan.

Hewitt is a clinical social worker and poet from Salem. She holds a Masters Degree in Fine Arts from Vermont College. Her poems have appeared in The Anthology of New England Writers, The Cumberland Poetry Review, The Bridge, and Kalliope. She has contributed to The Use of Personal Narratives in the Helping Professions and is also the recipient of an Academy of American Poets Award.

Kovach, also a contributor to Intensive Care, currently contributes to Nursing Spectrum Magazine. Kovach has written feature articles for the Patriot Ledger, and is a co-author of the book, Peer Consultation. She lives in Cohasset and works as a nurse manager.

Copies of some of the authors' publications will be available at the reading through the courtesy of Buttonwood Books.

'Fence-gate' results in DA ousting police prosecutor

cer," Haddad said.

Chief Jackson introduced Grassie's replacement, Officer Bill English, to officials at the court on Monday morning. English, who came on board last December after graduating from the police academy, has been on patrol less than a year.

Keith Jackson, 24, is also scheduled to appear in court today on domestic violence charges for allegedly hitting his former girlfriend on several occasions last summer. Keith Jackson, who is currently in the U.S. Navy, is first on the Civil Service local preference list for aspiring Cohasset police officers. It is not clear what effect these criminal charges would have on his chances to become a police officer. A message left on his cell phone was not returned.

Also caught in the crossfire are two Cohasset officers, Sgt. William Quigley, who arrested Keith Jackson and the other men outside the legion hall on Oct. 11, and patrolman James McLean. Both were placed on paid administrative leave Oct. 20 and have crossed paths with either Keith Jackson or former Officer Brian Curran, the chief's son-in-law. Haddad, the town manager, has categorically denied the issues are linked.

Doug Louison, the officers' attorney, said Tuesday the men still do not know why they are on leave. And sources close to the police department say other officers are worried they might be next, although Haddad says there is no morale problem at the department. Haddad said again this week he does not know how long the men will be out.

On the morning of Oct. 14 at Quincy District Court, Keith Jackson's attorney Ronald Rice presented Grassie with a letter from Legion post commander Steve Wigmore stating the handicapped railing was broken before the incident. (Chief Jackson is membership chairman at the Legion, and Keith Jackson is also a member there).

According to court papers, after Grassie said he discussed the Legion letter with Rice, fellow police prosecutors, and a court official, he decided not to file the complaint and retrieved the applications he left to be processed with an operations supervisor at the court, so no criminal complaint form was generated.

However, Quigley's police report and a subsequent report filed by Officer Shellee Peters, who also responded to the Legion that night, stated Cogill and Thibault, admitted they broke the fence during "play fighting."

In a memo to Chief Jackson that is part of the court record, Grassie stated he provided First Assistant Jury Clerk John Dalton with the arrest report and letter from Wigmore, which Dalton read.

Grassie quoted Dalton as stating, "I think if you go forward with this arrest, as well as the others, you very well could be putting yourself in the position of looking at a frivolous lawsuit against you by the people arrested."

However, Dalton stated in a sworn affidavit on Nov. 13 that Grassie indicated he had doubts whether there was probable cause for the arrests after speaking to police prosecutors. Dalton told Grassie if he had concerns, he could ask the court to dismiss the charges at the arraignment, or refuse to sign the application because of potential civil liability.

But Dalton also states, "I was never presented with application for complaint, a statement of the reasons for arrest, or a criminal complaint that was to be sworn to, before me prior to issuance. I have since learned that neither the Clerk Magistrate or any other Assistant Clerk-Magistrate was presented with any of the documents."

Grassie also alleges in his memo to Chief Jackson that Quigley asked him to "make the cases go away." But Quigley's report also contradicts Grassie's statements.

Quigley's attorney Louison said Grassie's version of events is ludicrous.

"It would be illogical for Quigley to make the arrest and then ask police not to go forward," he said. Louison said to do so, would open Quigley up to civil liability and false arrest charges.

First Assistant District Attorney Dennis Mahoney maintains in a motion filed with the court that Grassie lacked the authority not go forward with the complaint and that was supported by Judge Coven after a motions hearing last week. Probable cause was found to arraign the three on the charge of willful malicious destruction of property over $250. Mahoney also stated it is not the clerk's or prosecutor's function to decide if there was probable cause when a police officer makes a felony arrest. That should be left up to a judge, he stated.

The Norfolk District Attorney's office is appealing the judge's ruling to not proceed with the misdemeanor charges of disorderly conduct and affray, according to published reports.

'Fooling around'

The alleged altercation at the Legion post all started when Cogill made an inappropriate comment about Thibault's girlfriend – Kaitlyn Jackson, who is Keith Jackson's sister – and the three men, Cogill, Thibault, and Keith Jackson, stepped outside. According to Officer Peters' report, Thibault said the men were just fooling around but he was pushed while wrestling and the railing broke.

Quigley wrote "Cogill stated he made the comment in jest and that after he made the comment suspect Jackson and Thibault asked him to step outside the bar. Cogill stated that's when the 'play fighting' started and the property was damaged."

Quigley and McLean are both officers in the police union. After McLean admonished then Officer Curran, the chief's son-in-law, with a written letter on union letterhead to Haddad for not following proper grievance procedures relative to an overtime grievance, he was called into the chief's office and fired from his job as fleet manager, a collateral duty. McLean contacted the national office of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, which resulted in a meeting between IBPO lawyers, Haddad, and the chief over a possible suit involving unfair labor practices.

With Brian Curran's resignation about six weeks ago, the department had been down three officers until yesterday when Michael J. Carini came on board. Carini, who was recommended for the job by Chief Jackson, stood higher on the Civil Service rehire list than Erin Metcalf, another candidate for the job.

The overtime numbers released by Haddad on Tuesday show in the five weeks since the two officers' leave, the department has incurred approximately $800 per week additional OT expense.

Quitters wanted for Smokeout

The numbers don't lie.

— 47 million adults in the United States smoke;

— Cigarette smoking among high school students rose substantially from 28 percent to 35 percent between 1991 and 1999;

— 171,900 new cases of lung cancer will be diagnosed in the United States this year;

— 157,200 are expected to die from lung cancer this year, 9,000 in Massachusetts alone.

Lung cancer, which has been strongly linked with tobacco use, is the number one cancer killer among men and women, according to the American Cancer Society. It is also the most preventable cause of death in our society, yet a staggering number of people continue to risk the health dangers associated with smoking.

Smoking is also associated with increased risk for cancers of the mouth, nasal cavities, pharynx, larynx, esophagus, stomach, pancreas, liver, cervix, kidney, bladder and myeloid leukemia.

Quitting is not easy. Tobacco has been shown to be addictive and it's not as simple as snuffing out that last butt and calling it quits.

But there are steps that that can be taken and it could start today.

The American Cancer Society is holding its 27th annual Great American Smokeout in which smokers from across the nation are asked to give up cigarettes and tobacco use for one day. Nearly nine million smokers took part in last year's Smokeout and the American Cancer Society is expecting to see that number increase to 10 million this year. The American Cancer Society is expecting one million people from Massachusetts to take part in the event.

While the Great American Smokeout is just one day a year, there have been a number of significant victories along the way in the battle against the dangers of tobacco.

In 1977, Berkeley, California became the first community to limit smoking in restaurants and other public places. A federal smoking ban on interstate buses and domestic flights of six hours or less was passed in 1990. Today, the Massachusetts Legislature is dealing with a bill that would ban smoking in bars and restaurants across the state. The House recently overwhelmingly passed the bill and it's been sent to the Senate for approval. If passed there and signed into law by Gov. Mitt Romney, the law would go into effect in July 2004, making Massachusetts the sixth state with a statewide smoke-free workplace law, joining California, New York, Connecticut, Maine and Delaware.

The tide is certainly turning in this difficult battle and the American Cancer Society continues to attack on the front lines. The Great American Smokeout is one avenue, but its effort does not begin and end there. A 24-hour support line is available by calling 1-800-ACS-2345 or log onto the Web site, www.cancer.org.

While the statistics listed above are startling, there is hope. Nearly half of the adults in the United States who ever smoked are now former smokers, according to the American Cancer Society. And smokers who quit by age 35 can avoid 90 percent of the risk from tobacco.

The numbers don't lie.

Early deadline next week

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, the Cohasset Mariner will go to press on Tuesday next week, a day earlier than usual. That means all copy for next week's issue must be received by noon, Monday. Items may be emailed to mford@cnc.com or dropped off at Cohasset News on Brook Street in the Village.

Trashing vs. the public interest

TO THE EDITOR:

An old story is about a senior lawyer advising a newly-minted lawyer: "If the facts are on your side, argue the facts; if the law is on your side, argue the law; if neither, pound the table"!

Well, we have some among us who, when bereft of logic and the facts don't fit their prejudices, run crying to the state agencies that the open meeting law has been violated, advisors improperly engaged etc. Such attempts to trash the constructive work of local officials and the volunteers who serve on town committees can't be justified as "citizens exercising their right to question". Before exercising that right in such an extreme and harmfully costly manner, we have a responsibility to appreciate and understand the work of those who are working to address the issues. The doers aren't malefactors just because someone doesn't understand what they are doing, even if the poor understanding is because of poor communication from the doers to the critics.

Informed criticism is a beneficial moderator, but it should be tempered by appreciation that the doers are trying to serve the community. They sometimes may be a little short of knowledge themselves, or of ability, or of open-mindedness, or of communication skills etc. but it shouldn't be assumed that they are short of honesty.

Furniture donation is much appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

Mr. Douglas Bumstead
President
Key Office Interiors Inc.

On behalf of the men and women of the Cohasset Police Department let me express my heartfelt thanks for your kind donation of more than $12,200 of quality furniture now being used to furnish the recently renovated Police and Fire Station. I would especially like to thank Stephen Bumstead (age 9), Christian Bumstead (age 8) and Nathan Bumstead (age 7) who were instrumental in making the family decision to donate this furniture.

The furniture provides comfortable and efficient work areas for employees. It further allows the town's new Emergency Operation Center/Roll Call Room, Report Writing Room, Detective's Office, Sergeant's Office, Secretary's Office and Fire Captain's Office to operate smoothly.

The support of family-owned businesses such as Key Office Interiors Inc. and generous citizens like you make the job of public safety easier and allows for us to continue delivering vital services. Your support is especially heartening in tight fiscal times and times in which public safety is assuming new missions.

Once again thank you and your three very important family members.

HEALTH NOTES

Pushing all the storm-water buttons

On Thursday last week, Joe Godzik and I went to Norwell to listen to some people who had real storm-water issues. Chicopee has a problem called CSOs, an acronym for Combined Sewer Outflows. That is, they have, in their city, a situation in which their sewer outflows and their storm-water, catch-basin connections are joined at many places in their system. It appears that Chicopee is the worst example of CSO in the northeast, if not in the country.

The city has more CSO than Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire combined; more than Boston. For Chicopee, an old city; one of the first to grow its infrastructure during the industrial revolution, the cost to fix this situation will be between $150 and 400 million. Since, the Chicopee Sewer Commission and the DPW have on the order of 1,400 dwelling units and budgets in the range of $200,000 total, it's going to take a long time for them to solve the problem.

It's so bad that, during heavy rain events, sometimes the sewers flood some basements of the houses to which they are connected. There's even a black joke about providing credits for homes which have overflows as a resource for backup effluent storage under overflow conditions.

For these reasons, there is a compelling reason to manage storm-water in Chicopee and a large cadre of public support. After all, who wants to live under the threat of having sewage back up onto their home during a heavy rain?

In Cohasset where, since I've been on the Board of Health, we've had only one incident of high pollution readings in a cellar from septic effluent. And this was caused by blasting, which permitted polluted groundwater from failed septic systems in the neighborhood to enter cracks in cellar walls of one home. The blasting was for a sewer that eventually solved the problem.

If we wish to keep Cohasset's bucolic small-town charm, we still must worry about storm water.

Accordingly, there is not much enthusiasm to spend money on storm-water management here in Cohasset. But a need exists, although less compelling. If we wish to keep Cohasset's bucolic small-town charm, we still must worry about storm water.

Basically, Cohasset is a town made up of impermeable rock and soil surrounded and covered in large part, by water. When it rains, we have an enormous amount of surface water runoff. Because of the nature of much of the soil in Cohasset, very little surface water enters the ground where nutrients and harmful chemicals are trapped and the water is subjected to the purifying action from bacteria in the soil.

One thing we learned at the meeting last Thursday was; if you want something to happen, attach your cause to a hot-button issue. Since we probably don't have many CSOs in town, and almost no complaints about sewage in cellars, our hot buttons are not Chicopee's. In fact, our interest now seems to lie in keeping the character of Cohasset. Accordingly, we have spent a lot of time and money in trying to maintain our small-town look. We're also interested in managing growth, as well as providing for economic diversity. These are our hot-button issues, along with keeping the town affordable. And storm water is associated with all of them.

As to small-town character, for more than 200 years, Cohasset used cesspools and harbor outfalls for sewage disposal. Then in 1920 or so, when we started to have too many houses, we started to use more advanced systems. After the boom years of the 60s when more and more subdivisions were introduced, we started to worry about what the straight pipes were doing to our clam beds and estuaries.

In 1978 we implemented Title 5 version 1. In '95, we came back with Title 5 version 2. We still have a straight pipe or two, and our older septic systems are giving trouble, but by and large, we're doing well.

Now we have mansionization. The current building boom is not affecting wastewater very much if at all. Nowadays, substantially the same flows come from our new big houses as come from the smaller houses. The problem is with our roofs and driveways, and our manicured lawns. What little capability Cohasset's poor soils had for absorbing and treating rainwater and snowmelt is fast disappearing. Where, before, a few feet of soil and front yard could absorb at least some of the rainwater from a plot of land, now, storm water runs off the roofs and driveways down the street and almost none goes into the ground.

Home movies of St. Anthony's are a walk down memory lane

LINCOLN HILLSIDE

KATHLEEN O'DONNELL

One in an occasional series about growing up on Lincoln Hillside in the 1960s.

A number of years ago my family had a decade of family home movies transferred to videotape as a gift for our parents' anniversary. The films were set to a 1960s soundtrack which added another layer of warmth and poignancy to them.

The nicest thing about transferring home movies to video is that it eliminates all that fussing with 8 mm reels, spools, sprockets, screens and replacement bulbs when you want to view them. All my early Christmas memories are linked with my father struggling to film his blinded and impatient children trooping down the staircase at 6:30 on Christmas morning while balancing a bank of 500 watts of light across his thin shoulders.

Earlier this month, on a cold rainy day I easily pulled myself away from household tasks to put our 1960s home movie video into the VCR. I settled down with a cup of tea to walk down Memory Lane (conveniently located at the corner of Lincoln Hillside).

Each time I view this video different aspects of it move me. In this most recent viewing it was the St Anthony's May Procession of 1962. St Anthony's Church was a significant part of life for many Catholic children who grew up in the Lincoln Hillside neighborhood in the 1960s. There were Sunday Masses, religion classes, services for Holy Week and Advent, CYO events and the annual May Procession. Banners featuring key religious figures were raised high as children, teens and adults of the parish walked in formation down South Main Street and processed to the church with a careful balance of cheer and solemnity. The procession culminated in the crowning of the statue of Our Lady with a wreath of flowers, after which a church service was held.

The procession itself was carefully structured and included our dedicated religion teachers in floor-length black habits, the youngest children of the parish in Sunday best, a full battalion of altar boys, Father Brennan in white lace surplice, recent First Communicants in white suits and dresses, recently Confirmed and other teens of the parish, uniformed Catholic Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Brownies and Girl Scouts.

At the end were mothers and fathers, babes in arms, grandparents and other senior members of the parish. Children's clasped hands pointed heavenward in prayerful attitude. Little girls held bunches of lilacs and mayflowers, the stems of which had been carefully wrapped in wet cotton hankies and then tin foil. As the boys all had short hair and many of the girls wore soft knitted hair bands, all those sweet eager faces were easily visible to the many still and moving-film cameras which lined the street.

Hundreds of Cohasset faces, which were part of my childhood drifted by on this film, preserved and smiling in the May 1962 sunshine. Chickie and Peggy Marks and family, the always giggling little Antoine girls, Patrolia's and Protulis's, the Dennis Desmond family and a hundred others. What dear and precious images these are, captured on that peach-colored May day.

For me, being part of St Anthony's parish in the 1960s was a very good thing. Like being a member of Brownies, awareness of my Portuguese-Irish ancestry, attending Joseph Osgood School and living on Lincoln Hillside, being part of the St Anthony's community contributed to my feeling of place in my little world.

It comprised another layer of my belonging to a specific and special place, and this was an important part of my identity. I'm old enough to remember the rich and mysterious experience of Mass in the old St Anthony's, a white clapboard building which was directly across from the Rectory on South Main Street. This was the St Anthony's where my parents, grandparents and great-grandparents were married, when part of the Mass was in Latin, the place from where phrases rise up in my memory; Dominus vobiscum and Mea maxima culpa, where the domes above the altar had golden stars, when the priest faced away from the parishioners for the Mass.

I was so young that I thought that the tomb Jesus had been placed in was actually on St Anthony's altar. I was too young then to understand any of the meaning behind the rituals and phrases, but slowly these celebrations and other parts of the Church year seeped into me and became part of who I was and who I am.

Forty years on, my understanding of my religion and my faith is much different from what it was in 1962; it's both wider and deeper and certainly more mature. Like strands taken from coarse fabric, my religion is woven into every fiber of who I am. I'm proud to be a modern Catholic woman and I'm grateful for the 1960s grounding that St Anthony's gave me.

While visiting Cohasset last month I attended Sunday Mass at what I'm old enough to still consider the "new" St Anthony's. I never attend Mass there without recalling my Lincoln Hillside childhood and the role that both the new and old St Anthony's played in my upbringing. Both of these buildings, the life that surrounded them, and the periods in Cohasset Catholic history which they represent form parts of the Lincoln Hillside memories that I'll always have, no matter how far away from it I live.

Kathleen O'Donnell, a CHS graduate, grew up in Cohasset and now lives and works in the UK with her family. Her reflections about growing up on Lincoln Hillside appear occasionally in the Cohasset Mariner.

This Massachusetts bog berry is a true beauty

COMMON GROUND

AMY WHORF MCGUIGGAN

If, during these days of autumn, you find yourself meandering through the old villages of southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod, you're certain to see a scene played out season after season, generation after generation: farmers on the bogs, strapped into waders, rakes in hand, corralling Early Blacks and Howes, the native American fruit the locals call red gold.

Thousands of years ago, when the retreating glaciers left the landscape pocked with spongy, swampy, boggy depressions into which were deposited layers of sand, peat and clay, they provided the acidic and low nutrient conditions that were ideal for the wild cranberry — Vaccinium macrocarpon — to take root and thrive.

By the time the first European settlers arrived on these shores, Native Americans — who called the cranberry sasemin — knew well its benefits. They ate the tart fruit raw, mixed cranberries with honey or maple syrup to make a sauce, and dried and mashed the berries for use in pemmican, a survival ration made from dehydrated meat and cornmeal. The local Native Americans, Wampanoags and Narragansetts, also knew what modern science has recently discovered, the medicinal value of cranberries. Infusions were taken to calm nerves, to treat nausea and disorders of the urinary tract. Mashed into a poultice, the bacteria-blocking power of cranberries healed infection when applied to wounds.

Early settlers, introduced to the wild cranberry by Native Americans, quickly made the fruit — they called it crane berry because the blossom resembled the head and neck of a crane — a part of their own diet, boiling the berries with sugar to make sauce, and baking the fruit into tarts and pastries. Like Native Americans, colonists made infusions from the wild bounty to treat fevers, liver disorders and stomach and urinary troubles. Because the fresh berries would keep for months at a time, they were packed in spring water and carried on sailing vessels to protect against scurvy. As plentiful on common lands as wild cranberries were, colonists recognized that the fruit risked being overharvested. By the mid-1700s, laws had been passed restricting the collection of the fruit and imposing penalties for the taking of unripe fruit.

'It was one man's observation of natural events that spawned the cultivated cranberry industry. In 1816, Henry Hall of Dennis noticed that during a winter storm a wild cranberry bog had been covered by blown sand. The cranberry vines, rather than being smothered and damaged by the sand, instead flourished and produced a heavy crop of fruit the next fall. What Mr. Hall had discovered, though perhaps didn't then understand, was that the sand, by covering the long lateral shoots called runners, allowed the runners to root and produce more fruiting uprights. Mr. Hall further experimented with "sanding" and with transplanting wild cranberry vines to his cleared and drained cranberry yards and an industry was born.

At right: When the last of the glaciers retreated, they left behind layers of clay, peat and sand, conditions ideal for the American cranberry to thrive.

A member of the Heath family and a perennial evergreen, the cranberry's trailing vines, if undamaged, can bear fruit for 150 years. Though a wetland crop, cranberries do not, contrary to popular belief, grow under water. They require good drainage, either the natural drainage that the sandy wild bog offers, or the drainage that the network of ditches in cultivated bogs provides, to assure that only the roots of the plants remain moist during the growing season. But, if cranberries have long been thought of as a "water" plant it is because water, in generous quantities, is necessary at every stage of the cranberry's growth. Bogs are flooded during winter dormancy to protect the vines from winter injury, and again in spring to manage insects and weeds. Sprinkler systems protect bogs from spring and fall frosts and from summer heat. And in the fall, if the crop is to be brought in by the wet harvest method, the bog is again flooded.

Late in the current growing season, the buds for next year's crop are formed. The new growth survives the rigors of the fall harvest and a winter under water and ice. By April, the buds swell and in time send out a shoot of new growth from which four to eight downward hanging pinkish blossoms develop. In June and July, bees are released to pollinate the crop and over the next three months the tiny white berry (from which the new white cranberry products are made) swells and begins to turn red until it is ripe and ready for harvest.

The cranberry harvest has become so much a part of the tradition and folklore of our region that many towns host weekend festivals to celebrate the flooding of the bogs and the herding of cranberries into the vast fields of red. The water — or wet — harvest method, the most common method of picking (for berries that will be processed for sauce or juice) uses an "eggbeater" that agitates the water and loosens the berries from the vines. Four small air-filled pockets inside the fleshy fruit give the cranberry its buoyancy. Corralled by a boom, the cranberries are pumped onto conveyor belts and loaded onto waiting trucks.

Until the late 19th century, cranberries were picked dry, by hand, by family members who, like generations before them, went cranberrying with little more than a pail. As the industry grew, entire communities participated in the harvest and labor from Portugal and the Cape Verde Islands was brought in to work the bogs. Wooden scoops, with teeth that "combed" the berries from the vines, replaced handpicking, and by the 1940s, virtually all dry picking was done with lawnmower-like mechanical harvesters. A gentler method of picking, the mechanical harvester is still used today for the fresh cranberry market.

In markets everywhere, bags of fresh cranberries are now stacked up, waiting for the Thanksgiving table. In a pinch, I'll buy a bag or two, but my freezer is filled with wild cranberries from Provincetown's dune bogs, the last fragments of the once-vast bog expanses on public lands. Though it would be more convenient to buy my cranberries, I go to the dunes for the same reason Thoreau went to the woods, to "live deliberately, to front only the essential facts of life, and see if I could not learn what it had to teach." I trek into the wild — as I do during blueberry and beach plum season — to those out-of-the- way places visited only by the occasional wanderer. There, nestled in swales among the scrub pines and oaks are nature's bogs, small elliptical clearings scoured out by winter winds.

I plunk myself, and my pail, down and hand pick, as my forebears did, and like those few other kindred spirits who make the journey every autumn, I seek to slow life down, to make every action thoughtful, to reconnect with nature and, for just a few hours in this frenetic life to simplify, simplify, simplify.

Amy Whorf McGuiggan is a freelance writer living in Hingham.

Get ready for the big chill

GREEN THUMBS UP

SUZANNA MAHLER

Crystal clear skies provided ideal viewing for this weekend's lunar eclipse as the bright, shimmering glow of the full Beaver Moon was temporarily dimmed by the earth's shadow during the early evening hours. In its wake, temperatures plummeted to unseasonable lows as frigid weather instantly erased our lingering memories of last weekend's summertime warmth.

Many of the colorful leaves that had endured previous chilly temperatures and usually persist well into the month of November were unable to withstand Mother Nature's current polar blast. The glowing red, yellow, gold and mahogany leaves of beech, willow, pear, oak and dogwood disappeared overnight as freezing temperatures shriveled their multicolored foliages. Brisk breezes stripped most of these last few remnants of autumn leaving behind bare branches and the stark silhouettes of the winter landscape. A thin layer of ice on my fishpond and a frozen layer of mulch on my perennial borders were a sure sign that wintry weather is on the way.

As the season progresses and our deciduous trees, shrubs and perennials shed their colorful autumn garb, many gardeners assume that cold weather and bare branches are an indication that these plants no longer functioning. Although most plants are entering a dormant period and may show no signs of life above ground, most root systems continue to absorb moisture and nutrients until the ground freezes to assist with winter survival and spring vigor. Mother Nature has been generous with the provision of rainfall this season, reducing the need for supplemental watering except for newly set plants but an application of an organic fertilizer, such as Plant-O-Ganic or Plant-tone, around trees, shrubs and perennials will promote strong, healthy growth next season. For those plants that have demonstrated sparse, diminished or nonexistent bloom in recent years, work superphosphate into the soil. This nutrient, which is the middle number listed in a fertilizer's formulation, promotes flower production and travels slowly through the soil. For woody plants, use a stake to create shallow holes at the outer reach of the plant's branches and fill with a mixture of soil, peat and the superphosphate to enable this critical nutrient to reach the root zone in a more timely fashion.

Pruning of nearly all trees, shrubs and particularly roses should wait until late winter or early spring. If rose canes are especially long, however, it may be advisable to trim these back to approximately 3 feet in height to lessen the possibility of damage caused by wind or snow. Remove dead or diseased shoots and any suckers that may have sprouted from beneath the bud union. Be sure to rake up and dispose of rose foliage to minimize diseases overwintering in the ground surrounding your plants. Tall, vigorous butterfly bushes should also be pruned to a similar height as they may be uprooted during winter storms.

Although the ground is not likely to be frozen solid for several weeks, frosty nights often produce a solid crust on damp soils that deepens as temperatures continue to drop and pose a serious challenge to planting bulbs, perennials or woody plants. Should our cold temperatures continue, many of my unplanted treasures will have to be heeled in, container and all, when time and space run out. Potted plants left unprotected above ground often succumb during the winter months due to alternate freeze-thaw cycles or severe cold, both of which are minimized when containers are surrounded by soil in the ground. Although there may still be a number of casualties using this method, prior attempts to gather pots together above ground and cover with a layer of mulch has proven disastrous. Collections of potted hostas have been especially hard hit as critters have taken up residence in the cozy covering and devoured the plants during the winter months.

If you do not have a place to sink the pots, many will overwinter successfully in an unheated garage or cool basement. Hardy plants should be exposed to several killing frosts to encourage dormancy but should be moved into these unheated spaces before temperatures drop consistently below freezing. The soil should be slightly moist and barring a very dry environment in your garage, they should require little or no attention for the entire winter. They can be moved back outside in April. Avoid unheated sunrooms as warm temperatures on sunny days may cause the plants to break dormancy at inappropriate times. Sheds could be used as an alternative but may not provide sufficient protection from the cold and might be subject to rodent invasions. Wet conditions in combination with freeze/thaw cycles are usually the primary cause for potted plants above ground succumbing during the winter months.

Due to the unseasonably chilly temperatures, many little critters have been scurrying about looking for suitable cozy spots to hibernate for the winter. Evidence of tunneling mice, voles and chipmunks is everywhere. Since it is unlikely that I will find time to thoroughly tidy all my borders before many of these destructive creatures establish their winter residences, I will focus on clipping back Siberian iris and hosta foliage first as these have been decimated in years passed by these furry rodents.

Brilliant sunshine belied the chilly weekend temperatures as brisk breezes scattered the crisp leaf litter like the dying embers of a smoldering fire, creating a tapestry of fiery red, gold and orange against a carpet of green velvet. Can snowflakes be far behind?

Fun won't last when FY05 budget season gets underway

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

This is the fun part on Beacon Hill, and the fun is clearly not going to last.

As they gathered to say "yes" to $105 million in additional spending for "critical needs," mostly in human services, lawmakers made clear they're getting ready to say a least a billion dollars' worth of "no" next spring.

The mid-year spending bill provides funding for negotiated and overdue raises for faculty and staff in the UMass system, and small upticks in the accounts where budget cuts or simple miscalculation were causing the most suffering — or where interested parties made the most effective case that accounts ought to get a little more money.

The supplemental budget began with 86 outside sections, and 54 more were added in the House. The Senate and House versions, which also include many items that have little to do with pressing needs and underfunded accounts, were expected to be reconciled in a conference committee this week.

There's about $1 billion left in the Commonwealth's reserve funds, and tax collections are running a bit ahead of the calculations on which this budget is based, making the modest spending adjustments more palatable. But in addition to the mini-budget, lawmakers are eyeing another $100 million plus from reserves to pay for a jobs bill.

And with $2 billion in projected budget imbalances waiting to be addressed for next year, lawmakers painted a picture of the near future so grim that it was odd to see them giving the okay to spending in accounts they almost certainly will have to go back and hit with cuts again in just a matter of months. With taxes apparently still not an option, and hundreds of millions in cuts already made, the coming budget season may wind up more painful and politically unpopular than even the debacles of the early 90s, which sent incumbents tumbling out of office.

Last week's bill started as a request from the administration for fully funding various accounts, and escalated as a political issue when Gov. Romney's people threatened to lay off social workers and release youthful offenders if the bill wasn't approved by September. That never happened, as Democratic lawmakers proved a point.

Especially in the House, they love showing the governor who's in control. The administration wanted to change state government's approach to underfunded accounts, providing full funding with a supplemental very early on in the fiscal year to prevent deeper cuts in the spring. It's a reasonable approach, but untraditional.

House Speaker Thomas Finneran turned out to be in no mood to break tradition – perhaps not on policy grounds anyway, but certainly not after Romney denigrated the probable impact of Finneran's original economic stimulus bill, and then absolutely not after the Speaker felt double crossed by the governor over a plan allowing him to raise the pay of House leadership without gubernatorial approval.

This kind of sentiment — "you went back on your word" — is the most deadly on Beacon Hill, and totally fatal to bipartisan cooperation. It actually may not matter too much, since Romney's message-makers are clearly locked on an anti-Legislature, anti-Democrat message. But it's a dynamic that, combined with the intractability of the fiscal numbers, indicates the fun is going to stay out of budgeting for quite some time to come.

•Angst builds as jobless benefits fund runs out of money — After months of throat clearing, legislative leaders still have not stated their point of view on refunding the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund system. They've already acknowledged short-term help from the federal government will be necessary to keep the fund solvent into next year, and keep unemployment benefits flowing. The latest offering from the Romney camp proposes a combination of increases in employer contributions to the insurance system and reductions in eligibility for benefits. Workers would bear $185 million of the cost in the form of benefit reductions, and employers would kick in $305 million in higher premiums. If the Legislature does nothing, employer premiums are scheduled to soar by a collective $600 million next year.

•Busy – and worrisome – week in education — The education community was buoyed by some positive developments, but for the time being they were overshadowed by news that Commissioner David Driscoll was in Massachusetts General Hospital, after suffering what may have been a heart attack. Driscoll, 61, was recovering last week from angioplasty administered to remove a blockage to his heart. Driscoll checked himself in after announcing Bay State students produced outstanding results on the National Assessment of Educational Progress, given for the first time this year in all 50 states, though it's long been used as a benchmark for comparing performance. At a separate event, Romney proclaimed that he is "quite confident" that his upcoming budget will not propose any reductions in state aid for education.

• Timperi acknowledges, removes spurious credential — After employees in his division signaled their unhappiness, the head the state's disease lab, Ralph Timperi, removed the "PhD" from his email signature; he'd obtained an Internet degree based on life experience for $500. Public Health Commissioner Christine Ferguson said Timperi, who apologized to his colleagues for being naïve and embarrassing them, will not be fired or punished.

• Romney says he's committed to diversity and equality — In a speech at the New Covenant Christian Church, Gov. Romney said his attempt to eliminate the state's affirmative action program should not be interpreted as an abandonment of the principle of advancement for minority groups. "I want you to know that I am absolutely committed to hiring people of color," he said. "That is a hallmark of what I believe in." The governor's critics are skeptical.

Janet Fogarty

Fogarty announces bid for state GOP committee

Former Cohasset Republicans Town Committee Chairman Janet R. Fogarty has announced she will run for Republican State Committeewoman.

Fogarty's announcement comes after Republicans from across the district made a "recruit Janet" effort and collected signatures to nominated her to run for State Committeewoman.

"I was pleasantly surprised to see the effort on my behalf," Fogarty said. "With such a ground swell of support, I can think of no way better to thank my supporters than run and serve as State Committeewoman."

"Janet is a successful businesswoman, has a love for politics and helping candidates at all levels, and knows the rewards of good government are worth making a commitment," said David Farrag, Chairman of the Norfolk County Republican Club. "We should be so lucky to have her represent us on the Republican State Committee. I cannot think of a better candidate."

Fogarty brings a wealth of experience to the race, as well as a new perspective and energy. She has spent the last decade working with Republican Town Committees to help recruit Republican candidates, raise funds for them and raise awareness for a need for a two-party system.

Fogarty will be putting together an agenda for the next four years and announcing it to the public shortly.

Republicans to party

The Cohasset Republican Town Committee is hosting its annual Holiday Party on Sunday, Dec. 7, from 5-9 p.m. at the Lightkeeper's Cottage in Cohasset Harbor. Come and celebrate the joy of the season with good food, good cheer and good Republicans. RSVP by Dec. 1 to Heather Palmer at 781-383-3339.

Local GOP to meet

All interested Republicans are invited to the November monthly meeting of the Cohasset Republican Town Committee on Nov. 25 starting at 7:30 at the Lightkeeper's Cottage.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local senators' votes on four roll calls and local representatives' votes on one roll call from the week of November 10-14.

POST SEX OFFENDERS ON INTERNET (H 4308)

House 152-6, approved a supplemental budget amendment requiring the state to post the names, addresses, physical descriptions and photographs of level three sex offenders on the Internet. Level three sex offenders are those determined by the sex offender registry board to pose a high risk of offending again. Amendment supporters said these offenders are the most dangerous ones and argued that people should have quick and easy access to information about these criminals. They argued it is important for people to know whether an offender is living in their neighborhood. Some amendment opponents said the amendment is improperly before the House because it goes beyond the scope of a supplemental budget that does not deal with sexual offenders. Others argued that this controversial issue should be dealt through a regular bill that is in the Criminal Justice Committee and should not be slipped into a budget bill. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment requiring Internet posting. A "Nay" vote is against Internet posting).

ABOLISH KENO (S 2139)

Senate 2-37, rejected a supplemental budget amendment abolishing the game of Keno in Massachusetts. Amendment supporters said this game has spread to far too many convenience stores and Bars and noted that the state treasurer recently increased Keno drawings from once every five minutes to once every four minutes. They questioned whether the state belongs in the gambling business. Amendment opponents said that the state is facing up to a $3 billion deficit in next year's budget and argued that abolishing Keno would result in a loss of $163 million in local aid for cities and towns. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment abolishing Keno. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment and favors Keno).

$3.1 MILLION FOR SCHOOL BUILDING ASSISTANCE (S 2139)

Senate 35-2, approved a supplemental budget amendment providing $3.1 million for the School Building Assistance Program. Amendment supporters said the program was underfunded by $3.1 million in this year's budget and noted that this would restore the money and honor the state's commitment to communities that were promised this reimbursement for school building projects. They argued it is unfair that many communities voted for local tax increases to fund these projects based on promised state aid on which the state has reneged. Amendment opponents said it is unfair for the state to restore full funding to this program when many human service programs have not had million of dollars in cuts restored. They said thousands of vulnerable citizens are still being affected by the drastic human service cuts. (A "Yea" vote is for the $3.1 million for school building assistance. A "Nay" vote is against the $3.1 million).

Senate 39-0, overrode Gov. Romney's $239,946 veto reduction (from $3,596,891 to $3,356,945) in funding for the operation of the state's sex offender registry. Override supporters said the $239,946 is crucial in order to pay for six more employees to help eliminate the backlog that is prohibiting the state from properly protecting the public by tracking sex offenders. In his veto message, the governor said the $239,946 cut would reduce the funding to an amount consistent with his original recommendation for this program. (A "Yea" vote is for the $239,946).

HUMAN RIGHTS RESOLUTIONS

Senate 32-7, adopted resolutions supporting International Human Rights Day on December 10 and the fundamental rights of workers to form and join unions. The controversial language in the resolutions states that employers across the nation routinely violate the rights of workers to choose whether to have a union. Supporters said the resolutions simply express support for the freedom to unionize that is one of the basic rights of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights ratified in 1948 by four-fifths of the nations in the United Nations. They noted that studies have shown that one in four employees who seek to unionize are illegally fired. Opponents said the resolutions are well-intentioned but poorly drafted. They argued that they cannot vote for resolutions that are a blanket indictment of all businesses and urged that the resolutions be redrafted to single out offending businesses. (A "Yea" vote is for the resolutions. A "Nay" vote is against the resolutions).

HEDLUND REPORT

BOB HEDLUND

But there's more work to be done

After the Fiscal Year 2004 budget was passed and veto overrides were concluded, the pace of the Legislature dramatically slowed for the better part of the summer and early fall. However, there was action on some important pieces of legislation, which I am pleased to report were enacted in a timely manner. Recently, the Senate passed House Bill 4248, which was critical as it re-established the Inland Fisheries and Game Fund in order to prevent the loss of more than $4 million in federal funding for fisheries and wildlife in Massachusetts. The Senate also passed two important consumer protections by enacting Senate Bill 113 and Senate Bill 2019. SB 113 prohibits negative option mailings, and SB 2019 regulates "spam" e-mail so that it may be easily filtered. Most importantly, the Senate debated and passed Senate Bill 187, which requires all felons to give a DNA sample upon conviction. The establishment of this expanded DNA database provides an essential tool to our local and state law enforcement officers.

With the Nov. 19 deadline for action to be taken on legislation prior to 2004 rapidly approaching, the Senate is poised to debate and hopefully act upon some very pressing legislation. The following are a few of the most important matters scheduled to be taken up:

Unemployment insurance

We are currently facing a crisis with our Unemployment Insurance system that if not addressed will severely impact the Massachusetts economy. With the projected balance of the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund scheduled to be depleted, the Legislature must act soon to prevent what is scheduled to be a huge automatic increase in the amount employers pay. Without Legislative action, rates will increase by $620 million on January 1st, which represents an overall increase of 75percent. This is also an increase of up to 157percent for employers with a long history of stable employment! The Legislature passed a temporary fix at the end of the session last year; however, I will be pressing for the Senate to finally establish legislation that will provide for long-term predictability and stability of Unemployment costs for business and benefits for workers. Many different ideas are being floated around on how to achieve that important goal and I will be working hard with the rest of my colleagues to make sure that we come up with a solution to this crisis that is not detrimental to businesses or their employees.

Supplemental budget

As is the case with far too many of the recent budgets, we will soon be forced to act upon a supplemental budget in order to augment certain appropriations that were systematically under-funded in the final Fiscal Year 2004 budget. The legislative leadership has long employed a tactic of underfunding certain essential services in order to prevent cuts to some of their more favored programs and pet projects. One example of this tactic is how the legislature routinely is forced to supplement the funding for snow and ice removal. For the FY 2004 budget, this tactic was grossly abused, as many different accounts were under-funded with the express expectation that the Legislature would pass a supplemental budget later in the year.

Economic development

Currently, the Senate, House and the Governor have each released a version of an economic stimulus package with the lofty aim of spurring the recovery of Massachusetts' economy. Each package mostly uses funds from the tobacco settlement trust fund and other off-budget sources to fund a series of grants and other business incentives. The proposals also include aid to regional economic development counsels and worker retraining efforts. While parts of both the House and Senate packages are constructive, I believe the overall efforts fall short. These two packages seem far too weighed down with pet projects for various members of Legislative leadership or special interests.

On the other hand, the package submitted by Governor Romney more fully recognizes just what state government's relationship with business is and what realistic impact government programs can have upon the overall economy. Some important Romney provisions include a targeted tax rebate for new manufacturing jobs, the restoration of appropriations for the Workforce Training Fund, the institution of a training partnership between community colleges, career centers and industry groups, and an increase in the economic opportunity credit for brownfield sites. When the legislature takes action on a final version of an economic development package, I will fight to make sure that only spending for development purposes – not special interest purposes – is ultimately included in this bill.

Chapter 40B news

While it is unlikely that the legislature will act upon any Chapter 40B legislation prior to 2004, it is important to note that the Housing and Urban Development Committee has released its recommended changes to the Commonwealth's 30-year-old affordable housing law. Despite the best efforts of myself and other proponents for real change to Chapter 40B, this recently released legislation does little to protect towns from the onslaught of forced overdevelopment, and is similar to the recent recommendations of the Governor's Task Force on Affordable Housing. I have already begun meeting with other Legislators who are supportive of real reforms to 40B, and we are planning a series of amendments for when this bill does make it to the floor. These amendments will be targeted at restoring local control over zoning and planning decisions in order to retain the quality of life and character of towns across Massachusetts.

Village Fair is for everyone

The church's popular New England chowder bar and bake table are always a great reason to stop by.

Be sure to stop by Cohasset Common on from 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 6 for some good cheer and a great start to your holiday decorating and shopping. Hosted by four of the town's churches and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (ASP), the Village Fair has been a wonderful holiday tradition for more than 60 years.

Volunteers from the First Parish Unitarian Church, Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Second Congregational Church, The Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church and ASP work together to create this holiday marketplace.

Inside the doors of the Second Congregational Church (next to Town Hall) you'll find a holiday boutique filled with beautiful hand-crafted holiday gifts and decorations. While you shop, children can visit the Kids' Craft Corner where they can make an ornament of their own. The church's popular New England chowder bar and bake table are always a great reason to stop by.

Volunteers from the Greek Orthodox Church will transform Town Hall into a cozy Athenian Café featuring Greek pastries and delicacies, alongside an array of olives, oils and cheese. Visitors will also find beautiful holiday greens including fresh balsam wreaths and decorative boughs perfect for your front door.

First Parish's Jumble Sale is back by popular demand offering pre-owned treasures of all kinds for adults and children. Stop by their Swedish Bake Shop for their popular home-made cinnamon buns, coffee, tea or hot chocolate. A small boutique will offer Table-top Christmas Trees in 12 in., 18 in. and 24 in. sizes in traditional Christmas designs as well as theme-oriented trees sure to delight lovers of birds, teddy bears, the sea shore and others. Visitors will also find delicious homemade soup mixes and a tree of new and used ornaments.

St. Stephen's Country Store is the place to find the perfect hostess gift and wonderful Herbes de Provence. Its Bake Shop is famous for its homemade toffee, fudge, cakes and pies, while their snack bar will offer donuts and bagels, hot dogs and homemade soups. Volunteers have been busy collecting hundreds of used books, CDs, tapes and videos for their popular Book Sale.

Santa Claus will be the guest of honor on the Common (or the Second Congregational Church Nursery, if it rains) from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Children can visit with Santa and have a picture taken by an ASP volunteer.

Last, but not least, the Rusty Skippers will be performing their Annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church at noon the day of the fair.

CHS gridders top Norwell in thriller to clinch playoff berth

A thrilling last minute win over Norwell, Friday night, has earned the Cohasset football team a home date in the Super Bowl tournament on Tuesday, Dec. 2.

Senior Sean Connelly provided the game's only score when he pounced on a fumble in the end zone with just 1:05 to play in this showdown for the South Shore League championship.

Playoff football
TVC champ
Dec. 2, 7 p.m.

Cohasset improved to 8-1, 4-0 in South Shore League play, and will close out the regular season on Thanksgiving morning at Hull versus the Pirates.

The visiting Skippers won the battle of field position, with an outstanding punting game and their best defensive effort of the year, holding Norwell (6-2-1, 3-1-1 in SSL) to 114 yards of total offense.

Junior punter Joe Durkin receives this week' star of the game award. Durkin received eight perfect long snaps from senior captain Steve Davis, and on four of those punts pinned Norwell at their 5, 7, 3 and (with under two minutes to go in a scoreless game) 5-yard line.

With 90 seconds to go in a scoreless game, the Skippers took advantage of an unsuccessful fourth down play by the Clippers at their 5- yard line. Norwell had a fourth-and-10 from their own five. If they punted and settled for the 0-0 tie, the Clippers would be resting their playoff hopes on a Hull victory over Cohasset on Turkey Day. Norwell coach Jim Sullivan obviously felt this scenario was unlikely and went for the first down and a chance to continue the offensive drive. The fourth down pass play went incomplete.

"A tie would have done us no good," explained Sullivan, in his 14th year of steering the Clippers football fortunes. "We felt we needed to make out own break there. Unfortunately, it just didn't go our way."

"I was surprised (Norwell) kept the ball there," conceded Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe, "but our defensive coordinator, Bob Silvia, figured they'd be going for it there. That's why he's the defensive coordinator. We have pretty much the same players out there on punt team and regular defense, so it wasn't that big a deal. Bob had the right guys in the right place."

Cohasset took over with a first-and-goal from the 5-yard line. On first down, senior QB Mike Dooley handed off to senior tailback DeWayne

Success story

CHS field hockey squad achieved most of their goals in '03

By Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

For the Cohasset girls field hockey players, this season will go down in history as overall both very positive and significant. In an in-depth interview with the Mariner, coach Deb Bostwick candidly described the many high points and a few disappointments.

Clinching a playoff berth topped her list. The Lady Skippers won it in style by beating back a very tough Mashpee squad, 4-2, in Mashpee. Earlier in the season, Mashpee pounded the Skippers.

"This victory was our highlight moment of the season," said Bostwick. "When the final buzzer sounded and the tourney spot was clinched, the girls went wild. It was such a joyful thing to see them prevail."

As the season progressed, an incredible chemistry grew among the players.

"The seniors were like a small family, on and off the field," reflected Bostwick. "Their communication and friendships were remarkable."

In fact, the team took on special customs reflecting their tight-knit team. At the beginning of every game, Jessie Guilds would lead a "hoorah" chant. During each halftime, coach Bostwick would say, "Hello. Wake up. Smell the coffee. It's time to play field hockey."

The customs worked. The team boasted three SSL all-stars

Three Cohasset golfers named Honorable Mentions

As is always the case with these kinds of things, the selection process with this team was not an easy one.

Several of the young men you see listed below as "Honorable Mentions" received serious consideration for All-Scholastic acknowledgement.

After consulting with area coaches, though, we do feel secure that we chose the top 11 golfers in Marinerland for this honor.

Hingham coach Jack Curran: "Nick is a long-ball hitter with a nice, fluid swing. He can get streaky but has worked hard to fine tune his game. He's always helped in big matches. CHS lady booters eye third straight playoff berth in '04

By Mark Goodman

With another step forward this year, Cohasset girls soccer is becoming a force to be reckoned with in the South Shore League.

The Skippers finished 10-8-1 this year, then lost to Sacred Heart in the first round of the Div. 3 state tournament despite outplaying their opponent.

The next step? Getting over that first-round hump and advancing in the playoffs. Cohasset will have the talent to do it next year.

That is not to say, however, that there won't be some holes to fill left by this year's seniors. The Skippers will be losing two of their three all-stars, Jenn Buckley and Holly Graham.

Buckley was perhaps Cohasset's best all-around player, providing goal scoring, playmaking and solid defense from her center-midfield position. Graham played very well all season long from her sweeper position.

The team will also lose seniors Gillian Weber, Sarah and Leah McMorris, and Alicia Sanchez. Weber and the McMorris twins were among Cohasset's best offensive threats up front, while Sanchez stepped in for an injured Brenna O'Donnell and did a great job on defense.

So much so, in fact, that Sanchez was voted by her teammates as the "unsung hero" of the team.

Head coach Deb Beal praised her co-captains, Buckley, Graham, and O'Donnell, for the leadership they provided over the course of the season.

"I got really lucky with my three captains this year," said Beal. "It's a tough role, because you want to do the right thing, but there are other times where you just want to be a kid. They knew when it was time to goof off, and when it was time to get some work done."

There will be plenty of talent returning next year, led by defender Christine Lovallo and striker Casey Anderson.

Coastal Stars Youth Hockey Report

The undefeated Mite C3 team notched their 5th victory with an action packed 6-0 win over Whitman/Hanson/Kingston at Bridgewater Arena.

In the 1st period, the Stars fired many quality shots on the W/H/K net minder who was able to keep the puck from entering the net. Stars goaltender, Jeffery Powers, was equally up to the task, stopping several W/H/K quality shots including a brilliant save on a two on none breakaway.

Garrett Leahy, opened the Stars scoring late in the first period with a great individual effort, going "coast to coast" up the left wing and beating the goalie to make the score 1-0, which held through the end of the first period.

Bryan Bowman and Declan Leahy provided some inspirational defensive play early in the second period breaking up several opponents' rushes up the ice.

Jeremy "Remy" Archibald scored the second Stars goal with some nifty stickhandling up the right wing then beating the goalie with a wrist shot. Jeremy and linemates Ryan Davis and Garrett Leahy kept constant offensive zone pressure on the W/H/K goalie.

James Daley scored the third goal for the Stars of the contest after splitting the W/H/K defensemen upon receiving a slick pass in the neutral zone from winger Andrew Tautkus.

Several fine "end to end" rushes by defenseman Sam Topham finally paid off late in the second period as right winger Mark McGoldrick followed Sam's shot and scored on the rebound.

The third period opened with some excellent offensive zone play by center Ryan Melia and wingers Curtis Golden and Hugh Healy. The line generated several good scoring opportunities only to be stopped by the opposing goaltender.

As the third period continued Stars defenseman, Max Hemingway, who constantly stood his ground at the blue line hustled back and broke-up a W/H/K clean breakaway with a nice stick check.

Mark McGoldrick, parked in front of the crease, scored his second goal of the game midway through the third period off a nice feed from center James Daley to make the score 5-0. The goal came as the result of defensemen Jake Denton and Sam Topham stepping up into the play and keeping the opponents trapped in their defensive zone.

Garrett Leahy closed out the scoring with his second goal of the game on a great move around the goalie then tucking the puck behind the tender and into the empty net.

consistent play this season helped the Green Wave get off to a 4-0 start and eventual 8-5-1 record... The Abington squad was 6-3 in the South Shore League, good for second and its best finish in years...An SSL All-star, Seaberg won or tied 11 out of 15 matches this season thanks to his impressive short game...Shot an 86 at the SSL Championships, good for a top 10 finish individually and fourth place finish as a team...Spent last summer working at the Scituate Country Club...Seaberg is still considering several college options some of which include Roger Williams, Wentworth, UMass Amherst, and the University of Rhode Island. Abington coach Bill McMann: "He's very quiet and unassuming, but he really comes to play. He has terrific wedge play and good putting skills. He's also just a really nice kid."

Steve Dionne -
Senior (Capt.) - Rockland

Steve Dionne

A two-time Mariner All-Scholastic, Dionne was again the premier player on the Rockland squad... Dionne's performance at the No. 1 spot helped the Bulldogs capture second in the Patriot League (8-4) behind co-champs Hingham and Duxbury...Dionne shot 76 at the South Sectionals, placing 9th and qualifying for State Individuals...There, he shot a 79 and finish 10th overall...Dionne was instrumental in a home victory over Hingham back on Sept. 24, in which he shot two over par...The senior captured his best performance of the season at East Bridgewater's Ridder Country Club, where he shot at two under par...Dionne averaged three over par for the season...The PL All-star finished 6th overall at the All-League Match and was a medalist in six matches this year...Also a captain and forward on the RHS hockey team. Dionne plans to attend Bentley and continue his golf career. Rockland coach Jack Murphy: "He's a very smart player with fine skills and a nice swing. He doesn't get rattled on the course. He plays his game and knows that its the score at the end of the round that counts."

Matt Lombard -
Junior - Hanover

Matt Lombard

A two-time Mariner All-Scholastic, Lombard averaged 3 1/2 over par this season and shot for par five times this season...Lombard tied for fourth at the Patriot League Championships...The junior led the Indians to a winning season at 8-6 (6-6 PL tie for third), which qualified them for the South Sectional...There, Lombard's performance resulted in a fourth-place finish out of 14 teams...His score was just off qualifying for State Individuals...Just a junior, this two-time PL All-star still has another year of golf at HHS. Hanover coach John Sullivan: "His strength on the course is that he has few weaknesses in his play. He doesn't get into much trouble. He's extremely dedicated to the game and never missed a practice, even those that were optional. That really shows leadership to the younger players."

Norwell coach Ken Camerota: "The big thing about Max is his consistency. He's a long hitter and very steady in all parts of his game. He really works hard on improving."

Ryan Parker
Senior (Capt.)- Braintree

This two-time Bay State Conference all-star has played out of the number one or two spot each of the last two years for the Wamps... averaged an excellent score of 38.5 per nine holes this fall...has a handicap of four or five...finished fourth at the BSC all-star match this fall out of 33 players (shooting a 75 at Franklin Park) and sixth last year...four year varsity player and three year regular in rotation...started playing golf at the age of five...member at Braintree Municipal Course and Marshfield Country Club...oldest of three brothers in a big golfing family...sophomore brother Kevin joined him on varsity team this year...previously played basketball and baseball at Braintree High...Honors student... has student rank of 80 in class of 322...is being recruited by a few college golf coaches, including Bentley's...leaning toward a major in Business...Braintree coach Bob Crook: "Ryan did a great job as captain. He was the only senior on the team, and was like a big brother to just about everyone. As a golfer, Ryan is never satisfied with being fairly accomplished. He really, really works at his game. He wants to get better and better."

Ryan Parker

Ben Brigham
Junior (Capt.) - Scituate

Ben Brigham

Ben earns his second Mariner All-Scholastic selection after a strong regular season and a superb postseason...led the way to a second place finish for the Sailors at the south sectional championships at Cranberry Valley (Harwich), finishing fifth overall with a score of 81, three strokes off the winning score...then tied for seventh individually at the All-State match at Far Corner (Boxboro), shooting a six over par 78, the best ever individual showing for a Scituate golfer at that event ...won the individual championship at the Patriot League all-star match at Hatherly (Scituate)...named team MVP...two time Patriot League all-star...won league Sportsmanship Award...played out of a top two spot all year for the Sailors, who put together a 6-6 season in an extremely strong Patriot League that saw four teams advance to the postseason...averaged a score of 37 per nine holes, approximately two shots over par...has been playing golf since he was seven...member of Hatherly Country Club, the Sailors home course...also a standout lacrosse player at SHS who has been named a captain for this year's team...will join the SHS ski team this year...hopes to play college golf, and is leaning toward a southern Atlantic college...good student who barely missed Honor Roll this term...Scituate coach Bob Beatty: "Ben really proved to be a pressure golfer this year. He was everything you want your captain to be. He was definitely out MVP. Anything this team needed, he provided."

Hunter Talcott
Sophomore - Scituate

Hunter Talcott

This two-time Patriot League all-star provided the Sailors with a great one-two punch all season along with fellow All-Scholastic selection Ben Brigham...had a team best 9-3 record in match play playing primarily out of the number two spot...averaged a score of 38 per nine holes, approximately three shots over par...has been playing golf since he was five...shot a team second best score of 85 to help the Sailors take second at south sectionals and advance to All-States...best half round score at Hatherly this season was a one over par 36...best round at Widow's Walk was a two over 74...member of Widow's Walk (Scituate) and Green Harbors Country Club (Marshfield)...had hole-in-one as seventh grader at Green Harbors on the 165-yard 17th hole... played out of a top two spot all year for the Sailors, who put together a 6-6 season in an extremely strong Patriot League that saw four teams advance to the postseason...is trying out for the SHS basketball team this winter...Honor Roll student...Scituate coach Bob Beatty: "Hunter and Ben (Brigham) really helped one another raise the level of their games this year competing against each other in practice every day. Without the way these two picked it up, I don't think we would have even made it to the postseason. Best of all, I get them both back next year."

— This team was selected by Mariner Sports Editors Julie Ann Nevero and Mike Spellman with the help of area coaches. Only public school athletes were considered for the honor because our lack of resources does not allow us to regularly cover private institutions. It is unfortunate but is a policy we must insist on maintaining.

Jake Denton and Declan Leahy thwarted opponents third period center ice play making attempts and along with net minder Jeffery Powers preserved the teams fourth shut out of the young season. Stars player, Matthew Tautkus, with arm cast now removed, should see ice action soon. Keep up the good play Stars!

Squirt A

The Coastal Stars Squirt-A Team got back to their winning ways with a 4-3 victory over a very strong Brockton team. The stars jumped out to a quick 2-0 lead on goals by John Meehan and Tyler Martina. Meehan's goal was a rebound of a quick Martina shot from the slot. Ryan Donovan also had an assist on the play as he showed great patience holding onto the puck until Martina found an opening in the slot. Ryan made a perfect pass to Tyler who one timed the puck off the post and the rebound fell on the stick of a perfectly positioned Meehan. Martina scored the second goal from nearly the same position where he hit the post on the previous goal. This time the release was just as quick and the puck found the back of the net before the Brockton goaltender knew it was on it's way. Donovan and Meehan registered assits on the play after a nice job of cycling down low. As dominant as the Stars were early Brockton was equally dominant in the final five minutes of the first period and evened the score with two well deserved goals. The Stars regained the lead five minutes into the second period on John Meehan's second goal of the game on a terrific feed from Ryan Donovan. Brian Scott also assisted on the play with a strong pass from the neutral ice area. Meehan displayed great hands on the goal as he accepted the Donovan pass and in one motion let go a wrist shot that beat the Brockton goaltender high over his glove hand. With the score tied at three heading into the third period the Stars were determined to tighten up in the defensive zone and did a great job of maintaining posession of the puck, thus limiting their opponents chances of scoring. Pat Cull has been exceptional all season on defense and he consistently made smart outlet passes to the forwards enabling them to break out and apply pressure in the Brockton defensive zone. The Stars have been getting better each week working on carrying the puck and not simply throwing it away when they are challenged. This patience lead to the winning goal by Travis Craven who completed a great three on two rush by splitting the Brockton defense and snapping off a hard shot that beat the Brockton goaltender and gave the stars a hard fought 4-3 win. Jeff Durkin and Conor McLean assisted on the play and did a nice job of spreading out the defense on a perfectly executed three on two. The Stars continue to get consistent goaltending from Kevin Kelly and solid defense from Scott, Cull, Entwistle, and Schorle. This team is really working hard at the little things that define a good hockey team and are becoming more complete each week.

Mite A

The Mite A's scored an impressive 7-1 victory against Duxbury at the Rockland Arena last Sunday. Led by Will Golden's hat trick, the Stars played a complete game, limiting Duxbury to three shots on goalie Jonathan "Le Papillon" Spitz and peppering the Duxbury goaltender throughout the game. The Stars applied relentless pressure from the outset. Colin Whelan and the other Stars forwards backchecked and dug in the corners tirelessly. Will DeCoste set up first Connor Maher, and then Andrew Geddes, out front. Chris Cohen rushed and shot from the right side, and was sent in on net by Kenny Parnell for another shot that was saved. Duxbury drew first blood on a sneakaway with about 1:30 left in the period. Things appeared to worsen for the Stars when they were called for a penalty at the 1:05 mark, but Terrence Doonan grabbed the puck in his own end, skated the length of the rink, and lifted one to the top corner to tie the game. Doonan's goal lit a fire for the Stars. On the first shift of the second period, Connor Maher picked up a loose puck at his blue line and outraced Duxbury's defense to their net. His shot beat the goalie to the left side for the 2-1 lead. Will Golden scored the first of his three from a scramble in front of the net with 7:35 left. Brian Smith and the Stars' defense not only killed the team's second penalty, but allowed the offense to make several shorthanded attempts. Jared McCrystal displayed textbook defense by playing the body and separating a Duxbury rusher from the puck, which allowed defensive mate Kevin McDougall to scoop up the puck. Chris Cohen's wraparound attempt was saved. Will Golden set up Jake McDonough out front. The shot was saved, but McDonough, Doonan, and Golden followed the shot for the rebound, and Golden banged it home after a flurry to put the Stars up, 4-1. McDonough and Doonan had later attempts saved, and Connor Maher fed Andrew Geddes out front, but the buzzer prevented any further scoring. The Stars didn't let up in the third. Jeremy Duchini's pass sent Will Golden on a breakaway that was saved, and Andrew Geddes' shot from the slot was also saved. With 8:00 left in the game, Will Golden kept the puck in at the blue line, skated to the net, and fired to the top right corner from 10 feet out for his hat trick and a 5-1 lead. With 2:15 left, Terrence Doonan picked up the puck just outside the Duxbury blue line, split the D, and rushed to the net. T-Dog's shot was saved, but Jake McDonough hustled to the follow-up and netted the rebound. Doonan and McDonough paired again with 1:48 left when Doonan skated the puck down the left side and passed out front to McDonough. Jake found the five-hole for the game's final tally. The Stars' record now stands at 4-1-1.

Mite C2

On Saturday, Mites 2 team shut out Hanover 4-0 at the Pilgrim Arena. The Stars came out shooting in this contest, quickly wearing down the Hanover defense. Patrick Graham was outstanding in net logging the shut out for his squad. He received great defensive support from defenseman Jake Burchill who stopped several Hanover attacks and pushed the puck up the ice for the Stars. Robbie Bertone contributed to the effort with solid puck control and consistent overall play on defense. The Stars scored their first goal with 6:33 left in the first period on an attempt by Hanover to clear the puck out of the zone. Aidan Beresford intercepted the clear out and promptly beat the Hanover goaltender on a wrist shot from the slot. The Stars were ahead 1-0 after one period of play. The second period was all Stars as the frontline of Tristan Wiggin, Matt Doyle and Brendan Evitts attacked the Hanover defense with a barrage of shots. Playing right wing, Jeremy Archibald cut through the middle and scored with 9:38 in the period off a rebound by a Joey Redfearn scoring bid. Jack Evitts assisted the team effort with yeoman work in the corners. Also during the period, Patrick Graham made an outstanding save on a rush by Hanover, challenging the shooter and taking away the angle. The Stars went into the third period with a comfortable 2-0 lead. This last period proved to be a continuation of the second with more offensive pressure by the Stars. Matt Boudreau broke in all alone on the Hanover goalie only to be stifled by a pad save. Joseph Proctor won two key face-offs in the third period and Thomas Coyne chipped in with great blue line play that allowed the Stars to maintain possession in the offensive zone. With 10:02 left, Michael McPartlin made a truly creative play. McPartlin curled around from behind the Hanover net, stopped and pulled the trigger, scoring on a tough angle. Kal Maier joined the offensive party with a nice rush in on the Hanover goaltender but could not convert. With a minute left, Matt Doyle made it 4-0 as he cruised through the middle and fired the puck into the left corner of the net. The Stars look to continue their winning ways when they match up with Weymouth next Sunday at the Hobomock arena.

Squirt B1

The Coastal Stars Squirt B1 team had a successful weekend, as they overpowered the South Shore Seahawks 8-0 on Saturday, and followed up with a 2-2 tie against a tough Taunton Brewins team on Sunday. Against the Seahawks, the Stars carried the play from the opening face-off and had several early scoring chances turned away by the Seahawks goalie. They finally broke through, scoring twice in the last four minutes of the period. Carter Denton scored the first of his two goals, putting the puck just inside the right post after picking up the rebound of a DJ Evans shot from the slot. Ryan Talanian also picked up an assist on the play. With just over a minute to play in the first, the always hustling John Kenney came up with the puck at center ice and broke in on a two-on-one with Jared Coletta. The Seahawks goalie made a great stop on Kenney, but Coletta was perfectly positioned and flipped the puck over the goalie to make it 2-0. In the second period, Jared Coletta battled for the puck and got it to Ryan Talanian, who broke in alone, put the puck on his backhand and slid it through the goalies pads for a 3-0 lead. Two minutes later, it became 4-0, as Bobby Harrington, a force in both games, stole the puck and broke in on a two-on-none, with Mike Carbone streaking down the right wing. Harrington looked to Carbone, freezing the goalie, and then beat him with a low wrist shot. The third period was all Stars, as they controlled the tempo and scored four times. Mike Carbone made it 5-0, skating in from the point to pick up the rebound of a John Kenney shot and firing the puck into the top corner. Ryan Talanian then scored his second of the game, with assists from Neil Conway and Jared Coletta. Coletta followed that with a goal off a Carter Denton rebound to make it 7-0 and Denton closed out the scoring with his second goal and third point of the game, putting in a rebound after Brian Ford beat his man and broke in alone. On Sunday, the Stars came out flying against the Brewins, and top to bottom, played their best game of the year. Goalie Danny Durkin had a strong game, controlling rebounds and making several saves on point blank shots. He had a lot of help from his defensemen and his forwards, particularly Ross Horan and Bobby Parelli, as they hustled to get back and battled for the puck along the boards. The Stars went up 1-0 in the first when Neil Conway battled for the rebound of a Bobby Harrington shot and tucked it in the net. The play went back and forth for a while with both goalies being tested. Then Brian Ford made a nice play to keep the puck inside the Brewins zone. The Brewins gained possession but Mike Carbone stole the puck and whistled a wrist shot by the goalie's glove for a 2-0 lead. The Brewins battled back, tying it on a tip-in from in front and a low wrist shot from the slot. Both teams had scoring chances down the stretch, but strong team defense and goaltending kept it deadlocked.

SPORTS NOTES

Mandatory CHS Winter sports meeting Nov. 24

On MONDAY NOVEMBER 24, there will be a mandatory sign-up meeting for all high school athletes interested in participating in a winter sport at Cohasset High School. The meeting will begin at 6:45 pm. We ask that all student-athletes be accompanied by at least one parent or guardian to the meeting. Principal Dr. Michael Jones and Athletic Director Mr. Ron Ford will be on hand to review the Cohasset High School Athletic Department and Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association policies and answer any questions you may have.

Mr. Everett Henderson, Jr., the Area Director of National Scouting Report, will give a brief overview of the college recruitment process for student-athletes. He will remain on hand after the program to answer any specific questions you may have about college recruiting.

Student athletes and parents will then meet with the CHS Coaching Staff to distribute schedules, discuss team rules and expectations, and answer any questions you may have. We also ask you to bring the $75 user fee payment to this meeting.

Practices for the all high school winter season sports will begin on Monday, December 1. The following sports are offered during the winter season: Boys Basketball, Girls Basketball, Cheerleading, Gymnastics (co-operative team w/ Norwell H.S.), Ice Hockey, Skiing (funded by the Cohasset Ski Club), Co-ed Swimming (co-operative team w/ Scituate H.S.), and Wrestling.

Late basketball registration for boys and girls grades 1 to 7

You may register late for the Cohasset Basketball Boosters/Recreation Dept. Grades 1 to 7 basketball program for boys and girls, at the recreation office during the next week, prior to Dec. 1.

The fee is $75 per player, registration forms must be completed and signed by a parent.

Evaluations for grades 4 to 7 will be held on Dec. 6, and schedules are available at registration.

There will be no grades 1 to 3 evaluations this year and all grades are scheduled to begin play on Dec. 13. Team coaches will call prior to then.

Lovallo was Cohasset's third all-star this season, dominating many games from her fullback position. Beal announced at the team's season-end dinner last night that Lovallo was voted as the team's most valuable player.

The junior will move to the sweeper position next year, Beal said.

Anderson, meanwhile, led the team in goals and scored in clutch situations, including a game-winning corner that went directly into the net against Abington. That victory spurred the Skippers second-half run.

Others returning who saw significant playing time this year are defenders Danielle Hajjar and Mary Silvia, midfielders Nicole Whitney, Molly Kirk and Rachel Garber, and forwards Lindsay Kennedy and Lauren Rizzotti.

Beal said she is looking forward to the infusion of talent that will come from this year's JV squad. One of those girls will be Lindsay Durkin, a freshman this year who saw some playing time at the forward position in the game against Sacred Heart. She showed good speed and awareness on the field, and should provide a solid scoring threat for Cohasset next year.

Other girls Beal is expecting to step up are Charlotte Sida, Katie Bolger, Lara Novak and Melissa Crowley-Buck, who will team with CeCelia Chapman to provide a 1-2 goalkeeping tandem.

The girls started off slow this year, but ran off wins in seven of their last eight games going into the playoffs. And if it hadn't been for a few bad bounces, the Skippers would have advanced to the second round.

"That was by far the best game we played all year," Beal said of the match with Sacred Heart.

The coach said the team needs to get better at some of the finer skills of the game, such as finishing, but that the first thing is physical fitness.

"One of my goals is to prepare them so that by the time school gets out in June, they have a program to follow, and they will come in [to August practices] in shape and ready to play," Beal said.

If the Skippers can come together for the entire 2004 season the way they did the last nine games of this year, the rest of the league is in for a big challenge.

in Courtney Caron, Danielle Pinkus, and Rachel Doyle. Doyle captured the season "MVP" trophy. Captain Kelly Hurley received the "coach's award" for her organizational skills. Caitlin Condon, who racked up eight shutouts during the season, got the nod for the "most improved player." Jessie Guilds captured the "most versatile player" award.

The chemistry among the players also reached toward their coach's direction.

"We couldn't have done it without coach Bostwick,' noted senior goalie Caitlin Condon. "She was so lively and assuring. We owe our season to her."

Bostwick quickly deflected attention away from herself and towards her assistant coach, Alexandra Williams. She also cited the very important role CHS Athletic Director Ron Ford played in coordinating league matters.

When the Mariner interview shifted to next year's schedule, coach Bostwick said Mr. Ford and she will finalize the details in July. This much she knows: Norwell, Hull, Carver, Harwich and Mashpee will take on the Skippers again. She predicts Mashpee and Harwich will give Cohasset the greatest challenge. Like Cohasset, Carver will lose several players to graduation.

Even though she has coached field hockey for 14 years, Deb Bostwick holds high standards for herself. In the off season, she will go to clinics and work on designing innovative offensive strategies.

She voiced expectations for her returning players as well. She wants them in good condition when the season starts. Coach Bostwick also hopes players will take advantage of the off season opportunities, such as indoor leagues and summer camps.

Players likely to return include:

Juniors - Liz Condos, Allison Dean, Courtney Hurley, Christina St. Pierre, Colby Durant, and Alison Fludder.

Sophomores - Brooke Allen, Aaron Bigley, Katie James, Remy Lee, Mia Lieb-Lappen, and Katherine Whoriskey will return.

With another encouraging season under her belt, Deb Bostwick realizes it won't be an easy task to fill in the spots of this year's graduating players. All but two starters from this season graduate in June. She faces the prospect of grooming two goalies, a sweeper, two fullbacks, three half backs and at least two offensive line players

The rebuilding task for Coach Bostwick will prove daunting. As her players will attest, though, if anyone can do it, she can.

Morris, who carried down to the 3-yard line behind blocks from the right side of his offensive line: junior Matt Casey at center, Davis at right guard and sophomore Dan McCarthy at right tackle.

On second and goal, Cohasset tried the same play. Morris carried to the 1 and then the ball squirted loose into the end zone on a hard hit delivered by Norwell captain Frank Granara. Senior tight end Sean Connolly recovered the loose ball, and with 1:05 left in the game, the Cohasset faithful went crazy. Connolly added the extra point and the celebration continued.

The host Clippers had one last opportunity to score. They advanced the ball to the Skippers 38-yard line, but then four straight incomplete passes ended their dream of an SSL crown.

Offensively, the Clippers had 13 possessions. Eight ended with a punt, three with a turnover, and two on downs. Senior captain Tony Truglia, at linebacker, led the Skippers with eight tackles, followed by Durkin with seven from his defensive backfield position.

Senior captain Chris Bilodeau recorded his fifth and sixth interceptions of the season to halt two of Norwell's drives. Junior defensive tackle Matt Baroudi recovered a fumble on Norwell's first possession of the game at the Skippers 36-yard line. This would be Norwell's deepest advance into Cohasset territory all night.

DeWayne Morris went over the 1,000 yard rushing mark for the season. He now has 1,062 yards on the season. Morris had a long gain of 24 yards behind the blocks of senior left tackle Dan Tarpey, sophomore left guard Nick Arment, and a lead block from junior fullback Ted Straughn.

The Skippers played before their largest away game crowd of the season.

Cohasset's defensive backfield of Bilodeau, Durkin, juniors Crandon Leahy and D J Silvia held Norwell to four completions on 20 attempts.

Cohasset's front defensive four — Connolly, juniors Kelvin Ferriera, Matt Baroudi, and Leo Clougherty— accounted for 18 tackles.

Enrollments put squeeze on Cohasset Middle-High School

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

"The high school is going to be required to increase in staffing over the next few years."
— Principal Michael Jones

More students and less money for hiring teachers mean additional changes could be happening in the schools than just the reorganization process.

With crowding classrooms and the desire to offer as many courses as possible, those in school administration say they have some planning to do before reorganization takes place.

To try to gain a better picture of what the Middle-High school should expect as the sixth-grade class moves up and grade class size increases a little more each year, Middle-High school Principal Michael Jones gave the school committee a presentation of an enrollment analysis of past and current grade class sizes and class section sizes. He said the presentation at a recent school committee meeting was an effort to provide the data necessary to understand staffing needs for Fiscal Year 2005 and help project long-term enrollment patterns.

"The middle school is in pretty good shape right now," Jones said, adding the high school will be more of a challenge regarding increased enrollment.

He estimated the school could be graduating as many as 100 to 200 students in the coming years. He explained the enrollment "bubble" that hit the Middle School in 2000-2001 is now affecting high school class sizes. In October 2000, the middle school had 192 students, which jumped up to 235 students in October 2001. This, in turn, led the numbers in the high school to grow from 320 in October 2000 to 386 in October 2003.

As a result of the increased number in students, Jones said grade classes which used to number in the 70s, 80s and 90s over the past four years will grow to possibly the 120s over the next four. He estimates that by late in this decade, high school enrollment will have increased to possibly the mid 400s.

Another concern Jones had was the fact that some high school class sections have become unacceptably large in certain subject areas. As students advance in their studies, a greater variety of class sections are offered, some of which are only offered once. If a student wants to take a class which is only offered in one time slot, scheduling around it becomes more challenging. For example, currently there is only one marine biology class offered, which means any student who wants to take it has only one option to fit it into their schedule, and other class choices may have to be forfeited.

But class section size itself is a problem. Jones said currently, seven of 23 mathematics sections are larger than 26 students each, and three of them have more than 30. In social studies, five of 26 sections have more than 30 students, and in science, two of 26 sections have more than 26 students.

More students are opting to take independent studies as a result of limitations in course offerings and caps on class section sizes, and Jones said journalism enrollment has dramatically increased because of the introduction of the Spinnaker, the school newspaper. That class is now limited to seniors only because of its popularity.

Because the school wants to be able to offer as many classes as possible to students, some teachers such as Jack Buckley, are doubling up on the subjects they teach. Buckley not only teaches science classes, but also French and outdoor education classes.

But even with teachers doing the best they can to offer a variety of classes, Jones said more will need to be done in terms of gaining staff for the high school.

"The high school is going to be required to increase in staffing over the next few years," Jones said, in order to be able to keep up with the expected increase in students. He said possibly the best way to help fill positions would be to hire one or two new teachers a year to eventually add five more teachers to the staff.

The high school gained an art teacher for the 2001-2002 school year, and both a social studies and English teacher for the 2002-2003 school year. A science teacher was added for the 2003-2004 school year as well. The science teacher is teaching two sections of math this year to help maintain class size.

But members of the School Committee wondered if the presentation took any of the proposed development projects into account, which Jones said the estimates do not. Members worried that if projects such as Avalon, Cedarmere and the Cook Estate project go through, the potential increase in the number of students could drastically impact the enrollment numbers and further impact the numbers at the school.

"This doesn't take anything else into consideration," said committee vice chairman Chartis Tebbetts, adding more support staff will be needed the more students there are, and potential developments could make those numbers rise.

But committee member Mark DeGiacomo said in light of the situation, he's just glad talk years ago didn't put the town in a bigger bind than it is in now.

"I can't believe there was actual talk about closing Osgood," he said.

Students to make the switch

Grades will reorganize in Sept. 2004

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

"As much as we don't want to lose our students and teachers, we're very happy with the reorganization."
— Osgood Principal Janet Sheehan

Students returning to school next fall will have more than just new teachers to get used to. With construction projects either at or nearing completion in the next month, plans for a reconfiguration of grades are underway and many people are working hard to make sure the transition will be a smooth one.

In an effort to ensure all concerns surrounding the reorganization process are addressed, a group of parents, teachers, support staff, and administrators have taken the time to form a Reorganization Task Force, which has compiled a report detailing how the transition of grades should be approached.

The grade reconfiguration will mainly affect students entering grades three and six in September of 2004. Currently, students in grades kindergarten through three attend the Osgood School and students in grades four through six attend Deer Hill. Next fall, sixth graders will be shifted up to become part of the middle school, and third graders will move to Deer Hill to take their place.

"As much as we don't want to lose our students and teachers, we're very happy with the reorganization," said Osgood Principal Janet Sheehan. Currently there is a preschool operating out of Osgood which is run by the South Shore Educational Collaborative and by having a smaller Osgood student body, not only will there be more room for the estimated growth in children over the next few year, but the two schools can work together more inclusively.

"Having pre-K through grade two will really be a new culture," she said, adding she knows the purpose for the change has been well researched and will be well prepared for.

"We're ready to go," she said.

Deer Hill Principal Keith Gauley said he thinks the dynamic of his school will change a little as a result of the reorganization and said he is very excited for the sixth graders who will have the opportunity to move up to the middle school and out of an elementary setting.

"You have a fair number of kids at that age who are ready to take that next step," he said, adding the third graders who will be moving into Deer Hill will have more of the same needs as the fourth and fifth graders. By becoming a part of the middle school, he thinks the sixth graders will be better able to assert their independence, and the new situation "Will be easier all the way around."

Middle high school principal Michael Jones agreed with Gauley and said, "I think the change to a grades six-seven-eight middle school will be a major benchmark in creating an educational environment in Cohasset appropriate to children in early adolescence." He added the reconfiguration will give Cohasset a middle school as it should be, which will better accommodate the academic and social needs of the students.

According to the Task Force Report, when grade three moves to Deer Hill, the staff and curriculum will remain the same, but the grading structure may not. Because Osgood and Deer Hill currently have different grading styles and grade three teachers and students are accustomed to the Osgood method, a sub-committee will need to be formed to address whether the structure of grading and report cards should change for grade three to mimic the Deer Hill method of grading. To keep the curriculum much the same, it is hoped third graders will be able to have the last lunch schedule to accommodate for a longer morning teaching block.

PSO sponsored programs such as Great Books, intergenerational luncheons at the Senior Center, and nature trail outings and maintenance will continue, as well as other activities such as the Breakfast Club, KEDS, and the after school enrichment program.

Transportation will continue for students at the Osgood and Deer Hill levels as it is currently run. However, Jones said some parents have expressed concern over younger children riding buses with older children, and that issue is currently being studied. He said one possible solution is to stagger the opening times of the middle and high schools so the students arrive at different times on different buses. However, the issue is still under review and Jones said very few high school students take the bus, and many that do are freshmen. In addition, "counts" are being taken so the schools have actual data to bring forward to the discussion. Jones fully believes any transportation questions will eventually "be answered to the satisfaction of everyone."

To come to those final decisions, Gauley said many meetings are still to be had as school administrators try to work out the specifics. "We're trying to hit the issues point by point and iron out all the fine details," he said, adding some dates have already been set for orientation programs of incoming students and those who will be moving on to the middle high school.

Jones said the middle school will hold a parent orientation for the parents of fifth and sixth grade students late in May, as both will be making the transition up to the middle school in the fall. A parent-student breakfast will also be held at the middle school on June 10, 2004.

Although the middle school is housed in the same building as the high school, the two are considered entirely separate entities. The renovations to the schools have allowed for both to operate independently, with only a few shared common spaces such as the cafeteria, gymnasium complex and the library media center.

"All of the sixth grade and most of the seventh will be located on the second floor in the same wing of the building. It will be like taking two-thirds of the Deer Hill population and relocating them to a new building. Their classmates will be familiar and the teachers moving up from Deer Hill will be familiar," Jones said.

Grades six through eight will all be run under the same middle school philosophy, and sixth graders will maintain their current structure as much as is possible, in terms of teacher teaming and allocation of time for different subject areas. Grades seven and eight will maintain their current middle school structure.

Possible changes to the middle school recommended by the Task Force include the hiring of an administrator to be in charge of that school, who will have overall administrative responsibility for its management, including supervision of faculty and staff. It has also been recommended that the school hire a counselor or dean of students, who would provide academic counseling and assist in scheduling, parent meetings, maintaining discipline, and generally help oversee the middle school. The hiring of a middle school secretary has also been recommended as well as a school nurse and team leader.

But with the hiring of staff comes a price to pay, and the recommended additions are expected to total roughly $167,500. Estimated salaries are $80,000 a year for the administrator, $40,000 for the guidance counselor, $25,000 for the secretary, $20,000 for the nurse, and $1,500 for the team leader.

While Jones said there are sure to be challenges along the way, one problem he doesn't see in the future is a lack of classroom space. While there will be 370 students in the middle school and 390 in the high school, for a total of roughly 760 students under one much-expanded roof, he said the construction projects have ensured the facility can accommodate the students the town has.

"Of course, we will need to maintain and operate a facility that is larger than any that has been familiar to the town of Cohasset, so an adequate budget and staffing plan is necessary," he said.

But overall, preliminary plans look good for the reorganization and both Gauley and Jones are looking forward to the change.

"I think the middle school will have a greater autonomy next year and a sense of identity that it has been working toward for the last six or seven years. We have a great staff, a modern facility, and the best students in the Commonwealth! It's going to be a big success," Jones said.

For anyone interested in reading a copy of the Task Report, copies are available at Town Hall, the Library, and all three schools, as well as the Superintendent's office.

IT'S HAPPENING

Christmas concert helps kids with cancer

First Parish has been holding Christmas concerts and donating the proceeds for the past 24 years. Thanks to generous support, over $45,000 has gone to worthy local, national, and international organizations. This year's Concert is dedicated to former minister Ed Atkinson who conceived of the idea in 1978.

This year's Christmas Concerton Dec. 14 at 4 p.m. features Margo Euler and the Unicorn Singers performing John Rutter's "Magnificat.". The seven movements set the text as found in the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, with the addition of a tranquil setting of the 15th-century "Of a rose, a Lovely Rose." The remainder of the hour-long 25th anniversary Christmas event will feature favorite carol settings for the audience to sing with the choir.

A reception will follow celebrating the event's 25ht year. Concert Patron donations of $50 or more may be sent to: First Parish in Cohasset, 23 No. Main Street, Cohasset, MA 02025 (two tickets included and published acknowledgement); advanced tickets at $10 go on sale Nov. 24 (781 383-1100); tickets are $12 at the door.

The beneficiary of the Christmas Concert this year is the "Artist in Residence" program at Mass. General Hospital for Children with Cancer. The current artist is Joan Drescher of Hingham. Twice a week she moves her "Imagination Kart" through the bustling halls of the hospital. The Kart is covered with little spinning kites, moons, stars and streamers. It is filled with art supplies to inspire hospitalized children to explore their imaginations and cope with the stress of illness and loss. Her dream is that the simple images of hope and beauty created by the children will open hearts and make the world a better place.

GEMS of Hope gala

"An Evening of Elegance" is planned for Nov. 21 to benefit GEMS of Hope, USA. The event, to be held at Atlantica Restaurant, will include dinner, a fashion show and boutique provided by Neiman Marcus. There will also be a silent auction of items and events , the proceeds of which, will add to the support given to families in poverty-stricken countries to help them become self-sufficient. This particular event will assist the poorest of the poor in Guadalaljara, Mexico. GEMS also works with several local charities: the Mary Martha Learning Center, the Odwin Center, Magnificat Global Healtah Foundation, and Wellspring.

Reservations can be made by calling Joan Shockman , 781-383-6366.

Jingle Bell walk is Nov. 28

The South Shore Community Center invites family and friends to join in the holiday spirit at the Jingle Bell Walk. The Jingle Bell Walk, a Cohasset tradition offered by the SSCC, begins at 2 p.m. on Nov. 28, when Santa Claus arrives by boat with his elves at Cohasset Harbor (Border St.). After Santa distributes jingle bells to the children, he and his elves will board a hayride and the walk continues along the sidewalks of Elm to Main St. in Cohasset. At 2:30 p.m. the South Shore Community Center welcomes you to partake in cookies, a beverage, and a holiday-sing-along. Holiday music and carols will also be sung by all.

Santa will be upstairs in the Center to pose for pictures with you and your children. Please stroll through the village to share in the local shops' holiday ambiance.

At 3 p.m. on Cohasset Common there will be a "Turkey Tot Trot" for ages 3 to 10. You may pre-register for this event for $2 or post register the day of the event for $3 per participant. Proceeds will go to benefit the Nursery School. All participants will receive a prize!

Listen to the bells of St. Stephen's playing from 2:30 to 4 p.m., while enjoying a hayride around the Common. Hayrides will be available from 3 to 4 p.m. At 3:45 p.m., gather around the Cohasset Common to listen to the Rusty Skippers Marching Band. The festivities culminate on Cohasset Common at 4:15 p.m. with the lighting of the tree.

There is something for everyone this year at the Jingle Bell Walk. It's a great way to appreciate our picturesque surroundings, while involving the whole family in a Cohasset tradition.

In the event of rain, all outdoor activities will be cancelled and Santa will arrive in the Community Center Gym at 2 p.m.

HSO Welcomes Yule!

Join the Hingham Symphony Orchestra and conductor Jin Kim for two festive concerts to usher in the Yule tide season. On Saturday, Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. the HSO will perform in the historic Old Ship Meeting House in Hingham Square. The Meeting House, built in 1681, provides a unique historic backdrop for the full orchestra. Seating is limited to 250 in the box pews and balcony.

On Sunday, Dec. 7 at 4 p.m., the HSO performs in St. Anthony's Church, South Main Street, Cohasset. With its excellent acoustics and open seating, St. Anthony's naturally amplifies the sound of the orchestra, filling the space with music. Also, at this concert HSO Fanfare members will host a reception for all during intermission.

At both concerts, the HSO will perform Stravinsky's Pulcinella Suite from the ballet of the same name, and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8. Audience members will also sing several carols played by the orchestra and conducted by Jin Kim. An annual event, the Welcome Yule concert is known to spark the holiday spirit with its joyous music and enthusiastic audiences. The encore, Anderson's Sleigh Ride, is beloved by all.

Tickets at $25 adult, $20 senior, and $10 youth through age 18, are available at Hingham and Weymouth Main Libraries, Nobles, Hingham Square, Buttonwood Books, Cohasset and Front Street Book Shop, Scituate, or call 781-740-5694 to order by phone.

Garage dance

There will be a dance at the Garage Friday, Nov. 21, from 7 to 10 p.m. Everyone from grade 6 and up are welcome. There will be a door charge of $5 per person. Snacks and refreshments will be sold as well.

Cruise to Alaska raffle

There's a 1 in 300 chance you could win a Cruise for Two to Alaska – a 7-Day Princess Cruise from Vancouver to Anchorage stopping at Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway and cruising Glacier Bay. Simply purchase a $50 raffle ticket from First Parish. The chances of winning are high, and the proceeds support the church's efforts at the same time.

The cruise departs Vancouver August 14, 2004. Winners will enjoy an ocean-view cabin. Transportation to and from the ship is not included, and some taxes and fees will apply. All arrangements will be made by Cruise Holidays, Seekonk.. For more information on Princess Cruises and cruises to Alaska, see www.princess.com.

The drawing will be held at the Christmas Village Fair on the Common, Dec. 6. Send your check to "First Parish", 23 No. Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025 (please make sure to note your return address) or visit the Parish House on the Common on Monday-Thursday from 9 – 2 p.m.

Holiday gifts art sale

Hull Artist Studio Connection will present 'Arts at the Abbey' on Nov. 29 and 30, at the Glastonbury Abbey Conference Center, 16 Hull St., Hingham. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 29 and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 30. Free admission and parking. Sale includes, paintings, drawings, photography, jewelry, wood carving and crafts made by local artists.

Who's the top citizen in Cohasset?

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

In keeping with a nine-year tradition recognizing an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement — the Cohasset Mariner is now accepting nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year Award.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset. This is a community award: the Mariner is the mean by which we are able to recognize, thank and honor those around us who make the quiet, generous contributions that make our town a wonderful place to call home.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Arthur Year as Citizen of the Year for a lifetime of service to the town including myriad good works, and always as a volunteer — whether that be mowing the "cap" of the town landfill with his red tractor or serving as the town's Civil Defense Director.

The deadline for nominations for the 2003 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan 2. Please see the nomination form on page 4. The form may be photocopied. Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931.

This is not a popularity contest. Following the close of nominations, a selection panel — after reviewing the names submitted by poring over the nomination letters and comments — will select the 2003 Citizen of the Year, who will be named in January 2004.

Nominees may be someone in elected office, a member of an appointed town committee, teacher or school administrator, clergy member, firefighter, police officer or other municipal worker. And the nominee may be a person in the business community, sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has freely given of his or her time and energy for a worthwhile Cohasset project or cause.

This year's recipient will be the11th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year, joining past recipients:

1993: the late Gerard T. Keating, "Mr. Cohasset": for his more than half-century of contributions to the community, including serving as chairman of the Council on Aging, chairman of the school committee, president of the hockey boosters club, vice president of the Cohasset Historical Society, director of veterans services, and lector, eucharistic minister and usher at St. Anthony's Church.

1994: Joseph D. Buckley, for his work behind the scenes helping seniors understand the complexities of the healthcare system and to access health benefits through SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), his service on the Council on Aging, and volunteer work over the years with the Boy Scouts, Little league, Sunday School and more.

1995: Dr. Robert T. Sceery, for his more than 40 years of dedicated service as a pediatrician in town and school doctor. He also served on the board of health and led the fight back in the 1970s to sewer the town. He is also a familiar figure at town meetings where he speaks his mind on important issues.

1996: The Rev. Gary Ritts, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, for being a positive force for good through his work with the Appalachia Service Project (ASP), an ecumenical volunteer effort involving Cohasset teenagers. ASP is a home building ministry in central Appalachia.

1997: Anna Abbruzzese, for all her volunteer work including preparing and delivering meals for the Pine Street Inn, driving the senior shuttle and coordinating the Gourmet Cooking Club at the Council on Elder Affairs; and her many efforts to help revitalize Cohasset Village through the Farmers' Market and much more.

1998: Katherine Stanton, for her tireless service to the town and its citizens over the years. She also volunteers as a case reviewer for the state Dept. of Social Services, served on the school committee and recreation committee, and along with her family was involved with the creation of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

1999: the late Clark Chatterton, for his generosity of spirit and deep caring for his fellow man, his years of work as a teacher and athletic director at the high school, including innumerable efforts helping others behind the scenes. He also helped raise money for many causes including Alumni Field and the American Cancer Society.

2000: former state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray for a lifetime of service to her hometown, first as den mother and Little League mother and Girl Scout leader, and then as selectman. She was also honored for her public service as state representative for more than two decades and for always putting her constituents first.

2001: Glenn Pratt for his dogged determination over 20 years to see more cemetery space in town, remembering local soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice, helping to lead the effort to expand the community center, serving as an elected official, and spearheading the effort to build a memorial to local mothers who lost sons in wartime.

2002: Arthur Lehr for more than 50 years of volunteer service on worthwhile projects including the Boy Scouts; serving on the Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Registrar of Voters; Clerk of the Works for the DPW garage, Little League Complex, and Mariners Park; serving on the Recycling Committee, as town Civil Defense Director, on Gravel Pit Reuse Committee and more.

South Shore Voke conducts open house

The South Shore Regional Vocational Technical High School will hold its annual open house Wednesday, Dec. 3, 6:30 to 9 p.m. (snow date: Dec. 4).

Charles Homer, assistant director/principal of the high school, reports that "all 13 technical programs will be staffed to explain their programs to future students and their parents." The South Shore Regional School District includes the towns of Abington, Cohasset, Hanover, Hanson, Norwell, Rockland, Scituate and Whitman.

The four-year technical night school offers programs in auto body, automotive, carpentry, cosmetology, culinary arts, drafting, electrical, graphics, health careers, heating ventilation and air conditioning, electronics, precision machine technology and welding metal fabrication.

The annual open house will also have technical and academic displays along with baking and pastry displays. For more information on the open house, call 781-871-4153.

Collecting box tops for education

The Deer Hill School has been participating in the Box Tops For Education program, sponsored by General Mills. It is a great opportunity for the school to earn extra money. They have slated the money earned, to purchase new books for the school library. The students have been collecting box tops from many General Mills products, and sending them into the company for cash! Last year alone, they collected more than $1,500 in box tops for the Deer Hill library.

Cohasset residents can participate in this program as well. Collecting the Box Tops for Education labels, found on many food products from General Mills, and sending them over to the Deer Hill library, will help the students earn new books.

The school is hoping that all residents will get into the box top groove. For more information, contact Pam Wilson-coordinator for the Deer Hill PSO at 781-383-3076.

Send in your school news

The Cohasset Mariner wants to develop a school news page to run every week. Short news items from teachers and school organizations are welcome. Photographs of events, accompanied with a short article or longer story are also sought. If you have "Stars of the Month", an interesting program or student volunteer effort, artwork, student writings, interesting field trip, or special projects, please share them with us.

Also, if you would like to request a photographer for your school event, please let us know. Contact editor Mary Ford at 781-741-2933. News items my be sent by email to mford@cnc.com or dropped off at Cohasset News on Brook Street in the village.

Quick action thwarts theft

A quick response from Cohasset police officers apparently thwarted a burglary at Curtis Liquors stopping two men from making off with the safe from the liquor store.

Det. Garrett Hunt said the alarm came in at 9:45 p.m., Sunday from Curtis Liquors in Tedeschi Plaza. Officer Shellee Peters was the first on the scene; backup was provided by Officer Frank Yannizzi and Officer Lisa Matos.

Two men were observed quickly exiting the rear of the building and appeared to be attempting to remove the safe that had been moved from the front office to the back door. Once police arrived, the men fled on foot without the safe.

The Norfolk County Sheriff Department's canine unit was called in to assist in the search with negative results, Hunt said. The two men were described as each being about 5 ft. 8 ins. tall and weighing about 165 lbs.

Hunt said they were wearing hooded sweatshirts, jeans and running shoes.

The incident is under investigation. Anyone with information, should call Hunt at 781-383-1055.

Three Generations of Rug Making
Since the early 1900s the Jafri family has been making and selling rugs around the world. Just outside of Lahore Pakistan is the original Dover workshop where many of our rugs are still made today, the same way they were made back then- by hand.

Rugs in School
A rug can teach you a lot about art, history, culture, and tradition. We can learn about the tradition of rug making. Every year, school children visit our store and design their own rugs.

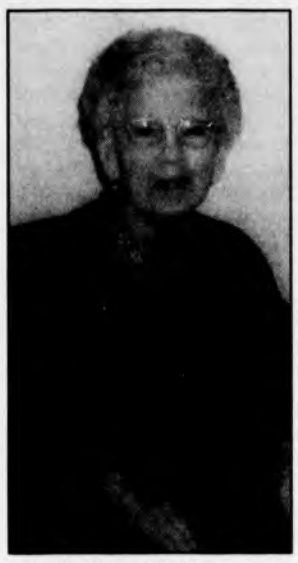
KEEPING AN EAR TO THE GROUND

While it doesn't take a zoologist to see that elephants have highly developed ears for picking up a frequency that is typically too low for a human ear to perceive, not too many people are aware that pachyderms also hear with their feet. Stanford researchers have found that an elephant's vocal call actually generates two separate sounds: the airborne one and another that travels through the ground as a seismic wave. All the more remarkable is the fact that elephants perceive the ground signals through their feet. In fact, the elephant's feet (and trunk) contain specialized nerve endings that detect faint motion and vibration. Once the feet pick up the seismic vibrations, the information is sent to the elephant's brain.

If you have a hearing loss, you are missing more than just the understanding of words. Hearing keeps you in touch with the world, lets you respond to sound, and reassures you of changing surroundings. After age 50, a regular hearing test should be considered as important as a yearly physical checkup. FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER offers comprehensive hearing services by a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, including testing, fittings, a full line of hearing instruments, accessories, follow-up support, and repairs. PH: 781-337-1144.

P.S. Humans hear sounds by bone conduction when sound vibrations are transmitted directly from the skull and jawbones to the cochlea (inner ear).

OBITUARIES



Myrtle M. Stoddard

Myrtle M. Stoddard

Myrtle Morrison Stoddard, 91, of Portsmouth, N.H., formerly of Stoneham, Mass. and Fayetteville, N.C., died Nov. 16, 2003, at the Mark H. Wentworth Home in Portsmouth.

On May 17, 2003, she and her husband, Sheldon B. Stoddard, formerly of Cohasset, now deceased, celebrated 61 years of marriage. The couple resided in Portsmouth for the last 25 years having moved back to New England from Fayetteville, N.C. after their retirement in 1969.

Mrs. Stoddard was born in Stoneham to the late Donald and Ada Morrison and was the oldest of five children. She grew up in Stoneham, graduating from Stoneham High School. She attended and graduated from a one-year college-level training program at the Children's Convalescent Home in Wellesley. After marrying Sheldon in Dillon, S.C. followed by a short honeymoon, she took up home-front duties as Sheldon shipped out for the duration of World War II in the European Theater.

She was a 25-year member of Middle Street Baptist Church in Portsmouth, the Ann Judson Fellowship, Ladies Bible Club, Roger Williams Club and RSVP. She was the first recipient of the Middle Street Baptist Church Faithful Good Samaritan Award. This honor recognized her strong Christian witness of extraordinary care and devotion to the membership of the church through personal visitations in the hospital, nursing homes and in the homes of the shut-ins, and for her daily life of devoted prayer for others.

She was active for many years as a church volunteer to the Salvation Army's meal program and the church's flower program for ill members of the congregation. She spent much of her adult life in volunteer roles with the American Red Cross, meal programs and other church and civic-related activities.

Wife of the late Sheldon B. Stoddard, she leaves her children, Peter and Jan Stoddard, Ashley and Miranda Stoddard and Tom Stoddard, all of Portsmouth, N.H.; a brother, Donald (Bud) Morrison of Belmont; nine grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren. She was mother of the late Mary Lou (Stoddard) Holdsworth; and sister of the late Ruth Thorp, Russell Morrison and Kenneth Morrison.

A funeral service will be held at the Middle Street Baptist Church, 18 Court St., Portsmouth, N.H. Thursday at 1 p.m.

Arrangements were by the J. Verne Wood Funeral Home - Buckminster Chapel in Portsmouth.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorial contributions be made to Portsmouth/Derry/Salem Home Health and Hospice Services, 95 Brewery Lane, Unit 11, Portsmouth, NH 03801.

Edward J. Sweeney Jr.

Edward J. Sweeney Jr., 72, of Cohasset, died Nov. 8, 2003, at New England Medical Center after a short illness.

Born in Jamaica, N.Y., the son of the late Capt. Edward J. and Dorothy Sweeney Sr., he was a 1949 graduate of Cohasset High School.

He was in the U.S. Navy for 20 years serving in Vietnam. He retired as a Lieutenant. After retirement from the Navy he worked for General Dynamics in Quincy for 15 years as a security/fireman.

Mr. Sweeney was a member of the VFW for many years.

He enjoyed fishing and was a pet lover and advocate donating to many pet organizations.

Mr. Sweeney leaves a brother, Robert L. Sweeney of Scituate; three nephews Shawn M. Sweeney of Scituate, Torin G. Sweeney of Scituate and Kirk A. Sweeney of Hanover; six great-nieces and nephews.

A graveside service will be held on Nov. 22, at Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset, handled the arrangements.

In the Scripture lessons for the last Sunday after Pentecost, the Book of Daniel presents a scene of judgment in heaven and a vision of one like a son of man coming to rule an everlasting kingdom. The lesson from the Book of Revelation begins with a greeting from the everlasting God, from the seven spirits that worship him, and from Jesus Christ, the first born from the dead. In the Gospel of John, Jesus comes face to face with the Roman Governor and seeks to explain the nature of his kingship.

Books, CDs and DVDs are sought

Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave. is accepting donations of slightly worn hardcover and paperback books, DVD's, CD's and videos for its annual book sale, part of the ecumenical Village Fair that will be held on Saturday, Dec. 6.

If your book shelves are spilling on the floor, and DVD's CD's and videos are busting out of the entertainment center like superman out of a phone booth, the church has got the solution for you. Donations can be brought to the church in bags or boxes and placed inside the parish hall door marked "church offices." Alternatively, the church would be happy to arrange pick up of your donations. For donation pick-up or information, call Alix White at 781-383-1829. Books are sorted at St. Stephen's Church in Walton Rodgers Hall every Monday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

The book sale is a mission program of St. Stephen's Church to more strongly establish a church presence in a needy area.

New book takes novel look at life in 'McMansion' world

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

Sabin Willett's latest novel, "Present Value," is hitting home with many South Shore readers, regardless of the size of their current abode or income. Local readers heard the novelist speak at a recent reading at Hingham Public Library.

Fritz Brubaker and his image-conscious wife, Linda, seem to have it all – good jobs (she's a high-powered, million-dollar-a-year lawyer and he's a toy company executive), a "McMansion" in the affluent Boston suburb of Dover, along with a cottage in Nantucket, two children in private school, and an SUV. But the author and readers sense that something seems to be missing.

The potential impermanence of riding high comes into sharp focus as the plot of this witty social commentary unfolds, delivering Willett's sobering message based on a passage from the Bible. As the author said, "'Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also,' (St. Luke) meaning our heart can only be in one place. We need to place our heart in heaven." Simply put, "There's a conflict today between the practical values, referring to capitalism, and real values."

Willett provided insights into his writing of "Present Value" at a recent book reading/signing at the library co-sponsored by Buttonwood Books of Cohasset, where the novel is selling like hotcakes. It's at once fast-paced, engaging, irreverent yet compassionate, insightful, thought-provoking, funny, and much more, as readers will discover. Willett's writing style, while reflecting his originality, has been likened to that of Tom Wolfe and Jonathan Franzen.

Ann Dalton of the library staff, introduced Willett as an author "who gets a strong message across in an entertaining, creative, and honest way." She described the book as a "fascinating story of people who have already attained status and material goods who find their cushy world" falling apart.

Jim Cope of Cohasset is a big fan of the book. "I loved it and read it on the commuter boat," he said. "People were looking at me because I was laughing out loud."

His comment pleased Willett. "I still giggle myself at some of it, and I'm glad others do, too," he said.

The book was among the staff favorites at Buttonwood, according to owner Betsey Detwiler, who called it a "keen satire on upper-middle class values in America: cell phones, Blackberries (among the latest in e-mail technology), SUVs, and the like. It's a wonderful send-up on the values of our current society, where having money and spending it in the most conspicuous way seems to be considered the ultimate sign of success. The book deals with so much of what is going on these days – choices, lifestyles, values."

Still, Detwiler wondered "if people with all the accoutrements" find the book amusing.

"I think they do!" Willett said. "I think people enjoy seeing themselves in a book." At the same time, he quipped, "No one from Dover has invited me to dinner for a long time, although the librarian there has asked me to speak." Besides, he said, the kind of lifestyle led by the Brubakers "is everywhere, not just in Dover."

When asked why he took the risk of using the names of real communities, Willett noted that while he had given the issue some thought, he ultimately decided, "Let's just go for it."

Even though Fritz finds himself competing with his wife's Blackberry when he's trying to enjoy a warm summer evening in Nantucket and the children sometimes get on their nerves, the Brubakers seem to have it all. That is, until Fritz is arrested for insider trading and his wife's image-conscious firm suspends her, both homes get repossessed, and the kids go haywire. In losing their most prized material possessions, the family is forced to reset its course in a changed world. The book ends on an upbeat note. "I'm essentially hopeful," the author said.

"I loved it and read it on the commuter boat. People were looking at me because I was laughing out loud."
— Jim Cope, Cohasset

Even though Linda comes across as a mere cliché and source of humor at first glance, Willett worked "to give her a little more depth to explain how she got to be so obsessive, how the culture fed into a naturally obsessive nature, and how the predicament of having to accomplish all the external 'successes' as a woman compounded her stress. I wanted the reader to root for her, just a little, by the end."

Willett, a partner with the law firm of Bingham McCutchen LLP, graduated from Harvard and Harvard Law School. He is also the author of two legal thrillers, "The Deal" and "The Betrayal." Deciding he needed a change of pace, Willett decided to write an entirely different kind of novel his third time around. "Trying for a third thriller seemed like cramming a square peg into a round hole," he said.

While Willett exaggerates some of the behavior and lifestyle patterns of the Brubakers, he said he does live in a town outside of Boston that "is not wholly unlike Dover, and I see in big-firm urban practice the lifestyle of the rich and powerful. . . . There are both women and men – particularly lawyers – for whom the combination of money hunger, nerves, and instant communications goads into this perpetual state of anxiety."

Willett also believes some people in his generation are spending too much time in their children's lives. "I think the middle-aged moneyed class spends a lot of time trying to show off its exquisitely sensitive parenting. . . . We didn't have play dates when I was a kid. We biked to our friends' houses. Now children are taken to play dates in SUVs and watched over by their parents to be sure everything goes okay. Somebody needed to put a stop to it, and this book does that. . . . Perfection in a family is love, and if you have that, you don't need to pretend to have anything else."

Willett, who admits to owning an SUV, isn't hesitant to poke fun at them in his book: "'Carpool lane' was one of the school's many charming euphemisms, for there wasn't much pooling evident. The fewer the kids, the bigger the vehicle. The SUVS idled in rank, pumping out pizza-oven blasts of superheated exhaust, inching forward toward the alcove, where each would discharge from 78 cubic feet of cargo space its seven cubic feet of Precious Cargo." The line of SUVs was "broken only once by a minivan that looked as though it were being held hostage."

Willett is sure to evoke gales of laughter – and perhaps some protests – with his comments about the politically correct behavior patterns of some parents waiting in line in their SUVs:

"They didn't wait impatiently, mind you – they advanced smartly, even eagerly, the moment they could, but not impatiently. No impatience would be expressed as the SUV at the front of the line stopped at the alcove and the driver hopped down from the front seat; none as she (usually but not always, either Mom or the nanny), came around to the passenger side to unbelt the cargo with a cheery wave to the vehicle behind; none as she greeted the welcome teacher (this morning it was Mavis Potemkin, one of the team-teaching second-grade pair); certainly no one would express vehicular urgency as the parent straightened the Patagonia backpack on the child's shoulders (the backpack must be an approved backpack: while the $79.99 JanSport would do in a pinch, a good parent really ought to spring for the $109 Patagonia number); no one in line would be so gauche as to rev a 300-horsepower engine as the parent checked the water bottle (children must be properly hydrated at all times); and then, perhaps most important of all, as the line of idling SUVs pumped remorseless cubic meters of carbon monoxide into the hot morning air, no impatience would be expressed as the parent escorted the Precious Cargo 30 feet across the gravel and through the doorway of Fielding Hall."

In Chapter 5, Linda complains about her husband's complacence to her $400 an hour therapist. Although Fritz makes $155,000 a year as senior assistant controller at Playtime, that's not enough to pay the mortgage on their $2.1 million brick mansion, she asserts. Why, that salary barely covers the nanny and the nanny's car! Apparently, Fritz is "content to float along, not working to get ahead, when he could have been a CFO a long time ago. No, not him." Linda is unsettled by the fact that he wants to leave the office at five, wants his sailing and his "latest thing," cycling, leaving Linda with most of the responsibility in the marriage. Unbelievably, Fritz doesn't even check e-mail on weekends! In Linda's eyes he is "just lazy," and if it weren't for her, they "wouldn't be able to afford Dover at all."

How does Willett find time to write considering family, business, and other obligations? "I carve time out of nights and weekends," he said. His fourth book, which is nearly finished, centers around efforts to bring a gambling casino to a small New Hampshire village.

When asked if writing is his first passion, Willett answered, "No, my wife is my first passion," evoking approving murmurs from the audience.

"Present Value" is dedicated to his late father, Peter: "Values mattered to Dad, and value too; but he cared nothing for money."

South Shore singers shine in "Follies In Concert"

Tony Award-winner Len Cariou is the marquee name in the Overture Productions presentation of "Follies In Concert," but it is a large and very talented company of local performers — including eight from the South Shore — who are really bringing the concert version of the Stephen Sondheim musical to vivid life in Boston this month.

Under the direction of Spiro Veloudos, and with Musical Director Michael Joseph of Weymouth leading an impressive on-stage orchestra, Cariou, Maryann Zschau, Leigh Barrett and Frank Gayton play the old friends at the heart of the story by James Goldman. The quartet does an excellent job not only with the singing, but also the acting required to portray two long-married couples who find themselves at mid-life crossroads. Set at a reunion of Ziegfeld Follies-like girls at the theater where they performed, and which is now slated for the wrecking ball, "Follies" features some of Sondheim's best-known songs including "I'm Still Here," "Losing My Mind," and "Broadway Baby," belted out in this production with vampish verve by Weymouth's Mary Callanan. Holbrook native and current East Bridgewater resident Paula Markowicz gets her own moment in the spotlight, too, when she leads the ladies in a spirited tap dance to "Who's That Woman."

The South Shore is further represented by sisters Caroline and Kate deLima of Cohasset; Bill Stambaugh of Plymouth, and Heather Hannon and Sean Roper of Quincy. "Follies In Concert" will be performed Nov. 21-22 at John Hancock Hall, 200 Berkeley Street, Boston. For tickets, call 617/931-2787 or visit www.ticketmaster.com.

Joint effort focuses on forming park

Plans zero in on preserving towns' Weir River Estuary

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset are working together to preserve the Weir River Estuary, which features more than 100 species of birds and rare volcanic and glacial geology, through a public-private partnership.

Residents from all three communities are invited to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, at Hingham Town Hall to hear a progress report and participate in a discussion about land protection, habitat monitoring, stewardship education, and recreation using the water as the path. The meeting is a follow-up to a visioning session held earlier this year.

The Weir River Estuary Committee, drawn from the three towns, would like to create a park, including much of the estuary's remaining unprotected shoreline. The Committee is now identifying key parcels of privately owned land which could be incorporated into the park. Good news came recently in the form of a grant, which will fund the Dec. 3 follow-up session and the development of a land protection plan and a paddling access brochure.

Faith Burbank, Hingham's representative on the Committee, has called the area "another jewel spot for our town."

The estuary goes from the end of the fresh river portion of the Weir River at Foundry Pond Dam in Hingham to the tip of World's End and Sunset Point in Hull, where it enters Hull Bay. It also includes Strait's Pond between Hull and Cohasset, which is partially tidal and flows to the estuary through a pipe at West Corner. The river originates in Hingham and empties into the Bay. The protected land at World's End borders the estuary and would provide a scenic backdrop for the proposed park.

A tri-town Estuary Committee would be appointed to oversee the park. Volunteers from all three communities are needed to transform the vision into a reality.

Over the past 10 years, the Town of Hull has drafted several plans for a Weir River Estuary Park to capitalize on its recreational and educational potential. Recently the geographic scope was broadened to include the other two towns. The state designated the estuary

Broken railing charge heard

Selectmen mum on police matter

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Three men including the police chief's son are scheduled to be back in court Dec. 2 for a pretrial conference on charges they broke the handicapped railing at the American Legion post on Summer Street during an alleged fight in October.

Keith A. Jackson, 24, and Jerry Cogill, 25, both of Cohasset and Adam Thibault, 22, of Hingham were arraigned on the charge of malicious destruction of property valued over $250 before Judge Mark Coven at Quincy District Court on Thursday.

The routine arraignment in the crowded courtroom was one of many scheduled for Thursday and took less than five minutes. As the three accused and two of their attorneys faced Judge Coven, the Assistant Clerk Magistrate Stephen Abany warned the men to stay out of trouble until the matter is resolved or risk having their release on personal recognizance revoked. The standard warning is required under state law.

The scene belied the controversy swirling around the aftermath of the Oct. 11 incident outside the Legion post that

Cohasset to host Superbowl playoffs

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Cohasset's big win over Norwell last week has qualified the school for post-season football, and Cohasset has been asked to host what could be the biggest sporting event of the year.

On Tuesday Dec. 2 at 7 p.m. on Alumni Field, Cohasset will host the Division Five Superbowl playoffs, which Athletic Director Ronald Ford said could possibly qualify as the biggest Cohasset sporting event of the year.

"We've had great crowds," all season he said, adding this game could rival the Thanksgiving Day game in terms of crowd size. Cohasset will play its Thanksgiving Day game in Hull.

There are four teams, which have qualified to compete in the playoffs, and the two that win will continue on to the Superbowl. While the destination of the Superbowl has not been announced yet, Ford said there are currently three possible sites in the running, including Brockton High School, a turf field in Chelsea, and Worcester State College.

"We're all very excited. This could be the biggest and best attended event that Cohasset High School has ever hosted."
— Mark DeGiacomo, School Committee

School Committee member Mark DeGiacomo, a 1974 graduate of Cohasset High School, said the fact that the town has been asked to host a game of this magnitude "is huge."

"We're all very excited. This could be the biggest and best attended event that Cohasset High School has ever hosted," he said.

DeGiacomo said when he was in school, Cohasset was never asked to host an event like this, and the football team was only "mediocre." He said he remembers at one time,

New flyer policy at Cohasset schools

The schools have been receiving many flyers from various organizations around town, and have written a new flyer policy to help regulate some of the materials allowed to be sent home in backpacks.

"We got to the point where so many people wanted to send home flyers," that a policy needed to be written to set guidelines, said Supt. Edward Malvey.

The new policy states "The School Committee prohibits, in the schools, any advertising or otherwise promoting the interest of any commercial, political or non-social agency, individual or organization. Limited exceptions may be granted to this prohibition by the superintendent."

In the future, the policy will allow flyers, which benefit students to be sent home, but anything that would use children as the vehicle to get information out to others would not be allowed.

Upcoming meetings

The following meetings were posted at Town Hall this week:

Board of Assessors, Dec. 2, 4 p.m.

Council of Elder Affairs, Dec. 8, 9:30 a.m., 3 N. Main St.

Conservation Commission, Dec. 11 , 7:30 p.m.

Paul Pratt Library Trustees, Dec. 10, 7 p.m., at the library.

Planning Board, Dec. 3, 7 p.m.

Recycling Committee, Dec. 6, 10 a.m., DPW garage

Selectmen, Nov. 25, 7:30 p.m.

School Committee, Nov. 20, 7 p.m., high school library.

Wastewater Study Committee, Nov. 20, 7:30 p.m.

ZBA, Dec. 2, 7:30 p.m.

All meetings are at Town Hall unless indicated otherwise.

Teachers band together

Roughly 35 teachers from all three Cohasset public schools crowded the middle high school library last week during a School Committee meeting. A grievance hearing was on the agenda for the meeting and Supt. Edward Malvey announced the board would be going into executive session to discuss the matter. Anyone not directly affected by the grievance was asked to leave the room and a swarm of teachers congregated in the hall. While there was some discussion back and forth between Malvey and a representative for the teachers regarding who would and would not be allowed into the session, eventually around 10 teachers left and roughly 20 went back into the library to be a part of the executive session discussion. After that discussion ended and the teachers left, the School Committee continued the discussion in executive session, then called the regular meeting back to order. At the end of the meeting, the committee entered into executive session once again.

In an interview after the meeting, School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn said both executive session discussions pertained to collective bargaining issues. Collective bargaining often deals with contract negotiations. While he wouldn't say whether both discussions were on the same topic, he did say the issue with the teachers will be an ongoing one. "We're hoping it gets resolved quickly and in an amicable way," he said.

Bobo wants seat on bid selection board

Board of Health Chairman Steve Bobo told his fellow members he would like to be a part of the bid selection committee being formed for the Cook Estate project. Because the Request for Proposals has been finalized and advertised, the town can finally begin looking at bids for the project, and Bobo said he would like to be a part of that process.

He is particularly interested to see if any developers will come forward with plans for composting toilets, which he is a strong advocate for. While composting toilets may not be a required feature of the RFP, Bobo said he would encourage it and hopes to see a plan which takes them into account. All members of the board gave Bobo their support.

Flu vaccine is still available

Flu vaccine is still available at the Cohasset Public Health Nurse office at the Town Hall during the nurse's walk-in office hours: Mon/Wed/Thurs 8:30-11 a.m.

It is urged that the following groups at risk for complications from influenza be immunized:

A yearly flu shot is recommended for the following groups of people who are at increased risk for serious complications from the flu:

- persons over 50;
- residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities that house persons of any age who have long-term illnesses; adults and children over 6 months of age who have chronic heart or lung conditions, including asthma;
- adults and children over 6 months of age who need regular medical care or had to be in a hospital because of metabolic diseases (like diabetes), chronic kidney disease, or weakened immune system (including immune system problems caused by medicine or by infection with human immunodeficiency virus [HIV/AIDS]);
- children and teenagers (aged 6 months to 18 years) who are on long-term aspirin therapy and therefore could develop Reye Syndrome after the flu; and women who will be more than 3 months pregnant during the flu season.
- People 50-64 years of age who do not have chronic (long-term) medical conditions might not be at high risk for serious complications from the flu. However, about 26 percent of people aged 50-64 years have high-risk conditions and are at increased risk for flu-related complications. Beginning in 2000, a flu shot was recommended for all people 50-64 years old each year to increase the number of high-risk 50-64 year olds who get a flu shot.
- Because young, otherwise healthy children are at increased risk for influenza-related hospitalization, influenza vaccination of healthy children aged 6-23 months is encouraged when feasible.

Flag depository at American Legion

The American Legion, George H. Mealy Post 118 in Cohasset has a way for the public to be able to bring them their tattered and worn flags so they may be properly and ceremoniously destroyed. The Flag Depository, located in front of the legion post at 98 Summer St., has the look and shape of an American flag. This solid metal Flag Depository protects the flags until they are removed for storage and kept until the time of the desecration ceremony. The Herb Chambers Automobile Dealerships made this service possible through a donation to the post. Everyone is invited to bring his or her retired flags to the depository.

Cook complaints addressed

State rules on range of matters

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The decisions are in and officials have ruled the town, for the most part, did not violate either the Open Meeting Law or the Uniform Procurement Act during discussions on the purchase of the Cook Estate.

The multiple complaints filed span three separate agencies and various town entities, including the Town Manager, Board of Selectmen, and Senior Housing Committee.

Investigations are being conducted by the District Attorney, the Inspector General, and the Secretary of State's Office of Public Records. The DA is investigating three charges of Open Meeting Law violations, one of which was transferred over to the Secretary of State. The Inspector General's office is also investigating claims that the town violated the Uniform Procurement Act during negotiations with the Cook property heirs.

Voters allocated $4.5 million for the purchase of the 22-acre parcel of Cook-owned property, which will be marketed and sold to a developer with the adjacent 8.7 acres of town property for $5.2 million for senior housing. There will be a double closing, transferring the property from the Cooks to the developer, and therefore money would not be expended by the town.

Pamela Alford, assistant district attorney, sent a letter ruling on the three Open Meeting Law complaints put forth by residents Karen Quigley, 27 Clay Spring Road, Eileen Hart, 48 Old Pasture Road, and Bernadette Crawford, 64 Old Pasture Road. The complaint said the Town Manager and Board of Selectmen allegedly denied them copies of various documents pertaining to the Cook property discussions including minutes of executive session meetings; that the town had improperly engaged in executive session to retain and fund a consulting firm, GLC Development Resources, LLC; and that the Senior Housing Committee is not keeping minutes of its meetings. The letter states under the Open Meeting Law, it is legal to hold executive session to "consider the purchase, exchange, lease, or value of real property," which the DA's office said was clearly the purpose of the town's meetings.

Because the heirs of the Cook property had requested confidentiality for the discussions, the Selectmen chose to conduct all business in closed meetings. Town Manager Mark Haddad said for matters pertaining to real estate, executive session makes sense because it allows all information pertaining to a purchase to remain private and therefore not compromise the deal between the two parties.

While the letter from the DA's office said the discussion surrounding the acquisition of the property was protected under the Open Meeting Law, under normal circumstances, funding for a consultant would not be considered a matter for executive session. However, because the town had an extenuating circumstance where making the hiring of the consultant public knowledge would have made known both the town's interest in the property as well as the Cooks' wish to sell, case law dictates the matter can fall under the collective bargaining exception to the Open Meeting Law.

David Traub, spokesperson for the DA's office, explained that the town has also been cleared of the violation because when there is a question as to whether an issue should or should not be discussed during an executive session, one of the remedies is to order the town to go back and reargue in open session, to involve the public in the discussion process. He said because the matter was so unique and the GLC contract was slated to be discussed at Town Meeting, that would qualify as an open forum and satisfies the open session requirement, which means the town was not in violation of the Open Meeting Law.

But hiring GLC took on a broader scope when a complaint was filed with the Inspector General's office, stating the town may have violated the Uniform Procurement Act, or Chapter 30B of the Mass. General Laws. Chapter 30B sets up the rules and regulations for procurement, depending on the value of the contract, and the complaint states the town may not have followed those regulations.

The complaint questioned whether the town should have signed a contract with GLC, and whether the appropriate bidding procedures were followed when choosing to obtain its services.

The town has asserted a good portion of the work done by GLC was for design, and is therefore exempt from signing a formal contract under the law according to Chapter 30B. Mass. General Law states, a person who prepares studies, surveys, soil tests, cost estimates, and preparation of drawings is considered a designer. The letter from the Inspector General said certain services provided by GLC can therefore be classified under the designer exemption, such as preparation of construction cost estimates and the septic evaluation. However, for services such as the rental revenue projection and the negotiation of the purchase price of the property, the designer exemption does not apply.

Haddad said he has hired two consultants to work on the Cook project, Gellar Associates and GLC. To date, Gellar has completed a little more than $7,000 of design work, but where GLC is concerned, funds are not as easy to distinguish. GLC was hired on an hourly basis, and Haddad receives a bill for all work done. Because the bill does not specify whether the work done was design or not, it would require going back through each bill to figure what the specific costs were for design and other work.

However, Haddad said his total cost for matters pertaining to the Cook property is roughly $29,000, which after the known design costs from Gellar leaves around $22,000 in GLC costs. That would leave approximately $18,000 in the non-exempt category. While Haddad was under the impression a contract was not needed for costs under $25,000, the letter from the Inspector General's office clearly states anything over $5,000 should be contracted.

"There's not much we can do because it's been paid for," said Jack McCarthy, spokesperson for the Inspector General's office. He said the letter will serve as a warning to the town that they should have a contract for any continuing work and other projects in the future. Haddad said the warning has been well taken and contracts will be signed in the future

While going through the bidding process, the town was not found to be in violation of Chapter 30B. Because costs were under $25,000 for the total GLC cost, Haddad's soliciting three oral quotes for the work to be done followed protocol.

The complaint alleging the three residents have not been granted access to various documents was passed on from the DA's office to the Supervisor of Public Records in the Secretary of State's office, and the issue is in the process of being resolved. Haddad said he has not received any formal response from that office as of yet, but because the matter was voted on at Town Meeting, and all information is out in the open, the issue should be resolved.

The DA's office ruled the Senior Housing Committee is subject to the Open Meeting Law, which means it must begin to post meetings and take minutes, to comply with Open Meeting Law standards.

New officer joins police force

Replaces Curran who resigned

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

There is a new employee on the payroll at the Cohasset Police Department, now that officer Michael Carini has joined the force.

Carini served for two years as a full time patrolman on the Abington Police Department before he and four other officers were laid off due to budget cuts this summer. He reported for his first day on duty in Cohasset last Wednesday, and on his second day, said he was very pleased with the way things were going.

"I've met a lot of really nice people," he said last Thursday, adding he's "really looking forward" to working in Cohasset.

Police Chief Robert Jackson said on the department's end, everyone is very pleased with the new officer and look forward to working with him as well.

"I liked him the minute I met him."
— Town Manager Mark Haddad

Carini said he has always known he wanted to be a police officer, and earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Bridgewater State College in 2001. He is also currently enrolled in a master's program at Western New England College. He said being a police officer is a job that never gets boring because each day on duty is completely different from the next.

"I didn't want to do the same thing every day, I wanted variety," he said.

Carini is filling the position formerly occupied by officer Brian Curran, who resigned from the department at the end of the summer. When the position opened up, those who were on the Civil Service rehire list were notified of Cohasset's opening and invited to come down to fill out an application. Of the roughly 100 officers on the rehire list, three responded to Cohasset's opening.

Of those three, one changed his mind, leaving Carini and former Pembroke officer Erin Metcalf as the two vying for the position. Town Manager Mark Haddad said he and Jackson interviewed the two candidates and were "immensely impressed with both."

Officer Michael Carini outside the Cohasset Police Department.

"Both candidates were very well qualified," said Jackson, adding he was impressed with Carini's educational background and the fact that he is still continuing in his studies.

"Very significant background checks were done on both," by Cohasset detectives Gregory Lennon and Garrett Hunt, said Haddad, adding both came back with "outstandingly impeccable records."

However, in the end, because Carini's name was higher on the Civil Service list, which ranks officers by Civil Service test scores, the town was required to hire Carini over Metcalf.

While Haddad said it is unfortunate Metcalf cannot join the force at this time, he was excited Carini was able to come on board.

"I liked him the minute I met him," said Haddad.

Carini has some outside training which is sure to provide additional assistance to his role on the police department. Since the age of 10, he has been training in the martial arts, specifically Parker Kenpo, a type of karate. Over the years through much training and competition, he has earned a second degree black belt. Carini said while he doesn't compete anymore, he continues to practice because of the benefits of self-discipline as well as the self-confidence he gains.

Carini currently lives in Abington with his wife, Kelli. While the two don't have any children just yet, they do have a pure-bred boxer named Rockie, named after the famous Brockton-born boxer, Rocky Marciano.

While Carini's shift hasn't been set in stone and his schedule will continue to jump around until a permanent position can be decided upon, it seems so far, the department has made a good match with their newest officer.

"I think he's going to be a great addition to the department," Jackson said.

Selectmen mum on police matter

now involves the Norfolk County District Attorney's office, which removed the Cohasset police prosecutor from the court.

Keith Jackson, the chief's son; Cogill and Thibault should have been arraigned in Quincy District Court Oct. 14. But then prosecutor, Officer Rick Grassie, did not sign the complaint after receiving a letter from Legion post Commander Steve Wigmore that the fence was already broken. However, the DA's office said it was not up to the prosecutor but a judge to decide if there is probable cause when an arrest is made and removed Grassie from the court.

Also Thursday, a jury trial was scheduled to address charges of domestic assault against Keith Jackson, who allegedly hit his former girlfriend on several occasions. But during first call, Assistant District Attorney Lisa Beatty requested the case be "nol Pros" because the alleged victim was unwilling to testify. A Nolle Prosequi, commonly called "nol Pros", is a formal entry made on the record that leaves the door open for the DA to pursue the charges should the alleged victim wish to come forward at a later date. Beatty stated that although probable cause exists to believe the Keith Jackson committed the charged offenses, the alleged victim and her family have requested the District Attorney's Office not require her to testify. Therefore, Beatty stated, the District Attorney's Office will be unable to proceed at this time.

At the center of the storm are two veteran Cohasset police officers, who are still out on administrative leave with pay pending an inquiry that now reportedly includes a private investigator. Although Town Manager Mark Haddad categorically denies the issues are linked, Sgt. William Quigley and Officer James McLean, have both crossed paths with Chief Robert Jackson's family. The officers have not been told why they are on leave, their attorney Doug Louison said.

Quigley arrested Keith Jackson and the other two men the night of the alleged altercation at the Legion and was on duty when Keith Jackson's former girlfriend and her father went to the station to file a complaint that Keith Jackson had hit her on several occasions.

The alleged incidents are unlikely to help Keith Jackson become a police officer. He is first on the Civil Service local preference list for Cohasset. The town just hired a new police officer from the rehire list, which it is required to go to first under Civil Service rules. The new officer replaces the chief's son-in-law, Brian Curran, who resigned in September.

McLean, the other officer out on paid leave, admonished then Officer Curran for not following proper union procedures relative to an overtime grievance that resulted in the chief stripping McLean of his collateral duty as fleet manager. McLean then notified the national police union about unfair labor practices.

There are allegations swirling around town that several officers had a few beers while on duty at the Scituate Rod and Gun Club following a training exercise last May. However, sources close to the police department say the officers, who were not in uniform, were off duty and were guests of a member of the club.

In a letter to Town Manager Haddad in September, which was in response to a letter from Red Lion Inn owner Gerd Ordelheide, Quigley states he has never consumed alcohol at any firing range, while on or off duty. He also stated after qualifying on his weapon that day he returned to duty on the 4-midnight which could be verified through attendance records.

The Board of Selectmen is declining to comment on the matter in a substantive fashion, citing privacy issues.

Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris said all town employees have a right to privacy and the policy of not commenting respects that regardless of what department is involved.

She said Town Manager Mark Haddad has kept the Board of Selectmen fully informed on all the issues surrounding this case and the board fully supports his action.

But McMorris' comments conflict with those of Selectman Merle Brown, who said he is not in the loop and doesn't want to be until the matter is resolved.

"The decision to put the officers on administrative leave was between Mark Haddad and Town Counsel," Brown said. Brown said he'd like to see the matter resolved in a good manner by whatever is necessary whether the officers come back to work or not.

"I want what is best for the town," he said.

Selectman Fred Koed declined to comment, referring the Mariner to McMorris.

Selectman Tom Callahan said he could not comment on personnel matters, but accused the Mariner of being irresponsible in its reporting of the story by relying on "rumor and innuendo." He said the paper should have let the matter run its course.

Selectman Michael Sullivan did not immediately return phone calls.

However, both Brown and McMorris agree it is part of Haddad's responsibility, under the Town Manager Act, to be involved in police personnel matters. Cohasset has a "weak" chief as opposed to a "strong" chief, who would be protected by Civil Service. A weak chief reports to either a Board of Selectmen or Town Manager. Jackson reports to Haddad.

McMorris said the Board of Selectmen continues to have confidence in the police department.

"We have an excellent police department in Cohasset," she said. "The Board of Selectmen has full confidence in its ability to provide high quality service to the residents, and people can be confident that they will continue to do so."

an Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) in 1986. That designation provides an extra layer of protection for the area's cultural and ecological resources.

The 23.4-square-mile Weir River Watershed supplies drinking water to about 38,000 residents of Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, and Norwell. The watershed drains to the lower Weir River estuary including Straits Pond, which lies between the three towns, although most of the Straits Pond sub-watershed is in Cohasset. The Weir River ACEC consists of 922 acres, 31 percent of which is land and 69 percent is water. Forty-two percent of the ACEC lies within Hingham, including upland areas and wetlands. Most of the land in the Hingham portion is undeveloped. The open fields and forests of World's End located in and adjacent to the ACEC comprise the largest protected undeveloped natural landscape in the area.

A tri-town Estuary Committee would be appointed to oversee the park. Volunteers from all three communities are needed to transform the vision into a reality.

Through a recent volunteer effort, a building at 333 George Washington Boulevard in Hull, known as the "Green Building," was recently transformed and the area cleaned up to provide a more welcoming entrance to the Weir River. Last spring three non-profit groups, the Weir River Watershed Association, Hull Performing Arts, and Surfrider Foundation collaborated on a short-term lease of the building for office, lecture, and laboratory space, the first step in a long-term effort to create an environmental education center.

The three nonprofits would like to update the interior, repair the roof, get water to the building, and refinish the rest of the building. For more information or to volunteer or make a donation, visit www.weirriver.org, email info@weirriver.org, or call Samantha Woods, President of the Weir River Watershed Association at (781) 925-5544.

Town to host football playoffs

Cohasset even eliminated football altogether for a couple of years because there weren't enough interested players to have a team.

Ford said he remembers when he came to Cohasset High School in the early 90s, the football team had dropped from varsity status and was only playing on the junior varsity level. Over a few years, the team built itself back up, gained participation and came back to become a very popular varsity sport. Now, Cohasset has football players at the middle school level, junior varsity, and varsity levels, and all players "have had a good season," he said.

"We've come a long way," DeGiacomo said.

And Ford said part of the success of the teams is due to coach Tony Rolfe, who has "done an awesome job recruiting." Rolfe has been working with Cohasset athletes for the past six years.

Now that the renovations are complete at the school, DeGiacomo said this event will provide a wonderful opportunity for the town to showcase the new building. Because the event will draw a large crowd, it will also provide a boost to the town's economy.

DeGiacomo said if the middle school players are any indication, making it to the Superbowl playoffs could become a tradition in Cohasset. He said their record has been 6-1 this year. Ford said he has been equally impressed with the junior varsity team and thinks the numbers will stay up in terms of participants.

"Hopefully we'll see the same continued success," said De Giacomo.

Ford said the M.I.A.A. will give the school $2500 to host the event, which should cover the cost of hiring police, custodians, workers, and any unforeseen costs that may arise. The M.I.A.A. will keep 75 percent of the profits, and the school will keep 25 percent. Admission for the game will be $9 for all adults, $7 for students (12 and over) and senior citizens, and children under 12 are free. M.I.A.A. passes will be the only passes accepted at the door.

Because such large crowds are expected, spectators should carpool whenever possible. Parking will be located in the main parking lot in front of the school, with additional parking along the entrance driveway by the main office, and at Milliken Field. Attendees should not park beyond the no parking signs on Bancroft Extension (road that leads to visitors' side gate). Handicapped parking is available in the parking lot directly across the main entrance to the field. Spectators should be aware of the new landscaping that has been done on campus and keep off the newly seeded areas, Ford said.

Ford said he will try to make some arrangements to have temporary fencing or some kind of barrier put around landscaped areas to help prevent any damage.

Ford said he has spoken with Police Chief Robert Jackson who said he may be able to send a cruiser over at the end of the night to help direct traffic. There will be four police officers on duty during the game.

Jingle Bell walk is Friday, Nov. 28

After Santa distributes jingle bells to the children, he and his elves will board a hayride and the walk continues along the sidewalks of Elm to Main St. in Cohasset.

The South Shore Community Center invites family and friends to join in the holiday spirit at the Jingle Bell Walk. The Jingle Bell Walk, a Cohasset tradition offered by the SSCC, begins at 2 p.m. on Nov. 28, when Santa Claus arrives by boat with his elves at Cohasset Harbor (Border St.). After Santa distributes jingle bells to the children, he and his elves will board a hayride and the walk continues along the sidewalks of Elm to Main St. in Cohasset. At 2:30 p.m. the South Shore Community Center welcomes you to partake in cookies, a beverage, and a holiday-sing-along. Holiday music and carols will also be sung by all.

Santa will be upstairs in the Center to pose for pictures with you and your children. Please stroll through the village to share in the local shops' holiday ambiance.

At 3 p.m. on Cohasset Common there will be a "Turkey Tot Trot" for ages 3 to 10. You may pre-register for this event for $2 or post register the day of the event for $3 per participant. Proceeds will go to benefit the Nursery School. All participants will receive a prize!

Listen to the bells of St. Stephen's playing from 2:30 to 4 p.m., while enjoying a hayride around the Common. Hayrides will be available from 3 to 4 p.m. At 3:45 p.m., gather around the Cohasset Common to listen to the Rusty Skippers Marching Band. The festivities culminate on Cohasset Common at 4:15 p.m. with the lighting of the tree.

There is something for everyone this year at the Jingle Bell Walk. It's a great way to appreciate our picturesque surroundings, while involving the whole family in a Cohasset tradition.

In the event of rain, all outdoor activities will be cancelled and Santa will arrive in the Community Center Gym at 2 p.m.

Cruise to Alaska raffle

There's a 1 in 300 chance you could win a Cruise for Two to Alaska – a 7-Day Princess Cruise from Vancouver to Anchorage stopping at Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway and cruising Glacier Bay. Simply purchase a $50 raffle ticket from First Parish. The chances of winning are high, and the proceeds support the church's efforts at the same time.

The cruise departs Vancouver August 14, 2004. Winners will enjoy an ocean-view cabin. Transportation to and from the ship is not included, and some taxes and fees will apply. All arrangements will be made by Cruise Holidays, Seekonk.. For more information on Princess Cruises and cruises to Alaska, see www.princess.com.

The drawing will be held at the Christmas Village Fair on the Common, Dec. 6. Send your check to "First Parish", 23 No. Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025 (please make sure to note your return address) or visit the Parish House on the Common on Monday-Thursday from 9 – 2 p.m.

New consignment shop has two familiar faces

By Amanda Gontarz
AGONTARZ@CNC.COM

Road to Responsibility President Rick Walker with managers Andrea Merrill and Colleen Roth of RTR's newest business venture — Sea Chest Consignments.

Marshfield-based Road to Responsibility is gearing up to open a new consignment shop in Cohasset, but it won't be going down this road alone.

With more than 35 years of clothing retail experience combined, Andi Merrill and Colleen Roth, formerly of the Cohasset Consignment Shop, have teamed up with RTR to open the Sea Chest Consignments. Located in the Dwyer Building along Rt. 3A, the store should be open by Dec. 13 , in time for the holiday shopping. Cohasset Cycle Sports, Mullaney's fish market and Lapels dry cleaners share the same building.

Merrill says she and Roth are extremely pleased to be working with RTR.

"They are business-oriented and generous in their ability to help people," Merrill says. "I can't think of a better combination (than RTR and Sea Chest Consignments)."

A non-profit organization that provides recreational, residential and employment programs for adults with disabilities, RTR has created numerous job opportunities throughout the years with its business ventures. Sea Chest Consignments in Cohasset will join other RTR businesses, including Jan's Ice Cream, the Ocean Village Motel and the Ocean Village Bookstore, all in Marshfield. RTR also has bookstores in Plymouth and Falmouth, as well as a Kingston motel and a function hall in Weymouth.

This opportunity came about for RTR when Roth and Merrill, after parting ways with the Cohasset Consignment Shop earlier this year, were searching for a charity to team up with and open a consignment shop. RTR president Rick Walker said he was impressed with the way the pair managed the Cohasset store and believes their working manner will match up perfectly with RTR.

"It wasn't a place where junk was thrown all over the floor," he said, looking at pictures Roth and Merrill gave him of the other store. "It was clean, bright and organized. That's what we want. We put our best foot forward. It's not going to be something people scratch their heads at and say it's crummy. It's going to be a top-notch operation."

Merrill is pleased with the location which has ample parking around the entire building. The entrance will be on the side of the building facing Katherine McArthur's dentist office. The 3,000 square-foot space is where Dwyer's cleaning plant was located.

Merrill plans on tapping into the army of volunteers that helped her over two decades at the Cohasset Consignment Shop, which is owned by the non-profit Social Service League. Unhappy with the split between the Social Service League and the Merrill-Roth team, many of the volunteers quit the Cohasset Consignment Shop, which reopened last month under new management.

"They've been waiting for us to open," Merrill says about the volunteers. "They are anxious to see each other again.

"I've told them to rest up and get ready to work really hard." She said the store hours may be expanded beyond 10 a.m.-4 p.m., when they first open to accommodate consignors and customers.

She also explained that many people have also called her to say they are holding merchandize to consign at the new shop. Merrill, who will serve as general manager, has also been storing items at another location in anticipation of the opening. Roth will be accountant and assistant manager.

The Cohasset Consignment Shop, which is in nearby Tedeschi Plaza, was packed again on Saturday with shoppers buying everything from bric-a-brac to designer suits.

Merrill says the neighborhood is big enough for both shops.

"I've always believed in competition – it keeps you on your toes and provides for a better operation," she says.

While the shop will depend heavily on the help of volunteers, Walker believes the shop will add about eight employment opportunities for people with disabilities, which is what RTR is all about. From lifting of heavy objects to cleaning and pricing items to manning the cash register, Walker said a clothing store provides a variety of jobs.

"Very few of our people can do all of those jobs, but working as a team they can get it done," he said.

Walker said the consignment shop and RTR's seven other businesses under its Ocean Village Ventures division give disabled people the chance to work in a job they want, rather than taking a position they don't care for really.

"There are only so many supermarket jobs and some people don't want that," he said.

Editor Mary Ford also contributed to this story.

Barbara Cook sorts books at St. Stephen's to be sold at the Village Fair. The book sale is a mission program of St. Stephen's Church to more strongly establish a church presence in a needy area.

Books, CDs and DVDs are sought

Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave. is accepting donations of slightly worn hardcover and paperback books, DVD's, CD's and videos for its annual book sale, part of the ecumenical Village Fair that will be held on Saturday, Dec. 6.

If your book shelves are spilling on the floor, and DVD's CD's and videos are busting out of the entertainment center like superman out of a phone booth, the church has got the solution for you. Donations can be brought to the church in bags or boxes and placed inside the parish hall door marked "church offices." Alternatively, the church would be happy to arrange pick up of your donations. For donation pick-up or information, call Alix White at 781-383-1829. Books are sorted at St. Stephen's Church in Walton Rodgers Hall Monday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

The book sale is a mission program of St. Stephen's Church to more strongly establish a church presence in a needy area.

When home is where the hurt is, South Shore Women's Center helps

Editor's note: This year the Gifts of Hope campaign on the South Shore aims to raise funds and awareness about the South Shore Women's Center. This is the first of several articles focusing on the Center and its work.

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

The shame can run as deep as the fear.

I let this happen. I deserve this. I don't want anyone to know…

And perhaps the deepest fear of all is the fear of being alone.

No one will love me. No one will understand. No one can help…

For women subjected to abuse in their own homes, the South Shore Women's Center offers a message of Hope: You are not alone. It is not your fault. You don't have to do anything you don't want to do. Just know that we are here to help.

Since 1979, the SSWC has provided support and an expanding range of services for women living with domestic violence. Last year more than 2,200 women in the 16 towns serviced by the women's center turned to the agency for information and emotional support, for help in leaving an abusive situation, or for advocacy and counseling services to help them rebuild their lives in the community.

So far in 2003, the Center's Crisis Hotline, 1-888-746-2664, has fielded more than 3,700 calls. From January to June, the Center provided emergency safe shelter for 38 families, compared to 20 families for all of 2002.

"We spend a lot of time on safety planning," said Barbara Fuyat, executive director of SSWC. "Because domestic violence is about power and control, it's when a woman is breaking away from that control that she is most at risk to be hurt."

SSWC works with a network of agencies and towns to establish families in a safe residence, whether that is their own home, an emergency shelter or a safe home with trained volunteers, she said. The center may also supply the family with food, clothing and other necessities.

"Many things may be happening simultaneously. We may be taking the woman to the emergency department and then to court. Whatever services the family needs, we'll bring them in right away," Fuyat said. "They may have services for a couple of years while they're getting their lives back together."

Domestic violence advocates working with the hospitals, police, courts and social services agencies provide both emotional support and practical assistance to women who are easily intimidated by these institutions, she said. The SSWC also provides individual and group counseling for abused women and teens, for women over 55, and for children who have witnessed abuse.

In its mission to end domestic violence, the SSWC goes beyond direct services to abused women and their families to educate the wider community and to provide training for professionals in medical, legal, law enforcement and other related fields.

"Domestic violence happens in the home, but it doesn't stay in the home," Fuyat said. "We partner with all facets of the community."

This year, the SSWC has made in-school presentations to more than 6,000 area students, stressing anger management, non-violent conflict resolution and healthy relationships. At the other end of the spectrum, Fuyat said the SSWC is forming more partnerships through the Councils on Aging to reach older women who may have been in abusive relationships for 20, 30, 40 years or more.

The center is also working with businesses on how to provide a safe work place and educate their employees on domestic violence issues.

"We provide a psychological education on the continuum of domestic violence. Most people seem to understand what physical abuse is, but when it comes to emotional, mental, financial and other forms of abuse, they have more difficulty," said Fuyat. "Domestic violence won't end until we break open the secrets and shed light and information on this issue throughout the community."

The South Shore Women's Center is a private, nonprofit organization funded in part by the Mass. Dept. of Social Services, federal grants and private fundraising. SSWC is a member agency of the Old Colony United Way and the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women's Services Groups.

During the holidays, SSWC has a particular need for families, companies and individuals to adopt a family affected by domestic violence. The center will provide ages, sizes and wish lists to the sponsors, who can bring wrapped gifts, merchandise cards or cash donations to SSWC for distribution to families. For more information on the Adopt-a-Family program, call Suanne at 781-582-0078.

Mark your calendar for the Cohasset House Tour

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is delighted to present "Christmas Gatherings", a tour of five beautifully decorated and uniquely different homes, a Holiday Tea, and a Christmas Boutique. The tour is Saturday, Dec. 13 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The featured homes include:

• A Villa style home, built in the late 1800's as a large summer cottage and converted in 1947 into a religious retreat situated on a cove-like stretch of beach. The Villa, with its wrap-around porch, is literally a house built on a rock; its foundation includes the ancient ledge of the Cohasset shoreline.

• A stately Queen Anne Victorian, built by shipbuilder Thomas Bourne and often dubbed the "Christmas House", features a classic exterior of turrets, bays, and an arched stone foundation. Inside it exudes warmth through its carved built-in cupboards, fireplaces, deep crown moldings and tiger maple floors. In this setting, the owner's antique furnishings make it a perfect spot for a Victorian Christmas gathering.

Tickets are $20 in advance, $23 day of Tour and are available at the Shore Community Center, 3 North Main St.

• Built in 2002, this house stands on the footprint of a small cottage that dates back to Cohasset fishing days with its own dock and small guest cottage. The house has a very open plan that makes the most of the limited space while taking advantage of magnificent views from every room.

• Ancestors of Abraham Lincoln, whose forbears were from the Hingham-Cohasset area, originally owned this Queen Anne Victorian home. It boasts five fireplaces including a wide hallway with a fireplace at the end. The home has been extensively renovated and the new kitchen has appeared on HGTV's kitchen show.

• A gracious home that was, at one time, part of a five building estate known as "Twin Tree". Constructed of imported fieldstone, with an impressive fieldstone fireplace in the family room, the main house has been completely renovated but its historic charm has been preserved. The grand foyer sits between the living and dining rooms that contain the original leaded glass windows. It is an inviting house for a Christmas gathering.

Tickets are $20 in advance, $23 day of Tour and are available at the Shore Community Center, 3 North Main St. or send a check to The Community Garden Club of Cohasset, c/o Windy Hill Road, Cohasset, MA 02025. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope. For more information and tickets, call 781-383-9689. Adults only.

Light refreshments will be served in Bates Hall, Second Congregational Church, Highland Avenue.

Proceeds from the house tour will be used to support the numerous projects of the garden club, which include historic restoration and preservation, civic beautification, scholarship grants, and community education programs. In addition, the club contributes time and money to various environmental and conservation agencies.

Five Hingham homes dress up for holidays

The Hingham Mother's Club will hold its annual holiday house tour on Sunday, Dec. 7, from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. All profits from this event will benefit the Hingham Mother's Club Scholarship fund, which provides college scholarships to Hingham High School seniors.

Featured on the tour will be five beautiful Hingham homes decorated for the holidays. Come see The Hartley Home at 34 Howe St., The Tripp Home at 9 Ringbolt Farm, The Donovan Home at 36 Myers Farm Road, The Giblin Home at 7 Brandon Woods Circle and Black Rock Country Club Model Home at 1 Clubhouse Drive. In addition, a boutique open to ticket holders only will be held at Wilder Memorial Nursery School at 666 Main St. The boutique will feature gift items and decorative accessories not readily available in the Hingham area.

Tickets are $20 in advance, $25 day of the tour and are available in Cohasset at Buttonwood Books. Tickets also available at each house and the boutique on the day of the tour. For further information, call 781-749-3051

Who's the top citizen in town?

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

In keeping with a nine-year tradition recognizing an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement — the Cohasset Mariner is now accepting nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year Award.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset. This is a community award: the Mariner is the mean by which we are able to recognize, thank and honor those around us who make the quiet, generous contributions that make our town a wonderful place to call home.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Arthur Year as Citizen of the Year for a lifetime of service to the town including myriad good works, and always as a volunteer — whether that be mowing the "cap" of the town landfill with his red tractor or serving as the town's Civil Defense Director.

The deadline for nominations for the 2003 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan 2. Please see the nomination form on page 22. The form may be photocopied. Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931.

This is not a popularity contest. Following the close of nominations, a selection panel — after reviewing the names submitted by poring over the nomination letters and comments — will select the 2003 Citizen of the Year, who will be named in January 2004.

Nominees may be someone in elected office, a member of an appointed town committee, teacher or school administrator, clergy member, firefighter, police officer or other municipal worker. And the nominee may be a person in the business community, sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has freely given of his or her time and energy for a worthwhile Cohasset project or cause.

This year's recipient will be the11th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year, joining past recipients:

1993: the late Gerard T. Keating, "Mr. Cohasset": for his more than half-century of contributions to the community, including serving as chairman of the Council on Aging, chairman of the school committee, president of the hockey boosters club, vice president of the Cohasset Historical Society, director of veterans services, and lector, eucharistic minister and usher at St. Anthony's Church.

1994: Joseph D. Buckley, for his work behind the scenes helping seniors understand the complexities of the healthcare system and to access health benefits through SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), his service on the Council on Aging, and volunteer work over the years with the Boy Scouts, Little league, Sunday School and more.

1995: Dr. Robert T. Sceery, for his more than 40 years of dedicated service as a pediatrician in town and school doctor. He also served on the board of health and led the fight back in the 1970s to sewer the town. He is also a familiar figure at town meetings where he speaks his mind on important issues.

1996: The Rev. Gary Ritts, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, for being a positive force for good through his work with the Appalachia Service Project (ASP), an ecumenical volunteer effort involving Cohasset teenagers. ASP is a home building ministry in central Appalachia.

1997: Anna Abbruzzese, for all her volunteer work including preparing and delivering meals for the Pine Street Inn, driving the senior shuttle and coordinating the Gourmet Cooking Club at the Council on Elder Affairs; and her many efforts to help revitalize Cohasset Village through the Farmers' Market and much more.

1998: Katherine Stanton, for her tireless service to the town and its citizens over the years. She also volunteers as a case reviewer for the state Dept. of Social Services, served on the school committee and recreation committee, and along with her family was involved with the creation of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

1999: the late Clark Chatterton, for his generosity of spirit and deep caring for his fellow man, his years of work as a teacher and athletic director at the high school, including innumerable efforts helping others behind the scenes. He also helped raise money for many causes including Alumni Field and the American Cancer Society.

2000: former state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray for a lifetime of service to her hometown, first as den mother and Little League mother and Girl Scout leader, and then as selectman. She was also honored for her public service as state representative for more than two decades and for always putting her constituents first.

2001: Glenn Pratt for his dogged determination over 20 years to see more cemetery space in town, remembering local soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice, helping to lead the effort to expand the community center, serving as an elected official, and spearheading the effort to build a memorial to local mothers who lost sons in wartime.

2002: Arthur Lehr for more than 50 years of volunteer service on worthwhile projects including the Boy Scouts; serving on the Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Registrar of Voters; Clerk of the Works for the DPW garage, Little League Complex, and Mariners Park; serving on the Recycling Committee, as town Civil Defense Director, on Gravel Pit Reuse Committee and more.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING

I want to start off this week by wishing everyone a wonderful Thanksgiving Day with your family and friends and to make sure to take the time to really reflect on what you are truly thankful for. I am thankful for my family, friends and the times that we are able to share with each other. I am thankful for the ability to forgive and to be forgiven and for each day that we have and are able to enjoy. Life changes as we all know so quickly and in so many cases, from day to day. Enjoy each day as it comes and stop to enjoy all those small moments that happen as those memories are worth their weight in gold. Happy Thanksgiving!

ON STAGE

The Company Theatre in Norwell will present its stage version of the holiday movie "A Christmas Story" Nov. 28-Dec. 20. Set in the 40s, it's the classic story of Ralphie, a young boy who wants nothing better for Christmas than a Red Ryder BB gun. But his parents are reluctant, as they warn him – "You'll shoot your eye out!"

Cohasset residents Ryan Connors as the bully Scut, and Marcus Bennett as Ralphie are sure to light up the stage in this holiday production. For tickets call 781-871-2787.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Happy 55th wedding anniversary to Peg and Cliff Dickson! Could the secret of their success be that they're never seen together? Well they were together at the Red Parrot in Hull where they celebrated with friends and family. Many who traveled up from the warm south just to surprise Cliff and Peg. Best wishes to you both!

NEW NONAGENARIAN

In honor of Betty Madden's recent 90th birthday, her daughter Sally Avery and family will be hosting an art retrospective displaying her works from 3-5pm on Friday, Nov. 28 in Walton Rogers Hall at St. Stephens Church. Many will remember the beautiful eggs and slates Betty sold over the years at Village Fairs. Come and wish Betty a happy birthday and enjoy her paintings and crafts.

SPECIAL DAY

Happy Birthday wishes to one of the sweetest little girls that I know. Miss Abbey Johnson is celebrating her "free year old" birthday on Saturday and she is so happy to be "FREE!"(three) When asked what she wanted for her birthday her reply is, "pink". I am sure that will be accomplished for her. Happy Birthday Miss Abbey, we all love you a great big bunch.

VILLAGE FAIR

Get ready to Deck Your Halls! Beautiful holiday greens including decorative boughs, fresh balsam wreaths and tabletop trees will be sold alongside sleigh-loads of handcrafted gifts and ornaments at Cohasset's Annual Village Fair on the Common on Saturday, Dec. 6, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. A Cohasset tradition for more than 60 years, the Village Fair is a great way to begin your holiday season. Come greet friends and get a head start on your holiday decorating and shopping. Stop by Town Hall (hosting the Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church); the Second Congregational Church, St. Stephen's and the First Parish House to see all of the beautiful holiday decorations and gifts for sale, and to sample scrumptious foods from around the world. Proceeds support the charitable work of the churches and the ASP.

Rusty Skippers Holiday Concert The Rusty Skippers, Cohasset's adult concert band, will be performing their annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church at noon on Saturday, Dec. 6, during the Village Fair on the Common. The Skippers have been busy preparing a variety of new holiday selections including a Nutcracker medley, Sleigh Ride (made famous by the Boston Pops), Jingle Bell Rock and many other familiar tunes and carols. The concert is free and all ages are welcome. A free will offering for Cohasset's Food Pantry will be taken.

DEER HILL BOOK FAIR

The Deer Hill Holiday Book Fair is being held on Dec. 8-12. Students will attend during their regular library period. Parents and grandparents are welcome during school hours or on Thursday evening, Dec. 11, before and after the Holiday Concert.

Mrs. Murphy will be on hand to help children select books for themselves or to give as gifts. If you have any questions or would like to volunteer, call Karen MacCormack, 383-6901 or Barb Mullin, 383-0953.

BLANKET, TOILETRY DRIVE

The sixth-grade Religious Education Class at St. Anthony's is holding a blanket and toiletry drive to benefit the Shattuck Shelter in Jamaica Plain the weekend of Dec. 6 & 7. Last year, four carloads of gently used items were donated. As well, with the $3000.00 raised, the shelter purchased more than 600 army style blankets, sleeping bags, and waterproof mats for distribution by outreach workers to those living on the streets. With even more budget cuts this year, the need for assistance is even greater. Donations can be dropped off at St. Anthony's Parish Center on the 6th and 7th. Any questions, please call Darilynn Evans at 781-383-0644 or Beth Seraikas at 781-383-9154.

ST. PAUL SCHOOL BAZAAR

On Friday, Dec. 5 and Saturday, Dec. 6 St. Paul School in Hingham will be having its annual Christmas Bazaar. The Bazaar will be held in the school hall which is located at 18 Fearing Road in Hingham across the street from Citizens Bank. On Friday the Bazaar will feature a silent auction, raffle prizes, handmade crafts, wreaths, boxwood trees, refreshments and children's games. On Saturday morning from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. the Bazaar continues with Breakfast with Santa. This is an opportunity to have your picture taken while you talk to Santa and to enjoy a nice breakfast. Tickets for the breakfast are $5 per adult and $3 per child.

SEASONAL MESSAGE

The ladies of the Tuesday Morning Bible Study would like to extend an invitation to all women in town to attend their fourth annual Christmas Tea on Tuesday Dec. 9 from 12-2 p.m. at the Lightkeeper's Residence. It is a wonderful opportunity to escape the busy rush of the holiday season and enjoy a special speaker with a seasonal message. It is also a fun chance to see your friends and neighbors. Please contact Joan Busk at 383-6110 if you have any questions.

That is all for this week. Make sure to have all of your news and event information to me no later than Mondays at noon.

Luncheon, fashion show benefit Dec. 11

A festive holiday luncheon and Talbot's fashion show will be held Dec. 11 from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Atlantica Restaurant on the harbor.

The event will benefit Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum, now under construction in the two-story wing behind the Paul Pratt Library. Planners for the museum and its associated playground are aiming for a 2004 completion.

For information or reservations, call 781-383-0407.

Tickets for the luncheon and fashion show will be $50. Seating is limited and reservations are necessary. For information or reservations, call 781-383-0407.

Holiday angels at Wellspring in Hull

Wellspring's Holiday Angel Gift program provides clients with gifts for their children. Gifts are donated by caring individuals who give to a designated child or family.

Clients who are involved with any of Wellspring's Programs (food pantry, adult learning, crisis or domestic violence counseling, and thrift shop clients) and are in need of assistance with holiday gifts for their children are encouraged to contact Wellspring for an application. Deadline for accepting applications is Dec. 5.

Individuals, businesses or organizations that wish to adopt a child or family by providing gifts (or gift certificates) should contact Wellspring at 781-925-3211 or visit the "Angel Tree" table at the upcoming Holiday Showcase at the Clarion Hotel on Nov. 29.

Hope for the holidays

Help stamp out domestic violence

The statistics speak for themselves:

- Each year between 1 million and 4 million women experience serious assault by an intimate partner.
- Some 47 percent of men who beat their wives do so at least three times per year.
- Nearly one in three adult women experience at least one physical assault by a partner during adulthood.
- Each year an estimated 3.3 million children witness their mothers or female caretakers being abused.
- Some 57 percent of homeless families identified domestic violence as a primary cause of homelessness.
- Between 40 percent and 60 percent of men who abuse women also abuse children.

Domestic violence is one of the biggest issues facing our culture. And yet, most who suffer at the hands of an abuser feels she is alone. The South Shore Women's Center was established to reassure victims they are NOT alone and help is available.

"These are challenging times. Towns are facing financial constraints and we are feeling that pinch. But there is still so much work to do."

— Barbara Fuyat, executive director of the South Shore Women's Center

The Center services some 16 towns on the South Shore and in Southeastern Massachusetts. The group's efforts include working with a network of agencies and area towns to establish families in safe residences, providing food, clothing and other needed items, and educational programs.

Yet just as the need for more help increases, the Center finds itself at a crossroads. Center officials want to reach out to as many people as possible, but they are finding their funding is shrinking due to financial cutbacks in our towns, eliminating a crucial budget source.

That's why this year our Gifts of Hope campaign will focus on helping the Center raise funds and awareness about domestic violence and the commitment of the South Shore Women's Center. In the coming weeks we'll feature articles about the Center and its programs, interview those who have benefited from the Center's outreach and the challenges facing the Center in the future.

"We're grateful for any financial support we can get," noted Barbara Fuyat, executive director of the South Shore Women's Center, based in Plymouth. "These are challenging times. Towns are facing financial constraints and we are feeling that pinch. But there is still so much work to do."

During the holidays in particular, the Center provides assistance through its Adopt a Family for the Holidays campaign. The Center seeks out generous "Santas" who can provide various items for a family in need. The "Santas" will be given the ages, genders and wish lists for a family's children. The sponsoring Santa will then shop, wrap and drop off the presents.

Financial donations also go a long way in developing yearlong programs and assistance for the center. Through our Gifts of Hope campaign you can do your part, however large or small, to help ease the pain of domestic violence.

Donations to Gifts of Hope should be made payable to the South Shore Women's Center, designated for Gift of Hope, and sent to:

Anne Rodwell
Community Newspaper Company
165 Enterprise Drive
Marshfield, MA 02050

Please do not make your checks or money orders payable to this newspaper or Gifts of Hope, as that will delay disbursement efforts.

Open space should have value in itself

TO THE EDITOR:

It struck me, after I left the Town Meeting last Monday night, after I had heard the discussion of the Town-owned property that has just been annexed to the Cook property, and after I had time to digest what was said, that we treated a beautiful piece of open space as useless, not of importance for itself, without value.

By this we meant that it was not able to be "developed" and had been rejected by the various organizations in the town, who had sought to use it, for a variety of purposes. Is that land, the home of small animals, bugs, birds and gorgeous trees not of value? Are not the planet-sustaining things that exist in a piece of property like this not worthy of honoring and respecting? Does this piece of land need to be devalued so that we can develop our town according to our perception of what is important?

I am in favor of affordable housing for the elderly in Cohasset. I am one of them. Maybe this use of the Cook property is a good use of this land. But we should certainly view land that has renewed our atmosphere with its trees, created an eco system that enhances our water supplies, and a myriad of other things for our town and planet as of value in itself.

A post mortem on Special Town Meeting

TO THE EDITOR:

It was another quiet week in Woebegone East, where all children are above average, McMansions sprout, and the boutique at the recycling center is rewarding. Quiet, except for Town Meeting, from which people stayed away in droves.

Once again we invited a losing lawsuit, by voting not to pay for legal services incurred in defending an unexpected lawsuit, apparently on the grounds that the funds hadn't received prior approval by the voters.

However, a savvy citizen recognized the bottom line (an inevitable court order to pay up plus court costs and more legal fees), and much later asked for a vote reconsideration. The redone voting was affirmative, thus reversing the initial shortsightedness. Some whined about re-voting by a much reduced attendance, thus revealing high principle but low common sense.

Some probably dandy speeches, especially those from the front microphone, were unintelligible because of poor acoustics and rapid fire delivery. (The reverberations from the hard surfaces cause each syllable to be reinforced and garbled by primary, secondary, tertiary etc echoes from previous syllables, so those who think the purpose of speech to communicate should have spoken slowly and distinctly. Those who speak primarily for the joy of hearing themselves, it doesn't matter much if it's incomprehensible).

The article about the Cook estate and senior housing passed handily, but only after the usual process of airing irrelevancies, dark suspicions and unfamiliarity with pertinent facts. Someone grumped that there was no philanthropic aspect, apparently unaware that for many years almost every project in town was given financial assistance by the Cox and Cook sisters, and several current endeavors have continued to benefit from post mortem benevolence provided for in their wills. Giving Cohasset several months to consummate an advantageous deal (for us), with no strings if we can't, rather than selling out immediately to the highest bidding developer, is a continuation of positive interest in the town. That benevolent interest over the years should have been recognized and appreciated by everyone, not just by the leaders who took on projects for the town and scrounged up the funds.

Hardly anyone has yet checked out their snow blowers, nor burned the fall collection of brush, nor finished weather stripping, but the leaf collecting is progressing well, if achingly. A few Christmas light extravaganzas are up already, or else are still up from last year.

Quiet weeks are best!

HEALTH NOTES

Teflon flu is a sticky issue

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Last weekend, in making breakfast, I let the pancakes burn in my Teflon frying pan. The net result was that there was a small odor, and a set of griddlecakes in the wastebasket. In a few minutes, I came down with a case of hay fever sneezing, runny nose, headache, etc. I was slow to put the two together, but according to the Environmental Working Group, a public interest research organization, cooking with Teflon can make a person sick with a temporary flu if a non-stick pan gets overheated.

"It feels like the flu," said a representative, "headaches, chills, backache, temperature between 100 and 104 degrees."

Studies by the Environmental Working Group show that pre-heating Teflon® (PTFE) pan creates ultra-fine particulate matter at 230 degrees C (456 degrees F) — potentially damaging to the lung. Other non-stick pan coatings, using compounds like PTFE, may breakdown at lower temperatures. At 680 degrees Fahrenheit, toxic gases can begin to come off of heated Teflon,"

It turns out, DuPont has known about the "Teflon flu" for years. According to a representative for the company, "You get some fumes — and you get a flu-like symptom, which is reversible." Also a warning about the flu, while not on the pans themselves, is on the DuPont Web site. The fumes are released from the pan when it is overheated, which they say occurs at temperatures that are not reached during normal cooking.

"You get some fumes — and you get a flu-like symptom, which is reversible."

One way you can keep track of the temperature of your pan is to add some water to the oil used to sauté or fry. This will boil at about 220degrees, and sputter at about 250-300 degrees anyone who's read Vonnegut knows that paper burns at 457 degrees F, as do most pancakes. It's probably not overly dangerous to heat Teflon ware to these temperatures, but there seems to be a substantial risk to heating them any higher. Especially if you own birds, because the gasses given off by Teflon have been determined to be lethal to most birds, which are exposed to it.

Further heating is worse. According to the Environmental Working Group, (www/ewg.org) at 360 degrees C (680 degrees F), a Teflon® pan gives off:

- Tetrafluoroethylene (TFE), a compound that the US National Toxicology Program describes as a human carcinogen.
- Hexafluoropropene (HFP), a chemical implicated as the cause of certain types of illness and birth defects, and which in acute (short-term) exposure can cause irritation of the air passages and the lung.
- Trifluoroacetic acid (TFA), which, as a breakdown product of the commonly used HCFC-123 (hydro-chloro-fluro-carbons, a compound introduced to replace the CFCs that deplete the ozone layer) has been implicated in liver and bone damage.
- Monofluoroacetic acid (MFA), a very toxic compound that affects the nervous system, and which at high levels can cause irregular heart rate, convulsions and respiratory failure.

Perhaps the most nasty is per-fluoro-octanoic acid (PFOA). It has become a ubiquitous organic contaminant (it has been found in 92 percent of human blood samples in the US), it is a known carcinogen, and has serious neuro-toxic effects, impacting the developmental health of the young.

At these temperatures you've ruined the pan because if, it's aluminum, the chances are that it's probably melted in places. Just open doors, get out of the kitchen and wait for the smoke to clear.

Put a light on the memory tree

Remembering, in a tangible way will enrich this holiday season, the joy our loved ones have shared with us in seasons past.

Commemorative lights will shine on The Memory Tree on the Lawn of South Shore Community Center, as well as a star placed on the tree in the lobby with the name (s) of your loved one (s). As contributions are received, bulbs will be illuminated throughout the season, and the names of the donors and those remembered will be published in the Cohasset Mariner. Your tax-deductible contribution will help continue quality programs at SSCC.

The star atop the 2003 Memory Tree will shine in honor of our departed loved ones whom you wish to honor.

Participation options are:

Individual: Forget-me-not white lights for a gift of $5.

Angel: Individuals, businesses, or professionals giving $15 or more.

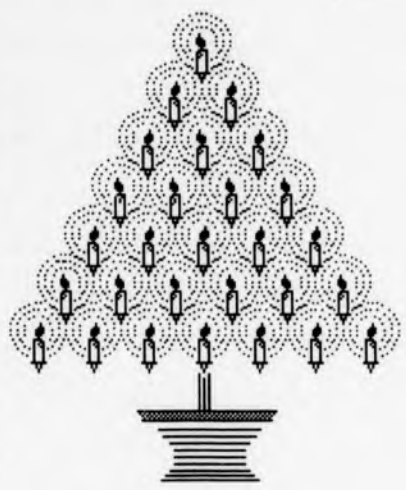
Forget-me-not white lights.

Archangel: Individuals, businesses, or professionals giving $50 or more.

Forget-me-not white lights.

Generosity will be acknowledged by with lights on the Memory Tree, and on the scroll published weekly.

Please make checks payable to South Shore Community Center, P.O. Box 631, 3 North Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025.



ARCHANGELS:

LIBRARY CORNER

Closed on Thanksgiving

The library will be closed Thursday, Nov. 27 for Thanksgiving Day. We will re-open Friday from 9a.m. to 5p.m.

Author event

On Sunday Nov. 30, members of the Kitchen Table Writers will read prose and poetry in the library Meeting Room. Readers include: Frances Murphy Araujo, Kate Young Caley, Marion Reed, Nancy Hewitt, and Joan Stack Kovach.

Frances Murphy Araujo, is a resident of Weymouth whose fiction has appeared in Kalliope, Lynx Eye, Reed Magazine, Washington Square and other journals. Her work has received a Pushcart Prize nomination. Araujo is a contributor to "Intensive Care, an Anthology of Prose and Poetry by Nurses," recently published by the University of Iowa Press. Currently she is working on a Master of Arts in English, with a specialty in writing, at the University of Massachusetts in Boston. She is also an instructor of nursing at Boston College.

Marion Reed of Norwell is a psychiatric nurse practitioner. She has published extensively in Nursing Spectrum and writes regularly for the life and religion pages of the Patriot Ledger.

Kate Young Caley of Quincy is the author of the acclaimed spiritual memoir "The House Where the Hardest Things Happened" (Doubleday, June 2002). Her poetry has won a first prize from the Academy of American Poets. She is a college English teacher and a well-received speaker at conferences such as the Festival of Faith and Writing at Calvin College in Grand Rapids Michigan.

Nancy Hewitt is a clinical social worker and poet from Salem. She holds a Masters Degree in Fine Arts from Vermont College. Her poems have appeared in "The Anthology of New England Writers," "The Cumberland Poetry Review," "The Bridge," and "Kalliope." She has contributed to "The Use of Personal Narratives in the Helping Professions" and is also the recipient of an Academy of American Poets Award.

Joan Stack Kovach, also a contributor to Intensive Care, currently contributes to Nursing Spectrum Magazine. Kovach has written feature articles for the Patriot Ledger, and is a co-author of the book, "Peer Consultation." She lives in Cohasset and works as a nurse manager.

The readings will begin at 3pm. Copies of some of the authors' publications will be available at the reading through the courtesy of Buttonwood Books.

Literature contest

The Center for the Book in the Library of Congress in partnership with Target Stores presents, "Letters About Literature," a national reading and writing contest for children and young adults. To enter Letters about Literature, think about a book that inspired you, then write a personal letter to the author and explain why.

The letter should not summarize the plot, but should explain how the book impacted or made a difference in your life.

This contest is for grades 4-12, and is broken up into three levels. The submission deadline for all levels is Dec. 6. The top essayist on each competition level will receive a cash award and a $50 Target GiftCard. The first place winners in each state Will then advance for national judging. Contest entry forms and rules are available in the Young Adult Room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library and online at www.loc.gov/letters. Bring all entries and completed forms to Mrs. Moody for mailing on or before Dec. 4.

Irruptive species — on again, off again winter visitors

A BIRDER'S-EYE VIEW

JOANNE C. NORTON

Some migrations are regular as clockwork. The famous arrival of the swallows at Capistrano every year on March 19 is an example. Other migrations are irregular and unpredictable. These are called "irruptions". An irruption is the arrival of large numbers of birds in a place where they are not ordinarily found. Some people call this an invasion, an incursion, or a big flight year. In any case, it is not an eruption. Volcanoes erupt. Violent tempers erupt. Birds irrupt. Technically speaking, of course, the mass leaving of birds from an area could be called an eruption. People, however, take more notice of irruptive arrivals than eruptive leavings.

Common Redpoll.

Why do irruptions occur? There is a lot we do not understand yet about irruptions. One thing we can say with authority is that irruptions are irregular. One might think that harsh winters would be the cause. Instead it is now pretty clear that food shortages trigger these movements. Poor seed crop years do not necessarily correlate with severe weather. The winter of 1976-77 was the worst northeastern winter in 200 years of U. S. Weather Service record keeping, yet only Purple Finches irrupted to the south. The next year, although cold, was not as difficult in terms of snow and ice and extreme low temperatures. That year there were several species irrupting to the south.

It is also true that irruptions are very hard to predict with any certainty. There is some correlation between irruptions of Snowy Owls and the size of lemming populations, their main food source in the Arctic. Lemming populations tend to crash about every four years and sometimes Snowy Owl irruptions seem to occur about every four years. The picture gets muddy though. There are at least five different species of lemmings, presumably crashing in different years. Owls in different areas eat different types of lemmings. Owls also sometimes will supplement their diet with Snowshoe Hares if lemmings are not available. Snowshoe Hare populations tend to crash about every 10 years. In years when small mammal populations are up, owls will raise more young. If the next year is a down year, the greater number of birds looking for food exacerbates the food shortage problem. All these variables keep predictions from being trustworthy.

Why do irruptions occur? There is a lot we do not understand yet about irruptions. One thing we can say with authority is that irruptions are irregular.

Most irruptive birds are boreal or northern species. Some of these birds are raptors such as Snowy and Great Gray Owls, Rough-legged Hawks, or Northern Goshawks. The largest group of irruptives are what are known as "winter finches". These include such birds as crossbills, redpolls, Purple Finches, Evening and Pine Grosbeaks, and Pine Siskins. Other irruptives are Red-breasted Nuthatches, Bohemian Waxwings and Northern Shrikes. In years past these birds needed to find a plentiful natural source of seeds. More recently they have discovered that bird feeders are also a good source of food for them.

Redpolls and siskins are similar in size and, from a distance, in looks to the American Goldfinch. Upon closer inspection, however, one will see that these two irruptives are streaky underneath, not plain. Common Redpolls have red crowns, and a small yellow bill protruding out between a black throat and black lores (feathers between the eye and the bill). Pine Siskins have a very thin and pointed bill in contrast to the goldfinch's typical conical bill. The Red-breasted Nuthatch is a smaller version of our regular White-breasted Nuthatch. It has a prominent white eye stripe and a red breast. The winter of 1999-2000 was a year when I had a Red-breasted Nuthatch at my feeder regularly all winter long. Red and White Crossbills do indeed have crossed bills. The upper mandible crosses over the lower one in a way that allows them to extract seeds from cones with a prying motion.

Since irruptives don't have advance information about exactly where the best food supply will be in any one year, they frequently wander as nomads during the early fall months, looking for a good place to settle in for the rest of the winter. The Cornell Lab of Ornithology through its FeederWatch program and its Irruptive Bird Study collects data from thousands of amateur birders across North America who count birds at their feeders between November and April each year. As the data collect, we are learning more about when and where irruptions occur. If you go to www.birdsource.cornell.edu and follow links, you can pull up maps and graphs showing patterns of irruptions for various species from past years.

Birders are always looking for some extra excitement for their winter birding. We know that predictions are unreliable, but the Cornell Lab of Ornithology thinks this just might be a good flight year for winter finches. It is certainly worth keeping a lookout for those irregular irruptives. Are those goldfinches on the feeder really all goldfinches? Is that a mockingbird, or could it be a Northern Shrike? Does one of those Cedar Waxwings look different enough to be a Bohemian Waxwing? It is definitely worth taking a closer look with binoculars. We can always hope that this will be The Year!

Joanne Norton is Master Bander for the New England Wildlife Center, and counts birds for Project FeederWatch and International Shorebird Surveys.

Planning the first Thanksgiving

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

It was just 382 years ago this week that a group of Pilgrim fathers got together with a band of friendly Indians to plan a big feast and maybe take a drag or two on the peace pipe.

You can tell that this took place 382 years ago because Native Americans were known as Indians and the anti-smoking crowd had not yet gotten around to outlawing the peace or any other pipe.

I'll wager the Pilgrim mothers were in on the conference, too, because who else was there to do the cooking? When have you seen a Pilgrim father do anything to a turkey but shoot it, huh?

"I think we should have it on a Thursday," Bill Bradford was saying. "That way, if any of our young men imbibe a flagon or two of adult beverages they'll be clear-headed enough to go to church on Sunday."

"It should be in the morning, too," said John Alden.

"Uh-uh," said Massasoit. "Wampanoag High is playing Pequot Prep in their annual game in the morning. My son, Metacom, who you English call Philip, is the star halfback for Wampanoag. If he has a good game he may get a scholarship to Dartmouth out of it."

"I guess we could hold it in the evening," said John Alden.

"Uh-uh," said Squanto. "I have to be at the casino that night, keep an eye on Wamsutta, who you English call Alexander. I think he's skimming the black jack tables."

"That's settled then," said Bill Bradford. "The dinner will be on a Thursday afternoon, just before the big Sunday Christmas parade in Quincy. That will leave Saturday free for shopping. Who knows, maybe we'll be starting a new custom."

"But what'll we have to eat?" asked Massasoit.

"We have to have turkey," said Bill Bradford.

"My men can supply them," said Massasoit, "if you can get us an exemption from the Bartley-Fox law against firearms."

"I don't know about that," said Capt. Myles Standish, who had a military man's reluctance to letting Indians have muskets, which he called "weapons of mass destruction."

"Don't worry, I can fix that," said Bill Bradford. "I'll speak to The Speaker about it."

Bill Bradford was already gaining a wide reputation as a politician. Some said he might run for president in 1624 but others thought he'd have a better chance going for the Democratic nomination in 2004.

"Priscilla can cook the turkeys," said John Alden, referring to the birds, not the candidates.

"And we'll have mashed potatoes and butternut squash," said Ed Winslow.

"Priscilla can cook those, too.

"And cranberry sauce."

"Priscilla makes cranberry sauce out of this world," said John Alden.

"And mince pie."

"Priscilla . . ."

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John," said Priscilla crossly.

Later, taken out of context and badly misinterpreted, this comment by Priscilla Alden, nee Mullen, became the basis for a romantic poem by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Broken promises over private ways

MARK HADDAD AND SELECTMEN:

It is noted with chagrin that you have broken your commitment to fund maintenance of private ways in good times and bad.

You are now following the same path that led to them becoming deplorable hazards during the 1970's and 1980's.

Your continued failure to consider such roads as Windy Hill, Old Pasture and Fair Oaks Lane as public ways remains outrageous. You are guilty of doing exactly what you said you would not do; i.e. using private ways as inappropriate tool to substitute for zoning bylaws.

Six years ago, Selectman Callahan, wanted to wait for the Master Plan that he promised to champion and that we are still waiting for. In the meantime, "Rome burns."

Certainly, not all private ways are realistic candidates to be pubic ways and in some instances the residents on those streets may even want them to remain private. However, you have an obligation to brief private way residents on the pros and cons to include legal and financial exposure.

The first private way appropriation during the mid-1990's was for $50,000 and then you dropped it to $25,000 per year. You have never put together a maintenance plan for private ways and you have frequently diverted the paltry funding. At least the $25,000 per year could have been used to gradually remove hazards on private ways, improve drainage, have a paving plan and gradually upgrade them to public way standards. Shame on all of you.

Will state GOP use gay marriage to gain Republican seats?

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

And in other news, the Legislature banned smoking in nearly every public place statewide, allowed Sunday liquor sales for the first time in 400 years, cancelled the sales tax for a day, and saved the unemployment system from insolvency. Oh, yes, they're building that new runway at Logan, too.

Now for the big news, as in three-deck, two column headline leading the New York Times — but you already know what the big news was, don't you? As the Supreme Judicial Court ruling on gay marriage made headlines across America, the political community here marveled at how big the story was nationally — and pondered how many more big stories it's going to generate locally in days to come.

Election Day, in particular. It is beyond question that the Republican Party nationally will use gay marriage and civil unions as a wedge issue in races from state government to the presidency. Not beyond question — quite urgent, in fact — is to what degree the state GOP here in Massachusetts will do the same thing.

Tuesday's 4-3 ruling comes in the context of a party leadership trying to push the penetration of the Republicans beyond their long lock on the Corner Office, and into the House and Senate chambers. In the Legislature, a Republican governor here has little clout, because the currency of lawmaking is votes, and the GOP is broke.

Mitt Romney is out to change that, and among the points of fascination involved is the issue of how his strategists will try to play the sanctity of marriage. The basic strategy for GOP ascension is clear: recruit good candidates (the hardest part), fund and support enough winners to make sustaining gubernatorial vetoes possible, and win some policy fights to build momentum going into subsequent campaigns. On the issue of gay marriage itself, the governor has long since come out (so to speak) in support of a constitutional amendment defining marriage as one man and one woman; the Legislature's next consideration of the proposed amendment is slated for Feb. 11. But that's a referendum for 2006 at the very earliest in any event — the question is how strongly will Romney and the state GOP exploit gay marriage to recruit candidates and win votes in 2004.

A lot depends on how the current Legislature responds to the decision. Justices gave the House and Senate 180 days to codify the court's imperative that the laws of Massachusetts recognize same-sex couples as legitimate units. If a person were to project the likeliest outcome at this moment, it would be approval of a Vermont-style civil union statute, and the Democrats would love to do that without roll call votes. But if the Republicans want to recruit hard on the gay marriage question, they'll try to position incumbents as pro-gay couples, and then develop a "pro-family" message and candidates to deliver it.

At bottom is the attitude of the electorate. Nationally, polls show people in their 20s and 30s evenly divided on gay marriage, but older people decisively against. In Massachusetts, though, a Boston Globe poll showed 55 percent of likely voters actually supporting the idea of gay marriage. So the issue might not do the GOP much good, especially if the Legislature enacts a civil union statute instead of outright same-sex marriage. Both parties will eagerly devour the next opinion survey on the question. And it won't be the last.

Any one of four other stories could easily have been the top story of most weeks. One easy-to-overlook, yet noteworthy, development was how smoothly the final week of formal sessions was handled, with a comparative lack of shenanigans, a compromise reached on a jobs bill, and a low level of stress among the rank and file.

Republicans made the valid point that the process included some eyebrow-raising rules suspensions, like an unprecedented carryover of budget matters from one annual session to the next, and the blithe dismissal by the House of a rules "reform" on the question of allowing members to study conference committee reports. But even there, the counter argument seemed plausible: leadership wasn't bringing forward anything members couldn't have reasonably expected for months. How much devil is contained in the details has yet to be determined; if no outrages emerge it will appear to have been one of the most orderly and successful formal-session conclusions in years. And it involved some striking developments:

- A compromise emerged from a conference committee on the economic stimulus package that began life when Speaker Finneran proposed a business-assistance fund of $110 million back in July. The components of the actual plan weren't too controversial, though an item to help Virgin Atlantic Airlines establish a hub at Logan Airport was left out. What the media and their consumers noticed most was a provision allowing Sunday sales of alcohol statewide, with a local opt-out clause. That ended a decades-long conversation in the Legislature and abolished one of the most important remaining "blue laws" that had been enforced. Also, a sales tax holiday was declared for next Aug. 14; on that day, only the largest and most expensive items, like cars, will still be subject to the sales tax. Legislators are promoting the day as a "back to school" tax break. The bill awaits Romney's consideration.
- The Senate went along with the House and passed a ban on smoking in most private businesses in the Commonwealth. There is no local option. Differences are still subject to a conference committee or informal resolution of disagreements between the two branches' versions. The smoking ban was played like a fait accompli in the press but veterans under the Dome will wait and see if getting to yes, and the governor's desk, is really that easy. Romney is so far noncommittal on the smoking ban, and Sunday alcohol sales as well. As drafted, the ban is not evenly applied to all workplaces, and some Republicans have cried foul over special interest exemptions.
- Lawmakers sent the governor a bill to raise unemployment insurance premiums a total of $450 million, though Republicans said the increase would be $580 million. The average employer payment per worker will rise to $546 from $341. Romney said he'd likely let the increase take effect though it contains virtually no benefit cuts, as the administration wanted. He predicted the reliance on the employer payment hike will cost the state "tens of thousands" of jobs, but is preferable to the even higher rate hike due to take effect Jan. 1 unless the law is changed. The measure will replenish the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund, which was drained by the recession.
- Superior Court Judge Margot Botsford ruled that it's permissible for the Massachusetts Port Authority to construct a new runway 14/32 to help ease flight delays and cancellations due to frequent northwest winds at Logan Airport. The 27-year old injunction against new runway construction was lifted in a suit filed after the Federal Aviation Administration approved the project in 2002. Normally, the apparent conclusion of a long and bitter Boston battle would have topped the news; it was relegated to a side story because it came the same day as the gay-marriage ruling. The reaction from former fierce foes such as Boston Mayor Thomas Menino was muted, indicating the fight probably does end here and it looks as if the runway will be built.

The end-of-formals flurry brought other developments as well: the House and Senate appointed a conference to settle differences in spam-control bills. Leaders signaled legislation to study how much business property taxes should be allowed to go up, so residential property rates can be held in check, will likely advance in 2004. Boston Mayor Thomas Menino had been hoping for last-minute passage of a stronger measure allowing them to adjust business tax rates right away, and stave off impending taxpayer anger when residents receive their new bills.

Another measure, to allow mothers in crisis to abandon their newborns at "safe havens" like police stations without fear of prosecution, stalled in the House

Beacon Hill Roll Call

By Bob Katzen

beaconhill@aol.com

Nov. 17-21

QUESTIONS

Senator Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth) (617) 722-1646 Room 413F

Representative Garrett J. Bradley (D-Hingham) (617) 722-2120 Room 472

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local senators' votes on five roll calls and local representatives' votes on four roll calls from the week of November 10-14.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT PLAN (H 4328)

House 146-12, Senate 39-0, gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney a $100 million economic development plan. Provisions include legalizing the Sunday opening of stores that sell liquor, creating an August 14 "back to school" sales tax-free shopping day and making the three percent investment tax credit permanent. Other provisions include providing $25 million for emerging technologies, $6 million for the Brownfields Redevelopment Fund, $2 million for a program to attract international tourists and $6 million for workforce training and development. Supporters said the bill would be a real shot in the arm for the state by stimulating the economy, creating jobs and making Massachusetts friendlier to business. Opponents said the package helps only businesses by offering tax breaks and grants and does not include any guarantees that jobs will be created. They argued that the tax breaks would result in further cuts in education, local aid and human service programs. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against the bill).

Senator: Y — Representative: Y

PAY FOR PUBLIC EMPLOYEES IN MILITARY SERVICE (H 4307)

House 159-0, Senate 39-0, gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Romney a bill providing that state employees who are granted a military leave of absence for active military service after September 11, 2001, continue to receive their base state salary reduced by their military salary and do not lose any seniority, accrued vacation or leave time. The proposal, effective until September 11, 2005, also gives cities, towns and counties the option to apply the law to their local employees. Supporters said the bill would assist these brave Americans who are helping to fight the war against terror and ensure that their families do not suffer financially. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).

Senator: Y — Representative: Y

RAISE UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE TAX (S 2150)

House 134-24, Senate 39-0, approved and sent to Gov. Romney a bill making changes in the state's unemployment insurance system. The major change increases the unemployment insurance tax paid by employers to fund the unemployment trust fund that provides benefits to laid-off workers. Estimates of the increase range from $450 million to $578 million. Other provisions include higher tax rates for businesses that frequently lay off employees and lower rates for those that do not and a reduction from 30 to 26 in the number of weeks laid-off workers can collect unemployment when the unemployment rate is below 5.1 percent. Supporters said these reforms are fair and necessary to generate revenue and prevent the insolvency of the fund. They argued that without legislative action, an automatic scheduled hike of $610 million would take effect on January 1 and would not include any reform of the system. Opponents said the bill would make Massachusetts' unemployment insurance costs the highest in the nation, drive employers to move out of state and result in the loss of tens of thousands of jobs. They argued that the bill puts the entire new burden on businesses and noted that they support Gov. Romney's plan that takes a balanced approach by sharing the burden between businesses and employees. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against the bill).

INCREASE NUMBER OF WEEKS FOR ELIGIBILITY (S 2150)

House 36-122, Senate 8-31, rejected an amendment increasing from 15 to 20 weeks the minimum period of time an employee must work in order to be eligible for unemployment benefits. Amendment supporters said 45 states require more than 15 weeks. They argued that the change would save employers some $30 million and noted that workers should shoulder some of the burden in fixing the unemployment system. Amendment opponents said the increase is unfair and would hurt many workers including seasonal employees and others who are only able to find jobs that last less than 20 weeks during this economic downturn. (A "Yea" vote is for the increase from 15 to 20 weeks. A "Nay" vote is against the increase).

Senator: Y — Representative: N

BAN SMOKING IN MOST WORKPLACES (S 2130)

Senate 29-10, gave near final approval to a bill banning smoking effective July 5, 2004 in most enclosed workplaces with one or more employees including offices, taxis, restaurants, bars and vehicles owned by state and local governments. Exemptions include rented rooms in hotels, motels, inns and bed and breakfasts, retail tobacco stores, smoking bars that derive more than 51 percent of their revenue from tobacco sales, patients in state hospitals, state-run substance abuse treatment centers, soldiers' homes, designated areas in nursing homes and assisted living facilities, vehicle, vessels and buildings owned or operated by the state's armed forces and religious ceremonies in which smoking is part of the ritual. Another exemption is for "membership associations" when they are not open to the public. These associations range from some private country clubs to American Legion halls and other non-profit entities that are organized for a charitable, educational, political or social purpose. Supporters said the bill would make public places virtually smoke free. They argued the ban would save countless lives and reduce medical costs by billions of dollars. Some noted that restaurants and bars with smoking bans actually see their business and revenues increase. Some opponents said smoking restrictions should be left up to local communities and criticized the state for imposing severe restrictions on smoking while reaping billions of dollars in tax revenue from tobacco sales. Others said these statewide restrictions would hurt many businesses and take away the rights of business owners, workers, smokers and non-smokers to make their own decisions without unwarranted government interference. Some called the bill hypocritical because it allows workers in exempted workplaces to be exposed to second-hand smoke. The House has approved a different version of the measure and the Senate version now goes to the House for consideration. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill banning smoking in most enclosed workplaces. A "Nay" vote is against the ban).

Senator: Y — Representative: Y

LOCAL OPTION SMOKING BAN (S 2130)

Senate 13-26, rejected an amendment allowing cities and towns to opt out of the smoking ban if a majority of voters at a regular or special election vote to reject it. Amendment supporters said most cities and towns do not currently have a workplace smoking ban and argued that this issue should be decided by local communities where voters can have input instead of being forced into a ban by the state. Amendment opponents said the amendment would severely weaken the effectiveness of the bill and argued that this is a public health issue that requires action by the state in order to protect its citizens. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment allowing local communities to opt out of the ban. A "Nay" vote is against the opt-out amendment).

POLITICAL NOTES

Anne M. Hilbert

Hilbert announces bid for G.O.P. Committee

Anne M. Hilbert of North Weymouth has officially announced her candidacy for Republican State Committeewoman for the Plymouth Norfolk district in the Republican primary on March 2, 2004.

"The primary mission of the Massachusetts Republican Party is to recruit and elect Republican legislative, statewide and congressional candidates across the Commonwealth. I have the grassroots experience needed to build coalitions and build the Massachusetts Republican Party in our district from the ground up," Hilbert said. "Successful builders never concentrate on the roof first, yet that seems to be how the Massachusetts Republican Party has functioned for years.

"The only promise I will make to you is that I will work hard to achieve the mission and goals of the Republican Party. When elected, I will build coalitions that make our organization strong and successful. My goal is for Massachusetts to be a two-party state."

Hilbert has been actively involved in many organizations and associations working for the community. She has held several elected offices, including Weymouth Town Meeting Member and Vice Chairperson of the Weymouth Charter Commission. She is currently an active member of the Weymouth Republican Town Committee, where she serves as Treasurer. She has been a member of Citizen for Limited Taxation for many years.

Mrs. Hilbert and her husband Richard have been residents of North Weymouth for over 38 years.

Republicans to party

The Cohasset Republican Town Committee is hosting its annual Holiday Party on Sunday, Dec. 7, from 5-9 p.m. at the Lightkeeper's Cottage in Cohasset Harbor. Come and celebrate the joy of the season with good food, good cheer and good Republicans. RSVP by Dec. 1 to Heather Palmer at 781-383-3339.

when a supermajority couldn't be attained to take the bill up right after it came out of committee. The measure will be scheduled for debate early next year. A long-awaited supplemental budget finally made its way to the governor's desk; it contains funding for a number of human services accounts, though a large proportion of the actual dollars allotted go to negotiated raises for UMass staffers and various other underfunded or overdue purposes. Human service lobbyists didn't get all they hoped for in the $102 million measure to stem the human pain caused by this year's budget reductions, and they still have their work cut out to keep their programs from being cut out as a new budget cycle arrives. And besides the high-profile action at the end of the session, there were the more routine developments in politics and policy.

• Jacques will leave senate on democrat-friendly terms — Sen. Cheryl Jacques, D-Needham, submitted her resignation last week. Senate Democrats offered and approved an order that had Republicans fuming. It directs the Senate president to order a special election to fill the vacancy in her seat in such a way that the general election will be held March 2. The governor has a promising recruit on the Republican side, but March 2 is the same day as the presidential primary – an event expected to attract far more Democrats than Republicans, because there's a fight on the Democratic side. The order allows Jacques to resign in calendar year 2004, increasing her state pension as she departs to become director of the Human Rights Campaign, a national gay-rights group. The seat was held by a Republican before Jacques and it's the kind of district the governor must win to change the status quo.

• Big Dig ready for southbound opening in December, managers say— The southbound tunnel of the Big Dig, 20 years in the planning and building, will be ready for a ribbon cutting on Dec. 19 or shortly thereafter, Mass. Turnpike Authority Chairman Matthew Amorello said. The project's leaders hope to have the old Central Artery mostly removed by the time the Democratic National Convention opens in July. The project received its first refund from a contractor that made mistakes. Jacob Civil Inc. will repay $3.5 million for mistakes it made in the design of the Ted Williams Tunnel and the depressed portion of I-93. "For once, there's a check coming in to the people of Massachusetts, rather than one going out," Amorello said. "But there needs to be more of them."

• Reilly sues manufacturers of bulletproof vests — "Officers who put their lives on the line every day must be able to trust the equipment they use to protect themselves," Attorney General Thomas Reilly said as he announced the lawsuit seeking to force two makers of bulletproof vests to replace 5,000 vests for free. "We are taking this action to correct the problem with these vests and assure that our officers have the best possible equipment." At issue is defective zylon, a tough material used for inserts in the vest; California and Pennsylvania have successfully moved for replacement of vests after showing defective zylon led to inadequate protection and injuries to officers in those states.

Fall cleaning time

EXTRA POINTS

MIKE SPELLMAN

It's time again to purge a whole lot of random unrelated musings, observations and news tidbits from my consciousness. In other words, it's high time I clean all these yellow sticky notes off my computer monitor.

This fall's run by the Norwell boys soccer team to Div. 3 south sectional championship was made all the more remarkable considering what happened to two of their three All-Eastern Mass players.

Leading scorer Rob Beach (21 goals 15 assists in 17 games) was lost to a fractured orbital bone a week before the postseason even got underway. Then, just a few minutes into the state tourney opener with Hopkinton, Garrett Bates, arguably the best player in South Shore League this season, pulled cartilage in rib cage. He was a shadow of himself for the entire postseason. As coach Jack Browne noted: "It hurt him to breathe never mind run around and bump into people."

As is so often the case with truly special teams, though, several players took it up a notch to compensate for the absences of these star performances. Two, in

Turkey Day tune-up

Pilgrimage to Hull will ready Skippers for Dec. 2 playoff game

Having clinched first place in the South Shore League, and the first home tournament game in Skipper history— with a thrilling 7-0 victory over Norwell with 1:05 to play, last Friday, when Sean Connolly pounced on a loose ball in the end zone — the Skippers will visit Hull on Thanksgiving morning at 10 AM, in a tune up contest for a date with the Tri Valley League champion on Tuesday night.

The Hull Pirates have a 2-7 record overall, 2-2 in SSL play. The 2003 Skippers enter the game with an 8-1 record, 4-0 in SSL play. Hull prevailed last season by the score of 32-15 on the frozen tundra known as Alumni Field, while the 2001 Skippers clinched the first ever tournament berth for Cohasset with a 13-3 victory on the Skippers last visit to the Tip of Hull.

Cohasset leads the 16-year old Turkey Day series heading in, 9-6-1.

This year's Championship Skippers squad of 44 players will be graduating nine seniors. This Class of 2003-2004 has a four year varsity record of 30-10. Having compiled a 5-5 record in 2000, 9-2 in 2001, 8-2 in 2002, and 8-1 this year to date.

The long range weather forecast looks promising, with a balmy day predicted for Thanksgiving morning. So break out the sunscreen, and motor on down to Hull High School to cheer on your Skippers, and catch up with your fellow alumni and neighbors.

#28 Chris Bilodeau, 6' 175, Wide Receiver/Safety/Kick and Punt Returner-Captain

Chris is a four year starter for the Skippers. Chris has 23 receptions this season, four for touchdowns…made the catch of the season versus Weston, a diving TD reception to ice the game…had six receptions for 119 yards versus Canton…six interceptions, two each in the crucial Abington and Norwell contests, and is the leading tackler in the secondary. Chris has also excelled at both kick and punt returns for the Skippers.

#80 Rob Carpenter, 6' 180, Defensive End/Linebacker

Rob has stepped in on the defensive front and been a force in his rookie season with the Skippers…led the team with eight tackles, a sack and fumble recovery in the Carver

Mariner All-Scholastic field hockey team

Cohasset's Caron and Pinkus named among area's elite

As is always the case with these kinds of things, the selection process with this team was not an easy one.

Several of the young women you see listed below as "Honorable Mentions" received serious consideration for All-Scholastic acknowledgement.

In the end, however, we limited ourselves to a team of just 16, and, after consulting with area coaches, we do feel secure that we chose the top field hockey players in Marinerland for this honor.

Danielle Pinkus
Senior (Capt.)
Center Midfield - Cohasset

Danielle Pinkus

A great two-way performer who was key at both ends of the field for the Lady Skippers …a very intelligent and well balanced player…South Shore League all-star…finished with five goals and six assists…would often move back to center-defense to catch her breath and/or bolster the defense, and even moved to the forward line a few times when a big goal was needed…was used on defensive corners…won team "Unsung Hero" Award…also a top basketball and softball player at Cohasset High…a South Shore League all-star Honorable Mention in both sports last year…2003 Mariner All-Scholastic Honorable Mention for softball for her work at shortstop…will be a three sport captain at CHS this year…Honor Roll student…enjoys working with children, and has done a good deal of community service in that area…also interested in art…may major in Pre-Med studies…is leaning toward attending UConn or Syracuse, major Div. 1 NCAA schools… hence, Danielle believes her athletic career will continue at the intramural or club level… Cohasset coach Deb Bostwick: "Danielle has unbelievable desire as a player and is a very strong athlete. For us, the experience and knowledge and anticipation she brought to the game was just immense. She sees the field so well. She's a great team player and sportsman.

Forward - Cohasset

Courtney Caron

In just her second year of varsity lacrosse, Courtney exploded on the scene to lead the Lady Skippers back into the postseason after a two year absence…was second in the South Shore League in scoring with 23 goals and 12 assists… SSL all-star… had just nine points (four goals, five assists) as a junior… was a flyer on defensive corners…a gifted and extremely determined athlete… switched from soccer to field hockey after her freshman year, and played her sophomore year at the JV level…won team "Top Offensive Player" Award the last two years… a Mariner All-Scholastic in tennis this past spring who helped lead the Cohasset team to a state championship…team manager the last few years for CHS girls basketball team…plays tennis year round as a member at the Driftway Club and Weymouth Tennis Club…hoping to play tennis and possibly field hockey as well in college…applying to St. Regis, Williams, Wheaton and Salve Regina, among others…may do a year of prep school first… Cohasset coach Deb Bostwick: "Courtney's overall athletic ability, stick skills, speed and aggressiveness, anticipation and unselfishness all set her apart. She formed a great tag team offensively with Katy James. Her offense was one of the key reasons we got back to the postseason. She'd do anything for the team. And she's a great sportsman too."

Triple threat

Buckley, Graham and O'Donnell proved perfect captains for CHS lady booters

By Mark Goodman
CORRESPONDENT

A career-ending loss in the state tournament can be a joyous or a saddening experience.

For Cohasset girls soccer co-captains Jenn Buckley and Holly Graham, it was both.

The girls, who have played together since middle school, took the field for the last time as high school athletes when the Skippers lost to Sacred Heart in a first round tournament game.

Although the Cohasset girls came out on the short end, 2-1, they played one of their best games of the year, outplaying their higher-seeded opponents. It was a potentially frustrating way to go out, but Buckley was able to put a positive spin on it.

"Instead of last year, when we got blown away by Ashland [in the tournament], it was a great game," she said. "It was an awesome way to go out, even though it was a loss."

Keri Gerrish - Senior (Capt.) Midfield - Hanover

Keri Gerrish

One of the leading scorers in the Patriot League and in Eastern Mass. Gerrish recorded another solid season at center midfield…The three-year starter and PL All-star led the team in scoring for the second-straight season, netting nine goals, 20 assists for 29 points…This put her in the top three in the PL and among the top 10 in Eastern Mass…Her consistent play in both the offensive and defensive midfield helped the Lady Indians to a 12-3-2 overall record (7-2-1 in the PL for second)…Was a big part of an offense that scored 42 goals this season and qualified for the Div. 2 South Sectional tourney… Also a talented gymnast and softball player at HHS…Gerrish plans to attend college and continue her athletic career…Hanover coach Judy Schneider: "She was our playmaker. She was involved in all of our offensive and defensive corners as a flier. She has great stick skills and always knows exactly where to be. She's going to be missed."

In just her second season of varsity play, CHS senior Courtney Caron exploded to finish second in the South Shore League in scoring with 23 goals and 12 assists.

Nicole Downs Senior (Capt.) Goalie - Hanover

One of the Patriot League's best goalies for the past two seasons, this two-time All-star recorded 10 shutouts for the Lady Indians…One of the biggest shutouts came midway through the season in a 1-0 victory over previously unbeaten PL champs Duxbury…Was the backbone and last line of a defense that allowed just 15 goals in 17 games this season…Downs only let 10 goals go by her in league games and her goals against average of 1.13 led the PL for the second-straight season…Downs plans to attend college next year. Hanover coach Judy Schneider: "She's just so solid back there. She was the backbone of the defense. There were a couple of games where our defense wasn't at its best, but she was always there. She's a great player."

Kate Shea - Senior Forward - Hanover

It was a breakout season for this senior…A two-year varsity player, Shea is a first-year starter on the left wing...There, the Patriot League All-star racked up 11 goals, 8 assists for 19 points, good for second on the team…As is customary with wings, speed was one of Shea's best assets this season, as was her role as the passer on corners…Her dominance on the wing helped lead the Lady Indians to a 12-3-2 record (7-2-1 PL for second) and berth in the Div. 2 South Sectional tourney…Shea also plays basketball at HHS and is still considering her options for next year…Hanover coach Judy Schneider: "I think her confidence this season came from being a senior and it showed. She was so accurate when passing on corners and runs like a gazelle."

Diana Trebino - Senior Midfield - Hingham

Diana Trebino

The most consistent player in Hingham's midfield, Trebino contributed both offensively and defensively… Quickness, agility, and patience were among this player's greatest assets on the field…Though used primarily as a defensive midfielder, Trebino started taking shots towards the end of the season and netted the game-winning goal in the team's 2-1 victory over Plymouth NorthThe goal was the first of her career…Also a talented tennis player, Trebino made our All-Scholastic team last year and will return to the court this spring…Trebino plans to attend a Liberal Arts College next fall and continue her field hockey career. Hingham coach Meredith Gordon: "She just plays so well and was so important in all our games this year. She's a real complete player and has excellent skills. She gets the job done with grace and poise."

Alli O'Leary - Senior Midfield - Hingham

Alli O'Leary

Another player in the Harbor-women's strong midfield, O'Leary is making her first appearance on a Mariner All-Scholastic team…A very quick player, O'Leary often marked the opposing team's best player…Also contributed to Hingham's offense by getting the play started in the back…A Patriot League All-star, her all-around play helped Hingham record a 10-7-1 record and berth in the Div. 2 South Sectional…O'Leary is ranked within the top five percent of her senior class and is the stage manager of all the drama club's productions…O'Leary also competes on Hingham's indoor and outdoor track teams and received the "Coach's Award" last spring…Plans to attend a Div. 3 college and continue her field hockey career…Franklin & Marsh, Connecticut College, and Bowdin are among her top choices. Hingham coach Meredith Gordon: "She and Diana complimented each other well. Alli is not a flashy player, rather she plays with finesse."

Ashley Hubbard - Senior Forward - Marshfield

Ashley Hubbard

Was a prime example of the phrase "speed kills"… Perhaps better known for her dominance on the track, Hubbard is equally as dominant on a field hockey field…Playing primarily on the left wing, Hubbard combined explosive speed with solid skills to produce several scoring opportunities for Marshfield (10-8, 7-5 Old Colony League for second)…The two-time OCL All-star and field hockey All-Scholastic was the Lady Rams' leading scorer for the second-straight season, netting 10 goals, 3 assists for 13 points…Hubbard is also a highly accomplished sprinter at MHS, winning state titles both indoors and outdoors last season…She plans to attend college and continue her track career. Marshfield coach Carol Anderson: "She's definitely the fastest player in the area and when you coupled that with her stick work, she made our offense tough to beat. She was both not afraid to go to the goal or know when to get rid of the ball, and always knew where to be."

Jenna Picco - Senior Defense - Marshfield

Jenna Picco

It was a breakout season for this defensive stalwart as her fierce play on the backline helped Marshfield (10-8, 7-5 Old Colony League for second) achieve one of its better seasons in years…Voted the MVP by teammates, this OCL All-star drew the assignment of marking on the opposing team's best player and relished the role…Was the leader on a defense that recorded five shutouts this season, including one against Patriot League power East Bridgewater (2-0) that clinched a berth in the Div. 1 South Sectional tourney, its first in years…Picco plans to continue her field hockey career at Merrimack next fall. Marshfield coach Carol Anderson: "Kids say to me 'Jenna looks like a college athlete' and I think she plays like one. She loves the game and it shows. She did it, showed it, and the kids followed her."

Katerina Koutrobis Senior (Capt) Sweeper - Norwell

Katerina Koutrobis

Lone member of the Norwell team named to South Shore League All-Star team… three year varsity team member, starter the last two years…anchored an inexperienced defensive unit this year, helping to keep the Lady Clippers close in several games against high caliber opponents… Honor Roll student… played lacrosse when younger… Member of Junior States of America, a debating club, and Mayor of the New England Region of that organization… plans to major in Political Science in college, but does not see athletics in her future… very interested in music and plays the flute in the NHS pep band and marching bond… would like continue to pursue music in college…Amnesty International member…member of NHS Mock Trial team…participates in Oratorical competitions…has applied to George Washington Fordham, University of Chicago, Johns Hopkins and Columbia… took AP level courses at Stanford University (Cal) this past summer…Norwell coach Jen Schad: Katerina is a very sound all-around player. She's a good communicator, has nice field perception, and those were very important for us with her working with a new goalie this year. She was just an extremely important player for us."

Hannah Hewitt - Junior Center Defense - Scituate

Yvonne Chiampa

The lone Scituate player named to he Patriot League all-star team… moved from midfield to center defensive back this season to anchor a young defensive corps, and helped keep the rebuilding Lady Sailors close in many games against high caliber teams…had a goal and four assists this season…was the main shooter on offensive corners and a flyer on defensive corners…three year member of varsity team… also a standout softball player at Scituate High, and played basketball for the school team the previous two years… starting third baseman for varsity softball team last year, but will move to catcher this season…very interested in art…Commended Honor Roll student this past term…plans to go to college and would like to play either field hockey or softball at that level…has attended college softball showcases, and has already been contacted by mail by a few college softball coaches…Scituate coach Heather True: "I moved Hannah to center back because I wanted her to anchor the entire field for us, and that's just what she did. She has incredible aggressiveness and drive and has great defensive skills. She almost always marked the top opposing scorer, and did a phenomenal job of that. She was also indispensable on penalty corners."

Yvonne Chiampa Senior (Capt) Sweeper- Silver Lake

The Old Colony League co-Most Valuable Players was the anchor of the league's stingiest defense this fall, and was a key to the Lady Lakers 15-3 season and run to the OCL championship… Brockton Enterprise All-Scholastic… Mariner All-Scholastic Honorable Mention last year…two time OCL All-Star…three year starter… a strong athlete who often appeared unbeatable in the open field…half of best captain tandem (along with Erica Kroon) coach Marlene Lopes said she's had in her 15 years of coaching…plays field hockey year round… previously participated in track and basketball at Silver Lake… High Honors student… National Honor Society Treasurer… Sports Editor of Silver Lake school newspaper, Laker Legend… would like to play college field hockey…is looking at Harvard, Tufts, UConn and Brown, among others…leaning toward majoring in Education … Silver Lake coach Marlene Lopes: "Shoulder to shoulder, Yvonne just didn't get beat. She was confident, had great defensive instincts and did a phenomenal job of getting the ball away from our net and up the field."

Erica Kroon - Senior (Capt) Forward - Silver Lake

Erica Kroon

A gifted and well rounded offensive player who finished the season with 10 goals and 10 assist for the 15-3 Lady Lakers…had nifty assortment of moves to get opposing goalies out of position, and was then equally adept at passing or shooting…Brockton Enterprise All-Scholastic…Old Colony League all-star…also plays basketball at Silver Lake… missed most her junior field hockey season and the entire basketball season with a broken disc in her back…half of the best captain tandem (along with Yvonne Chiampa) coach Marlene Lopes said she's had in 15 years of coaching… plays field hockey year round… High Honors student with a 3.4 GPA… National Honor Society President of school Captains Council…will play Div. 3 field hockey and has already talked to several college coaches…among the possibilities are Endicott, Plymouth State and Keene State…plans to major in Art Therapy… already an accomplished artist, Erica has sold paintings in her own art show…sister Stacy Kroon was a top volleyball player at Silver Lake…Silver Lake coach Marlene Lopes: "Erica and Yvonne (Chiampa) were just outstanding captains. They were so committed and came in in such great shape. They definitely raised the bar around here for leaders to a whole new level. Erica was just so good at moving the ball quickly and making things happen. She's a very skilled offensive player."

Stephanie Barry - Junior Forward - Silver Lake

Stephanie Barry

Junior enjoyed a breakout season to lead the Lady Lakers in both goals (14) and scoring (23 points) for the OCL champion Lady Lakers (15-3)…Old Colony League all-star… Brockton Enterprise All-Scholastic… finished third in the OCL scoring race, being

COASTAL STARS REPORT

Mite C1

The Stars Mite C1's racked up another win this week, taking Weymouth by a score of 9-2. The Stars continue to play aggressively. They dominated Weymouth from the opening faceoff, consistently getting the jump on every play and keeping Weymouth's offensive opportunities limited. Tommy Prendergast, Brendan O'Connell, Justin Fein and Colin MacDonald produced four quick goals answered by only one from Braintree to give the Stars a 4-1 lead after the first. The excitement of those first four goals seemed to spark a fierce determination in all the Stars to get to the net and score their own goal. Center Adam Benson came very close taking several long but unsuccessful shots. Wingers Tucker Ambrose and Jake Burchill gathered momentum throughout the game also producing some "oh so close" shots. Brodie Jackisch got a solid one off right in front of the net, adding his name to the list of scorers. Next came number two for Colin MacDonald. He blasted a slapshot up and over the goalie's shoulder, by far the shot of the game. Tommy Prendergast answered with his second goal giving the Stars a 7-1 lead at the start of the third period. While the offense was focused on getting to the net, they were backed up by excellent defensive play. Stars goalie Brian Palmieri had great protection on each line as the defense played strong positional hockey. Weymouth gave Palmieri a few solid shots but he was ready and there with the save. Colby Comeau and Pat Shea, Charlie Blackington and Derek Benson, and Kevin Meehan and Charley Michalowski all deserve credit for holding the line and keeping play mostly out of the zone. Even on defense, Meehan and Michalowski each added their names to the list of scorers producing the last two goals for the Stars and showing their capacity to remain strong and effective to the last buzzer. While it was not a tough win for the Stars, it was a good win as the guys played their positions with intensity and determination and continue to raise the level of play as a team.

Mite C2

The Coastal Stars Mites-2 continued their winning ways on Sunday with their third win in a row, beating Weymouth 4-0 at the Hobomock Arenas. Weymouth played tough but could not stay with the Stars offensively. With 6:40 left in the first period, Colin MacDonald began the scoring with a nice drive to the net, beating the Weymouth goalie with a wrist shot to the left corner. Robert Reidy continued the offensive attack, skating the puck up the ice and just missing wide of the post. Robbie Bertone and Thomas Coyne were unwavering on defense limiting Weymouth's scoring opportunities through solid position play. The Stars turned up the offense in the second period. At times, the attack was relentless with multiple shots on the Weymouth goalie who held his own amidst the pressure. Michael McPartlin playing center for the Stars got off several shots on net and played well in the corners. John Leahy took advantage of a loose puck off the faceoff and unloaded a shot on net. Then with 2:15 left in the second period, Joey Redfearn made it 2-0 on a nice backhand follow-up to a Patrick Graham shot and rush up the right side. With 1:10 left, Colin MacDonald lit up the lamp again with a flip shot over the fallen Weymouth goalie just below the crossbar and into the net. The Stars took a commanding 3-0 lead over Weymouth into the final period. The third period was much like the second with great Stars play on both offensive and defensive ends. Matt Boudreau at right wing was like a shark gliding in and around the offensive zone after the puck. Jack Kaetzer and Joseph Proctor were a defensive tandem clearing the puck out of the defensive zone and neutralizing Weymouth's offensive prospects. With 13:22 left in the third period, the Stars made it 4-0. Matt Doyle cut left across the zone and scored on a shot that sailed diagonally along the ice and into the right hand corner. Jack Evitts and Jake Burchill delivered great hustle on the front line continuing the pressure on the Weymouth goaltender. Tristan Wiggin set up shop in the corners during the third period, digging out loose pucks and creating opportunities for teammates. And defenseman Kal Maier battled at the blue line, preventing Weymouth from clearing the puck out of the zone. The Stars preserved the win as well as the shutout for Stars goalie Brendan Evitts who saw minimal shots on net.

Mite C3

The Stars Mites C-3 team collected their eighth victory of the season with a 9-0 win over the Brewins 2 Mites hockey club. The game was highlighted with a four-goal outburst by left winger Garrett Leahy and another team shutout recorded by Stars goaltender Sam Topham. The team welcomed the return of Matthew Tautkus who returned after injury to play a steady game at defense. Andrew Tautkus opened the Stars scoring midway through the first period after receiving a pass from linemate James Daley. Garrett Leahy then scored the next two Stars goals on feeds from both Andrew Tautkus and James Daley making the score 3-0 Stars at the end of the first period. The second period began with a goal from Max Hemingway as he slammed home a "tape to tape" pass from center Bryan Bowman, after a hustling effort by defenseman Jeffery Powers to keep the puck in the zone. Garrett Leahy scored his third of the contest on a rush up left wing after receiving a mid ice pass from defenseman Jake Denton. Stars defensemen Jeffrey Powers, Matthew Tautkus, Ryan Melia and Mark McGoldrick stood tall at the blue line killing off two power play opportunities by the Brewins club. The third period opened with Stars net minder Sam Topham making some brilliant saves including a Brewins blast from the left circle. Garrett Leahy stalled the Brewins offensive attack scoring his fourth tally on a "wrap around" goal off a feed from winger James Daley. Several fine offensive rushes by right wing Declan Leahy paid off for the Stars midway through the third period as defenseman Bryan Bowman collected Declan's rebound and passed to Ryan Melia who fired the puck past the fallen Brewins goal tender. Linemates Curtis Golden and Hugh Healey along with Declan Leahy applied constant offensive pressure throughout the game only to have the Brewins goaltender come up with some big saves. The end of the third period saw Mark McGoldrick score the final two Stars goals, one skating from the offensive corner and the other on a nice pass in front from linemate Jake Denton. The Mites C-3 team improved their season record to 8-0-0 while recording an amazing seventh shut out.

Mite A

Terrence Doonan's remarkable goaltending and a sterling defensive effort by the entire team led the Mite A Coastal Stars to a 4-0 shutout win over Norwood. The Stars showed their defensive prowess early by killing a penalty, with Brian Smith and Jake McDonough blocking shots, and Kenny Parnell making a short-handed attempt that was saved. The Stars applied some pressure of their own after the kill. Jeremy Duchini kept the puck in the Norwood zone and fed Parnell out front, and the front line of Jonathan Spitz, Chris Cohen, and Colin Whelan forechecked persistently, but the Norwood defense was quick to deny the bids, and the period ended in a 0-0 tie. The defensive battle continued into the second period. Kevin McDougall hustled back to break up a 3-on-1 Norwood break. Jared McCrystal twice stepped up for steals at the Norwood blue line and passed out front. Andrew Geddes blocked a shot and cleared it from the zone. Terrence Doonan was terrific in net, making a glove save on one shot headed for top corner, and saving another shot through a screen. But Norwood stifled any Stars' scoring chances, including a give-and-go between Will DeCoste and Frankie Lemieux, and the score remained 0-0 after two. The Stars broke the ice early in the third. Brian Smith and Kevin McDougall kept the puck in the Norwood zone, and passed out front to Tommy Dixon. Dixon's initial shot was saved, but he hustled for the rebound and banged it in for the 1-0 lead. With about ten minutes left, the Stars picked up their second penalty. Skating shorthanded, Will Golden got the puck in his own end, carried it through the neutral zone to just inside the Norwood blue line, and ripped a shot from about 30 feet that was still rising when it caught the top corner of the Norwood net for the 2-0 lead. Still shorthanded, Jake McDonough took the ensuing face-off and stickhandled to Norwood's right circle. His shot from there beat the Norwood goaltender to the right side. Terrence Doonan made a spectacular save to keep the shutout alive, and Jake McDonough finished the scoring by deking his way to the front of the Norwood net and finding the five-hole.

Squirt C2

The Stars Squirt C2 team bounced back in a big way this week, defeating Hingham, 10 - 1. Kevin Friedland kicked off the scoring in the first period with a nice one timer of a Brian Craig back hand pass from behind the net. Defensemen Dan Leblanc continued to contribute to the offense by potting two more goals, both unassisted, while defensive partner Sarah Evans took care of things in their own end. The BIG THREE continue their outstanding offensive output with Ryan Bertone getting a goal and an assist, Charlie Coffman getting a goal and Andrew Fontaine getting 2 goals and an assist. Brian Craig broke into the scoring action with a goal and 2 assists, with great help from his hustling wingers Pat Shay and Kevin Friedland. Gerard Tierney and David Greenwood rounded out the scoring with a goal each. With Gerard also picking up an assist. The defensive pair of Jack Nelson and RJ Nuels did a great job of keeping the Hingham offense in check, really limiting their opportunities. Kevin Quinn played another great game in net for the Stars, just missing another shutout game.

Squirt A

The Stars Squirt A team got their typical solid defensive effort this week and for the second game in a row they added some offense in a 7-3 total team victory over Cape Cod Canal. The Stars have had some past problems putting the puck in the net, but this week they got production from 6 different goal scorers, which is very promising for the future.

Ryan Donovan led the attack with a goal and 4 assists, but what was even more impressive than his production was his backchecking and strong positional play. Tyler Martina chipped in with 2 goals and John Collins also had multiple points with a goal and an assist. Jeff Durkin, Conor Mclean and John Meehan were the other goal scorers, while Alex Evans, Pat Cull and Brian Scott each registered assists. Kevin Kelly continues to get the job done between the pipes and has certainly benefited from the great coaching of John Scott, a former standout in net. Pat Cull, Matt Entwistle, Brian Scott and Will Schorle continue to move the puck out of the zone with confidence and continue to get strong defensive support from the forwards. Another sign that this team is growing is that for the second week in a row they took control of the game in the third period by shutting down Cape Cod in what was a close game going into the third period.

PeeWee C1

The Coastal Stars Pee-Wee C1 team rallied behind strong goal tending from John Carrigg and tremendous play making from Mike Caira on Sunday with a 4-1 win over a very competitive Seahawk-1 team. After a lackluster start, the Stars got on the score board at 8:31 of the second period on a tremendous back-hand shot by Joe Fitzsimmons. Assisting on the first goal were center Justin Yeager and winger Mike Caira. The Stars picked up their next goal late in the second period on a hard shot from Gordy Smith who was set up in front of the net and in perfect position to fire a pass from Yeager, who earned an assist along with Fitzsimmons. The Seahawks got on the scoreboard at 12:20 of the third period. Less than one minute later, however, Joe Fitzsimmons fired a strong wrist-shot that beat the Seahawk goalie to put the Stars' up by two goals. Mike Caira assisted on the Stars' third goal. The Stars' final goal was scored by Justin Yeager who fired a quick slap shot between the Seahawk goalie's legs at 7:22 of the third period. Geoff Evans and Mike Caira earned assists on the fourth goal. Also making key plays all day in the offensive zone were Kevin O'Connell, Brian Meehan and Andrew Bell. The Stars defensive unit led by Chris game…Rob has missed the last three games due to a back injury

#30 Sean Connolly, 6'5" 210, Defensive End/Tight End/Place Kicker

Sean recovered a teammate's fumble in the end zone for a touchdown to defeat Norwell and earn the Skippers the SSL Championship…has been successful on 9-of-12 extra point kick conversions…had one and a half sacks, and several tackles in the backfield, in his best game defensively versus Abington…provided numerous crack back blocks from his tight end position to spring Morris and Dooley throughout the season.

#55 Steve Davis, 6'2" 250, Right Guard/Defensive Tackle/Kickoffs-Captain

Another four year starter for the Skippers… Steve routinely boots the Skippers kickoffs inside the twenty yard line… Defensively, had a huge tackle to prevent Cardinal Spellman from reaching striking distance for an attempt to boot a winning field goal… An outstanding run blocker, usually seen making two blocks on a play… Steve's blocking is arguably the main reason the Skippers have run for over 1,500 yards as a unit, and have 19 rushing touchdowns.

#24 Mike Dooley, 5'7" 160, Quarterback-Captain

Mike has thrown five touchdown passes, three pass conversions, and rushed for seven touchdowns….has rushed for over 300 yards, and passed for nearly 700 yards… Mike has a career record of 9-1 as a quarterback… Mike had 48 yards rushing and 110 yards passing versus Nantucket to open the season, and 76 yards rushing and 128 yards passing versus Canton.

#44 Jamie Litchfield, 6'1" 200, Special Teams/Halfback

Jamie has contributed on special teams and as a reserve halfback in his rookie season for the Skippers...Has missed a good portion of season due to a broken hand.

#2 DeWayne Morris, 5'8" 160, Halfback/Kick Returner

DeWayne has 1,062 yards rushing, and nine rushing touchdowns…Had three touchdowns in the dramatic comeback victory over Archies…Carried 30 times for 140 yards to control the clock versus Weston…rushed for 197 yards versus Abington, and broke the game open with a 72 yard scamper to the end zone…Leads the team in scoring with 56 points.

#75 Dan Tarpey, 6' 3" 205, Left Tackle/Special Teams

A two year starter at left tackle, Dan provides the blind side blocking on passing situations, and has been the lead blocker for Morris when the play goes to the left side…Sprung Morris on the 72 yard Abington jaunt, and touchdown runs of 29 and 6 yards versus Canton…Has played every offensive down, and has been a standout on special teams play.

#52 Tony Truglia, 5' 10" 180, Linebacker/Fullback/Special Teams-Captain

Three year standout as a linebacker… Leads the team with 77 tackles…Made the play of the year, a blocked punt versus Archies, which started the comeback, and set the tone for the season… Setup the winning touchdown versus Spellman with a 41-yard pass reception, bringing the ball down to the 1-yard line…Recovered a fumble by Abington to swing the momentum back to the Skippers and to start of the Championship march…Led the defense, with eight tackles, to a Championship clinching victory over Norwell…Also, the leading special teams player in the league.

MIAA Super Bowl Tournament Game, Dec 2nd, 7 PM, Alumni Field, Cohasset.

Cohasset will be hosting the winner of the Tri Valley League, who will be determined on Thanksgiving Day (Front runner at this point is Westwood). Plan to arrive early, for a parking spot, and to cheer on the Skippers from the opening kickoff.

Playoff Football information

When: Tuesday, Dec. 2, 7 p.m.
Where: Cohasset High Alumni Field

Admission price: $9 for all adults, $7 for students (12 and over) and senior citizens, children under 12 free.

MIAA passes are the only passes accepted at the door.

Parking: Due to a limited number of parking spaces, please try to carpool as much as possible.

Please park in the main parking lot in front of the high school. Additional parking will be available along the entrance driveway by the main office and at Milliken Field. Please do not park beyond the no parking signs on Bancroft Extension (road that leads to visitors' side gate)

Handicap parking: available in the parking lot directly across the main entrance to the field. Enter the main lot driveway and identify yourself to the person directing traffic.

Game Entrance: There will be two entrances available. The main entrance will be located on the bus entrance road adjacent to the home bleachers. A second entrance will be located on the visitors' sideline behind the visitors' bleachers and the end of Bancroft Extension.

Restrooms: There will be access to bathroom adjacent to the Superintendent's office.

Concessions: A concession stand run by the Cohasset Wrestling Boosters Club will be set up behind the home bleachers.

particular, who rose to the occasion were sophomore Scott Kitchen and senior keeper Mike Allen.

Inserted into the starting lineup for Beach, Kitchen scored three of the Clippers six postseason goals, including the lone goal in regulation versus Medway in the sectional championship game with under five minutes to play, forcing the game into overtime and ultimately making it possible for the Clippers to win by shootout.

The frequently overshadowed Allen was the real hero of the Medway game, though. He made two positively scintillating saves in regulation to send that game to OT and then allowed only one of four shooters to beat him on penalty kicks to backstop the historic win.

Speaking of boys soccer, congratulations to former Marinerland stars Chris Corcorran, of Marshfield, and Luke Vercollone, of Silver Lake and Pembroke. Both players were named Big East First Team All-Stars last week.

Corcoran, a junior at St. John's, and Vercollone, a senior at Seton Hall, will lead their teams into the NCAA tourney this week.

Corcoran, who helped direct the Marshfield High team to an Eastern Mass championship in 2000, moved between forward and defense for the Red Storm this year, and finished with seven assists, fifth best in the Big East.

Vercollone, a team captain, led a 9-5-4 Pirate squad with 21 points (five goals, 11 assists). His 11 assists led the BIG EAST and he was tied for sixth in points. He recorded three or more points in a game four times this season. Vercollone's assist total is also tied for third most on the single-season list at SHU.

Both players appear destined to be MLS draft picks.

The Celtics new starting power forward sure bares a remarkable likeness to that kid who was drafted out of the University of Hartford in 1993, and preceded to become an NBA All-Star four years in a row, 1995 through 1998…I think his name was Vin Baker.

What's more shocking: the extent to which Baker has turned around his game in a matter of months or the sudden realization of just how much alcohol can screw up one's life?

Nine games in, Baker is already looking like a lock for the NBA's Comeback Player of the Year.

But never mind that. Do they have a Comeback Athlete of the Decade?

It's so sad to think he basically threw away four years of his career to alcohol addiction.

Of course, Baker's resurrection does prompt me to re-visit the Antoine Walker trade.

I was in favor of that trade initially even with the impression the Celtics were giving up more talent that they were receiving. Danny Ainge had no intention of re-signing 'toine for the kind of money a player of his stature stands to make. So, rather than letting him walk for nothing at the end of this season, the new GM went out and made the best deal available to him, landing some solid prospects (Jiri Welsch certainly looks like he's going to be a player, doesn't he).

But I can't help asking: with Baker becoming a viable number two scoring option in the low post, might Walker have finally settled into the support role to which he was best suited; a 14-point, nine rebound, five assist per game guy?

Walker may have been "The Guy" too long in Boston to change his ways, as some have surmised, and might actually have gotten in the way of Baker's re-emergence had he remained. I guess we'll never know for certain.

Regardless, Walker is already settling into just this type of "support role" with the Mavericks, which is hardly surprising given their glut of offensive talent. I would not be the least bit surprised to see him be recognized at season's end as the guy who finally pushed the Mavs over the top.

It's still WAY too early to get excited about the Bruins.

A hot start from a young team in the NHL means almost nothing in the long run. We've learned this the hard way too many times.

The season is such a grind that many veteran players have learned to pace themselves. Conversely, young players such as the ones the Bruins are loaded with expend a lot of energy in the early going while trying to open eyes. Often, they return to earth with a resounding thud well before the stretch run.

Don't talk to me about the Bruins and postseason scenarios until the end of February.

That said, I sure do like the long term prospects for Andrew Raycroft, Nick Boynton, Jeff Jillson, Sergei Zinovjev and, in particular, Patrice Bergeron.

I guess I'll sound like a complete nattering naybob of negativity if I fail to jump both feet onto the Patriots bandwagon, but I just can't do it.

Call me what you will, I just don't see a team with this little a semblance of a run game going far in the playoffs.

While I love the defense, coaching staff and personnel decisions and truly believe that Tom Brady deserves to be mentioned among the three or four truly elite quarterbacks in the game today, I just don't see this team getting any further than the second round of the playoffs.

Tennessee and Kansas City are simply superior teams.

Lastly, let me tackle the question no commentator on sports in these parts can get away with sidestepping: Do I think Grady Little deserved to be fired.

In short, "yes, I do."

However, that opinion has less to do with the indefensible eighth inning non-decision than the belief that there's no way he could have worked with the present braintrust.

Theo Epstein and Mike James are new school baseball people and Grady is old school. Management is providing players based on tangible evidence Grady doesn't even recognize (does he even know what OPS stands for?). There's simply no way this union was going to work.

Triple threat

Nonetheless, it was a bittersweet moment for Cohasset's best all-around player.

"My first thought was that this might be the last time I play soccer," Buckley said. "It's probably the last time I'll walk out to the middle of the field as a captain."

That match finished what had been a down and up year for the Skippers. The team started 3-6-1, then ran off seven victories in eight games to get into the state tournament.

The captains recognized pretty early that something was wrong, and it was their leadership on the field, both during games and in practice, that steered the ship back on course.

"We knew something bad was happening," Buckley said. "We said, 'We have to fix this, or else this season isn't going to turn out the way we wanted.'"

A big blow to the team early in the season was the loss of Cohasset's third co-captain, Brenna O'Donnell, to an ACL injury in the third game of the year. With the injury, the Skippers lost a player that, like Buckley and Graham, had been a steady presence on the varsity squad since they were sophomores.

FILE PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

Holly Graham was a two-time South Shore League all-star sweeper for the Lady Skippers.

"We lost one of our best players," Buckley said of the injury. "She gave the team a sense of security for our defense."

Watching the rest of the season from the sidelines, O'Donnell said that the team's sub-par start could be attributed to players making adjustments not only in terms of position, but also in teamwork.

"People had to work on trusting others that they had never played with before," she said.

The three girls have all been part of a remarkable turnaround in the Cohasset girls soccer program. Throughout the late 1990's and into this decade, the program had trouble fielding a full squad at the varsity and JV levels.

Now, as O'Donnell points out, coaches have to make cuts in the pre-season. This year, over 40 girls combined made up the varsity and JV rosters. The varsity team played most of the regular season with just juniors and seniors on the roster, before calling up several underclassmen for the tournament.

The turnaround can be attributed to younger girls playing more soccer, in part because of the recent success they are seeing with the high school team.

"Instead of playing just during the season, a lot more kids are taking the initiative to play year-round," O'Donnell said.

Buckley, Graham, and O'Donnell are all still in the process of deciding where to go to college. All three expressed an interest in playing intra-mural soccer, and Buckley said she may try out for varsity depending on where she goes to school.

SPORTS NOTES

Late basketball registration for boys and girls grades 1 to 7

You may register late for the Cohasset Basketball Boosters/Recreation Dept. Grades 1 to 7 basketball program for boys and girls, at the recreation office during the next week, prior to Dec. 1.

The fee is $75 per player, registration forms must be completed and signed by a parent.

Evaluations for grades 4 to 7 will be held on Dec. 6, and schedules are available at registration.

There will be no grades 1 to 3 evaluations this year and all grades are scheduled to begin play on Dec. 13. Team coaches will call prior to then.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse Looking for Coaches

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse is looking for volunteer assistant coaches at all levels for its spring season, with a particular emphasis on finding coaches for its girls teams.

Cohasset currently expects to field at least 10 teams this spring, although the growth in the number of participants could push that number even higher, provided there is adequate coaching available to protect and develop the youngsters involved.

In all, Cohasset will field boys teams at the 14 & Under (7th and 8th grade), 12 & Under (5th & 6th grade) and 10 & Under (3rd and 4th grade) levels, and girls teams at the 14-U and 12-U levels, plus a weekly clinic for girls players in grades 3 and 4.

The shortage of coaches is particularly acute for girls, where the current coaching staffs are so limited that roster sizes may be kept particularly small unless more coaches volunteer.

In the younger boys' age groups, more coaching volunteers could enable the program to add additional teams, keeping roster sizes smaller and more manageable, resulting in a better experience for all kids involved.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse currently has head coaches at all age level , but with the probability of more than 300 children spread throughout the program this year, increasing the size of coaching staffs is essential for player development.

Through its nine-year history, the foundation of the Cohasset Youth Lacrosse coaching staff has been volunteers who do not have children on the teams involved. In seeking additional coaches, the program is hoping to get both community volunteers and parents whose children will play. Experience playing or coaching the game is desired, but not necessary; coaches must be able to throw and catch with a lacrosse stick in order to teach others and facilitate drills. Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will pay registration costs to coaching clinics for those individuals interested in participating.

At all but the youngest age levels, Cohasset Youth Lacrosse holds two practices each week, and has games on Sunday afternoon. The youngest boys have one weekly practice, while the girls clinic program will be one weekly 90-minute session. Assistant coaches are not expected to attend every event, although they should be able to appear often enough to be perceived by the players as a team leader.

In addition to coaches, Cohasset Youth Lacrosse is interested in developing referees who can work its games. Interested individuals will be required to take some officiating instruction classes during the winter, and may then be eligible to work games either with a partner or solo in the spring.

For more information or to express your interest in coaching or officiating, call Chuck Jaffe, coordinator of youth lacrosse, at 781-383-9858.

IT'S HAPPENING

Writers' group meets at Buttonwood Books

The Buttonwood Writer's Group, established to encourage, motivate and support adults interested in creative writing, continues to meet on the second and fourth Mondays of each month at 7:30pm at the Cohasset store. New members, beginners and published writers, are always welcome to join the group.

HSO Welcomes Yule!

Join the Hingham Symphony Orchestra and conductor Jin Kim for two festive concerts to usher in the Yule tide season. On Saturday, Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. the HSO will perform in the historic Old Ship Meeting House in Hingham Square. The Meeting House, built in 1681, provides a unique historic backdrop for the full orchestra. Seating is limited to 250 in the box pews and balcony.

On Sunday, Dec. 7 at 4 p.m., the HSO performs in St. Anthony's Church, South Main Street, Cohasset. With its excellent acoustics and open seating, St. Anthony's naturally amplifies the sound of the orchestra, filling the space with music. Also, at this concert HSO Fanfare members will host a reception for all during intermission.

At both concerts, the HSO will perform Stravinsky's Pulcinella Suite from the ballet of the same name, and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8. Audience members will also sing several carols played by the orchestra and conducted by Jin Kim. An annual event, the Welcome Yule concert is known to spark the holiday spirit with its joyous music and enthusiastic audiences. The encore, Anderson's Sleigh Ride, is beloved by all.

Tickets at $25 adult, $20 senior, and $10 youth through age 18, are available at Hingham and Weymouth Main Libraries, Nobles, Hingham Square, Buttonwood Books, Cohasset and Front Street Book Shop, Scituate, or call 781-740-5694 to order by phone.

Christmas concert helps kids with cancer

First Parish has been holding Christmas concerts and donating the proceeds for the past 24 years. Thanks to generous support, over $45,000 has gone to worthy local, national, and international organizations. This year's Concert is dedicated to former minister Ed Atkinson who conceived of the idea in 1978.

This year's Christmas Concert on Dec. 14 at 4 p.m. features Margo Euler and the Unicorn Singers performing John Rutter's "Magnificat.". The seven movements set the text as found in the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, with the addition of a tranquil setting of the 15th-century "Of a rose, a Lovely Rose." The remainder of the hour-long 25th anniversary Christmas event will feature favorite carol settings for the audience to sing with the choir.

A reception will follow celebrating the event's 25ht year. Concert Patron donations of $50 or more may be sent to: First Parish in Cohasset, 23 No. Main Street, Cohasset, MA 02025 (two tickets included and published acknowledgement); advanced tickets at $10 go on sale Nov. 24 (781 383-1100); tickets are $12 at the door.

The beneficiary of the Christmas Concert this year is the "Artist in Residence" program at Mass. General Hospital for Children with Cancer. The current artist is Joan Drescher of Hingham. Twice a week she moves her "Imagination Kart" through the bustling halls of the hospital. The Kart is covered with little spinning kites, moons, stars and streamers. It is filled with art supplies to inspire hospitalized children to explore their imaginations and cope with the stress of illness and loss. Her dream is that the simple images of hope and beauty created by the children will open hearts and make the world a better place.

Winterfest is coming

December 2003 marks the 12th year for the Hingham Winterfest Folk Art and Craft Show. The show, which benefits the Hingham Historical Society, is being held Dec. 6 and 7, at the Hingham Middle School, 1103 Main St. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $6 per person for the entire weekend and children under 12 years of age are free. Bring a non-perishable food item for the Hingham Food Pantry and receive $1 off the regular admission price. In addition to parking at the school, a free shuttle bus will be available all day from the rear of the Resurrection Church parking lot on Main Street to the Hingham Middle School.

Celtic Christmas at Coffeehouse

The Coffeehouse off the Square presents a Celtic Christmas with celebrated Irish harpist/singer Aine Minogue on Sunday, Dec. 14, at 4 p.m. Her music will range from Celtic Christmas and Solstice numbers to familiar carols.

Minogue's renowned harp playing, beautiful, nearly ethereal voice, and oft-times enchanting guests have made these sell-out events the high point of three recent seasons. From her time as harpist in residence at Ireland's Bunratty Castle to her playing and teaching here, where she introduced many to the harp at Hingham's Aisling Gallery, Minogue only gets better. Though rooted in the tradition of the Shanachie — a traveling harpist/storyteller/singer — she reveals many influences as her music stretches from the past to the present and beyond.

Celebrate the season with Minogue's lilting voice and soaring harp. Come early as the coffeehouse welcomes her back. Failte'!

A framed Irish landscape print donated by John and Maureen Connolly of the Aisling Gallery will be raffled during the intermission. The Coffeehouse is at the Old Ship Parish House at 107 Main St., Hingham Square, just up from the Loring Hall Theatre. ItAdmission is $10 at the door. A variety of coffees, teas, and desserts are available for 50 cents. Net proceeds benefit the Unitarian-Universalist Service Committee. There will be no open microphone preceding this concert. For further information, call Jim Watson 781-749-1767.

LISTEN To Life

by John Klefeker, BC-HIS Board Certified-Hearing Instrument Specialist, MA Lic. #127

GETTING IT FROM BOTH SIDES

If you have roughly the same degree of hearing loss in both ears, it would behoove you to get two hearing instruments. The brain is normally accustomed to binaural hearing - receiving hearing information from both ears. This makes it possible to better localize sounds, which is important for safety reasons. For instance, you'd want to be able to immediately recognize from which direction a police car siren was coming. You also need hearing from both ears to hear well in noisy situations. Two hearing instruments provide for better listening in competing noise, improved sound localization for identifying conversation partners, and a more natural sound. And if you want to enjoy stereo sound, you'll need to hear well with both ears.

At FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER, we recognize that there are varied needs and uses for different hearing instruments. We carry different makes because we want you to end up with the right kind of hearing aid that will enable you to hear to your best ability. And whether it takes one or two hearing instruments to help you hear clearly, you can count on us for experienced, knowledgeable recommendations; evaluations; fittings; follow-up support; and repairs. Fresh batteries are also available here at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth, and they are free for the life of any hearing instrument purchased. PH: 781-337-1144.

P.S. Hearing sound with two hearing instruments is often more comfortable because the volume controls are usually reduced when using two instruments.

'Tis the Season for the Village Fair on the Common

'Tis the season for Cohasset's annual Village Fair on the Common, Saturday, Dec. 6 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Hosted by four of the town's churches and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (ASP), this fair is a wonderful way to begin celebrating the season.

The Jumble Sale at the Unitarian Church's newly renovated Parish House includes pre-owned treasures of all kinds for adults and children.

Santa waves to passersby on Cohasset Common during last year's snowy Village Fair.

Hundreds of volunteers work together each year to create a festive holiday marketplace on and around Cohasset Common. Visitors will be sure to get a great start on their holiday decorating and shopping, while supporting local charities at the same time.

The Country Store at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church is the place to find the perfect hostess gift and wonderful Herbes de Provence. Their Bake Shop is famous for its homemade toffee, fudge, cakes and pies. The church has also been busy collecting hundreds of used books, CDs, tapes and videos for their popular Book Sale.

Volunteers from The Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church will transform Town Hall into a cozy Athenian Café featuring scrumptious Greek pastries and delicacies. The Greek Church will also be selling beautiful holiday greens at Town Hall, including fresh balsam wreaths and decorative boughs perfect for your front door.

Inside the doors of the Second Congregational Church (next to town hall) you'll find a holiday boutique filled with beautiful hand-crafted holiday gifts and decorations. While you shop, children can visit the Kids' Craft Corner where they can make an ornament of their own. Stop and sample their delicious New England clam chowder, and don't miss their popular Surf 'n Turf raffle where fresh lobsters and filet mignon are raffled off hourly.

The Jumble Sale at the Unitarian Church's newly renovated Parish House includes pre-owned treasures of all kinds for adults and children. The church will also offer lovely Table-top Christmas Trees, 12" to 24" high, in traditional Christmas designs and many clever themes. Stop by their Swedish Bake Shop for a cup of coffee or hot chocolate and a delicious cinnamon bun.

Santa Claus will be on the Common (or the Second Congregational Church Nursery, if it rains) from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Children can visit with Santa and have a picture taken by an ASP volunteer. And every child should be sure to visit the Secret Room at St. Stephen's Church where ASP volunteer elves help little ones select and wrap the perfect surprise for Mom and Dad, a sister or brother, even the family pet! All gifts are priced for a child's wallet, just $1 to $4. All proceeds support ASP's home repair program.

Cohasset's own Rusty Skippers will be performing their Annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church at noon the day of the fair. The Skippers have been preparing a variety of holiday selections sure to appeal to all ages. The concert is free, and a freewill offering will be taken for the Cohasset Food Pantry.

Rusty Skippers Holiday Concert The Rusty Skippers, Cohasset's Adult concert band, will be performing their annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church at 12 noon on Saturday, Dec. 6, during the Village Fair on the Common. The Skippers have been busy preparing a variety of new holiday selections including a Nutcracker medley, Sleigh Ride (made famous by the Boston Pops), Jingle Bell Rock and many other familiar tunes and carols. The concert is free and all ages are welcome. A free will offering for Cohasset's Food Pantry will be taken.

The Rusty Skippers were formed in 1995 as part of the Cohasset HarborFest at the enthusiastic suggestion of the late Rev. Ed. Atkinson of First Parish. The Skippers play under the direction of Steve Biagini, Director of Instrumental Music at Deer Hill School. The band performs locally, and over the years has played for the Cohasset Memorial Day Parade, South Shore Festival for the Arts, Community Center Christmas Tree-Lighting, American Cancer Society Relay for Life and at various nursing homes. The band will be playing some of its selections at the lighting of the town tree on Nov. 28.

'What I am most thankful for…'

Elementary students share their thoughts

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

For many elementary-level students, anticipation of the Thanksgiving holiday starts with construction paper turkeys and cutout Pilgrims wearing giant gold buckles. Sometimes, faint "gobbles" can be heard throughout the halls. Bulletin boards are covered with the colors of fall; and the long weekend sets the perfect stage for excitement.

But ask students what they are thankful for and their tone is sure to change from the excited holiday pitch, to something more serious, as they very thoughtfully consider what in the whole world they are most grateful for.

"I'm thankful that I have a television in my room," said fourth grader Carly Schwantner with a giggle.

Fifth-grader Jake Kissick said he is thankful "I'm living in this town."

Fifth grader Colby Smalzel said she is thankful for "All my close friends and family — and my pets."

Many other students are also thankful for their pets.

Fifth grader Khiana Clemons said she is thankful "For my cat Monty." Her classmate, Samantha Bobo said "I am thankful my dog can walk again."

Alec Heurd said he is thankful for his dog, Sam because "He's really fun to play with."

Many students are grateful for the special people in their lives.

"I am thankful for my best friend," said fifth-grader Emily Condos.

Kindergarten student Kevin Reynolds said he is thankful for "My friend Cal," and classmate Kyle Burke said she is thankful for her family.

Fifth-graders Danny Aherne and Scott Wilson, and fourth-grader Kyra Carnes said they too are thankful for their families, as is fourth-grader Chase Baldwin who said "I am thankful for my family — and apple pie."

But to see the friends and family so many students are thankful for requires traveling some distance. While many will stay local to visit with family, some will be going out of state to spend time with relatives they don't see very often.

"I am going to New York City to my grandma and grandpa's house," said kindergarten student Jake Bennett.

Second-grader Angel Hunter said she is going to Jamaica to visit her grandmother. She said she is planning on helping her grandmother cook the turkey and maybe the mashed potatoes too.

Fifth-grader Carly Martin said she will be going to her aunt and uncle's house in Connecticut for the holiday.

But some students will spend the holiday at their own house, which can be more exciting than taking a trip.

"I'm having Thanksgiving at my new house in Cohasset," said kindergarten student Davis Cronin, who recently moved from Kingston.

While many students look forward to the eating portion of Thanksgiving day, some are great helpers in the kitchen.

"I help my mom make the turkey," said kindergartener Kerry Dunn, adding she might help with the mashed potatoes as well.

Second-grader Molly Fitzgerald said she is making chocolate strawberries for Thanksgiving Day for her family, and fourth-grader Emily Dormitzer said she's going to be making pies. Emily said she will probably bring an apple pie, pecan pie, and pumpkin pie when she goes to her aunt's house on the big day.

But no matter what the destination and no matter what the menu holds, the true meaning of Thanksgiving may be summed up best by fourth-grader Michaela Hastings who said, "I am thankful for the things I have."

'Beech' glass candy is confection perfection at annual church fair

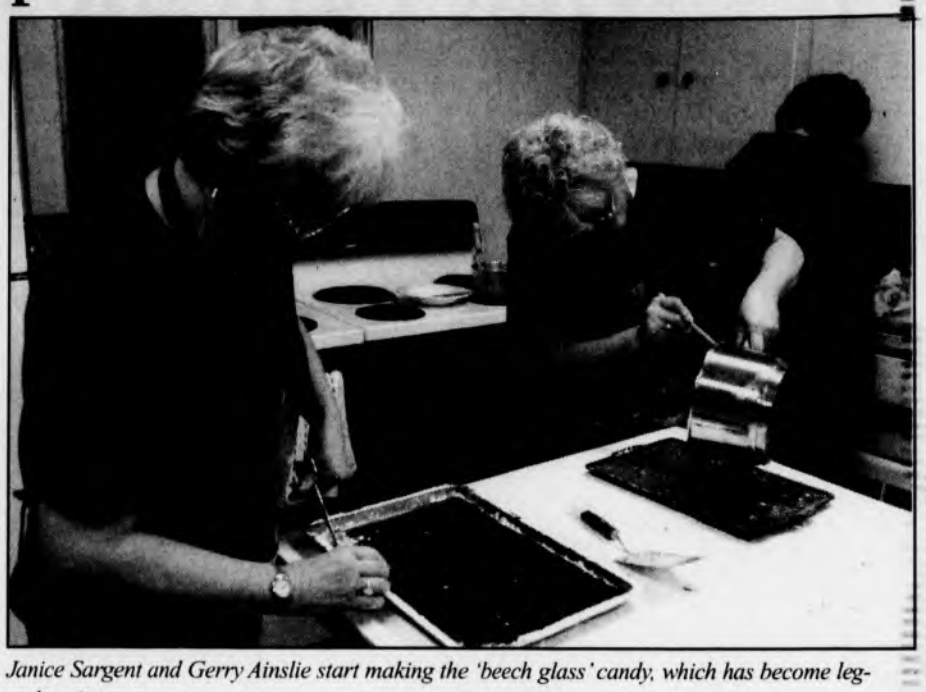
Marion Douglas and Marge Wilder form part of the candy-making assembly line at the Beechwood Congregational Church.



Janice Sargent and Gerry Ainslie start making the 'beech glass' candy, which has become legendary in town.

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

It has been said the kitchen is the heart of the home, and that statement rings especially true for the kitchen at the Beechwood Congregational Church. For the past 25 years, apron-clad volunteers have been gathering around the large rectangular table to make beach glass candy, a treat which has become a Christmastime tradition.

Every year the church holds its annual Christmas Fair, complete with crafts, games for children, and plenty to eat. This year, the fair will be held Saturday Dec. 6, and if past years are any indication, the candy resembling treasures from the sea is sure to be the most anticipated aspect of the day's events.

"With so many things changing in this world, this hasn't," said Gerry Ainslie, who heads up the candy making effort at the church. She said while the recipe for the candy has been kept the same over the years, no one is really sure where the original recipe came from.

For two weeks prior to the festival, volunteers gather at the church to make batch after batch of the colorful confections. On the third week, the women pack the candy into sterilized baby food jars, donated by members of the church, and top them off with some decorative Christmas fabric and a bow. Jars will be sold at the fair for $3.75 a piece.

But making the candy is not an easy process. First, a mixture of sugar and syrup is heated, "plus our secret ingredient," said Ainslie's sister Marion Douglas, who is also Cohasset Town Clerk. Once the mixture reaches exactly 310 degrees, it is taken off the stove to reduce the temperature to a slightly less than boiling point, then the flavor and color can be added. Ainslie said only natural oils are used to flavor the candy, which include lemon, lime, licorice, root beer and spearmint to name a few. After mixing, the candy is poured from the pan onto a cookie sheet covered in about a centimeter of packed and leveled confectioner's sugar, which keeps the mixture from sticking.

"Instead of a bed of lettuce, it's a bed of sugar," said volunteer Janice Sargent.

As the candy cools, it begins to harden, and little bubbles appear in the mixture. The women are careful to pop them with their scissors to ensure the candy will have a smooth, even texture. It is essential that once the candy is cool enough to be handled that it get cut into small strips which are then passed to the other women who cut them into bite-sized pieces of candy. Because the candy becomes hard as it cools, speed is required. Although it would be quicker to let the entire pan of candy harden and then be cracked into smaller pieces, by taking the time to cut pieces with scissors, it prevents sharp edges.

"With so many things changing in this world, this hasn't."
— Gerry Ainslie

"You have to work fast because once it sets — boy!" said Ainslie.

But with the amount of volunteers that come together to help with the candy, the process goes smoothly, especially since they've had so many years working together as a group. Volunteers during the second night of candy-making included Cohasset residents Peggy Herman, Mary Volpe, Cora Ainslie, Janice Sargent, Peggy Wheelwright, Norwell resident Marge Wilder, and Scituate resident Carol Straight.

Once the candy is cut, it falls into piles of confectioner's sugar, which coat not only the candy, but the women as they work. Aprons and hands get covered in the sweet powder, and sometimes a little spot will end up on the face when sneaking a piece of candy or two.

But at the heart of all the hard work, the women say the candy is really fun to make, and they have the added benefit of being able to spend time with each other while working for a good cause.

"It's like playing in the sandbox," said Wilder.

"That's why I like it so much," added Wheelwright.

"As my father would say, we're all kids, some of us have just been around a little longer," joked Ainslie.

While Ainslie said many people come to the fair just for the candy, the church offers much more than that. There will be many baked goods, a "fancy work" crafts table, wreaths, and a game table for the children.

"This place will be hopping come Saturday morning," Ainslie said.

In addition, raffle tickets will be sold for a beautiful hand made patchwork quilt, sewn together by roughly 12 volunteers, some of which aren't even members of the church and come to "craft night" to donate their sewing talents to help the cause.

"It an ecumenical quilt," joked Ainslie.

Raffle tickets will be sold for $1 a piece or six for $5 at the Christmas Fair and other church events throughout the year, and the quilt will be raffled off sometime before next Christmas.

The quilt is backed by thick muslin and some yarn accents were added using wool processed from sheep Ainslie used to own. While the quilt is made for a twin sized bed, Ainslie said it was made slightly larger than a regular twin so it will "fall nicely" over the sides of a bed. Volunteers have also made a pillow sham and crib blanket and pillow as well.

The Beechwood Congregational Church Christmas Fair will be held at the church located off Beechwood Street, on Saturday Dec. 6, from 9:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m.. The Village Fair on the Common, hosted by four other town churches and the Appalachia Service Project will be held the same day from 10 a.m.-3 p.m..

Beechwood Church holds Christmas fair

The Beechwood Congregational Church, 51 Church St., will hold its annual Christmas Fair Saturday, Dec. 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. In the morning enjoy a cup of fresh coffee and hot fried bread dough or at lunch time your choice of chowder (corn or clam), hot dogs and homemade dessert.

As you enter the church you can smell the aroma of fresh evergreen wreaths and homebaked goods that will be on display and for sale. Take your time and browse at one of the many tables — food, candy, white elephant, fancy work and ornaments. A special table is set up for the children with prizes and games. Back by popular demand is the famous beach glass candy. Once again, this hard candy, cut by hand offers many flavors (such as peppermint, spearmint, butter rum, anise, lemon-lime — to name a few) is sure to please just about everyone. Arrive early while the supply lasts.

Also on display will be two patchwork quilts, one twin quilt with pillow sham and one child's. Tickets available at the fair. Mark your calendar for Saturday, Dec. 6. Come shop and share your personality.

OBITUARIES

Robert J. Henn II

1968 CHS graduate

Robert J. Henn II, 53, of 124 Old Colonial Drive, formerly of New Ipswich, N.H., died Thursday, Nov. 20 at the Henry Heywood Hospital, Gardner, Mass. after a brief illness.

Mr. Henn was born in Weymouth, July 14, 1950 a son of Pauline (Blakeman) Henn and the late Robert J. Henn Sr. and grew up in Cohasset. He also resided several years in New Ipswich, N.H. before moving to Gardner nine years ago.

In the Scripture lessons for the first Sunday of Advent, the Prophet Zechariah offers a dramatic vision of the coming of the Lord to Jerusalem and the beginning of a new age. The lesson from Paul's First Letter to the Thessalonians expresses gratitude to God and tells the Christians in Thessalonica of his prayers for them. In the Gospel of Luke, Jesus tells his disciples of the awe-inspiring crisis to come, which they may also recognize as the beginning of the time of their redemption.

Three Generations of Rug Making
Since the early 1900s the Jafri family has been making and selling rugs around the world. Just outside of Lahore Pakistan is the original Dover workshop where many of our rugs are still made today, the same way they were made back then- by hand.

Rugs in School
A rug can teach you a lot about art, history, culture, and tradition. We can learn about the tradition of rug making. Every year, school children visit our store and design their own rugs.

Governor John Bradford shares his concerns about the colony disbanding with visitors at Plimoth Plantation.

Celebrate thanksgiving with pilgrims

BEST BET

For a truly authentic Thanksgiving there's no better place to be than Plimoth Plantation which celebrates 17th century Pilgrim life throughout the year.

As another season at the plantation comes to an end, visitors can enjoy a variety of Thanksgiving events including the 1627 Dine with the Pilgrims, a Victorian Thanksgiving Dinner and a Thanksgiving Day Buffet. On day after Thanksgiving plantation diners can lose the forks and knives and Eat like a Pilgrim or enjoy Thanksgiving Courtyard Café dining featuring stuffed turkey sandwiches, New England clam chowder, home baked pies, and wood pressed apple cider. Reservations are required for most events and some are sold out. For reservations call (508) 746-1622 ext. 8366.

Plimoth Plantation is located on Plimoth Plantation Highway, exit 4 off Route 3. The plantation closes for the season Sunday, Nov. 30.

"The hardest part (of adapting to Plimoth) was that I came from a place where no one else had so I did not know anyone and all my neighbors are separated from the Church of England and I am not" says Barbara Standish, addressing visitors to Plimoth Plantation.

Rebecca Callard (Celia), Rebecca Hall (Rosalind), Joseph Millson (Orlando) and Glenn Carter (Oliver/Amiens) in the Royal Shakespeare

"As You Like It" is Shakespeare done right

All the world may indeed be a stage, but at this time of year the stages of most theaters are inhabited by one version or another of the story of Ebenezer Scrooge. If like you like Shakespeare, however, and you want a real treat this holiday season, then you won't want to miss the delightful "As You Like It" now at the Wilbur Theatre.

Directed by the legendary Sir Peter Hall, this Theatre Royal Bath production is done with minimal staging for a simple yet powerful interpretation of Shakespeare's tale of love, friendship and human frailty. The story of Rosalind and her cousin, Celia, who have run away to the idyllic Forest of Arden is a romantic comedy about just what can be overcome by blind love. When Rosalind — dressed as a boy so as not to attract attention while she is on her adventure — encounters the infatuated Orlando she offers to cure him of his lovesickness by letting him court her as if she were his sweetheart. Little does he know, of course, that his new male friend is actually also the female object of his affection. As Rosalind, the director's own daughter, Rebecca Hall, is nothing short of superb. Disguised as a boy, she tests Orlando's love for her in what many consider to be perhaps Shakespeare's most captivating female character.

She is in good company, too, surrounded by an excellent cast including Rebecca Callard, as the strong-willed Celia, and Joseph Millson whose Orlando is confused, captivated and always sweetly charming in his earnest pursuit of true love.

"As You Like It" will be at the Wilbur Theatre, 246 Tremont Street, Boston, through Dec. 21. For tickets, call 617/931-2787 or visit www.ticketmaster.com

Cedarmere sues for sewer access

Says town has enough capacity

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The denial was also based on the fact the project is located outside the Central Sewer District.

Despite a lawsuit, the Sewer Commission is not going to back down on its decision to deny Cedarmere access to the town's sewer, and rejected a second application to tie the project in at its meeting Monday.

Members of the Cedarmere team, who are proposing a luxury condominium complex on the former Hayes Estate, are suing the Commission for denying the project access to the town's sewer system.

The Commission has also voted to adopt a temporary change in its rules for granting sewer access to prevent this type of situation from occurring in the future.

The Cedarmere team filed the lawsuit against the Sewer Commission and Town of Cohasset on Nov. 25 claiming the development has a right to a sewer hookup. The lawsuit states the decision to deny was "based upon an error of law, unsupported by substantial evidence, unwarranted by the facts on the record..."

The Cedarmere team has been working since the summer to gain approval for its 105-unit development, which has been granted preliminary approval by the Planning Board. The project is being proposed under the town's new Senior Overlay District Bylaw, which requires a special permit from the Planning Board. It is the first project in town to file under the new bylaw.

The Cedarmere team believes the Commission has violated state law, by denying its application. The lawsuit states under Chapter 83, and cites the case law to support it, the Commission is required to grant Cedarmere a permit to connect its land, based on three conditions. First, it abuts a public or private way in which a common sewer has been laid; second, a proper application for the connection has been submitted with the board; and third, the developers believe the development would not pose an immediate

Only two arrests in November

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police Chief Robert Jackson says the low number of arrests in November in not due to reduced manpower. Two veteran officers are still on paid administrative leave and another is still out sick.

But several officers, who asked not to be identified, say arrests are down at the police department because officers are afraid of being second-guessed and if someone complains, they think they'll be the subjects of an investigation or forced out of their jobs.

"All shifts are being filled," Jackson said. "Frankly, I've never viewed the number of arrests as a reflection of the job the police department is doing."

On Nov. 8, a 28-year-old Roxbury man was arrested by Boston police at the request of Cohasset for violating a restraining order here; and on Nov. 16, a 39-year-old Connecticut man was taken in protective custody by Cohasset police.

Jackson said November was unusually quiet with total calls down at the civilian dispatch center that handles the phones for both the police and fire departments.

Besides the protective custody, which is a civil matter, the last arrest in Cohasset occurred seven weeks ago on Oct. 18 when Sgt. William Quigley arrested a 25-year-old man for possession of marijuana, according to the police log.

To put last month in perspective, there were seven arrests in October; 14 in September; 11 in August; and 29 in July. Last November there were 16 arrests; 14 in November 2001; 10 in

Horsefield helps volunteers keep Senior Center running

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Imagine relying on the help of dedicated volunteers to run any of the departments based at Town Hall. Without employees to answer the phones and provide general assistance to the public, residents could not always be assured they would be helped or their questions would be answered.

However, at Cohasset Elder Affairs, which is just across the Common at 3 N. Main St., volunteer efforts are a daily occurrence and are the main reason the office is able to provide a plethora of services to seniors in the community.

From answering phones to driving vans around town, volunteers make a huge impact on the lives of Cohasset seniors, and it all gets organized by Volunteer Coordinator Martha Horsefield who has been working with the CEA since April. While her position is part-time, "The day is very full and you have to be very flexible," she said.

Horsefield oversees roughly 100 volunteers, many of which have been donating their services for years. She said working with them and watching how selflessly they donate their time is one of the most rewarding aspects of her job.

"They're giving up their time, it's a real service," she said, adding volunteers range from Girl Scout troops, to mothers who help out while their children are at school, to retired residents who are looking to lend a helping hand. She said she is constantly amazed with the dedication of the volunteers, noting the services they provide are invaluable.

While Horsefield is very appreciative of the help volunteers provide, Kathy Bryanton, director for the CEA is very grateful for the services Horsefield provides.

"She's doing a full-time job in a part-time position," said Bryanton, adding it is no easy task to coordinate the volunteers because the town has such an outpouring of support. Bryanton also said many communities don't have volunteer coordinators, which she said is a shame because the position is so important, especially in small communities like Cohasset. Currently, elders make up 25 percent of Cohasset's population and a good portion of the in-town services they use through the CEA are dependent on volunteer support

Conservation Commission, Dec. 11 , 7:30 p.m.

Paul Pratt Library Trustees, Dec. 10, 7 p.m., at the library.

Recycling Committee, Dec., 6, 10 a.m., DPW garage

Selectmen, Dec. 9, 7:30 p.m.

School Committee, Dec. 4, 7 p.m., high school library.

All meetings are at Town Hall unless indicated otherwise.

Strong vs. weak chief

An article in last week's Cohasset Mariner warrants some clarification. Town Manager Mark Haddad pointed out whether a town has a "strong" or "weak" police chief has nothing to do with Civil Service, and falls under a different chapter of state law.

A "weak" chief runs the day-to-day operations of the department but does not promote, hire or fire police officers. In Cohasset, the police chief reports to Haddad, who is the hiring authority.

Opening on the Rec. Commission

Police Officer Rick Grassie has resigned from the Recreation Commission. Recreation Director Jack Worley accepted Grassie's resignation with regret, thanking him for his "efforts, time, interest and concern for residents and the Recreation Department."

"It has been as both a Recreation Commissioner and police officer that you have been able to have an impact upon the quality of life of our residents," Worley stated in a Nov. 22 letter. "Via the Cohasset Police Association and police department, you have supported our goals and objectives for many years.

"More recently, as a Recreation Commissioner, you provide a bridge between our organizations and combined efforts, affording our residents many new opportunities.

"Speaking for the entire Recreation Commission, residents and especially our youngsters, I wish to thank you for all you have given of yourself," Worley said.

Earnest money for Cook Estate

The town has delivered $200,000 as a deposit on the purchase of the Cook Estate, approved at the Nov. 17 Special Town Meeting. The money will be held in an interest bearing escrow account and will be refunded in full to the town regardless of whether the project goes ahead, Town Manager Mark Haddad said.

The 22-acres, combined with 8.7 acres that the town owns, will provide up to 87 units of senior housing if a developer can be found.

The town has to close on the Cook Estate by July 31, 2004.

Cook Estate 'percs'

John Cavanaro Consulting has completed the first phase of an analysis for the Cook Estate to determine the feasibility of constructing 87 units of Senior Housing using a flow rate of 150 gallons/day/unit or a total of 13,050 gallons per day.

Cavanaro Consulting said flows in excess of 10,000 gpd require a groundwater discharge permit from the sate Department of Environmental Protection. But using the DEP threshold percolation rate of 20 minutes per inch, Cavanaro has located soils outside the watershed protection district for a suitable leaching area.

Now that an on-site system is feasible, Cavanaro recommended the town meet with the DEP to determine a realistic timetable for securing a ground-water discharge permit.

Cook RFP advertised

Starting Wednesday, Dec. 3 the Cook Estate project RFP will be advertised in the Central Register which will include it in publications such as Banker and Tradesman and the New England Real Estate Journal. The due date to receive proposals is Jan. 22, 2004. In a related item, Haddad said he has begun looking for interested residents to form a committee to aid selectmen in the bidder selection process. The size of the committee will depend on the number of residents interested. To be a part of the committee please contact Town Manager Mark Haddad at (781) 383-4105.

Bomb scare at the middle-high school

At 7:17 a.m. on Nov. 26, the Wednesday before Thanksgiving break, a bomb threat was phoned into Cohasset Middle High School, police said. The building was evacuated according to procedure and the school staff, Cohasset Police and Fire Department personnel checked the building before students were allowed back inside at approximately 8 a.m. Sgt. John Conte said the matter has been referred to the detective division and is under investigation.

Opening on ConCom

After many years of service, Susan Cope will resign from her position on the Conservation Commission, effective at the end of December 2003. There is an associate position available on the Commission as well. Those interested should contact Town Manager Mark Haddad at (781) 383-4105.

Town hires ACO

New Animal Control Officer Albert Currie reported for his first day of duty in Cohasset on Nov. 17. Currie is also the animal control officer in Hingham and will split his hours between the two towns, taking on 25 hours a week for Cohasset. He will be paid $13.16 an hour, the same rate as former Animal Control Officer Paul Murphy, who was let go Oct. 20.

Executive session held on AvalonBay

Members of the Board of Selectmen met in executive session Tuesday with Water Commission Chairman John McNabb to discuss the Water Commission's appeal of the Zoning Board of Appeals' approval of the 200-unit Avalon project. Because the Water Commission owns property near the proposed site, it can be considered a legal abutter and has the right to file an appeal, officials said. Pending litigation can be discussed in executive session under the Open Meeting Law.

Annual TM warrant opens

The town bylaws state the Board of Selectmen must set the date for the Annual Town Meeting on or before Dec. 1 of the preceding year, and it has approved fpr Saturday March 27 at 10 a.m. The date was recommended taking into consideration Easter Sunday, and school vacations. With the date set, the Warrant is now open and Town Manager Mark Haddad reminds residents that 10 signatures are required for any citizen petition articles. Monday, Jan. 12, 2004 is the deadline for submission of Citizen Petition articles.

Nomination papers

Nomination papers for the Annual Town Election, which will take place Saturday, April 3, 2004 will become available Monday, Jan. 5, 2004. The last day to submit nomination papers is Thursday, Feb. 12, 2004.

Cohasset students score high on MCAS

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

When the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS) test results came back to Cohasset this fall, school administrators were very pleased with what they found. With high test scores in all competing grade levels and very few students scoring at the "warning" level, the town can be proud of the efforts of both the teachers and students who work hard to ensure Cohasset is among the top scoring districts in the state.

But to achieve such high marks, students must prepare all year long for what will come in the spring, beginning in the third grade. Depending on grade level, students will be tested on reading skills, mathematics skills, or science skills.

Curriculum coordinator Ruth Fennessey said students take their first MCAS reading test in grade three. This year out of 124 students, 81 percent of third graders were found to be proficient, with 16.9 percent needing improvement and only 1.6 in the warning range.

"We like to have a zero," in the warning category, said Fennessey, which was the case for the 2001-2002 school year, but is still less than the 2 percent students scored in 2000-2001. "We always look to keep the warning numbers very low," she said.

Compared to other schools in the area, Cohasset's third graders are doing very well. Of the 253 students at the Alden School in Duxbury, 76 percent scored in the proficient category, 20 percent need improvement, and 4 percent were at the warning level. Of the 91 students at Hingham's South Elementary School, 84 percent were found proficient, 16 percent need improvement, and no students were at the warning level. Of the 80 students at Scituate's Cushing School, 90 percent was found proficient and 9 percent need improvement. One percent was at the warning level. Of 94 students at the Lillian M. Jacobs school in Hull, 63 percent were found proficient, 31 percent need improvement, and 6 percent were at the warning level.

Even though students take their first formal MCAS test in grade three, Fennessey said they begin preparations as far back as kindergarten. Children who have very little background learning to read when they are enrolled in kindergarten are identified as early as possible and some are given extra help if needed. When children advance to grade one, they might see a reading specialist, if recommended by their reading teacher. In addition, the schools have a Title One program for both reading and math for students in grades one, two, and three which also help students prepare for the tests ahead.

"We continue to do everything we can to prepare kids for it," said Fennessey.

Students in grade four take both reading and mathematics MCAS tests. English scores for 2002-2003 were very high, with 17 percent in the advanced category and 57 percent proficient. Only 25 percent need improvement and 1 percent were in the warning level.

"This is the first year students have to write a long composition," said Fennessey, adding it is a very significant portion of a student's score and much attention is paid to writing during the fourth grade to help in the preparation.

However, scores in math are not as high and Fennessey explained that is due in part to the fact that with math problems, students aren't just dealing with numbers, they must be able to read math problems, apply what they've read to math concepts, and for some open-ended questions, must be able to show all work done to achieve their answer.

"It's the most problematic of all test types," said Fennessey, adding it's not only the fourth graders that have trouble passing math. If a student has trouble with reading comprehension, that can carry over into the math word problems at any grade level.

Students scored 12 percent in the advanced category and 45 percent in the proficient category during the 2002-2003 mathematics test, with 34 percent in the needs improvement category and 9 percent at the warning level.

In order to help prepare students, teachers use past MCAS tests for practice to make sure students are familiar with typical open-ended questions as well as the multiple choice questions and other math problems found on the test. By seeing actual samples, students are better prepared to handle them again during the test, Fennessey said.

The 2002-2003 school year was the first year students in the fifth grade took a science and technology test and Fennessey said she was "pretty pleased" with the results. With 28 percent at the advanced level and 46 percent at the proficient level, it reflects a strong set of scores for the first time taking a science based test. Only 24 percent scored in the needs improvement category and 2 percent in the warning level and again, Fennessey said the amount of open-ended questions could have been a factor in some students not doing as well. Because students are used to reading fiction at the early grade levels, reading excerpts of non-fiction science is much different and sometimes hard to grasp. Therefore, in grades three and four the schools have started introducing students to non-fiction reading to help ease that adjustment.

"We place emphasis on [non-fiction reading] because it is so critical as they move to the upper grade levels," Fennessey said.

Students in the sixth grade take another math test, which Fennessey said is another test students do very well with. Curriculum during the year is centered around a text which she said is very compatible with the MCAS test and is very thorough in covering topics which are present on the test.

What has changed in the sixth grade from the past though, is the amount of time spent on math in the classroom, Fennessey said, which test scores could be reflecting.

"The minutes devoted has to increase based on what they have to cover," she said, adding students preparing to take the test in April must cover materials all the way up to the pre-algebra level. Students spend one hour and 15 minutes a day on math lessons, which Fennessey said not only prepares them for the MCAS, but for what will come at the middle-school math level.

Students in grade six scored 39 percent at the advanced level and 29 percent at the proficient level. Only 21 percent need improvement and 11 percent were at the warning level.

Middle School scores

In the seventh grade, students take a reading and writing test, which Fennessey said is similar to what students see in the fourth grade. Again, where English is concerned, students tend to do very well, coming in at six percent advanced and 84 percent proficient for the 2002-2003 school year. Only 9 percent scored in the needs improvement category and only 1 percent scored at the warning level. However, Fennessey said the test scores are not completely accurate because there was one student out of the country and under MCAS guidelines, that student was therefore given a minimum score of 200, which by default puts that student at the failing or warning level. That score also counts toward the district's performance level results. According to the Department of Education's web site, the guidelines for absent students were

Only two arrests in November

November 2000.

In addition to those taken in protective custody, arrests can include charges ranging from drunk driving and possession of drugs to outstanding warrants, underage drinking, and domestic assault & battery, to name a few. Protective custody is for people who are incapacitated due to alcohol and are not involved in any other offense.

Quigley is one of two veteran officers placed on leave Oct. 20 and are now part of an inquiry involving a private investigator. The officers still do not know why they are on paid administrative leave, according to their attorney Doug Louison.

"I sent a letter last week to Town Counsel Peter Barry requesting again to be advised of the basis for the administrative leave and why the officers are being asked to undergo medical and psychiatric exams," he said. "I've had no response."

Louison said hiring a private investigator smacks of a disingenuous investigation. "They've put the men on administrative leave and are trying to pin something on them."

He said a former employer of Quigley's a decade ago has been contacted by the investigator. "This makes no sense," he said. "Any background investigation would have been made when the officer was hired."

The town's lack of providing a reason for the officers' leave has opened the door to speculation about what the officers may or may not have done.

Allegations range from retaliation for arresting the chief's son in Quigley's case, to drinking on duty at the Rod & Gun club, a charge that both officers have denied. Quigley has denied he was even at the range during the time of the alleged drinking in May.

Town officials won't comment citing privacy issues surrounding personnel matters.

Several officers interviewed by telephone say the dearth of arrests since late October is a direct result of department morale and fear for their jobs.

"We're worried if someone complains, we'll be out the door," said an officer, who asked not to be named.

Although there have been few arrests, the police log is still full of parking tickets and motor vehicle violations, as well as other police matters. And on Sunday, Nov. 16, the quick action of officers Shellee Peters, Lisa Matos and Frank Yannizzi thwarted an apparent robbery attempt at Curtis Liquors.

"Police officers are doing what they have to do to keep the community safe," Chief Jackson said. "I'm satisfied with their performance. They are a good bunch of people."

Some officers said they also upset over the recent appointment of Officer Bill English replacing Officer Rick Grassie as court prosecutor, over four others who applied for the position and have been with the police department much longer. English, who holds a master's degree in criminal justice and is a former probation officer with the Plymouth District Court, joined the police department in July 2002 and attended the police academy. He went on patrol last December.

"I chose Bill because of his previous court experience and educational credentials," Jackson said. "Others were well qualified, but I felt Bill would be best able to serve the community."

Fence case continued to Jan. 7

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Three young men — one of whom is Police Chief Robert Jackson's son — who stand accused of breaking the handicapped railing during an alleged fight at the Legion post on Summer Street on a Saturday night in October, will be back in court on Jan. 7.

At their Nov. 20 arraignment, where the men pleaded not guilty, Ron Rice, the attorney for Keith Jackson, filed a motion for dismissal that he hoped would be acted upon at Tuesday's pretrial hearing.

But Judge Robert Tochka granted Assistant District Attorney Michael Connolly's request for a continuance on the motion for dismissal during second call in a courtroom at Quincy District Court over vocal objections from the men's attorneys, who did not want the matter to drag on any further.

At issue during Tuesday's pretrial conference is a tape recording of a Nov. 10 probable cause hearing before Judge Mark Coven during which the District Attorney's office successfully argued to bring forward the charge of malicious destruction of property over $250 (the broken railing). The DA's office says the tapes — transcripts of which will be provided to the defendants — will show there was probable cause for the arrest although the attorneys for the defendants argued Coven's ruling concerned only process.

The DA's office contends Keith Jackson, 24, and Jerry Cogill, 25, both of Cohasset, and Adam Thibault, 25, of Hingham, should have been arraigned on the malicious destruction charge along with disorderly conduct and affray on Oct. 14. However, the Cohasset police prosecutor did not file the complaint after seeing a letter from the Legion post commander stating the fence damage was preexisting.

The DA's office, which subsequently removed then Cohasset police prosecutor Rick Grassie from the court, said the determination of probable cause should be up to a judge and the prosecutor should have processed the complaint.

The arrest of the chief's son at the Legion post on Oct. 11 is alleged by police sources to be a reason why veteran officer, Sgt. William Quigley, has been put on administrative leave, and the lack of an arraignment of the three defendants on Oct. 14 has only stirred more controversy.

Jackson's attorney asked Judge Tochka to dismiss the malicious destruction charge because of insufficient evidence. Rice noted there was no testimony at the hearing before Coven, and nothing was presented that didn't exist in the police reports, which are part of the file.

Bolstering the argument about process, Rice noted Judge Coven issued a ruling on the malicious destruction charge only — not the two misdemeanor charges of disorderly conduct and fighting. It is unclear why Coven did not bring the other charges forward. However, the DA's appeals office plans to review the tapes of the probable cause hearing.

Attorney Robert Cohen, who is representing Cogill, argued the DA's office has had time to review the evidence.

"There is nothing in the tapes; [the evidence] is based on the police reports you have before you today," he said. Cohen urged the judge not to continue the hearing with the holidays ahead and suggested the matter be heard that very day before Judge Coven, who is familiar with the case.

Bill Bowling, Thibault's attorney, described the tapes as a "red herring" and noted the defense had not been notified the tapes had been ordered.

Connolly, the assistant district attorney, said the tapes would show what Judge Coven said at the probable cause hearing and was granted the continuance.

Comments on draft Master Plan sought

The Growth and Development Committee, appointed by the Selectmen in 2000 to help draft a thoughtful and long term strategy to manage town growth, seeks public input on the draft Master Plan. There are a number of ways to review the draft Master Plan, including:

- At the Town Website – www.Cohassetmass.org – click on the link for the Master Plan in the upper right corner of the home page
- At the Town Clerk or Paul Pratt Memorial Library – each location has a full-color, printed copy in a loose-leaf binder, for ease of copying specific chapters, maps or sections
- At the Town Planning Office on a CD-ROM (by request at 383-3517)

Please submit your comments by Dec. 15 to Liz Harrington, Town Planner at Town Hall.

HOLIDAY HELPERS NEEDED

Hello Cohasset and welcome to this wonderful holiday season! As you will see as you read this week's column, many groups and organizations are looking to help people all over and are looking for your help. This is a great time for us all to look around and see how much we have and what we are thankful for and to give whatever we can to others. Blankets, toys, jackets and so much more really help those who are in need and can make such a difference at this time of year.

BLANKET, TOILETRY DRIVE

The blanket and toiletry drive organized by the sixth-grade Religious Education Class at St. Anthony's to benefit the Shattuck Shelter in Jamaica Plain will be held the Dec. 6 & 7. Toiletries and donations of blankets, comforters, and linens in good condition will be accepted at the Parish Center as follows: Saturday, Dec. 6, 4:30-6:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 7, 7:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 8, from 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. For those townspeople that wish to make a monetary donation, contributions can be sent to St. Anthony's Blanket Drive, 129 South Main St., Cohasset. Your donation, large or small, can make a powerful difference for those in need. An army surplus blanket can be purchased for $5. With even more budget cuts and the prospect of another harsh winter, the need is even more acute. Please help in making this holiday mission as successful as last year. For more information, please call either Darilynn Evans at 781-383-0644 or Beth Seraikas at 781-383-9154.

FIELD HOCKEY MVP

Cohasset athlete Michela Valente was honored at the Newton Country Day Middle School November Awards Assembly. Recognized for building her individual and team skills, Valente, received the Most Valuable Player Award for Field Hockey. She was picked as MVP by her coaches and teammates.

IN THE NUTCRACKER

Let's hear it for this very talented young lady from Cohasset. Thomson Jaffee, daughter of Chuck and Susan Jaffee, is performing as a soldier in José Mateo's Ballet Theatre's "The Nutcracker" now on stage at the Sanctuary Theatre in Harvard Square. Thomson is a student at the South Shore Ballet Academy and the Deer Hill School. Congratulations Thomson on this wonderful experience!

HARBOR RESORT TOY DRIVE

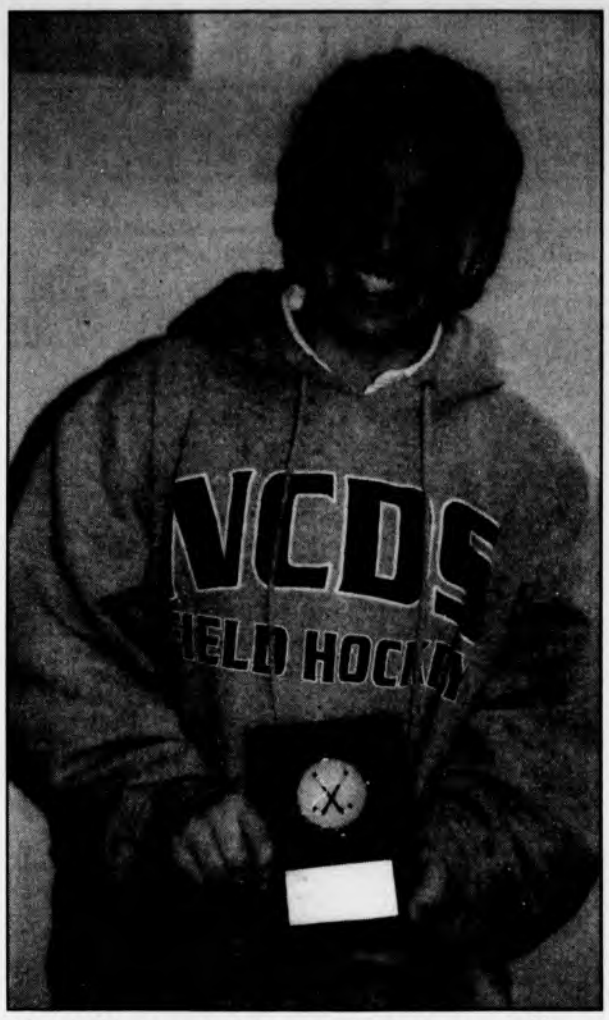
The Cohasset Harbor Resort (Atlantica & the Cohasset Harbor Inn) will be collecting "Toys for Tots" from Dec. 1-19. This program, facilitated by the U.S. Marines will help to bring needy children toys this holiday season. All are welcome to bring in a non-violent, unwrapped gift from Dec. 1 -19.

SUPER SAILOR

At the annual awards dinner of the Massachusetts Bay Sailing Association at the Sonesta Hotel/Cambridge Frances McElwain Wakeman of Cohasset received the President's Award for a Lifetime Achievement of Sailing. This is a wonderful achievement for you to have earned, congratulations!

UNION DEAN'S LIST

Victoria Hurley and Sarah Kidder, both members of the Class of 2005 at Union College, have both been named to the 2002-2003 dean's list. Victoria, 136 Border St., is a biology-computer science double major and Sarah, 2 Cushing Road, is a biology major. They are both members of the Cohasset High School Class of 2001. In order to be named to the dean's list at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., a student must have maintained an overall index of 3.5 or greater. Great job to both of you ladies!



Michela Valente received the most valuable player award for field hockey at Newton Country Day Middle School.

XAVERIAN HONORS

Mark Lewis, a Junior at Xaverian Brothers High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin F. Lewis, earned second honors for the first marking period of this year. Keep up the hard work Mark and we will read about you again I am sure. Super job!

SANTA IS COMING!

Santa Claus is coming to Cohasset's annual Village Fair on the Common, this Saturday, Dec. 6, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Hosted by four of Cohasset's churches and the non-profit Appalachia Service Project (ASP), the fair is a wonderful way to begin celebrating the season! Stop by and visit Santa on Cohasset Common between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. (He'll be in the Second Congregational Church nursery if it rains.) Your child can share their wish list and have a photo taken for just $2 to $4. All proceeds support ASP's home repair program.

Santa's elves will also be on hand at St. Stephen's Church in the "Secret Room" where children, escorted by ASP's teen-volunteers dressed as elves, can pick out a special something for Mom, Dad, brother or sister. Volunteers will help each child carefully select, wrap and label their surprises so they're ready to go under the tree. All gifts range from just $1 to $4 each.

The Rusty Skippers will be performing their annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church at noon on Saturday, Dec. 6, during the Village Fair on the Common. The Skippers have been busy preparing a variety of new holiday selections including a Nutcracker medley, Sleigh Ride (made famous by the Boston Pops), Jingle Bell Rock and many other familiar tunes and carols. The concert is free and all ages are welcome. A free will offering for Cohasset's Food Pantry will be taken. The Rusty Skippers were formed in 1995 as part of the Cohasset HarborFest at the enthusiastic suggestion of the late Rev. Ed. Atkinson of First Parish. The Skippers play under the direction of Steve Biagini, Director of Instrumental Music at Deer Hill School.

VILLAGE CELEBRATION!

This inaugural celebration of the holiday season will take place in Cohasset's quaint seaside village. The Cohasset village merchants will participate by decorating their storefront and providing family fun, food and entertainment. In addition to kicking off the holiday spirit, the merchants association wanted to show appreciation to the residents of Cohasset during this special time of year. "A Cohasset Village Holiday" will take place on Saturday, Dec. 13, 5-8 p.m., and Sunday Dec. 14, 1-4 p.m.

Here is a sample of the holiday fun for everyone: Local merchant, The Dogwash will feature "pictures with your pet"; Realtors Dean & Hamilton will turn their office into a giant ginger bread house complete with refreshments for all. The Atlantica staff will be in the street promoting their new menu with a water view, The Red Lion Inn will host a "winter snow ball" dance for sixth-eighth graders in their barn. Also, Village Wine & Spirits will feature a wine tasting and a visit to Coldwell Banker will allow a picture with Santa himself.

The village merchants will be selling ornaments that can be purchased for a donation of $2 each. Ornaments are to be hung on the tree in front of Cohasset Hardware. All donations go to the Cohasset Food Pantry. All are invited to join in on this first time Cohasset village celebration (rain, snow or shine)!

DEER HILL FAIR

The Deer Hill Holiday Fair is happening Dec. 8-12. Students will attend during their regular library period. Parents and grandparents are welcome during school hours or on Thursday evening, Dec. 11, before and after the Holiday Concert. This is another wonderful way to help with your holiday shopping needs and to let your shopping dollars benefit the Deer Hill School. Mrs. Murphy will be on hand to help children select books for themselves or to give as gifts. If you have any questions or would like to volunteer, call Karen MacCormack, 383-6901 or Barb Mullin, 383-0953.

ST. PAUL SCHOOL BAZAAR

On Friday, Dec. 5 and Saturday, Dec. 6, St. Paul School in Hingham will be having its annual Christmas Bazaar. The Bazaar will be held in the school hall which is located at 18 Fearing Road across the street from Citizens Bank. On Friday the Bazaar will feature a silent auction, raffle prizes, handmade crafts, wreaths, boxwood trees, refreshments and children's games. On Saturday morning from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. the Bazaar continues with Breakfast with Santa. This is an opportunity to have your picture taken while you talk to Santa and to enjoy a nice breakfast. Tickets for the breakfast are $5 per adult and $3 per child.

because although the CEA is a town department, it only receives one-half of 1 percent of the total town's budget.

"We look to Martha to help us make it through the day, the week, and the year," she said.

Perhaps because of her former work experience, Horsefield seemed to be a perfect fit for the position from the start. For 30 years, Horsefield worked at New England Baptist hospital in Boston and was the assistant to the CEO.

"You wear many hats," she said of her former role. One project she was very dedicated to while she worked for the hospital was the rekindling of the hospital's volunteer program, which she said was a very rewarding experience because the program expanded so greatly during her time there. In fact, she said it became too overwhelming for her to keep as a side project and a volunteer coordinator needed to be hired to take on the position.

But now that Horsefield is working in Cohasset, she doesn't need to go looking for volunteers because there is never a shortage of community support. Sometimes she said, volunteers will come forward out of the blue just when they are needed the most.

"It's amazing where the blessings come from," added Bryanton.

Horsefield said a Thanksgiving dinner was held for seniors at Atlantica last week and because many volunteers are retired and spend their winters in Florida, there has recently been a shortage of van drivers. She said there could have been a problem with transportation, but suddenly someone came forward who was interested in volunteering time to drive and he went into training the following day. He also happened to be a long-time resident and knew the streets of Cohasset extremely well.

"It's from heaven — absolutely," said Bryanton, adding how appreciative she was to Atlantica for hosting such a wonderful dinner, and to the staff who volunteered their time to ensure a nice day for the seniors.

Horsefield said there are volunteers who help out many times a week and some who donate services on a temporary basis, and everyone's help is highly appreciated. But no matter what amount of time is donated, she said across the board, "They all move in such nice ways to be helpful."

She said there are many women who come every week to answer the phones in the office, which get very busy. They confirm those who are coming for lunch and those who need transportation to various places around town, and no matter what, they always have a friendly manner on the phone, she said. Some volunteers will go on shopping trips to the grocery store with the seniors, and some will pick up a shopping list from those who cannot make the trip and will do the shopping for them. Horsefield said there is even one high school student who gives a computer class for seniors once a week which they thoroughly enjoy.

"I stand in awe," of the support the CEA receives, Horsefield said.

Because the volunteers are such a huge part of the operation at the CEA, Horsefield is coordinating a high tea in their honor. While she would love to be able to include all volunteers past and present, there have been so many it is only possible to include those who have donated time just over this past year.

"It's our way of saying thank you," she said.

And both women agree that the volunteer efforts put forth by the town not only speak volumes of the people who live here, but also help keep a valuable service available to some very special residents in town.

"Without the volunteers, it couldn't be done," Horsefield said.

to extend an invitation to all women in town to attend their fourth annual Christmas Tea on Tuesday Dec. 9 from 12-2 p.m. at the Lightkeeper's Residence. It is a wonderful opportunity to escape the busy rush of the holiday season and enjoy a special speaker with a seasonal message. It is also a fun chance to see your friends and neighbors. Please contact Joan Busk at 383-6110 if you have any questions.

PROJECT TURNABOUT

The Social Service League of Cohasset is accepting Christmas gifts for the children of the clients at Project Turnabout in Hingham. If you wish to participate in gift giving you may take a star from the Consignment Shop's Christmas tree. Gifts should be unwrapped and dropped off by Dec. 18. The Cohasset Girl Scouts decorated the tree and will wrap the gifts.

STUFF-A-BUS DRIVE

Get ready to donate a gift to a needy boy or girl at the Cohasset RTF (the dump) on Saturday, Dec. 13. Dama Dow and Peggy Litchfield, both local bus drivers are working together to "Stuff-A-Bus" filled with toys for the Toys For Tots program and would love to have you and your family come to the RTF during the regular business hours with a new, unwrapped, unused toy to donate. They will be located next to the very popular "Boutique" and will also be accepting financial donations to help benefit this cause. If you have any questions, you can call Dama at 781-706-7068 or Peggy at 781-923-1080.

That is all. Make sure to get me all your news and information no later than Mondays at noon.

Hingham Symphony Welcomes Yule!

Join the Hingham Symphony Orchestra and conductor Jin Kim for two festive concerts to usher in the Yule tide season. On Saturday, Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. the HSO will perform in the historic Old Ship Meeting House in Hingham Square. The Meeting House, built in 1681, provides a unique historic backdrop for the full orchestra. Seating is limited to 250 in the box pews and balcony.

On Sunday, Dec. 7 at 4 p.m., the HSO performs in St. Anthony's Church, South Main Street, Cohasset. With its excellent acoustics and open seating, St. Anthony's naturally amplifies the sound of the orchestra, filling the space with music. Also, at this concert HSO Fanfare members will host a reception for all during intermission.

At both concerts, the HSO will perform Stravinsky's Pulcinella Suite from the ballet of the same name, and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8. Audience members will also sing several carols played by the orchestra and conducted by Jin Kim. An annual event, the Welcome Yule concert is known to spark the holiday spirit with its joyous music and enthusiastic audiences. The encore, Anderson's Sleigh Ride, is beloved by all.

Tickets at $25 adult, $20 senior, and $10 youth through age 18, are available at Hingham and Weymouth Main Libraries, Nobles, Hingham Square, Buttonwood Books, Cohasset and Front Street Book Shop, Scituate, or call 781-740-5694 to order by phone.

Retired Army Officer Joins Coldwell Banker

Leo Dwyer, a retired Lieutenant Colonel from the U.S. Army after serving 22 years and recently business manager for Boston law firms for the past 14 years, has joined Coldwell Banker as a sales associate.

Dwyer, owned a home on Jerusalem Road in Cohasset for 16 years, he has lived at 100 Pond Street in Cohasset where he served as Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and now lives with his family in Scituate.

Dwyer also served as the Cohasset President of AFS, helped form the Marshfield Youth Soccer Program, and was the founder of the Milton Youth Soccer Program. In addition, Leo spent many years volunteering with Massachusetts Special Olympics.

"I chose Coldwell Banker because of the outstanding training provided to all new sales associates. Also, the teamwork, professional knowledge and atmosphere of serving the community demonstrated by each of the Coldwell Banker offices made my choice easy. I like being on a winning team. Whether a customer buys or not, sells or not, I will provide the best professional service possible, and as long as I am doing that, business will take care of itself," said Dwyer.

For professional assistance with all your real estate needs, call Leo Dwyer in the Scituate office at 781-545-1888.

put in place to support the legal requirements that all students participate in the MCAS testing program.

Students in the eighth grade take a math and a science and technology test. Eighth grade math mainly consists of algebra, and because it is such a heavy course load, the high school department head is in charge of student's math classes, making sure adjustments in curriculum are made according to test scores and what the state reports as weak areas.

For the 2002-2003 math tests, scores went down from the previous two years in the advanced category coming in at 25 percent. However, scores have risen steadily in the proficient category and are up to 46 percent, while 20 percent need improvement and 8 percent are at the warning level.

The 2002-2003 school year was the first time eighth graders took a science and technology test.

"It has been highly criticized for its content," Fennessey said.

On Cohasset's first time out, 7 percent scored in the advanced level, with 39 percent at the proficient level and 45 percent at the needs improvement level. Ten percent were at the warning level.

Fennessey said the curriculum is being looked at to see how it matches what is asked of students on the test, and the head of the high school science department will be in charge of making any necessary curriculum changes.

Overall, Cohasset's eighth graders are doing just as well as other schools who took their first swing at the science and technology test last spring. At Hingham Middle School, 11 percent scored at the advanced level, while 53 percent were proficient, 28 percent need improvement, and 8 percent were at the warning level. At Gates Intermediate School in Scituate, 23 percent were in the advanced category, 49 percent scored proficient, 21 percent need improvement and 7 percent were in the warning level. At Duxbury Middle School 15 percent scored at the advanced level, 37 percent scored at the proficient level, 32 percent need improvement and 16 percent were at the warning level. At Memorial Middle School in Hull, 8 percent scored at the advanced level, 19 percent scored at the proficient level, 26 percent needed improvement and 48 percent were at the warning level.

High School scores

When students reach grade 10, they have reached the last round of testing and must take both an English and a math test to graduate.

"We've always been proud of our tenth grade scores," Fennessey said, adding everyone passed the English portion on the first time out during the 2002-2003 school year. Thirty-nine percent scored at the advanced level, while 43 percent scored proficient, and 18 percent need improvement.

But the grade 10 math test is described by Fennessey as the hardest test of all, and while a good portion of last year's class passed the test, there were some who came in at the warning level, which means students must retake the test to graduate.

In 2002-2003, 43 percent of students scored at the advanced level, which has steadily increased from the two years prior. There were 25 percent who scored at the proficient level and 25 percent at the needs improvement level. For the 6 percent who scored in the warning level, the state holds 5 dates to take the test again and the school provides tutoring opportunities which are funded by state grants. Fennessey said the school holds academic support tutoring in small groups and on an individual basis, both before and after school for those who need additional assistance. Last year's graduating class was the first class required to pass the MCAS test to graduate from Cohasset High School, and everyone received their diploma.

In neighboring towns, students did comparably well. Students from Duxbury High School had 35 percent at the advanced level, 35 percent at the proficient level, 24 percent need improvement and 6 percent at the warning level. Students at Hingham High School had 48 percent at the advanced level, 32 percent proficient, 17 percent need improvement, and 4 percent at the warning level. At Scituate High School, 29 percent scored at the advanced level, 41 percent scored at the proficient level, 26 percent need improvement and 3 percent were at the warning level. Hull High School had 15 percent at the advanced level, 26 percent proficient , 35 percent need improvement, and 24 percent at the warning level.

Fennessey said there are plenty of ways parents can help their children prepare for the MCAS test, in addition to the preparation they receive at school. Copies of previous tests can be found online and there are books geared toward passing the Massachusetts MCAS test available at many book stores.

For more information on school curriculum or the MCAS test, please contact Curriculum Coordinator Ruth Fennessey at (781) 383-3031.

OPINION

Holiday driving and common sense

GUEST EDITORIAL

STEVE BOBO

It's time again to remind everyone about the need to exercise restraint using or when offering alcohol to someone who may be driving. I heard the other night on TV about a Texas high school football coach who suspended six of his players for drinking before a Friday night football game. Naturally, the team lost, but the entire crowd that had watched the game, almost everyone in town — because Friday night football is a way of life in Texas — gave the team a standing ovation as it left the field. Surely that was a lesson we could use about permitting our kids to drink, would that we had something as compelling as Texas Friday night football to keep our kids from drinking.

Massachusetts is highest in the nation in repeat offenders in accidents involving alcohol.

An alcohol-related motor vehicle crash kills someone every 30 minutes and injures someone every two minutes. Each year, alcohol-related crashes in the United States cost about $51 billion. Most drinking and driving episodes go undetected, but in 2001, more than 1.4 million drivers were arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol or narcotics. That's slightly more than 1 percent of the 120 million self-reported episodes of alcohol–impaired driving among U.S. adults each year.

Rates have begun to rise after a decade of decline in alcohol-related fatal crashes. Since 1999, they have increased by 4 percent to 10 percent for all age groups except for ages 16 to 17 years and the trend is rising.

Massachusetts has few remedies for drinking and driving. Studies show that fewer alcohol-related crashes occur when sobriety checkpoints are implemented, according to a CDC report published in the December 2002 issue of Traffic Injury Prevention. Sobriety checkpoints are traffic stops where law enforcement officers systematically select drivers to assess their level of alcohol impairment. The goal of these interventions is to deter alcohol-impaired driving by increasing drivers' perceived risk of arrest. There will be few such checkpoints in Massachusetts, but they will be no substitute for a word of caution to young people.

According to recent articles in the Boston press, Massachusetts is highest in the nation in repeat offenders in accidents involving alcohol. We have a judicial system which is indulgent about alcohol abuse. It's difficult to control drinking in such an environment.

We've had our share of alcohol related deaths and injuries in Cohasset. Most parents manage their holiday revelry with good common sense. Don't wait to have a loved one stopped for an alcohol related automobile violation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

There is no painless answer to terrorism

TO THE EDITOR:

Many mothers are grief stricken in empathy with the mothers of our military casualties. Some feel that President Bush should have to meet face to face with bereaved families and feel the consequences of his policies.

What about the grief of the families bereaved from a long series of attacks by terrorists in the last several years, of which the 9/11 horror at the New York's Twin Towers is only the most remembered one! What about the grief of families of future casualties resulting from failure of the world's only remaining superpower (and favorite target) to have taken the war to the several nations where terrorism is based, but instead sat stupidly waiting to be hit again. And again! And again! What about the victims of naïve trust in sanctions, in diplomacy and in similar futile address to terrorists and their host nations? Weep for all the future victims of declining resolve, victims of sacrificing countless civilian and military lives in the long future rather than to have taken some military casualties in the near term.

There is no painless answer to terrorism!

Should we have limited our anti-terrorist campaign to Afghanistan, and not gone into Iraq? No, we have to demonstrate powerful and unflagging resolve in as many terrorist host states as it takes to force the remaining ones to abandon their support for terrorists, to defang them, to begin actively co-operating in preventing their resurgence. Unsatisfactory post war results in Iraq is not a valid argument to lose resolve and abandon the only policy that could achieve the long term goal of defeating terrorism. That President Bush never served in combat is irrelevant; neither did Franklin Roosevelt, who provided magnificent leadership in WW2!

As for requiring the President to visit the bereaved, not as a gracious act of sympathy, but a punishment for his policies, and to weaken his determination, how is that in the nation's interest? Presidents age visibly and terribly enough from the never-ending strain of their few years in office, coping with the whirlwind of events, competing pressures, powerful opponents; constantly agonizing over which of several answers to complex issues is the least of the evils, and so on. Need we erode his strength further by adding the burden of comforting the bereaved, especially if the motive is not really to comfort the bereaved, but to punish him and weaken his resolve to address the root cause of the tragedy?

Let him visit to the degree that his time permits from his awesome mountain of national and world issues, and as his own humanity urges him, and leave it at that! He is the man who has to make the awesome decisions for all of us!

Crisis in confidence

Mr. McElroy provided The Mariner with a copy of his letter.

TO THE EDITOR:

Town Manager Mark Haddad
Chief of Police Bob Jackson

It is unfortunate that the altercation outside the American Legion ever occurred. It is also strange to many of us that there seems to be a "conspiracy of silence" on the Quigley/McLean situation. All we know is that it is costing about $800 per week in overtime pay.

However, my greatest concern is that the names of many good and probably totally innocent parties are being dragged into the media coverage and it is not the media's fault.

It is time that the truth is told to the media and the public so appropriate action can be taken and confidence restored. The crisis in confidence is spreading well beyond those so far mentioned in the media; to include both of you, so, please be more candid.

Development and Gulf River pollution

TO THE EDITOR:

Mr. Oddleifson provided the Mariner with a copy of his letter to the Planning Board.

We are writing to express our concern about the potential harmful effects of the subject development to the Gulf River watershed and estuary. The Gulf Association has monitored the water quality of this estuary for over 10 years, and sadly, despite significant sewer hook-ups in Cohasset, continues to see serious water quality problems. In 2002 we had a major algae buildup, indicating the fragility of this waterway. Any additional runoff from its tributaries will exacerbate the eutrophic conditions arising from Cohasset's clay subsoils and rocky terrain which facilitate the flow of mineral and organic materials into the Gulf. Our land is impervious to normal filtration of water systems.

This spring we received a Natural Resource Inventory Report, commissioned by our Association, from the Urban Harbors Institute of the University of Massachusetts, Boston, which specifically cites pollution entering the river through its tributaries. Pegram's Brook, a principal tributary in Cohasset flowing into the Gulf, was reported to have high fecal coliform readings too numerous to count.

Pegram's Brook is fed by Mealy's Pond off Beechwood Street, and according to the Board of Health, "large amounts of storm water are proposed to be discharged into an intermittent stream. This discharge will increase water flow over the adjacent Nader property where a preliminary subdivision plan has already been approved, through a registered vernal pool into an intermittent stream and thence to Mealy's Pond." This additional load of surface water runoff represents a severe and unacceptable threat to the Gulf River.

The river is fed by four brooks — James, Pegram, Bound and Musquashcut. Failed wastewater systems and the silt and nutrients from storm-water runoff are on-going problems which will increase with more development and building.

The mission of the Association is to educate citizens about the trends we see in Gulf River conditions, and to suggest ways to reverse them. Accordingly, we embrace the Oct. 31 comments of the Norfolk RAM Group regarding the storm-water management system proposed for the Cedarmere Senior Multi-Family Overlay Development. They observe that the system should be designed to provide a sufficient level of environmental controls necessary to adequately protect all tributaries to the Lily Pond drinking water supply, and suggest specific design solutions. Lily Pond is already experiencing eutrophic conditions, and water from Lily Pond flows down Bound Brook to Hunter's Pond, and thence into the Gulf. We ask that the RAM Group recommendations be incorporated into the conditions necessary for project approval.

Cedarmere launches lawsuit over denied access to sewer risk of overloading the existing sewer system, which the team's engineering consultants at Fay, Spofford & Thorndike said has been determined through much research.

However, Daniel Coughlin, Senior Associate for Tutela Engineering Associates Inc., the town's consultant, gave a report to the Commission, which contradicts what Cedarmere's engineer found. Coughlin said he was not convinced there would be enough sewer capacity for the project, and recommended a denial until further data could be collected over time.

"We made our decision based about 50 percent on Dan's engineering report," said Sewer Commission Chairman Raymond Kasperowicz at Monday's meeting. The denial was also based on the fact the project would be located outside the Town Meeting designated Central Wastewater Sewer Service District, and historically, the Commission has not granted approval on hook-ups outside the district without a Town Meeting vote. Therefore, the Commission does not believe it has any obligation to fulfill a sewer request for the Cedarmere team.

However, because it has been an unwritten rule that those outside the district will not be granted sewer access, and while Commission members say they have been consistent in following that rule, they felt it should be addressed in the board's regulations. Kasperowicz said Jerusalem Road Estates was denied access on the same grounds, as well as many other homes in town, and the proposed Avalon development.

Gary Vanderweil, who serves as an associate member for the Sewer Commission, said when Avalon came looking for a permit and was not granted access, "Instead of forcing the issue like Cedarmere," they went looking for alternate solutions.

By adopting a new regulation, Kasperowicz said he hopes those who do not qualify for access won't waste their own time and money applying, or the board's time in the future. The new regulation clearly states, "...the Commission has determined that entertaining applications for connection by property owners or their agents outside the above referenced Districts will not be accepted. The Commission cannot prudently accept additional flows to its own wastewater treatment plant or to its connection to the Hull wastewater treatment plant until a reasonable period of time has elapsed to allow evaluation of usage patterns after all potential users are hooked up and have had an opportunity to establish a usage record."

"This may change over time," said Kasperowicz, adding after having a few years of data behind the plant, and all planned connections in place, the Commission may find there is capacity to hook up those outside the district and the regulation could be removed. He suggested the plant be reviewed annually, and the appropriate decision will be made at each time of review.

The change to the regulation was approved by Kasperowicz and John Beck, with Sean Cunning abstaining. Cunning has recused himself from all voting regarding the Cedarmere issue due to a conflict of interest. Because Cunning works as an insurance agent, and the Cedarmere developers have a small policy through him, he has been advised by Town Counsel not to vote on any matters pertaining to Cedarmere.

But after voting the new regulation in, there was still business to be discussed by the board as it had the second Cedarmere application for a sewer connection in front of it. Kasperowicz said because the application was the same and the developers were not present to share any new information, he felt there would be no reason not to deny the application again, based on the previous ruling. Beck agreed, and the application was denied.

Cedarmere affordable units to take center stage

Developers come before Selectmen on Tuesday night

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The Senior Overlay District bylaw is new to Cohasset and the kinks are still being worked out. Cedarmere is the first project to file under the bylaw and is therefore serving as the guinea pig in setting precedents for developments in the future. However, because it is the first, guidelines for the project will be open to some interpretation and some aspects of the bylaw have already caused some waves.

The Selectmen will meet with the Cedarmere team Tuesday to hash out some of the issues surrounding the process, but because the town has never worked with the bylaw or a LIP (Local Initiative Project) project before, the discussion is sure to continue into subsequent meetings.

Under the town's Senior Overlay District Bylaw, projects are required to have an affordable component, which Cedarmere does. However, because the affordable units are housed in a separate building on site, meaning they do not blend in with other housing on the property, they must meet the criteria of a "Lip Units Only," project under the state's Local Initiative Program in order to "count" toward the town's affordable housing stock. The town is trying to meet a 10 percent affordability threshold set by the state to get out from under more 40B projects, like Avalon.

The Selectmen will need to endorse the project in order for an application to qualifyas a LIP project. However, the Cedarmere team has its own interpretation of what the involvement of the Selectmen should be in the recommendation process.

A letter from Cedarmere's attorney Robert Tuchmann said members of the Planning Board had inquired about whether the project would meet the affordable criteria of the Senior Overlay District bylaw even without the endorsement of the Selectmen on the affordable components. Under the town's bylaw, "Affordable units in a SMRD must qualify as low or moderate income housing units eligible to be included in the calculation of such units," by the DHCD.

In the letter, Tuchmann explains he understands the law to read, units are eligible to be counted in the DHCD's calculation as long as they meet the seven requirements set by the DHCD. He thinks in terms of eligibility, it doesn't matter whether the Selectmen choose to endorse the project or not and the project's being able to qualify under the Senior Overlay would not be affected.

"The board's endorsement is a prerequisite only to the actual counting of the units by the DHCD, and not to their eligibility to be so counted," Tuchmann said.

Town Planner Liz Harrington said because the whole process of working with the bylaw is so new, these are issues that will have to be ironed out as it unfolds and what will happen in terms of the criteria Cedarmere must fulfill for eligibility requirements is anyone's guess at this point.

But some Selectmen want to be sure their role in the process isn't diminished.

"I don't think our role is a rubber stamp," said Selectman Tom Callahan at the board's last meeting, adding he thinks the Selectmen have an important role in the approval process and expects the proper discussions to be carried out. He said there are still many questions to be answered by developers not only for the board, but for abutters as well.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local senators' votes on four roll calls and local representatives' votes on three roll calls from recent sessions. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

RESTRICT USE OF HEALTH CARE FUNDS (H 4004)

House 136-23, Senate 36-3, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a budget section prohibiting health care facilities that receive public funds from using those funds directly or indirectly for political contributions, lobbying activities, entertainment expenses or efforts to assist or deter union organizing. The section requires that the funds be returned to the state if the health care facility violates the restriction. Override supporters said that the restriction would ensure that this public money received by nursing homes, hospitals and other health care facilities is spent on health care for the patients and residents and not on these other matters. They pointed to a case in which managers at South Boston's Marian Manor Nursing spent considerable time and effort harassing the home's workers and discouraging them from forming a union. Override opponents said they support the intent of the restriction but argued that it would impose new costs and responsibilities on a state agency to investigate and act on these violations without providing the funding to do so. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment restricting the use of the health care funds. A "Nay" vote is against the restriction).

Senator Hedlund: Y — Representative Bradley: Y

PLACEMENT OF BABIES (H 4325)

House 101-57, favored but fell short of the two-thirds vote required to suspend rules to allow immediate consideration of a bill allowing parents to leave their baby under the age of seven days at a police or fire station or hospital emergency room. The baby would then be placed into the state's foster care system. The measure requires the worker accepting the baby to make every effort to solicit identifying and background information from the parents. It also requires the state to begin the process of terminating parental rights but stipulates that this voluntary abandonment does not constitute an automatic termination of parental rights. Other provisions require the state to publicize the new law and provide that the law expires in January 2006. Supporters of rule suspension said 41 states have similar laws and noted it is important to immediately consider this bill that is designed to save lives and give young, scared mothers a choice. They argued that without this new law, unsafe abandonment or even the killing of babies would continue. Some opponents of rule suspension said members have not had time to read and understand the proposed new version of the bill and argued that the measure is a serious one that should not be rushed through the House and should instead be considered the following day. They said that supporters are bringing up the bill because the House has some spare time. Others said they oppose the bill itself because it sends the wrong message by legalizing child neglect and abandonment for the first seven days of a baby's life. They noted the state already provides ample opportunity to give up babies for adoption. (A "Yea" vote is for rule suspension to allow immediate consideration of the bill. A "Nay" vote is against rule suspension).

Senator Hedlund: Y — Representative Bradley: Y

BEYOND 9 P.M.

House 123-36, suspended rules to allow the House to meet beyond 9 p.m. and continue until midnight. Supporters of rule suspension said there are several important bills pending and argued that the House should remain in session and do the people's business. Opponents of rule suspension said late night sessions are unnecessary and irresponsible and argued the legislature should not act on important matters while taxpayers are sleeping. (A "Yea" vote is for rule suspension to allow the session to continue beyond 9 p.m. A "Nay" vote is against rule suspension).

Senator Hedlund: Y — Representative Bradley: Y

SPECIAL ELECTION

Senate 31-7, approved an order setting March 2 as the date for a special general election for the state Senate seat currently held by Senator Cheryl Jacques (D-Needham). Jacques has submitted a letter to the Senate stating that she will resign on January 4, 2004 to take over as head of the Human Rights campaign-- a gay and lesbian advocacy group. March 2 is also the date of the Massachusetts presidential primary election. Supporters said it is important to schedule the state Senate election as quickly as possible so that the 160,000 people in Jacques' district will not be without a senator for a long period of time. They argued that it also makes sense to set the special election date to coincide with the presidential primary in order to save the state thousands of dollars in administrative costs for the election. Opponents said this Democratic-supported order is an outrageous move that is designed to rig the special election so that a Democrat wins the Senate seat. They noted the contested Democratic presidential primary would bring many more Democratic voters to the polls than the uncontested Republican presidential primary on the same day. They argued that it is also unprecedented for the Senate to set the date of a special election prior to the effective date that a senator actually resigns. (A "Yea" vote is for holding the election on March 2. A "Nay" vote is against the March 2 date).

Senator Hedlund: N — Representative Bradley: Y

ALLOW ELECTRONIC SIGNATURE (S 2076)

Senate 39-0, approved and sent the Uniform Electronic Transactions Bill to Gov. Romney. The measure allows contracts and agreements to be signed and validated on-line with an "electronic signature" rather than the typical hard copy, handwritten signature. It also allows doctors to write prescriptions using an electronic signature. The use and form of an electronic signature must be agreed to by all parties in order to be valid and can range from a sender's name typed at the end of an e-mail message to a digitized image of a handwritten signature or a secret PIN used to identify the sender to the recipient. Supporters said the bill is designed to remove barriers to electronic commerce and would bring the state's signature laws into the 21st century while still ensuring that privacy and security are protected. They noted that the provision allowing electronic prescriptions would help patients, doctors and pharmacies and reduce medication errors caused by illegible prescriptions and drugs with similar sounding names. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).

Senator Hedlund: Y — Representative Bradley: Y

HOMESTEAD PROTECTION (S 995)

Senate 38-0, gave near final approval to and sent to the House a bill increasing from $300,000 to $500,000 the amount of equity in a homeowner's home which under current law is protected from seizure by creditors if the homeowner has filed a homestead declaration. The declaration does not provide protection against outstanding taxes, court-ordered support payments, first or second mortgages and any debts incurred prior to filing the homestead declaration. Supporters said that rising real estate values demand an increase in the protection in order to help the average homeowner protect his primary residence from creditors. They noted that homeowners should obtain information on how to obtain the exemption by contacting their local Registry of Deeds. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).

Senator Hedlund: Y — Representative Bradley: Y

Someone to call in a crisis

Women's Center helps abuse victims

This is one in a series of articles about the South Shore Women's Center which is the beneficiary of this newspaper's Gifts of Hope campaign this holiday season.

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

The phone rings at the South Shore Women's Center 24 hours a day.

"How can I stop him?" one caller wants to know. "What can I say so he won't get mad?"

"I don't want to lose my kids. How can I support them if I leave?" asks another.

"We've got to get out now!" a woman cries. "Where can we go to be safe?"

Calls to the Center's Domestic Violence Hotline, 1-888-746-2664, come from women being abused in their own homes, often by those closest to them. So far in 2003, the hotline staff has fielded more than 3,700 confidential calls from women seeking information, support and safe shelter.

"A crisis can be any number of things. It can be emotional. It can be physical," says Suanne (last name withheld), SSWC's coordinator for emergency services. "'Hotline' implies crisis, but you don't have to be in fear of someone chasing you. If you just want to talk, if you have a question, you can reach out and know that someone is here. No one will force you to do anything."

Some women work up the courage to call the center, but can't make themselves come in, she says, because that's another level of admitting to what goes on.

"On the phone, we can give them validation and information on safety planning. We can help them at times when the batterer is not home."

A woman may stay in an abusive relationship for many reasons, including financial dependence, lack of family support, belief that the batterer can change, and fear that leaving will provoke greater violence.

The advocates at SSWC do not tell abuse victims what to do, Suanne says, but help them understand their options and plan for greater safety. A woman may not be able to avoid a confrontation with her batterer, for example, but she can try to move away from rooms with potential weapons (the kitchen) or no escape exit (the bathroom).

If a woman has decided to leave the abusive relationship, SSWC works to protect her safety and help her reestablish herself in the community. Advocates provide practical information on important records and documents she should take with her and discuss the options available to her through the courts and social services.

Often a woman's decision to leave develops over time as the batterer fails to live up to promises to stop the abusive behavior or the abuse escalates, says Suanne. Other times, it is made suddenly after a particularly severe incident, often when children see their mother hurt, or the abuser explodes against them.

YOUR COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER CARES

"We get calls from every part of the state that a woman has just been beaten up or filed for a restraining order and is seeking a safe place," Suanne says. "Most shelters and safe homes don't take in women from the immediate area because of safety."

SSWC may arrange short-term emergency housing for battered women and their children in a network of Safe Homes, she says. The host families in the network undergo careful screening and 30 hours of training in issues related to domestic violence.

"Essentially, you get up and walk away from your life as you know it," says Suanne. "You can't go to work; your kids can't go to school; you have limited contact with friends and family. There are a lot of obstacles to leaving. It's scary."

Once SSWC helps families to settle in a long-term shelter, they can start establishing roots in their new community. SSWC facilitates support groups for women of all ages, races, social and economic groups, and sexual orientations at all stages in the continuum of domestic violence.

"Some have been out of the abusive relationship for years, others have been out for a few months and some are still in the relationship," says Suanne. "They give one another the support of commonality they need. They can say, 'I've been there and it was the worst part of my life, but I've moved on and I'm living for me now.'"

The South Shore Women's Center is a private, nonprofit organization funded in part by the Mass. Dept. of Social Services, federal grants and private fundraising. SSWC is a member agency of the Old Colony United Way and the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women's Services Groups.

During the holidays, SSWC has a particular need for families, companies and individuals to adopt a family affected by domestic violence. The center will provide ages, sizes and wish lists to the sponsors, who can bring wrapped gifts, merchandise cards or cash donations to SSWC for distribution to families. For more information on the Adopt-a-Family program, call Suanne at 781-582-0078.

Exactly who is Rachel Doyle?

CHS senior much more than a star field hockey player

By Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

Who really is Rachel Doyle? Many recognize the Cohasset High senior for her pivotal role in landing the Lady Skippers field hockey team in the MIAA state tournament. So much so her coach and teammates voted her MVP a few weeks ago. The MVP award represents only the tip of the iceberg, which includes a strong dose of leadership, educational focus, and commitment to her community.

When not on the playing field frustrating the hopes of opposing field hockey teams, she dives into her role as the Editor-in-Chief of the school yearbook. This does not surprise her friends who admire her dual gift for leadership and writing.

Says long time friend Jessie Guild: "Rachel has such a good attitude. She serves as a role model for so many people. She can also make us all laugh."

Rachel's extracurricular activities extend well beyond writing, sports and the borders of Cohasset. She loves to volunteer, whether at Father Bill's homeless shelter or for the "Relay for Life" walkathon on behalf of cancer research.

During a recent Mariner interview, Doyle held no punches about her final year in Cohasset. She speaks warmly about her friends, field hockey and the town itself.

"Krissy Watts and Nicole Durant roped me into field hockey back in the seventh grade", she reflects with appreciation.

She credits Coach Bostwick with solidifying her interest in the sport.

"She is so supportive," said Doyle. "Coach Bostwick has clearly been the biggest influence in my field hockey career. When we make mistakes, she cheers us up and we move on very quickly."

Looking forward, Rachel

Wolverines claw Skippers

Big plays do in CHS gridders in playoff loss to Westood, 20-7

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

The story of Tuesday night's first round football playoff game at Cohasset High was big plays. Westwood made them, host Cohasset didn't. End of story.

With its 20-7 win, Westwood now moves on to face Tyngsboro on Sunday in the Div. 5 Eastern Mass Super Bowl, while the Cohasset team looks back on its second first round playoff loss in three years.

Veteran Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe felt Tuesday's showdown turned on a the Wolverines second big play of the game, a 63-yard touchdown run by fullback Russell Keene with 6:49 to play in the third quarter that, with the extra point kick, put Westwood up 14-0. Ironically, this gamebreaker came on a halfback trap run, a play Cohasset had defended quite well all season.

"That's a play we've seen a lot of times and never given up anything big on it," said Rolfe, who has directed the Skippers to South Shore League titles two of the last three years.

On the play, Keene took the ball on a delay and popped around a nice seal block at left tackle into open field. He got quickly to the left sideline, and bounced off the final Cohasset defender at the five-yard line and then high stepped into the end zone.

Up to that point in the game, neither team seemed to have

All-Scholastic boys soccer team

Cohasset's Clark, Buick and Brewer named among area's elite

As is always the case with these kinds of things, the selection process with this team was not an easy one.

Several of the young men you see listed below as "Honorable Mentions" received serious consideration for All-Scholastic acknowledgement.

In the end, however, we limited ourselves to a team of just 23, and, after consulting with area coaches, we do feel secure that we chose the top boys soccer players in Marinerland for this honor.

Conor Buick- Senior (Capt.)
Sweeper- Cohasset

Conor Buick

The iron curtain on defense... Buick moved from stopper to sweeper this season and became one of the best sweepers on the South Shore...the rangy 6-foot-3 athlete absolutely owned the goal box and simply did lose on balls in the air...took most free kicks for the 14-4 Skippers...missed All-Eastern Mass honors by one spot...two time South Shore League all-star...had a goal and a few assists this season despite being the "final line of defense"...plays lacrosse at CHS as well...plays soccer year round with the Cohasset Gunners, comprised mostly of fellow CHS seniors, including fellow Mariner All-Scholastics Chris Clark and Jesse Brewer... four year varsity team member...Honor Roll student...is the fourth of five Buick brothers to star athletically at CHS...brother Ronan (class of 2001) was a Mariner All-Scholastic in football and lacrosse and is now playing lacrosse at Providence College...sophomore brother was also a standout for the CHS soccer team this fall...would like to play college soccer...Bentley is among the school he's considering...leaning toward majoring in Mathematics or Computer Science...Cohasset coach Rob Leary: "Conor does all the little things well. You might not notice him all the time, but if he wasn't there all the time you'd notice that real quick. He's got so much composure and he's such a constant force. He plays the ball very quickly and is extremely smart with it. He reads the ball so well, which is why he just never seems to be out of position."

Chris Clark - Senior (Capt.)
Midfield - Cohasset

Chris Clark

Two time Mariner All-Scholastic selection... moved from striker to midfield midway through his senior season, and wound up leading the 14-4 Skippers in scoring for the second straight season...finished with 28 points (17 goals, 11 assists)...an exceptionally talented dribbler and passer who has added to that a blistering shot over the last two seasons...plays soccer year round with a number CHS teammates... four year varsity team member...previously played in the extremely competitive LASA (Latin American Soccer Association) for the Taunton Eagles club team...Two-time South Shore League...named an Eastern Mass All-Star as a junior...a B student...plans to play soccer and major in Liberal Arts in college...has been actively recruited

First CHS alumni soccer game draws 39 players

Donze, Henry, Kahn Lead Teams To 2-2 Tie

Thirty years after the first varsity soccer team took the field for Cohasset High School, an alumni game featuring 39 former players was held Saturday afternoon at Milliken Field.

Organized by Jeff Donze, the captain of the 1973 Skippers' varsity - the first team to be officially recognized by the high school — , returnees split into two teams representing, respectively, odd and even years of graduation. Senior players from this season's squad were added to both teams.

"The turnout exceeded my expectations," said Donze. "We not only had a large number of players, but we also got two of our original coaches - George Fortin and Larry Shultz - to run the two teams."

The game featured wide-open play on both sides, with outstanding offense from forwards like Matt Belson (Class of 1997), Steve Sceery (Class of 1999), Ken Leahy (Class of 1996), and Andrew Ross (Class of 1998). Defenders who caught the attention of the large crowd in attendance included Dan Jones (Class 0f 1973), Dan Baird (Class of 1993), Dave Shultz (Class of 1988),. Joel Reidy (Class of 1990) and Chris Kondrat (Class of 1994).

The even-numbered years team scored first, on a header by former Bowdoin College star Eric Henry ('96) off a corner kick from Kondrat, that beat goalkeeper Curt Kahn ('03). The odd-years team responded by several Div. 2 and 3 college coaches, but is hoping to be accepted early admission to Emmanuel College…American International, Bryant and Assumption are also possibilities…Cohasset coach Rob Leary: "You don't see too many players with as many goals as Chris had and still have that many assists too. He's an extremely talented offensive player who really carried a huge load for us this season, especially down the stretch."

Jesse Brewer- Senior
Keeper - Cohasset

Jesse Brewer

Moved from midfield to take over for Curt Kahn (last year's team MVP) in net and wound up being regarded as the South Shore League's best keeper…named an Eastern Mass All-Star…had a goals per game averaged of just over one and an outstanding save percentage…an extremely athletic keeper with superb instincts…made sensational saves appear routine…had a knack for making the "big save" in games…recorded nine shutouts this season for the 14-4 Skippers…four year varsity team member…played tennis for the CHS team his freshman and sophomore year and plans to return to the team this spring…plays soccer year round with the Cohasset Gunners, comprised mostly of fellow CHS seniors, including fellow Mariner All-Scholastics Chris Clark and Coner Buick…National Honor Society member…member of the Cohasset Ping Pong Club…hoping to play college soccer…UMass-Amherst, St. Michaels and McGill (Montreal) are the leading college possibilities…plans to major in Communications…Cohasset coach Rob Leary: "Every game, Jesse would seem to come up with that huge save that either saved the game for us or turned the momentum. I think, being a field player last year, he was able to bring that mindset to keeper. He thought the same way forwards do."

Garrett Bates - Senior (Capt.)
Midfield - Norwell

Garrett Bates

Norwell's raging bull is now a two-time Mariner All-Scholastic, as well as a first time All-Eastern Mass selection and a three-timer South Shore League all-star…absolutely relentless in his pursuit of the ball at both ends of the field…had eight goals and 10 assists this season for the Div. 3 south sectional champion Clippers…at least once or twice per game would produce an electrifying rush combining superior speed, strength and skills…helped lead Norwell to consecutive SSSL titles the last two years…pulled rib cage muscles in state tourney opener, and was a mere shadow of himself for the rest of the postseason, but still missed nary a minute on the field…four year varsity team member and three year starter…plays club soccer for the Div. 1 Galway Rovers…plays in summer YMCA leagues and winter indoor leagues at the Hingham Sports Center…runs winter track for Norwell High, and has played lacrosse the last few springs for the school team…a good student with a 3.37 GPA…would like to play college soccer and has already talked to a few coaches…Babson, Stonehill, WPI and Bentley are among the possibilities… Norwell coach Jack Browne: "I think he was the best all-around player in the South Shore League this year. His work ethic is just amazing and he has one speed: all out, all the time. He's a talented player, but it's that relentless approach that sets him apart."

Ryan Henry- Senior (Capt.)
Midfield- Norwell

This All-Eastern Mass player battled through a number of injuries this season to have a sensational season and play a key role in the Clippers run to a second straight South Shore League championship and Div. 3 south sectional championship…an absolute force in the midfield…superior strength, speed and footwork make him virtually unstrippable when the ball is at his feet…wins a remarkable number of 50-50 balls…had six goals and six assists, but started a number of rushes that did not show up in the scorebook with his rushes and deft passing…two-time South Shore League all-star…three year varsity team member and starter… a member of the Galway Rovers soccer club team that recently finished as runners-up for the Mass. Premiere Elite League championship…also a track star at Norwell High in winter and spring…earned a Mariner All-Scholastic for spring track as a junior…an extremely accomplished Website designer, he created and maintains the Bostontrack.com website that reports on South Shore League track…a National Honor Society student…is hoping to attend Boston College and run track…plans to major in Business or something related to computers…Norwell coach Jack Browne: "Even with the various injuries this season to his legs, which are really his greatest strength, he managed to be huge for us whenever he was in there. He's just so strong in the midfield. A lot of our offense flowed through him."

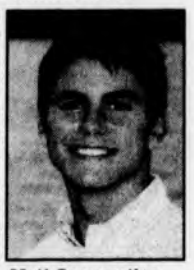
Ryan Henry

Rob Beach- Senior (Capt.)
Forward- Norwell

Rob Beach

The third member of the Div. 3 South Sectional champion Clippers named an Eastern Mass All-Star…Rob absolutely exploded on the scene this season, finishing among the leaders in Eastern Mass in scoring with 21 goals and 15 assists in 17 games…unfortunately, his season was cut short when he suffered a fractured orbital bone in a 3-2 win over Hingham a week before the postseason got underway…South Shore League all-star…At 5-feet-9, 125 pounds, Rob's not the biggest, strongest or fastest kids, but he has an uncanny knack for freeing up his shooting foot and unloading in the blink of an eye with hard and accurate shots…also runs winter and spring track for Norwell High… plays soccer in the off season for the Cambridge City Soccer Club…previously played club for the South Shore United Blazers and the South Shore YMCA…has played in Europe as part of a club team based out of Ohio and helped that team win a tourney in Denmark…Honor Roll students with a 3.6 GPA…plans to play college soccer and has even talked to a few Div. 1 programs…leaning toward majoring in Business…Norwell coach Jack Browne: "I expected Rob to have a big year this season, but he absolutely blew me away with the way he stepped up and became the type of scorer we needed. He's got an incredible trigger. It's amazing how little time and space he needs to get off a great shot. He's worked awfully hard on his speed and quickness, as well as his game, and it was great to see that hard work pay off."

Matt Sammartino- Senior (Capt.)
Fullback- Norwell



Matt Sammartino

Does this guy ever lose a ball in the air? Despite standing barely 5-foot-10, aggressiveness and superb quickness and instincts helped "Sammy" regularly out-duel much bigger marks for balls in the air…also exceptional at controlling the ball on the ground as well…was rarely beaten one-on-one…did a sensational job of not only stripping opponents, but also working the ball upfield quickly…a very vocal leader…South Shore League all-star…Three year varsity team member…plays soccer year round on various teams… previously played lacrosse and ran track at NHS…Honor Roll student with 3.5 GPA… enjoys surfing and snowboarding… older sister Lisa was a Norwell High track star who went on to run at Harvard University…was accepted for early entry to Providence College…leaning toward majoring in Business…may try to play soccer for the Friars Div. 1 college program after his freshman year…Norwell coach Jack Browne: "Matt is one of the toughest kids I've ever coached. Pound for pound, he's as tough as anyone I've seen at this level. I don't know how he's able to win and intercept all the balls he does. And he's just so consistent. In three years, I can't remember very many mistakes or breakdowns at all from him."

Andrew Olsen- Sophomore
Striker- Norwell

Andrew Olsen

The leading scorer for the South Sectional champion Clippers with 21 goals and 17 assists… supremely talented player follows in the footsteps of older brothers Ryan and Brett, former Norwell High stars who are now both playing at Williams College…near unparalleled foot skills…a superb passer who takes all corners and most free kicks for the Clippers…makes South Shore League All-star…finished among the top 10 scorers in Eastern Mass… plays club soccer for the South Shore United Blazers in the MAPLE…plays indoors at the Hingham Sports Dome…a High Honors student this term… hopes to play college soccer…Norwell coach Jack Browne: "Andrew is such an entertaining kid to watch and be around. There were times other teams concentrated on shutting him down, but he still got the job done. He got so much talent and poise. It's easy to forget he's just a sophomore."

Justin Flanagan - Senior (Capt.)
Forward - Hingham

Justin Flanagan

This two-time Mariner All-Scholastic was the most consistent of Hingham's 11 goal scorers this season, leading the squad for the second-straight year with 26 points on 19 goals, 7 assists…This also put him atop the PL scoring standings…The four-year starter's strength and solid skills on the frontline helped the Harbormen capture its first Patriot League title (10-0-2) in three years…A two-time PL All-star and Eastern Mass. All-star this season, Flanagan rarely fouled and guided the top-seeded Harbormen (16-2-2) to the quarterfinals of the Div. 2 South Sectional, where they dropped a 1-0 heartbreaker to PL rival and eventual state finalist, Middleboro…Flanagan also plays baseball at HHS and plans to attend college next fall. Hingham coach Ken Carlin: "He's was a player who could score without fouling, which is pretty unusual. He's strong and very coachable. He learned how to shoot with his left foot and actually won a game early on because of it. He's a perfect gentleman and plays like one too."

You'll find one of the most diverse selections of quality rugs with over a 30,000 square foot showroom and over $5,000,000 inventory to choose from!

Modern?

Classic?

Tribal?

Abstract?

There's no place like Dover Rug for finding the exact right rug to suit your life-style, your home, your mood, or whatever desire you might have to express the beauty of your inner self in some timeless way- from totally modern to powerfully tribal.

But no matter what kind of a person you are, if you're a person on a budget, then there is absolutely no excuse. You must visit Dover Rug. We guarantee our prices and we offer a lifetime, lifetime trade-in policy. We'll even let you try a rug in your home to see if you two have the right chemistry together.

Naturally, we always have the best selection of classic orientals and, of course, broadloom carpeting- from the very, very best to the very, very affordable.

Three Generations of Rug Making
Since the early 1900s the Jafri family has been making and selling rugs around the world. Just outside of Lahore Pakistan is the original Dover workshop where many of our rugs are still made today, the same way they were made back then- by hand.

Rugs in School
A rug can teach you a lot about art, history, culture, and tradition. We can learn about the tradition of rug making. Every year, school children visit our store and design their own rugs.

Skippers nearly scuttled by Pirates

CHS gridders hold off upset minded Hull in Turkey Day showdown

The Skippers headed into post-season play with a 9-1 record, including a perfect 5-0 mark in South Shore League play, as they withheld a late charge by the Hull Pirates and escaped with a 7-6 victory on a sunny and mild Thanksgiving morning in Hull.

Cohasset was slated to host Tri-Valley League champion Westwood (10-1) in the preliminary round of the MIAA Super Bowl tournament this past Tuesday night.

The annual Thanksgiving Day showdown began with each team punting on their first two offensive possessions. Hull's second punt was fumbled by CHS senior punt returner Chris Bilodeau, but junior defensive back Crandon Leahy recovered the loose ball on the Pirates 42 yard line.

On the first play from scrimmage, an option play to the right side, senior quarterback Mike Dooley faked the handoff to junior fullback Ted Straughn and carried the ball 42 yards untouched down the right sideline to pay dirt. This was Dooley's eighth rushing TD of the season. On the play, senior right guard Steve Davis took out the defensive tackle, the defensive end went for the fake to Straughn, sophomore right tackle Dan McCarthy cleared out the linebacker, and senior tight end Sean Connolly blocked the cornerback, just as the coaches drew it up. Connolly hit his tenth (out of 13 attempts) extra point of the season and the Skippers had a 7-0 lead with 3:04 left in the first quarter.

Hull punted on their third offensive series, and Bilodeau returned it 25 yards to the Hull 34-yard line. Senior tailback DeWayne Morris (128 yards rushing) carried twice for to get the Skippers a first down at the 24.

Dooley then hit junior wideout D J Silvia for a 10-yard gain. The ball was stripped as Silvia struggled to advance the ball inside the 15-yard line, however. Hull's Brandon Albert picked it up and had clear sailing down the right sideline. Dooley tracked him down from behind and forced him out at Cohasset's 19-yard line, saving a Pirate touchdown.

The Pirates then ran for their first first down of the game and had the ball on the Cohasset four going in, but Albert fumbled on the one-yard line and junior defensive tackle Matt Baroudi recovered the ball in the end zone for a touchback.

A Cohasset punt and 15 yard penalty gave the Pirates the ball on Cohasset's 49-yard line midway through the second quarter. Straughn, at linebacker, ended this drive with an interception at Cohasset's 37-yard line and returned it all the way to the Hull 25.

Morris followed the blocking of senior left tackle Dan Tarpey and sophomore left guard Nick Arment, and sprinted 20 yards to the five-yard line. The Skippers gave it back, however, as Dooley was intercepted in the end zone on second-and-goal from the five.

The defense, led by senior linebacker Tony Truglia's 16 tackles (highest single game total of the season), got the ball back one more time for the Skippers before the half. On fourth down from the six-yard line Dooley's pass went through the hands of Silvia in the end zone.

The clubs hit the locker rooms with Cohasset holding a 7-0 lead.

The Pirates took the ball from their own 30-yard line, down inside the Skippers red zone on a time consuming drive to open the second half. Silvia, at cornerback, halted the drive and the Pirates momentum with an interception of Hull's QB Pat Good in the end zone.

Cohasset's only possession of the third quarter had Morris carrying five straight times. On the last rush, a pitchout, Hull recovered his fumble.

The Skippers defense stiffened as junior linebacker Matt Casey stuffed a Pirate rush attempt, and juniors Kelvin Ferriera and Leo Clougherty on the defensive line forced a couple of incomplete passes with their all out rush, and the Skippers held the Pirates on downs.

Then the Pirates forced Cohasset to punt again after three more rushes by Morris netted only six yards. The Pirates fielded the punt by junior Joe Durkin and started another time consuming drive from their own 49-yard line with eight minutes to go in the game. The final play was a two-yard quarterback keep by Good up the middle with 1:37 left in the game.

Hull elected to go for the win with a 2-point conversion attempt. Straughn broke through from his linebacker slot and was dragging down Albert, who had taken the handoff and drove to the left side, as his desperation pass attempt went incomplete.

The drama didn't end there, as Morris fumbled on the ensuing first down and Hull took over at their own 45 yard line. Crandon Leahy intercepted Good's pass attempt on their first down play, which enable the Skippers to run out the clock by taking the knee on the next three plays.

Wolverines claw Skippers

much going on on the offensive side of the ball. In particular, Cohasset front line defenders Tony Truglia, Matt Casey and Kelvin Ferriera did a superb job of bottling up the Wildcats vaunted running game. Star halfback Ryan Murphy was held to just 81 yards on 21 carries, but 63 of those came on just three carries when he was able to turn the corner on the outside. Inside, there was very little available all night.

The first score of the game came with 1:13 remaining in the first half when a wobbly pass from 28 yards out by Westwood quarterback Jeff White got over the head of slipping CHS senior captain Chris Bilodeau and fell into the arms of intended target Chris Laham in the right corner of the end zone. Laham's kick made it 7-0.

"Up to that point, I thought we'd played real well, and figured we couldn't get real down after that," said Rolfe. "That touchdown was just one of those things. I do think, though, that it set the tempo for the game."

The problem was, even with the Cohasset defense providing excellent field position for much of the night, the offense simply could not get untracked. The Skippers totaled just 48 yards of offense in five first half possessions.

"Really, until the fourth quarter, we just could get anything going on offense, and I don't really know what the problem was," conceded Rolfe. "(Westwood) did have some very good players on defense though. 44 (linebacker David Bernard) gave us fits all night and 23 (linebacker Russ Keene) was very good too."

Keene, in fact, seemed to spend more time in the Cohasset backfield than many of the Skippers backs, and Bernard was in DeWayne Morris' face all night, playing a key role in holding Cohasset's 1,200 yard rusher to just 62 yards on 25 carries.

The beginning of the end for the Skippers might have been their inability to seize the momentum provided when the defense stuffed the Wolverines on their opening possession of the second half on a fourth-and-one run, giving the ball back to Cohasset at the Westwood 41-yard line. Three straight incomplete passes from quarterback Mike Dooley and a fake punt that was sniffed out by Bernard gave Westwood back the ball at the 40-yard line.

It was just two plays later that Keene delivered the game-breaker.

The Wildcats essentially iced the game on their next possession when fullback James Vanaria went hard over right guard on a quick handoff, split the secondary and raced 48 yards for a touchdown. The extra point kick failed, leaving it a 20-0 game with 3:36 to go in the third quarter.

There was no quit in the Skippers, however.

A 20-yard return on a short kick by Crandon Leahy and a 25-yard bull run by fullback Tony Truglia set Cohasset up first-and-10 at Westwood's 18-yard line, its best first down field position of the night to that point. However, a fumble on third-and-six turned the ball back over to Westwood.

Dooley (six completions for 71 yards) would get it going on the Skippers next possession, completing a couple of passes to Bilodeau for a combined 29 yards to help move the Skippers to the Westwood 6-yard line. However, the Wolverines stood tall here, stuffing the Skippers on the next four plays to take the ball back on downs with 8:46 to play.

After the Cohasset D forced Westwood three-and-out again, the Skippers finally got on the board when Dooley capped a 36-yard drive by hitting DJ Silvia in the left front corner of the end zone from 13 yards out. The Sean Connolly kick made it a 20-7 game with 3:34 to play.

Westwood handled the ensuing on-side kick to kill any thoughts the home crowd had of a miraculous comeback.

just before halftime, as Ely Kahn ('97) triggered a breakout that led to current senior Chris Clark feeding Matt Belson with a setup. Belson fired the shot past current senior goalkeeper Jesse Brewer to tie the game at 1-1.

In the second half, the even-years again took the lead, with Henry's second goal just getting by a diving Brewer (the two goalies switched teams at halftime). But the odd-years came back, and evened things up again when Chris Clark put one just inside the post.

As the final minutes wound down, the even-years had a great chance to win it, but defender Leigh Atherton ('98) cleared the shot off the goal line in the last minute to preserve the tie.

At a post-game reception at the Red Lion Inn, organizer Donze announced that next year's game would be even better.

"We've set the stage for this to be an annual event," said Donze. "I wouldn't be surprised if we eventually have to have two games - one for the old guys, and one for the young ones."

The Maitland family won the award for best turnout, with three players (Tammy, '96, Justin, '99, and Peter, '02).

Six other families had two players apiece - the Bairds (Tim '02, Mike, '99), the Kahns (Ely, '97, Curt, '03), the Shultzes, (David, '88, Brian, '90), the Laneys (Andrew, '99, Steve, '02), the Buicks, (Devin, '99, Conor, '04, along with game referee David Buick), and the Leahys (Ken, '96, Pat, '98).

The roster of alumni players: Donze, Jones, Victor Vanderlucht ('77), Mike DeSantis ('85), Kevin Henry ('86), Steve Myers ('88), D. Shultz, J. Reidy, B. Shultz, C. Kondrat ('94), D. Baird, K. Leahy, T. Maitland, E. Henry, E. Kahn, M. Belson, Nate Cotter ('98), A. Ross, P. Leahy, Josh Flanagan ('98), L. Atherton, D. Buick, A. Laney, J. Maitland, Ben Peterson ('00), S. Laney, P. Brewer and Rob Leary, coach of the Cohasset High varsity.

says: "I will clearly miss the ocean and the beach if I decide to attend an inland college."

Not surprisingly, she has expressed a strong interest in pursuing course studies in both English and Linguistics.

She cites Mr. Leary, a 10th grade teacher, for elevating her attraction to language and writing.

She sounds ready to move on to new horizons where she can "explore different cultures.

"Cohasset remains a little limited in this area," she notes.

She harbors no intention of ditching field hockey or her other athletic love, softball.

She may find herself many miles from Cohasset next fall but the CHS field hockey squad will remain on her mind.

"I hope this year's sophomores will step up to the plate and fill the missing spots," said Rachel, pointing to Katie James and Brook Allen as two athletes to watch especially closely.

"They played fantastically this season," she noted of the pair of 10th graders.

The Lady Skippers will deeply miss their league all-star and MVP next fall. Coach Deb Bostwick refers to her exiting star in terms like "extremely hardworking, determined" and "an all around great person."

Some college next fall will luck out by opening its doors to this very talented and centered student.

Members of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset's House Tour decorating committees are delighted with the materials that were gathered for the decorating workshop. They are from left, Iku Isihara, Kathy Morgan, Pat Cammett, Fran O'Toole, and Claire Tinory.

Cohasset homes dressing up for Dec. 13 holiday house tour

The decorating workshops have begun for the Community Garden Club of Cohasset's very popular biannual holiday House Tour. This year it is called "Christmas Gatherings".

Head decorators have formed teams who have gathered natural material to make decorations for the five houses on this years Dec. 13 tour. Each group strives to use as much natural material as possible to maintain the club◊s naturalist philosophy. Once the decorations are completed, the committees will flesh out the designs and begin decorating according to the theme chosen for each of the homes.

Once the decorations are completed, the committees will flesh out the designs and begin decorating according to the theme chosen for each of the homes.

In choosing a theme, Kathy Gray, chairwoman of this year's event, asked each decorator to think of the ticket-holders as guests to an event at each home. The theme events, chosen in collaboration with the homeowners, are: a string quartet at the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph on Jerusalem Road; an elegant afternoon tea at the Flanagans and a wintry evening dinner at the Flints, both on South Main Street; a cocktail party at the Shockmans on Border Street; and a Christmas tea at the Ulmers on Margin Street.

Once the homes are decorated in the spirit of the season, committee members traditionally make a suggestion to those who have opened their homes for the tour: "Throw a party when the tour is over. Enjoy your decorations". They usually have a party that weekend. The Sisters of the Congregation of St. Joseph have decided to hold a tea.

Tickets for the tour include maps and are still available. They are $20 in advance, $23 the day of the tour. Tickets, a holiday tea, and a gift boutique will be at the Second Congregational Church on Cohasset Common. The Church will also be decorated. Tickets are also available in Cohasset at Flemings, 24 Elm St., The South Shore Community Center, 5 North Main St., and Buttonwoods Books in Shaw's Plaza on 3A. In Hingham they are available at Bowl and Board, 140 North Main St.. In North Scituate, they are available at Emporium Naturals, 763 Country Way.

INCREASING AWARENESS

While it is estimated that one third of people age 65 and older are hearing impaired, many are not even aware that they have a problem. In fact, according to a Northwestern University study of 200 women between the ages of 35 and 80, hearing tests were not part of their health care routines, even though 13% of those 55 and older were already hearing impaired. With this in mind, ask yourself when was the last time that you had your hearing evaluated. If you have difficulty hearing conversation in noisy environments, or if you have trouble distinguishing consonants in the speech of women and children, it may be time to get your hearing tested.

Although hearing loss often goes undetected, it is actually one of the most common health problems in this country (only high blood pressure and arthritis are more common). And, when we realize how many causes there are (noise, aging, heredity, infection, trauma, smoking, etc.), it's no wonder. If your hearing is not what it once was or what it could be, we invite you to call us at FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER, 781-337-1144. We're located at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth. We also have an office in Abington.

P.S. State-of-the-art digital hearing instruments utilize microchips to enhance speech, reduce background noise, and adjust volume.

Luncheon, fashion show benefit Dec. 11

A festive holiday luncheon and Talbot's fashion show will be held Dec. 11 from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Atlantica Restaurant on the harbor.

The event will benefit Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum, now under construction in the two-story wing behind the Paul Pratt Library. Planners for the museum and its associated playground are aiming for a 2004 completion.

Tickets for the luncheon and fashion show will be $50. Seating is limited and reservations are necessary. For information or reservations, call 781-383-0407.

Beechwood Church holds Christmas fair

The Beechwood Congregational Church, 51 Church St., will hold its annual Christmas Fair Saturday, Dec. 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. In the morning enjoy a cup of fresh coffee and hot fried bread dough or at lunch time your choice of chowder (corn or clam), hot dogs and homemade dessert.

As you enter the church you can smell the aroma of fresh evergreen wreaths and home-baked goods that will be on display and for sale. Take your time and browse at one of the many tables — food, candy, white elephant, fancy work and ornaments. A special table is set up for the children with prizes and games. Back by popular demand is the famous beach glass candy. Once again, this hard candy, cut by hand offers many flavors (such as peppermint, spearmint, butter rum, anise, lemon-lime — to name a few) is sure to please just about everyone. Arrive early while the supply lasts.

Also on display will be two patchwork quilts, one twin quilt with pillow sham and one child's. Tickets available at the fair. Mark your calendar for Saturday, Dec. 6. Come shop and share your personality.

Holiday Fair at Greek Church

The Philoptochos (ladies group) will sponsor a Holiday Fair at the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church on Saturday, Dec. 13 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be Boxwood trees, decorated wreaths and many holiday sweets and baked goods that the community has come to enjoy. Come one, come all to the beautiful church at 811 Jerusalem Rd., Cohasset.

For information call Fay Papadopolous at 781-545-7876.

Historical Society Wassail Party

The Cohasset Historical Society Wassail Party is Sunday Dec. 7 from 2-4 p.m. at 106 South Main St.

The Board of Directors cordially invites the public to attend the Society's Annual Wassail Party this year at our new headquarters. In addition to good cheer and hospitality, the society will draw the winners of its two raffle items, paintings by W. K. Gilbert, At the Edge of the Sea and Approaching Minot's Light - circa 1850. The values of the paintings are $1,500 and $3,500 respectively. Tickets are $75. Stop by the Pratt Building today or tomorrow between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. or call at 781-383-1434 to see the framed pieces and to buy your raffle tickets. There is a reserve and refunds will be given if the reserve is not met.

The drawings will take place at 4 p.m. What better gift could there be – a gift for the Society and a gift for you! You can do all your holiday shopping right at the Pratt. Stacy Rock's CD "Mother of Ireland" is available as well as her "Christmas Angel" CD . The society has note cards of the four commissioned paintings by W. K. Gilbert who will coming for the occasion. Gilbert is renowned for his marine paintings as well as sports, and racing car works.

At 2:30 p.m. the Beechwood Bell Ringers of the Beechwood Congregational Church will present a performance of Christmas Carols in the style of bell ringing on Beacon Hill in the early 1900s.

Christmas concert helps kids with cancer

First Parish has been holding Christmas concerts and donating the proceeds for the past 24 years. Thanks to generous support, over $45,000 has gone to worthy local, national, and international organizations. This year's Concert is dedicated to former minister Ed Atkinson who conceived of the idea in 1978.

This year's Christmas Concert on Dec. 14 at 4 p.m. features Margo Euler and the Unicorn Singers performing John Rutter's "Magnificat.". The seven movements set the text as found in the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, with the addition of a tranquil setting of the 15th-century "Of a rose, a Lovely Rose." The remainder of the hour-long 25th anniversary Christmas event will feature favorite carol settings for the audience to sing with the choir.

A reception will follow celebrating the event's 25ht year. Concert Patron donations of $50 or more may be sent to: First Parish in Cohasset, 23 No. Main Street, Cohasset, MA 02025 (two tickets included and published acknowledgement); advanced tickets at $10 go on sale Nov. 24 (781 383-1100); tickets are $12 at the door.

The beneficiary of the Christmas Concert this year is the "Artist in Residence" program at Mass. General Hospital for Children with Cancer. The current artist is Joan Drescher of Hingham. Twice a week she moves her "Imagination Kart" through the bustling halls of the hospital. The Kart is covered with little spinning kites, moons, stars and streamers. It is filled with art supplies to inspire hospitalized children to explore their imaginations and cope with the stress of illness and loss. Her dream is that the simple images of hope and beauty created by the children will open hearts and make the world a better place.

Volunteers make Village Fair special

Cohasset Common may look as peaceful as ever, all dressed in its holiday lights, but that image belies all the hustle and bustle going on behind the scenes in preparation for this Saturday's Village Fair on the Common.

From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. this Saturday, Dec. 6, Cohasset Common, its three surrounding churches and Town Hall will be transformed into a holiday marketplace full of treasures of all kinds.

Hundreds of volunteers are busy knitting, sewing, baking, decorating and creating beautiful handmade decorations, gifts and culinary treats to support this important holiday fundraiser.

"We have so many great gift ideas this year including stylish bamboo-handled handbags, gorgeous hand-knit scarves, and those very popular polar fleece scarves and ski bands done up in Skippers blue and white and other local school colors," says Linda Indek, a volunteer from Second Congregational Church.

"So many of our volunteers have a special talent to offer," added Indek, who has herself created holiday decorations for Circa Home Furnishings in Norwell, and who helps to make the gorgeous dried wreaths and holiday garlands on sale at the Second Congregational Church.

The Greek Orthodox's Church's popular Café and General Store at Town Hall is testament to the wonderful variety of offerings at the Fair. Homemade Baklava and Spanakopita are just a few of the treats you'll find at Town Hall alongside beautiful fresh holiday greens and decorations.

"Each church offers something unique," added Dienna Lehner, a volunteer from First Parish. "Our popular Swedish Bake Shop was established years ago by parishioner Sine Pounder, a Swedish American who once owned a bakery of her own. She recruits and trains new Swedish bakers every year who'll begin baking at 5:30 a.m. on Saturday to make the more than 1,500 popular cinnamon buns sold at the Fair every year."

"So many people — young and old — contribute to the success of this Fair," added Lehner, who noted that many young teens from First Parish's Coming of Age Group have worked hard these last few months to create the beautiful table top trees that will be sold at First Parish.

"It's a lot of work, but a lot of fun too," notes Sheila Wallingford, one of St. Stephen's many volunteers who've been busy baking, collecting and creating wonderful gifts and treats that will be sold at St. Stephen's Book Sale, Bake Shop and Country Store this Saturday. "This fair is such an important fundraiser and supports many local charities including the Cohasset Food Pantry, Father Bill's Place, The Mary Martha Learning Center in Hingham, and Wellspring in Hull."

Volunteers from Cohassset's Appalachia Service Project are also actively involved in planning and running the Children's Secret Room inside St. Stephen's Church, where young children can select and wrap a "secret" gift for Mom or Dad, or a sibling or pet, and have it ready to go under the tree. All gifts are just $1 to $4.

The Village Fair is sponsored by the First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church, the Second Congregational Church, Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Nativity Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church, and the non-profit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (ASP). All proceeds support the work of the churches, local charities and ASP's home repair program.

OBITUARIES

Louis C. Souther

Louis C. Souther, 81, of Canton, formerly of Cohasset, died Nov. 27, 2003, at the Milton Hospital.

Son of the late Edward E.F. and Sally Fabens (Cushing) Souther, he was a 1940 graduate of Cohasset High School, he attended the New England Aircraft School in Boston and later moved to Virginia and became one of the original employees of NASA. After the outbreak of World War II, he returned home, joined the U.S. Navy and was stationed in Brazil throughout the duration serving as an aviation mechanic. During this time, he took flying lessons on his off duty hours, got his license and managed to become reasonably proficient in Portuguese.

In his early career he was a design machinist/engineer for local manufacturing firms. He then joined the U.S. Defense Department where he served as an industrial specialist for two decades. He retired at age 60 in 1981, and began Souther Engineering, a business in which he manufactured and marketed the Souther Linear Tonearm on a worldwide basis. Mr. Souther obtained a patent on the tonearm shortly before retiring. After seven years of operation, establishing a network of U.S. dealers and overseas distributors he sold the company to a German firm in 1988 when the growth of the compact disc began overtaking analog record sales in the U.S.

Following his second retirement, he renewed his interest in motorcycles traveling throughout New England, northern New York state and Canada. He liked to say that over the years he clocked more than 200,000 miles on his many bikes.

In his younger years he was active in boating. In 1970 he served as commodore of the Winter Harbor Yacht Club on Lake Winnipesaukee. In the 1960's he was an active competitor in gymkhanas held by the Plymouth Country Sportscar Club. He also maintained his interest in audio as an dedicated member of the Boston Audio Society for more than two decades.

Mr. Souther leaves his wife of 53 years, Catherine (Nancy) Greene Souther; a sister, Helen A. Hobbs of Brevard, N.C.; many nieces and nephews, cousins and friends.

Funeral services were held on Dec. 3. Interment was in Cohasset Central Cemetery.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset, handled the arrangements.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Cohasset Central Cemetery Association, 44 Ripley Road, Cohasset, MA 02025

Edward J. Sweeney Jr.

A graveside service for Edward J. Sweeney Jr. was held at Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Mr. Sweeney, 72, of Cohasset, a former employee of General Dynamics in Quincy and a retired Navy officer, died Nov. 8, 2003, at New England Medical Center.

He was a firefighter and emergency medical technician in Cohasset for 15 years.

Born in Jamaica, N.Y., he lived in Cohasset for 57 years. He was a 1949 graduate of Cohasset high School.

A veteran of the Vietnam War, Mr. Sweeney served 20 years and retired as a lieutenant. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He enjoyed fishing and was an animal lover and advocate.

He leaves a brother, Robert L. Sweeney of Scituate; three nephews, Shawn M. Sweeney and Torin G. Sweeney of Scituate and Kirk A. Sweeney of Hanover; and six grandnieces and nephews. He was son of the late Capt. Edward J. Sweeney Sr. and Dorothy (Hillman) Sweeney.

Arrangements were by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Friends of Scituate Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 823, Scituate, 02066.

Diana M. O'Loughlin

Diana M. (Ubaldini) O'Loughlin, 63, of Porte Vedra Beach, Fla., formerly of Cohasset, died Nov. 27, 2003.

Born in Carbondale, Pa., Mrs. O'Loughlin was a longtime member of St. Anthony Catholic Church and a resident of Cohasset for many years before moving to Porte Vedra, Fla. five years ago.

She was a member of the Porte Vedra Inn and Club, where she was also a concierge.

Wife of the late Peter J. O'Loughlin, she leaves a daughter, Linda A. O'Loughlin of Huntsville, N.C.,; two sisters, Phyllis Matlick of Baltimore, Md. and Loretta Ubaldini of Scranton, Pa.; a nephew, Robert Matlick; a niece, Sharon Potter; and two great-nephews, Robby and Jason Matlick.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Anthony Church, Cohasset. Interment was in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Arrangements were by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the American Lung Association.

Paul Joseph Johnson, 53, of Cohasset, a payroll manager for EMC2 in Hopkinton, died Nov. 24, 2003, at Massachusetts General Hospital following a brief illness.

Born in Boston, Mr. Johnson was raised in Quincy and lived in Needham before moving to Cohasset three years ago.

He graduated from North Quincy High School and Bentley College.

He leaves his wife, Maryellen (O'Toole) Johnson; a daughter, Lauren Marie Johnson of Cohasset; his mother, Louise (Desto) Johnson of Quincy; a brother, Richard Johnson of Florida; a sister, Nancy Bulman of Florida; and several nieces and nephews. He was son of the late Norman P. Johnson.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Anthony Church in Cohasset. Interment was in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Arrangements were by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, memorial gifts may be made to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, 02169.

Cedarmere affordable units to take center stage

it," Callahan said of abutters concerns, adding while the board doesn't necessarily need to participate in the same arguments that have come up many times throughout the preliminary stages, it has an obligation to get the answers abutters want.

Callahan said there are many questions he and the other Selectmen still have surrounding the project, and he thinks the meeting should provide, "All the things we need to know for us to be able to tell the DHCD we endorse it."

But whether or not the board's recommendation to the Department of Housing and Community Development makes or breaks the project is still to be determined, and the discussion will begin at the Selectmen's meeting next week.

Callahan said at the meeting he would also like to discuss issues such as what the mix of rental and market rate units will be and what the estimated costs are for both. He also said the Cedarmere team is going to have to come up with a good wastewater policy, which he believes is in the board's purview to discuss.

The Cedarmere team came before the Planning Board last night after the Mariner went to press and were slated to discuss the letter sent to the Board of Selectmen from the DHCD and eligibility issues, drainage, and Town Counsel input on the Homeowner's Association agreement.

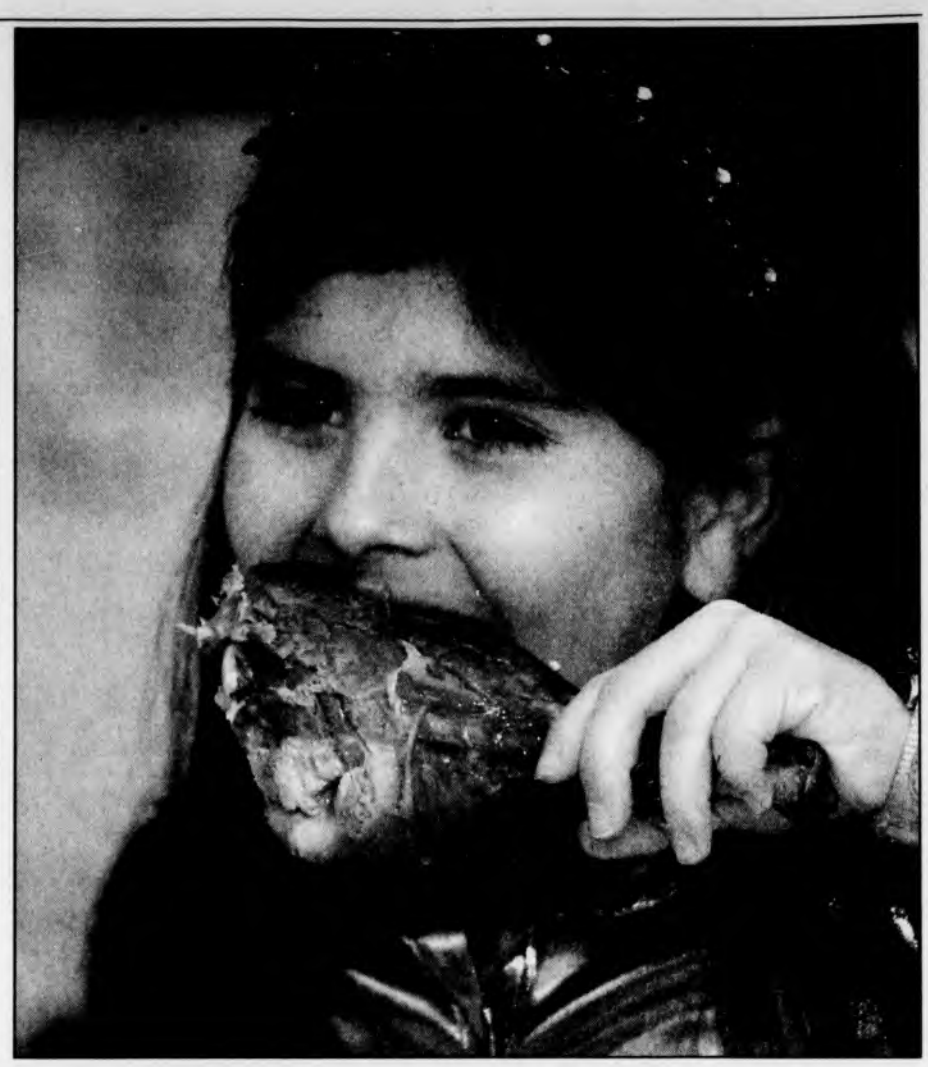
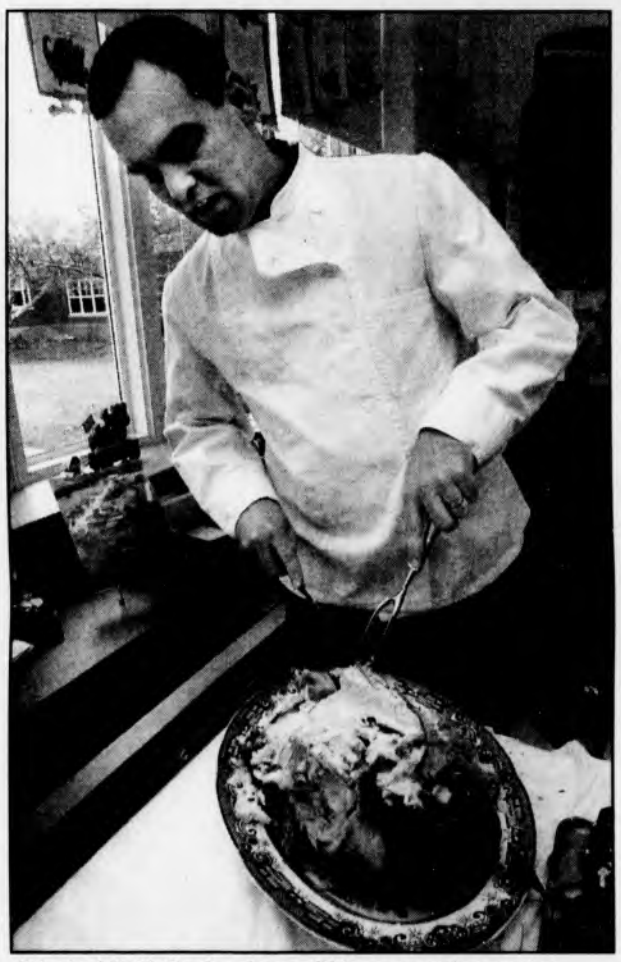
Kids learn turkey table etiquette

Above: Mrs. Clark, top left, eats a Thanksgiving feast with her fourth graders at Deer Hill. The event was the culmination of a social studies curriculum and included a program on etiquette.

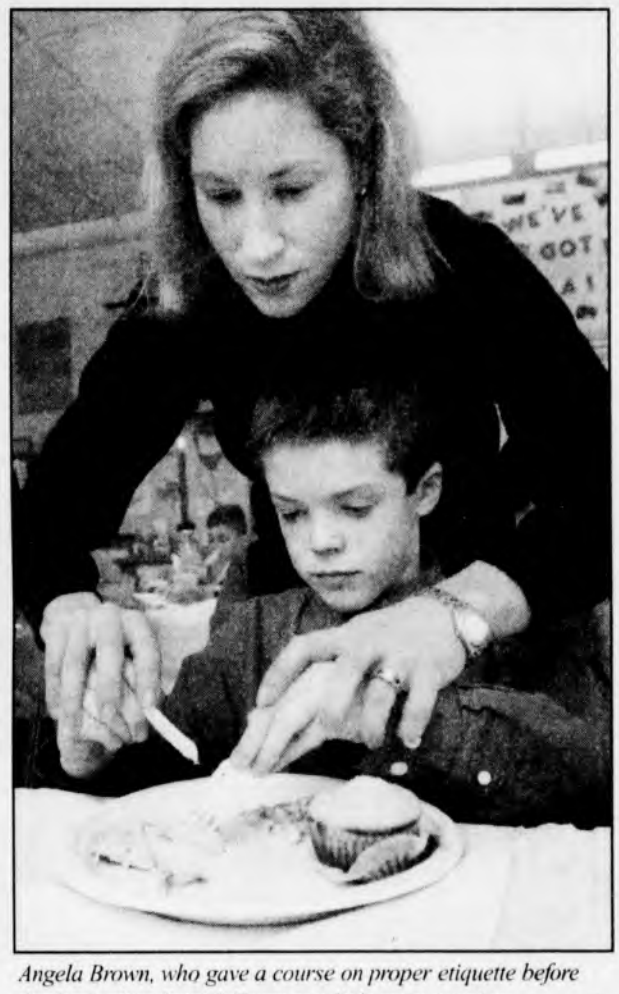


At right: Marie Hillman takes a bite out of a drumstick at the turkey feast in Mrs. Clark's fourth grade at Deer Hill last Wednesday.

Alexiree Hastings enjoys her turkey dinner.



Principal Keith Gauley shows off his expert turkey-carving skills at the fourth-grade feast.



Angela Brown, who gave a course on proper etiquette before the feast, gives Patrick Kearney a little extra tutoring.

Four-quad gates possible at some grade crossings

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

There are railroad rumblings that four-quadrant gates without median barriers may be used at some grade crossings along the Greenbush Line after all.

Following a meeting with state Transportation Secretary Daniel A. Grabauksas, town officials are cautiously optimistic that the gates — which stop traffic in all directions by employing four arms instead of two — could be used at certain grade crossings to enhance safety and for aesthetic reasons.

"I came out of the meeting feeling positive," Cohasset Town Manager Mark Haddad said. "It appeared the issue was open for discussion."

Greenbush towns have been unanimous in seeking four-quad gates rather than standard grade crossing treatments with median barriers. The towns feel four-quad gates are safer and eliminate the need for lengthy median barriers that divide the roadway and could negatively impact neighborhoods.

But up until the Grabauskas meeting earlier this month, the MBTA had literally dug its heels into the ground over the issue, stating in no uncertain terms that the safety of stand-alone, four-quad gates is a technology that has not been significantly developed.

DeGiacomo won't seek another term

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Come springtime, there will be at least one School Committee incumbent who will not be out on the campaign trail.

Mark DeGiacomo, who has served on the School Committee since 1998, has decided to call it quits, leaving his three-year seat up for grabs.

"I've thoroughly enjoyed my five-and-a-half, soon to be six years on the committee, but at this point I think we have a very veteran committee," he said, adding it would be a good time for new people to step in and share their ideas.

But even without his participation on the School Committee, DeGiacomo said he will still be very active in town, as he plans to spend more time on zoning reform and land use issues. He currently serves as a Director of the Cohasset Conservation Trust and is also a member of the Zoning Advisory Committee. He spent14 years on the Zoning Board of Appeals until he decided to run for the School Committee.

At this point, DeGiacomo said his plans include spending more time working with the Conservation Trust and ZAC, and now that the Growth and Development Committee has wrapped up work on the Master Plan, he expects he will be spending a lot of time reviewing and implementing the zoning suggestions the plan puts forth.

"He's done a fabulous job,"

Like it or not – winter's early

Lynn Schwandt jogs in a winter wonderland along Jerusalem Road on Monday. Anywhere from 10-20 ins. of snow blanketed Cohasset following the weekend-long nor'easter.

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Although winter doesn't officially begin until Dec. 21, few Cohasset residents mistook the weekend nor'easter for a late fall storm.

Ominous-looking snow clouds gathered late Friday sending the clear message that meteorologists may have been right on target. Many heeded the warnings and headed to local hardware stores for shovels and salt, to Blockbusters for movie rentals, and to the supermarket and liquor stores to stock up for an extended bout of cabin fever.

"Not having to contend with traffic was a big plus."
— Kenny Thayer, Cohasset DPW

But when the white stuff began to swirl in earnest in the wee hours of Saturday morning, most Cohasseters were tucked into bed and off the roads — a blessing for the plow crews.

"There were not many people out and that was a big help," said Kenny Thayer of the Cohasset Department of Public Works, about the weekend-long storm. "Not having to contend with traffic was a big plus."

The Cohasset DPW is responsible for the 37 miles of accepted roads in town and 11 miles of private ways. MassHighway takes care of Route 3A, a state road.

The need to shop for the holidays coupled with Saturday's slushy sleet opened the door for many to venture out to the annual Village Fair on the Common, which is hosted by

Hats for homeless teaches life lessons

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Since 1997, art teacher Ann Berman has been teaching Deer Hill students to knit and has invited them to participate in making hats for the homeless, which students deliver to area shelters for the holidays. The hats are knitted outside of class and are completely a volunteer effort, and the trend has spread from the students, to the staff, to parents, and even grandparents. To date, Cohasset has donated more than 1,000 hats to the cause.

"I never knew it would take off the way it did," Berman said, adding she is thrilled with the way the project has turned out. "The kids are pretty amazing."

This year, students will deliver hats to Rosie's Place, a Boston area homeless shelter for women and children. Unlike many other shelters, Rosie's Place is not funded by the government and relies on the generosity of volunteers to

Center guides abuse victims through complicated system

Editor's note: This is one in a series of articles as part of CNC's annual Gifts of Hope campaign to help raise funds for South Shore Women's Center.

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

I am not alone.

This belief, this hope, is the first big step toward healing for women suffering the isolation, fear and shame of domestic violence. Each day, advocates from the South Shore Women's Center work with hospitals, courts, the police and social services to get abuse victims the information and help they need.

"We advocate in any system that deals with the obstacles that are keeping a victim from going from violence to safety," says Barbara Fuyat, executive director of the Center. "We walk with them, we open doors in state agencies, social services, transition assistance, the court system, with police officers and health care providers."

Domestic violence affects every aspect of a woman's life, and the steps needed to rebuild her life outside of the relationship can be overwhelming. Often, her abuser has cut her off from friends, family and others she might turn to for help. He has undercut her efforts to earn a living, make decisions or form relationships on her own. He has made her feel different from, less than, other women.

Village merchants host first holiday festival this weekend

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas — especially in Cohasset Village. Festive lights and decorations adorn storefront windows and red velvet ribbons hang from window boxes spilling over with greens. But it's not just the excitement of the holiday season that is getting merchants in the mood to deck their halls, but the anticipation of what is sure to become a holiday tradition in town, when they hold "A Cohasset Village Holiday" celebration this weekend.

From Friday Dec. 12 to Sunday, Dec. 14, the Village will be transformed into a holiday street festival as South Main Street from Cohasset Hardware to Dependable Cleaners will be closed to traffic, and merchants take to the streets to share what they do best with the residents of the town. Food samples will be available from many area eateries, as well as ornament decorating, visits with Santa, and attractions for the whole family — all provided by the merchants at no charge.

"This is our way to thank people for coming all year long, as well as showcase what we've been doing down here," said Amyra O'Connell of Village Wine & Spirits, who is one of the merchants helping to organize the festival. She said the best part has been getting to know her Village neighbors. While they work side-by-side on a daily basis, she said there were many people who came to the first organizational meeting not knowing each other.

"It really was amazing how we literally had to introduce ourselves," she said, adding 20 merchants came to that first meeting, which has ballooned to 35 total merchants participating in this weekend's event.

"There are creative people everywhere and a lot of creative energy in the town and we haven't been able to showcase it," O'Connell said.

Susan Spellman paints the window at Cohasset News on Brook Street in preparation for "A Cohasset Village Holiday" this weekend.

But the merchants wouldn't be able to follow through on their vision without the help of those outside the Village. "We have had overwhelming support," said Katie Howard of the Cohasset Harbor Resort, who has also been heading up the planning efforts. She said it's been amazing how many people have been eager to come forward and donate whatever they have to help the cause.

The merchants were especially grateful to Neil Murphy for donating lights for the festival, the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, and Mark Tossi of Pastene Foods, for their generous contributions. An anonymous donation of trees to decorate the Village was also made in memory of Robert M. Davenport.

The Cohasset Historical Society is also contributing to the festivities and will host events throughout the weekend. The Beechwood Bell Ringers of the Beechwood Congregational Church will present a performance of Christmas carols on Sunday in front of the Wilson House and Maritime museums. Jacqueline Dormitzer will also be signing copies of the "Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume III," at the Silver Spoon Café. Those, who wish, may bring their own copies to be signed. Copies will also be available for purchase.

The festivities will kick off with a dance for children in grades six through eight at the Red Lion Inn. While a $5 donation is requested, 100 percent of the proceeds will go to the "Make A Wish" foundation. Throughout the weekend there will be many events for children of all ages, including visiting Santa's workshop and a visit from the jolly old elf, himself. Children will also be able to cast their votes for the best decorated storefront window. Those closer to the teenage years are sure to enjoy the holiday make-up demonstration at Adamo Day Spa.

For adults only, there will be a wine tasting at Village Wine & Spirits. O'Connell said there will be three tables with representatives from different vineyards.

Many local restaurants will be donating food for the festival, including Atlantica, Grapevine Caterers, French Memories, which will have cookie decorating, and The Village Deli which will be serving complimentary hot dogs. Bia Bistro, which is new to the Village will also host a holiday tasting, which will provide the perfect way to introduce itself to the community, said Howard. Other new businesses, Studio C Book Publishing and Art Works will have activities going on in their shops. O'Connell said Studio C will invite children to make their own Christmas books during the festival.

Springboard

But the event will serve as much more than a holiday festival for the merchants who have organized it. O'Connell said she sees this first event as a springboard from which the merchants can plan other activities and get together to discuss matters that involve everyone who has their business in the Village. O'Connell said with the train coming to town, business owners want to discuss how they can best take advantage of having public transportation close by, and because it is such a huge issue in town, band together so their voice will be heard.

"We'll meet to talk about that after the holidays," she said.

But in the meantime, everyone is excited to get into the holiday spirit and share their enthusiasm with the whole town. O'Connell said every merchant in the Village has supported the fair in some way, and there will be something for everyone during the weekend. But the greatest aspect of the fair, is that it will bring the town together and start a revitalization in relationships for residents and merchants alike.

"It really is nice to get to know everyone," said Lisa Lynch of Ports and Company.

Upcoming meetings

The following meetings were posted at Town Hall this week:

Board of Assessors, Jan. 13, 4 p.m.
Conservation Commission, Dec. 11 , 7:30 p.m.
Selectmen, Dec. 16, 7:30 p.m.
School Committee, Dec. 18, 7 p.m., high school library.
Water Commission, Dec. 16, 8 p.m. at the King Street Plant.
ZBA, Dec. 18, 7 p.m., 40A executive session.

All meetings are at Town Hall unless indicated otherwise.

Stream-flow gauges record level of water

The Water Commission has installed six stream-flow gauges in the watershed for Lily Pond and the Aaron River Reservoir. These gauges constantly record the level of water and the rate of flow of the water through the watershed.

"These stream-flow gauges will help us to better protect the integrity of our drinking water supplies while preserving the natural environment," said John McNabb, chairman of the Water Commission. "This information will help us to make sure that our use of our water resources is sustainable for the current demand and for any future increases in demand for drinking water."

A better understanding of the watershed hydrology and flow is essential to the successful management of the surface water supply, McNabb explained.

"With the information from the stream-flow gauges, the relationship between the stream flows, releases of water from the Aaron River Reservoir, and water withdrawals from Lily Pond can be quantified so the quantity and quality of the surface water supply as well as the wildlife habitats within the system can be better protected," he said.

The stream gauges were installed in August and have all been activated. Data will be downloaded monthly from the gauges for the first year and then every two months.

The installation of stream-flow gauges was recommended in the Water Commission's recently developed Surface Water Supply Protection Plan (SWSPP) for Lily Pond and Aaron River Reservoir, the sources of Cohasset's public water supply), and was partially funded by a $5,000 grant from the Massachusetts Riverways Program.

Selectmen's role in Cedarmere process causes contentious debate

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

If Cedarmere developers weren't frustrated before, they certainly are now, as they butted heads with Selectmen Tuesday, turning a presentation on the project's plans into a legal argument. During the contentious meeting, the exasperated developers faced the same questions they have been answering for the past six months.

Since early summer, the Cedaremere team, consisting of David and Kelli Calhoun of Sheldon Road and Tom Ragno of Lexington, and their consultants have sought feedback from town boards and their consultants, and abutters on the proposed senior housing development. The project is slated for 41-acres on the former Hayes Estate off Beechwood Street on the east side of 3A. Cedarmere would consist of 105-units of both affordable and market rate apartments and condominiums for seniors 55 and older.

Tuesday was the first time the development team came before the Selectmen and it won't be the last.

Frustration was high on both sides as conflicting opinions regarding the project came to a head. Because Cedarmere is the first project to be filed under the town's new Senior Overlay District Bylaw, there are no previous developments to look to for guidance, and this project will set the precedent for the future.

Just what role the Selectmen will play in the approval process is at the center of the debate. And for now, both sides have agreed to disagree. Selectmen will ask the Department of Housing and Community Development for guidance. The DHCD would have to OK the affordable part of the Cedarmere project for the units to "count" as affordable by state standards.

Selectman Tom Callahan says a DHCD letter to Selectmen states clearly without the endorsement of the Selectmen, the Cedarmere affordable units wouldn't qualify. However, Ragno said it is the developer's job only to make sure the units are eligible to count as affordable, which he said has been done, and therefore Selectmen approval is not necessary.

"I think this letter is very clear," said Callahan.

"I do, too," said Ragno.

Under the Senior Overlay District Bylaw, the project is required to include an affordable component. The Cedarmere team plans to construct its affordable building as a Local Initiative Program "units only" project. Currently, the town is trying to fulfill a 10 percent affordability threshold set by the state, and Cedarmere would help meet that requirement. The DHCD regulates all LIP projects, and the letter from the DHCD states Cedarmere will need to file an application signed by the Board of Selectmen because the, "DHCD cannot review or approve the application without the signature and endorsement of the town's chief elected official."

Developers believe the project will satisfy the requirements of the town's bylaw even without Selectmen approval, because the Board's endorsement is a prerequisite only to the actual counting of the units by the DHCD and not to their eligibility to be counted. In other words, for the units to "count" the Selectmen will need to endorse the project, but currently, without the board's endorsement, the units are eligible to be counted, which is all Cedarmers says matters under the bylaw.

But the development team's repeated comments, which reflected its opinion the Selectmen's endorsement isn't required, did not sit well with Selectmen. In addition, when questions were raised, the development team couldn't understand why issues that had been discussed time and time again during the previous months were still coming up when all the information the team had gathered had been made readily available to the Board for review.

"What we've been doing hasn't been a secret to anyone," said David Calhoun.

When Callahan brought up the issue of traffic, which has been a highly discussed topic at other meetings, Cedarmere lawyer Walter Sullivan became aggravated and said the team had "hired experts to deal with these questions and they're not here tonight," and after six months, the Selectmen should know these questions have been a part of the discussion.

"Why are you speaking to him that way?" asked Michael Sullivan of Walter Sullivan, to which Callahan added, "I'm sick of your saying we shouldn't have an opinion." Walter Sullivan apologized and said he meant no disrespect and Michael Sullivan added, "You don't need to jump down someone's throat because we've had a question."

But things did not improve from there.

Charlie Flint, 215 South Main St., said he and other abutters have been following the Cedarmere developments and said he's not against affordable housing, but the density. "It's an enormous burden on homeowners to not know what's going to happen," in terms of what effect it could have on home values. He added he looked into purchasing the land before the Calhouns, and had eight acceptable percs. At two homes per perc, there could be 16 single family homes developed on the site instead of Cedarmere. He also said that even with the many concerns of abutters, he has not seen a significant change in the plans.

Flint also brought up the affordability question and said typically, affordable units look no different from the market rate units and in his opinion, having worked in commercial real estate for years, the units put forth by Cedarmere wouldn't qualify because they are in another building.

"Charlie, it's not a 40B and you know it. I've been through too many public hearings, thank you, goodnight," said Kelli Calhoun, and she left the meeting too upset to hear another word.

Affordability

There would be a total of 31 units in the Cedarmere apartment building near 3A, and 26 units would be considered affordable. (The rest of the project consists of luxury condominiums on another part of the site). But no matter how many times developers said they did not need to have affordable units mixed with market rates, Selectmen still couldn't understand why the affordable units were all in one building.

"Why aren't your affordable units interspersed?" asked Callahan.

Members had assumed invisibility was necessary in order for the units to "count" in terms of affordability under state guidelines and said they weren't sure the units would "count" the way they were presented.

However, the Selectmen were told by developers the building will count as a LIP "units only" project, and not a regular LIP project, which means the criteria is different.

But Selectmen weren't familiar with the regulations of a LIP "units only" project, and said they didn't like how the affordable units were in a building of their own, rather than randomly included throughout the development. But developers said not only are there both affordable and market rate units in the building, they are under no obligation to have affordable units integrated throughout the project.

In the same letter from the DHCD which explained the Selectmen's role in the process, it clearly states, "Since the proposed affordable units are not blended into the overall development, the town would need to meet the criteria of 'LIP Units Only'," which is almost a sub-category under the standard LIP guidelines.

In essence, the Cedarmere developers are filing two separate projects. They are filing the entire Cedarmere development – including the affordable building — under the Senior Overlay District bylaw set forth by the town. But they will file their rental building as essentially a stand-alone LIP "units only" project with the state. Because the project needs to have the affordability component to meet the criteria of the town's bylaw, the question of whether the entire project will be meet the criteria if the Selectmen choose not to endorse the affordable component has been called into question.

Wastewater plans

But aside from whether the board has to endorse the project for affordable units to count, Selectmen also didn't believe they could approve the project without developers presenting a definite wastewater plan. Although developers submitted an application to hook up to the town's sewer lines, the Sewer Commission chose to deny it. While the developers have filed a lawsuit against the town appealing the Commission's decision, without an alternate plan for wastewater, Selectmen said they can't endorse the project.

Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris said because the application for sewer has been denied and there is no alternate plan for wastewater in place, the developers do not have a complete application. But developers disagreed and said because they have filed an appeal, that counts as a plan.

McMorris told developers the board thought in spite of all the discussion, their application was incomplete, whether they thought it was or not. The board decided to take the matter under advisement, and the discussion will continue at a later date. Cedarmere was slated to come before the Planning Board Wednesday night after the Mariner went to press.

COHASSET'S WEEK

School construction update is provided

Except for some minor roof work, construction at Deer Hill is complete and the expected date of completion for the middle-high school is Dec. 20, said Supt. Edward Malvey. While it is expected there will be "punch-list" items to be taken care of along the way at the middle-high school, Malvey hopes the school will be able to start moving in new furniture on the 20th — and on the 22nd and 23rd, students and staff can begin moving in to the new sections.

"Over Christmas we can make the adjustment on the high school side," Malvey said, and classrooms can be occupied accordingly. Malvey said if for some reason the deadline of the 20th is not met, the moving date can be bumped up.

School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn reminded everyone there will be landscapers back in the spring to take care of the grounds and finish up any work that needs to be done there. He also said the project "remains on time and on budget."

Flyer distribution policy changes

Some minor changes have been made to the flyer policy at the schools. While the policy bans any advertising or promotional materials, the policy states limited exceptions may be granted by the superintendent. The policy was written as such to leave the door open to possible advertising options in the future, should they become necessary as a means to cushion the budget. The policy has been changed to make clear all materials submitted to the schools will come before the superintendent first for approval.

Town goals being met

Town Manager Mark Haddad presented the Board of Selectmen with an update on the status of the town's 16 goals and objectives. To date, the town has completed four of its goals and continues to work to meet the others. Those issues the town has taken care of include:

• The completion of the upgrade project at Beechwood Cemetery, including signage and reseeding.

• The finalizing of the Hagerty property by making a decision on the building.

• The completion of all memorials at Cohasset Cove.

• The completion of the meeting room on the first floor of Town Hall.

Town Counsel on the Avalon appeal

In a vote of 3-2, Selectmen voted to authorize Town Counsel represent the Water Commission in its appeal of the Avalon Bay Chapter 40B decision by the Zoning Board of Appeals. The ZBA approved the project with 31 conditions, including obtaining a ground-water discharge permit from the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Because Town Counsel is supposed to work for all town boards and the case involves two of the boards, some Selectmen were not in favor of having Town Counsel work against another board which would typically be seen as a client, and therefore could be considered a conflict of interest.

"He's supposed to be working for [the town boards] and he'd be going against the ZBA for the Water Commission," said Selectman Michael Sullivan, adding he would like to hear from the ZBA before making a decision. Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris said she agreed with Sullivan and both boards would be best served by hiring their own counsel. The ZBA has obtained outside counsel.

However, Selectman Tom Callahan said all the town boards were lined up with the Water Commission and all agreed in their views on Avalon, and in making its decision, the ZBA is on its own, legally speaking.

"They decided not to go along with what the rest of the boards said," said Selectman Merle Brown, who agreed the Water Commission is representing the views of the town and is entitled to have Town Counsel represent it.

Brown, Callahan and Selectman Fred Koed all voted in favor of authorizing Town Counsel to represent the Water Commission and McMorris and Sullivan voted against it.

Four-quad gates possible at some crossings

Under the Swift Act, a state law to reduce noise pollution, Greenbush is a "quiet zone" where train whistles won't be used on a regular basis. The MBTA has argued four-quad gates without medians would be experimental along a whistle-free corridor, and two-quadrant gates with medians would have less impact to historic resources.

MBTA spokesman Joe Pesaturo said the MBTA would do whatever it takes to make each grade crossing as safe as possible, but stopped short of saying the door had opened for four-quad gates without medians.

"The MBTA wants to do what is right and that includes looking at all available designs and technology for railroad crossings," he said.

But, according to state Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, Grabauskas found the towns' approach to be reasonable and asked the towns to provide an overview of where they think four-quad gates are warranted. He said site visits may also be scheduled.

"I came out of the meeting feeling positive. It appeared the issue was open for discussion."

— Town Manager Mark Haddad

According to Hingham Selectman Melissa Tully, it was agreed that each town would submit to MBTA General Manager Mike Mulhern, who attended the meeting, an analysis of the safety, traffic flow and aesthetic issues associated with each unacceptable grade crossing as currently designed by the MBTA.

"We were able to define safety more broadly, as not just trains and cars but also involving pedestrians, bicyclists and emergency vehicles," Tully said. "We also agreed that there would be an independent review of the crossings the towns have issue with."

The towns have argued that with two-quadrant gates, pedestrian and bicycle traffic can cross the tracks while the gates are down.

The Greenbush towns have also signed on to a letter to the Federal Railroad Administration asking the FRA to participate in "a diagnostic review of grade crossing protection options within this rail corridor." The letter, signed by Hingham Town Administrator Charles Cristello, Cohasset Town Manager Mark Haddad, Weymouth Planning Director James Clarke and Scituate Selectmen Chairman Joseph Norton, cited studies in other states where four-quadrant gates were found to be the safest alternative.

"We hope you will not endorse, directly or indirectly, any 'one size fits all' determination that four quadrant gates are unsafe per se at every crossing on the Greenbush Line…" the letter states.

Hingham has identified four crossings in town where four-quadrant gates' technology without medians should be utilized: Fort Hill, West and South streets; Hersey, Thaxter and South streets; Water Street; and East Street and Hull Street.

Cohasset is asking the MBTA to examine the three crossings: Beechwood Street, Pond Street and lower King Street with an eye to installing four-quad gates. Haddad said selectmen have signed off on the use of two-quadrant gates with medians at Pond, Sohier and North Main streets.

Weymouth has asked for further evaluation at the Commercial Street crossings at Gibbons Street and Suwanne Road.

Scituate's request was not immediately available.

Construction resumed this fall on the controversial 17-mile Greenbush line, which is the third leg of the Old Colony Railroad Project, that also includes the Middleboro and Plymouth lines that resumed service in 1997. Greenbush opponents had successfully stalled the project on environmental and financial feasibility grounds. Without further delays, service is expected to start on Greenbush sometime in 2005.

Christmas concert helps kids with cancer

First Parish has been holding Christmas concerts and donating the proceeds for the past 24 years. Thanks to generous support, over $45,000 has gone to worthy local, national, and international organizations. This year's Concert is dedicated to former minister Ed Atkinson who conceived of the idea in 1978.

This year's Christmas Concert on Dec. 14 at 4 p.m. features Margo Euler and the Unicorn Singers performing John Rutter's "Magnificat.". The seven movements set the text as found in the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, with the addition of a tranquil setting of the 15th-century "Of a rose, a Lovely Rose." The remainder of the hour-long 25th anniversary Christmas event will feature favorite carol settings for the audience to sing with the choir.

A reception will follow celebrating the event's 25ht year. Concert Patron donations of $50 or more may be sent to: First Parish in Cohasset, 23 No. Main Street, Cohasset, MA 02025 (two tickets included and published acknowledgement); call 781 383-1100; tickets are $12 at the door.

The beneficiary of the Christmas Concert this year is the "Artist in Residence" program at Mass. General Hospital for Children with Cancer. The current artist is Joan Drescher of Hingham. Twice a week she moves her "Imagination Kart" through the bustling halls of the hospital. The Kart is covered with little spinning kites, moons, stars and streamers. It is filled with art supplies to inspire hospitalized children to explore their imaginations and cope with the stress of illness and loss. Her dream is that the simple images of hope and beauty created by the children will open hearts and make the world a better place.

School budget talks start at the top, as wish list is presented

Fiscal reality will set in, Flynn says

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

"This is our starting point, we included everything."
— Ivan Klimko, school business manager

It's the Christmas season and wish lists are the norm, and at no place was that clearer than at the School Committee meeting last week when a budget increase was floated that even Santa Claus would have had trouble accepting.

Business Manager Ivan Klimko presented an overview of a "wish list" budget with a whopping increase of 13.22 percent that included everything the schools could possibly ask for.

"I want to make it clear — this is not happening," said School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn, explaining the proposed, estimated budget provides a starting point and would be pared down as the board establishes funding priorities.

Klimko's proposed estimate for the 2004-2005 school year is $12,701,147, which is up roughly $1.5 million from last year's budget of $11,218,297.

"This is our starting point, we included everything," said Klimko.

However, because the town relies on state aid to help fund the schools — and state aid was dramatically cut last year — Supt. Edward Malvey said budget talks can't begin in earnest until the state aid forecasts are known. "We don't have a clear picture just yet," he said.

Items that may have to be cut as the budget becomes more finalized are perceived "extras", such as financial software. The proposed budget includes $5,000 for accessories to upgrade the online budgeting systems, and an additional $13,000 is slated for computer network support.

As part of the reorganization, $128,420 has been allocated for new hires for the middle school, which would include one administrator at roughly $80,000 a year, one secretary at roughly $25,000, one nurse at roughly$20,000, and one team leader at roughly $1,500.

Klimko will provide details on other figures, such as $10,000 for staffing development at a later date.

However, one figure that is unlikely to change unless there are layoffs, is the cost of contractual salary increases. A jump of 4.37 percent or about $490,000 is necessary to cover raises for all staff, except administrators, in next year's budget.

Also with little wiggle room in light of last year's budget figures, energy and cleaning costs will be the hot topics of discussion as the budget becomes more finalized.

Klimko estimates $223,000 will be needed to cover energy costs — up from $199,000 budgeted last year. Flynn said the increased cost of utilities is not going to go away now that the buildings are larger.

Klimko also proposes adding $36,000 to the cleaning budget, which would provide enough cushion to cover any increase in price from the cleaning company, One Source, as well as in-house costs. While cleaning is out-sourced, the school department is also maintaining a pared-down custodial staff.

"We have facilities we have to maintain," said Vice Chairman Chartis Tebbetts, adding money needs to be spent to take care of the buildings.

School maintenance going forward was a priority with voters who approved the $42 million middle-high and Deer Hill schools renovation and expansion projects.

But Flynn said voters did not OK the projects "with the caveat that we'd cut teachers in four years."

While layoffs are not currently planned, Flynn said everything has to be considered and prioritized in terms of spending. "This, from a town and state standpoint, is going to be a worse year [than last]. It's going to be difficult," he said.

The proposed budget also includes $75,000 to cover costs associated with substitute teachers. Last year, $46,500 was allocated to cover those costs, but $120,000 was spent.

The estimate also included $22,000 to help cover tuition for teachers who advance in their education.

"The teachers are really taking advantage of it," said Klimko. However, teacher turnover is down, which means money from higher salaried teachers who retire cannot be used to help offset tuition costs.

Flynn said he expects a challenging budget season.

"We have liabilities that have to be addressed," Flynn said. He noted how difficult a year last year was in terms of the budget and said, "The encore is not going to be pretty."

Budget talks will continue at the Dec. 18 School Committee meeting, when the principals of Deer Hill and Osgood, and the Middle-High School principal and Director of Student Services will present their school's budgets. The final budget presentation and summary of the total budget will be given by the Superintendent on Jan. 8.

Who's the top citizen in town?

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Arthur Year as Citizen of the Year for a lifetime of service to the town.

In keeping with a nine-year tradition recognizing an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement — the Cohasset Mariner is now accepting nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year Award.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset. This is a community award; the Mariner is the mean by which we are able to recognize, thank and honor those around us who make the quiet, generous contributions that make our town a wonderful place to call home.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Arthur Year as Citizen of the Year for a lifetime of service to the town including myriad good works, and always as a volunteer — whether that be mowing the "cap" of the town landfill with his red tractor or serving as the town's Civil Defense Director.

The deadline for nominations for the 2003 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan 2. Please see the nomination form on page 17. The form may be photocopied. Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931.

This is not a popularity contest. Following the close of nominations, a selection panel — after reviewing the names submitted by poring over the nomination letters and comments — will select the 2003 Citizen of the Year, who will be named in January 2004.

Nominees may be someone in elected office, a member of an appointed town committee, teacher or school administrator, clergy member, firefighter, police officer or other municipal worker. And the nominee may be a person in the business community, sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has freely given of his or her time and energy for a worthwhile Cohasset project or cause.

This year's recipient will be the11th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year.

5K Jingle Bell Run-Walk to benefit Project Playground

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

SNOW DAY FUN

Oh the weather outside was frightful, not! As tough as the going got over the weekend, the end result was a snow day for Cohasset and several other lucky towns.

I love when we get this bonus and are able to get outside and enjoy the fun! I hope that many of you were able to take this day and go and play but know that so many of you had to shovel, plow and get to work.

Hats off to the jobs that the town workers did, the police and fire departments, utilities crews, along with all of the plow drivers and "shovelers" who were out all weekend working to get the town back to normal. Please remember that when you are taking care of your driveways to make sure not to throw the snow back into the street and also to try and shovel out any hydrants or drains if possible.

5K JINGLE BELL RUN/WALK

Get in the spirit and sign up for the 5K Jingle Bell Run/Walk through picturesque Cohasset on Saturday, Dec. 13 at 10am. Come dressed in jingle gear and ready to sing carols along the way — all to benefit Project Playground. The race starts and ends at Our World Discovery Museum where there will be hot apple cider and a bake sale following the race! Registration forms are available at The Good Sport, Fitness 1st and Scituate Racquet & Fitness OR e-mail amy_farber@comcast.net for an electronic version. Families encouraged (kids under 16 run for free)!

WARM COATS NEEDED

Winter is approaching, and no child should have to go without such a basic necessity as a coat! The Cohasset Girl Scouts are collecting clean, gently used coats for children of all ages. The coats will be donated to Boston's Home for Little Wanderers, a non-profit service agency whose mission is to ensure the healthy development of children at risk through an integrated system of prevention, advocacy, and direct services. The Girl Scouts have made donating a coat simple.

Just bring your clean, reusable coats to one of the drop-off boxes before Saturday Dec. 20, and the girls will take care of distributing the coats to kids who need just One Warm Coat. Drop-off boxes will be located at Osgood and Deer Hill schools, and at the Paul Pratt Library.

If you have any questions please call either Lori McCabe (383-2166) or Leslie Bryan (383-8860). Join the Cohasset Girl Scouts by embracing the holiday spirit of warming the heart of a child! One Warm Coat is a community service effort assisting in the collection and donation of coats to individuals free of charge. Since its inception in 1992, OWC has provided more than 90,000 coats to those in need.

BC HIGH HONOR ROLL

Andrew J. Flynn '05 of Cohasset achieved high honors for the first quarter at Boston College High School and. Christopher P. Barber, class of '05, and Alexander G. Hunt, class of '07, achieved honors. Congratulations to all of you!

TOY COLLECTION

Pilgrim Co-operative Bank will be accepting toys to benefit local families this holiday season. You may drop off your unwrapped toy at either location. Pilgrim wishes you a joyful holiday season, and thanks you in advance for remembering those who are less fortunate. Please join the bank as it strives to make a difference.

TOYS FOR TOTS

The Cohasset Harbor Resort (Atlantica & the Cohasset Harbor Inn) will be collecting "Toys for Tots" through Dec. 19. This program, facilitated by the U.S. Marines will help to bring needy children toys this holiday season. All are welcome to bring in a non-violent, unwrapped gift.

VILLAGE HOLIDAY CELEBRATION

A Cohasset Village Holiday" will take place on Saturday, Dec. 13, from 5-8 p.m. and Sunday Dec. 14, 1-4 p.m.. Here is a sample of the holiday fun for everyone: The Dogwash will feature "pictures with your pet", Realtors Dean & Hamilton will turn their office into a giant ginger bread house complete with refreshments for all. The Atlantica staff will be in the street promoting their new menu with a water view, The Red Lion Inn will host a "winter snow ball" dance for 6th-8th graders in their barn.

Also, Village Wine & Spirits will feature a wine tasting and a visit to Coldwell Banker will allow a picture with Santa himself. The village merchants will be selling ornaments that can be purchased for a donation of $2 each. Ornaments are to be hung on the tree in front of Cohasset Hardware. All donations go to the Cohasset Food Pantry.

All are invited to join in on this first time Cohasset village celebration (rain, snow or shine)!

Studio Sea will be welcoming in families all during the Village celebration to help make a Cohasset Holiday Book. Moms, dads and kids can all design, illustrate and write a page to be included in a hardcover book, 'A Cohasset Holiday'. This holiday book will be on display at Studio Sea along with some of the other books created by fabulous local authors. If you are in Grades 1-6 and are interested in joining a workshop at Studio Sea, please call us at 781-383-6994.

Also during the Village celebration, Studio Sea will be hosting 'The Third Room'. This room will feature a sampling of some of the new and exciting, locally operated small businesses. Linda Bolster's fabulous fruit wreathes, A Tennis Match, BeadCombers and Christie Fitzgerald Pillows are just a few of the things you'll find there. Everyone is welcome to come and browse, shop and enjoy 'The Third Room'.

Coastal Countryside Properties located at 17 South Main St. is going to be decorated as Santa's Workshop and will have a box for letters to be sent to Santa. They will be serving hot cocoa and cider.

GIFTS FOR CHILDREN

The Social Service League of Cohasset is accepting Christmas gifts for the children of the clients at Project Turnabout in Hingham. If you wish to participate in gift giving you may take a star from the Consignment Shop's Christmas tree. Gifts should be unwrapped and dropped off by Dec. 18. The Cohasset Girl Scouts decorated the tree and will wrap the gifts.

STUFF A BUS

Get ready to donate a gift to a needy boy or girl at the Cohasset RTF (the dump) on Saturday, Dec. 13. Dama Dow and Peggy Litchfield, both local school bus drivers, are working together to "Stuff-A-Bus" filled with toys for the Toys For Tots program and would love to have you and your family come to the RTF during the regular business hours with a new, unwrapped, unused toy to donate. They will be located next to the very popular "Boutique" and will also be accepting financial donations to help benefit this cause. If you have any questions, you can call Dama at 781-706-7068 or Peggy at 781-923-1080.

PHOTO GLITCH

Susan Haney, Mariner photographer, trudged through the snow and sleet on Saturday to take photos of the Village Fair. However, the photo card in her digital camera was unreadable on deadline, so the photos are lost in digital space somewhere. Here at the Mariner, we apologize because we know how our readers look forward to our photographs of important events.

If anyone has photos of the Village Fair to share that we can use next week, please contact Mary Ford by email at mford@cnc.com or call her at 781-741-2933. Color photos are OK. Emailed photos are also fine. They must be sent by jpeg attachment. Please include a photo caption in the body of the email.

HOLIDAY EVENTS AT THE LEGION

The George H. Mealy Post 118 of the American Legion is sponsoring a series of holiday events in Cohasset. On Thursday Dec. 11, the Legion will provide an annual Christmas dinner at the Cohasset Senior Housing complex. The evening, chaired by Rocco Laugelle features not only the dinner but also a carol sing along, gifts for the attendees and even a visit from Saint Nick.

The Women's Auxiliary is hosting a children's Christmas party at the Legion Post on Sunday Dec. 14 at 2 p.m.. This year, the auxiliary has invited the family members of the 1058th Transportation Company currently serving in Iraq. The 1058 has its headquarters in Hingham.

The Legion is also collecting unwrapped toys for Children's Hospital and its outreach affiliates. Anyone who is able to participate is invited to come to the Post on Summer Street and place their donated toys in the collection box.

Make sure to get me all of your news and event information no later than Mondays at noon.

Seventh-grader takes aim at acting career in holiday show

Plays the lead in 'A Christmas Story'

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

There must be something in the water in Cohasset which makes it a great town for actors. It has served as the perfect setting for filming Hollywood movies and commercials, and even hosted Humphrey Bogart for a summer in 1934 while he acted with the South Shore Players at Town Hall.

More recently, Cohasset native Kate Bosworth is making a name for herself on the Silver Screen appearing in movies with Robert Redford and Denzel Washington.

Could Marcus Barrett be the next to see his name up in lights?

At only 12, it may be too soon to tell. But the seventh-grader has started laying the foundation for what could be a promising career. "I want to go to Hollywood," he said enthusiastically.

Marcus is currently starring as "Ralphie," one of the lead characters in The Company Theatre's production of "A Christmas Story." This holiday favorite is set in the 1940s and tells the tale of 9-year-old Ralphie who wants nothing more than to wake up on Christmas morning to find a Red-Ryder BB gun under the tree. He goes to great lengths to ensure his plea is heard, but his mother repeatedly crushes his dream telling him no, "You'll shoot your eye out!"

But for such a lofty role, it would seem years of acting experience would be necessary. However, Marcus said this is the first speaking role he has ever had. While he has taken dance lessons and has performed on stage, acting had never been something he had pursued. He held a small role in the chorus during the Company Theater's production of "West Side Story" a few years ago, but only reluctantly participated at the urging of his older sister Callie.

"She tried out and said, 'You have to come,' and he said 'no way'," recalls their mother, Elinore. Marcus landed the role of a "Jett" opposite Callie who played a "Shark," and now Marcus can't get enough of the spotlight.

When Marcus told his mother he was interested in trying acting this year, Elinore called the Company Theater looking for acting classes. Because Marcus had no acting experience, she figured a class would be the best place to start, but there were no classes available at the time. However, Elinore was informed of the open auditions for "A Christmas Story," and was told Marcus was welcome to try out. He auditioned for the play, was very excited to receive a call back, and was offered the part of Ralphie the night of his second audition.

"We just couldn't believe it," said Elinore, adding they drove home together completely shocked. Marcus said while he had hoped to get a speaking role, he never would have imagined he would get the lead. "I still can't believe it," Elinore said.

To prepare for his role as Ralphie, Marcus said he had to study his script at home, but with all the time he spent at rehearsals, which he said sometimes lasted until 10 p.m., it wasn't hard to commit his lines to memory.

"I also had to grow my hair out," and buy round rimmed glasses, he added, to mimic the look of the character in the movie.

But Marcus said the hardest part of all is the costume changing between scenes. "I only have like three seconds to get my coat on," during one scene he said, adding he has to run across the stage in the darkness, which is no easy feat. "I tripped over a wagon once," he said.

"I think that's the hardest part for you — the costume changes," Elinore said.

But the amount of time and effort Marcus puts in is well worth it, as it seems he has found a career path even at his young age. As one of six children, he has been touring colleges for his oldest brother and said he has his sights set on NYU.

Marcus was offered the part of Ralphie the night of his second audition.

"He's very good in school," said Elinore, adding he recently made the honor roll, and that coupled with his talent, is sure to earn him a place in the NYU class of 2013.

Marcus' family is extremely proud of his accomplishments and with a family of that size, there is always a friendly face in the audience.

"I'm proud of him. I'd go to every show if I could," said older brother Brendon. Other siblings include brothers Andrew, Jeff, and Thomas and sister Callie.

When Marcus isn't on stage, he said he likes hanging out with friends, playing video games, and reading his Harry Potter books. He also enjoys playing with his dog, Riley, and skiing, and although his time has been occupied with the play recently, he has played on basketball, soccer, baseball, and hockey teams.

"He's very talented, but we already knew that about him," Elinore said.

Marcus Barrett of Cohasset plays the lead in the Company Theatre production, "A Christmas Story."

Legion sponsors holiday events

The George H. Mealy Post 118 of the American Legion is sponsoring a series of holiday events in Cohasset. On Thursday Dec. 11, the Legion will provide an annual Christmas dinner at the Cohasset Senior Housing complex. The evening, chaired by Rocco Laugelle features not only the dinner but also a carol sing along, gifts for the attendees and even a visit from Saint Nick.

The Women's Auxiliary is hosting a children's Christmas party at the Legion Post on Sunday Dec. 14 at 2 p.m.. This year, the auxiliary has invited the family members of the 1058th Transportation Company currently serving in Iraq. The 1058 has its headquarters in Hingham.

The Legion is also collecting unwrapped toys for Children's Hospital and its outreach affiliates. Anyone who is able to participate is invited to come to the Post on Summer Street and place their donated toys in the collection box.

"We always hear, 'Why do women stay?'" says Fuyat. "But how does the community welcome women and help them to leave? Usually they have two or three children, a job that pays minimum wage. They can't afford housing, they don't feel safe, they worry about what's best for the kids. It's a lot to face."

Many women who do leave abusive relationships turn to the court system for protection against their abusers or to attain rights to property, financial support or child custody. SSWC provides SAFEPLAN court advocates in the Plymouth Probate, Plymouth District, Hingham District and Wareham District Courts.

The program is designed to help women through the process of obtaining a restraining order, with safety planning, and with access to other community resources.

"There is a process the advocates go through with the victim," says Fuyat. "They conduct a lethality assessment on how endangered a woman and her children may be." The advocate explains their rights and options, helps them with the paperwork and supports them through the court proceedings.

"It's frightening and intimidating for them to share the embarrassing and humiliating details in open court with anyone listening who happens to be around. It's very traumatic," Fuyat says.

Sometimes, in talking through how the abuser may react to the restraining order, the victim may decide not to get one. Restraining orders are a "wonderful tool" and an important addition to the system, Fuyat says, but safety is the first consideration.

SSWC advocates at Jordan Hospital and local police departments also focus on the victim, her safety and the safety of her children. Advocates must report suspected abuse of children or elderly or disabled family members, but all other communications with victims are strictly confidential.

"Our civilian police advocates get the police reports so they can provide outreach," explains Suanne (last name withheld), the Center's coordinator of emergency services. "We can go to the home and say 'I know the police came out and I'm here to provide any support you want.' They're usually pretty responsive to that, because we're not working for the police."

Women may not be truthful with police officers because they don't want their partner arrested or fear more violence as punishment for talking, says Suanne, but they may accept information and referrals for help from the advocate.

"We have a wonderful partnership with the police departments," adds Fuyat. "We have different missions, but our goal is to try to get services to families right away."

SSWC has also had great success with a domestic violence and sexual assault advocacy program, cosponsored by Womansplace Crisis Center and Jordan Hospital. The advocates, based in the emergency services department, work with the hospital staff to identify and provide services for victims of abuse.

"This has made a big difference in raising awareness of the issue and having resources available when the patient comes in," says Fuyat. "There's a way you have to ask the questions and get the privacy you need to get honest answers."

Victims may not come into the hospital seeking treatment for abuse, says Suanne. "It's like the elephant in the middle of the room that nobody talks about. All of a sudden, a hospital person asks and offers the opportunity to talk to a counselor. It brings it to the surface. It's OK to talk about it."

Domestic violence victims and their advocates have "a coaching relationship," says Fuyat. "We educate them on the system and who can help them with resources. Then we support them through the system."

SAFEPLAN Court Advocates are available at the courts, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Advocates are on duty at Jordan Hospital seven days a week from 5 p.m. to midnight or by calling 508-830-2835. Help is available at any time by calling the SSWC Hotline at 888-746-2664.

The South Shore Women's Center is a private, nonprofit organization funded in part by the Mass. Dept. of Social Services, federal grants and private fundraising. SSWC is a member agency of the Old Colony United Way and the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women's Services Groups.

help keep it running. Berman said all the students who have made hats — or are in the process and haven't finished just yet — are invited to deliver the hats, which the shelter's director gives out during the Christmas dinner.

Each student who has knitted a hat ties a white index card with their name, age, and a message to the recipient, and many share how long it took them to make it.

"They keep the little white cards," said Berman of those who receive the hats, adding it means so much for the people who come to the shelter to know someone made a gift especially for them. She added when a student takes the time to knit the hat, and after all that work, gives it away, it's not easy. However, the students recognize the importance in what they're doing and that, "They're keeping someone warm," in the physical and emotional sense, she said.

Students begin learning how to knit when they are in the fourth grade. Berman makes sure to tell her students a little bit about the history of knitting, including that it was originally started by fishermen when they needed to mend their nets out at sea. She stresses knitting is neither a masculine or feminine craft, and has an even mix of students who participate. To drive the point home even further, Berman has a picture hanging in the hall next to the hats, of burly actor Russell Crowe who played the heroic general Maximus in Gladiator, wielding knitting needles instead of a sword.

Among five of her first-year students, 14 hats have already been completed and more are on the way. Vincent Kennedy has made two hats, Francesca Astino is on her second, Morgan McCarthy is finishing her fourth, Julia Thompson just finished her first, and Abby Brown is finishing her eighth.

Because she is not allowed to watch much television during the week, Abby said she has been making hats in her spare time. "It gives you something else to do besides watch TV," she said.

Julia said she likes to knit while she watches TV because it gives her something else to do instead of just staring at the screen.

Morgan said he likes knitting because it gives him something to do on a rainy day. "I enjoy it," he said.

But Francesca said the part she likes the best is when she finally finishes, which depending on how fast you can knit and the intricacy of the pattern, may take a while. For Vincent, who said he wants to make a Patriots hat, it could be a lengthy endeavor.

Berman said knitting has really caught on in town and it's not unusual to see kids walking down the hall or sitting at a sports event knitting a hat. She said a few years ago, she had a group of sixth-grade boys who played basketball, and during a game in Scituate, they took out their needles and yarn while they sat on the bench. Their knitting caught the eye of one of the Scituate teachers, who called Berman the next day and said when the boys told her they were making hats for the homeless, she was almost moved to tears.

But it's not just current students who contribute to the cause. Berman said there are many students who move on to the middle-high school and still send their hats down to Deer Hill to be delivered to shelters. Even grandmothers, who just love to knit, will make hats and send them over to the school.

"One year, Grandma Livingston made 25 hats and brought them down in two shopping bags," Berman said of a friend the school made through the Senior Center, and with her addition, the hat count was instantly over 100. Berman said every year, the students at least shoot to make 100 hats to be delivered.

The staff has become involved in the project as well and one fourth-grade teacher, Kayne Beaudry has begun work on a hat.

"He's a good sport, he's working hard," said Berman.

"At first I thought I could make a hat for everyone in my family," said Beaudry, and joked it looks like maybe everyone will receive a headband instead.

Even new principal Keith Gauley he has been working on a hat, and said he hopes he will finish before the hats are delivered on Dec. 18. On that day, all students are invited to make the trip to the shelter and are driven by parents in what Berman describes as a "convoy." This year, the hats will at least total 140, but many more could be finished before the trip is made. But even if a hat isn't done on the day of the trip, Berman said it's never too late to submit one for the cause.

"If someone finishes a hat by the time they graduate and says here's my hat as they walk out the door," she said, at least there will be one more hat to add to the rest. It takes time to complete a project and Berman said she is always joking with students, "There is no knitting fairy — she retired a long time ago."

The project does more than introduce students to a world different from their own, it teaches a lesson in empathy.

"For kids to understand it's not just people who don't want to work," who are homeless, is an important lesson Berman said, adding for some, homelessness is caused when an illness makes it impossible to work, and for others, maybe the rent has gone up or the company they work for has gone under and the money just isn't available.

"So many people are homeless for lots of different circumstances," she says.

Berman hopes by introducing students to volunteering, it will be something they will continue doing for years to come. "If I can get [the students] to think about others and realize they can make a difference, maybe they will continue to volunteer as they get older," Berman said.

And the example set by the students is rubbing off on parents as well. Some who have driven students up to deliver the hats have made the commitment to volunteer their time at the shelter in various ways, sometimes serving meals. For parents, it can be a learning experience too, said Berman.

When students hear the overwhelming statistics of how rampant homelessness is, they wonder what else they can do when there are so many homeless people and only 140 hats. While she reminds students they are making a difference, the fact that they are aware of the problem and want to help is more than Berman could have ever hoped for.

"I'm so proud of them," she said.

Greenbush station to stay on Route 3A

State rejects request for village train stop

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The Planning Board has apparently lost its 11th-hour bid for a Greenbush train station in Cohasset Village.

In a Nov. 21 letter to Chairman Al Moore, state Transportation Secretary Daniel Grabauskas stated given the North Cohasset station location is in an advanced state of implementation, it would be inadvisable to reconsider the station location at this time.

On behalf of the Planning Board, Moore wrote to Douglas Foy, chief of Commonwealth Development, who coordinates the departments of housing, transportation and environmental affairs in October advocating for a village station.

Grabauskas, who received a copy of the letter to Foy, noted the MBTA considered a Cohasset Village Station in 1996 but dropped the plans at the request of the Cohasset Board of Selectmen in favor on the Route 3A site.

"The selectmen were concerned about traffic impacts, residential and commercial displacements, and a sense that the station parking lot would be out-of-character in Cohasset Village," Grabauskas stated. "The MBTA respected the selectmen's request and the Village Station was dropped from further consideration."

Construction is underway on Greenbush, which is the third leg of the Old Colony Railroad Restoration Project, with service expected to start in late 2005.

Grabauskas said land acquisition for the North Cohasset Station (at the former Graham Waste site) was completed in 2002 and the business subsequently relocated. He said design has advanced to the 90 percent level and wetlands permits have been applied for based on the 3A location.

He also explained the 3A location is necessary to provide transit access to Wompatuck State Park via the 1.5-mile bike path that the MBTA will construct along an abandoned railroad spur.

The Planning Board had hoped to persuade Foy, who supports the revitalization of town centers in the "Principles for Enhancing Our Commonwealth" issued by his office, to reconsider the station location. The board noted the 3A station is accessible only by automobile and said the village location never received the full review and consideration it merits.

"The train station will bring scores of commuters, and likely, spouses into the downtown in the morning and evening hours, folks that will patronize the card shop, deli, hardware store, bank and another local businesses," Moore wrote.

Back in 1996, the Planning Board wrote to then Secretary of Environmental Affairs Trudy Coxe lobbying for a village train station. There was considerable discussion about the station location in town at the time.

Miffed by the Planning Board letter, selectmen sent a letter to Coxe advocating for the 3A location.

A straw poll was also conducted at the Special Town Meeting that fall with a vote of 311 in favor of the 3A station and 112 in favor of the village site.

DeGiacomo won't seek another term

said Chairman Rick Flynn, adding DeGiacomo was a "seasoned veteran when I came on the scene," and what a great person DeGiacomo was to bounce things off of. He also praised DeGiacomo's efforts throughout the renovations process at the schools and said, "We owe Mark a debt of gratitude for that."

DeGiacomo joked with Supt. Edward Malvey that their tenure would be "co-terminus" as Malvey plans to retire at the end of this school year.

At the April Town Election, three School Committee seats will be up for grabs, two for the three-year terms currently held by DeGiacomo and Pat Martin, and one for the remaining year of Jane Pescatore's term. Pescatore stepped down in August to accept employment with the school department. Selectmen and the remaining members of the School Committee, in a majority vote, appointed Rick Shea to fill Pescatore's seat until the Town Election.

Others who vied for Pescatore's seat included, Scott O'Grady of Sohier Street, Rory Winters of Forest Avenue, Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street, and Betsy Connolly of Lily Pond Lane. At the time of the interviews in October, all said they would run again in the spring. Connolly and MacCarthy have both been regulars at School Committee meetings, as has Jaime Williams of Surry Drive.

While nomination papers won't be available until January, Williams has said she will run for one of the three-year seats on the School Committee.

Nomination papers for the Annual Town Election, which will take place Saturday, April 3 will be available Monday, Jan. 5 at the Town Clerk's office. The last day to submit nomination papers is Thursday, Feb. 12.

Nomination papers available Jan. 5

Nomination papers for the annual Town election for 2004 will be available on Monday, Jan. 5, at the Town Clerk's Office. The last day to take out nomination papers will be Thursday, Feb. 12. In order to hold an elected office, you must be a registered voter of the town.

Celtic Christmas at Coffeehouse

The Coffeehouse off the Square presents a Celtic Christmas with celebrated Irish harpist/singer Aine Minogue on Sunday, Dec. 14, at 4 p.m. Her music will range from Celtic Christmas and Solstice numbers to familiar carols.

Celebrate the season with Minogue's lilting voice and soaring harp. Come early as the coffeehouse welcomes her back. Failte'!

A framed Irish landscape print donated by John and Maureen Connolly of the Aisling Gallery will be raffled during the intermission. The Coffeehouse is at the Old Ship Parish House at 107 Main St., Hingham Square, just up from the Loring Hall Theatre. ItAdmission is $10 at the door. A variety of coffees, teas, and desserts are available for 50 cents. Net proceeds benefit the Unitarian-Universalist Service Committee. There will be no open microphone preceding this concert. James Lane property rights launch a new war of words

Letters show issue is still up in the air

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Just what will happen along James Lane that runs between the Red Lion Inn and George Roukounakis' gas station at 55 South Main St. to the municipal parking lot in the village is still unclear.

Roukounakis owns four feet of the paved area and is considering moving his fence over so it is along his property line which would restrict what is already a narrow roadway.

The issue landed before the Zoning Board of Appeals in September after the building inspector rejected Roukounakis' request to erect a fence along his property line. But the ZBA ruled in favor of Roukouakis, prompting a spate of letters between the affected parties.

Robert W. Galvin, attorney for Roukounakis, says his client is willing to lease the space to maintain the pavement where it is, for $1,500 per month to be paid by the Town and Red Lion Inn.

Town Counsel has written to the Red Lion Inn demanding removal of an encroachment within the James Lane right-of-way that include a walkway, granite wall and a deck that impede the flow of traffic. The letter stated the structures must be removed to the extent they exceed the boundary of the Inn's property.

Neil Murphy, an engineer, writing on behalf of Inn owner Gerd Ordelheide, stated there are no Inn encroachments within James Lane that are impeding the flow of traffic on the lane.

He explained the encroachments are in the order of inches. He also noted none of the "encroachments" exceed the boundary lines of Ordelheide's property as the lane is a "private way". Murphy said Ordelheide's boundary line is the center of James' Lane as is Roukounakis' gas station.

"I would further suggest the town, in its infinite wisdom, would do better to seek out a permanent solution to the existing problem by acquiring the necessary property to widen the lane by acquisition than by sending poorly thought out and presented 'demand letters,'" Murphy stated.

Town Manager Mark Haddad said the town is trying to resolve the matter to everyone's mutual satisfaction and to that end, will meet with Roukounakis and his lawyer, and representatives from the Red Lion Inn on Dec. 16.

Although the part of James Lane owned by Roukounakis has been used as part of the roadway for years, the land cannot be subject to adverse possession because it is registered land.

Like it or not – winter's early

the local churches. Drenched fair-goers could be seen trudging from the Town Hall and Second Congregational Church, to St. Stephen's and the First Parish House — despite being whipped by the wind and pelted by heavy, wet snow.

"The day turned out to be a surprising success with a steady stream of people," said Judy Tedeschi, fair spokeswoman. "Most of the folks that came out seemed undeterred by the sleet and snow, although everyone seemed happy to linger at each of the church halls, giving themselves time to dry off while they did a little shopping and grabbed a bite to eat."

As temperatures dipped late Saturday and early Sunday morning, precipitation and wind gusts went on the upswing – creating a winter-wonderland effect on the trees that Cohasseters awoke to. But the picture-book scene weighed heavily on limbs that broke, downing power lines.

"At one time 1,700 customers in Cohasset were without power and we had some lengthy outages," said Debbie Drew, spokeswoman for Massachusetts Electric Company, which serves 1.2 million. About 30,000 MassElectric customers had lost power at any given point in time across the state.

"There were extreme weather conditions and travel conditions were a challenge," Drew said.

Driving also became treacherous, resulting in three accidents – but no severe injuries, although two vehicles involved had to be towed.

"Most people stayed in and that certainly helped," Police Chief Robert Jackson said. "The highway department was out all weekend and they did a super job."

The high tides and strong winds caused flooding along parts of Jerusalem Road, Atlantic Avenue, Lothrop Lane, and Margin and Border streets. Although the town is "blessed with a rocky shoreline" that protects it, if the tides had been a few feet higher, flooding would have been much worse, Jackson explained.

The storm did not let up all day Sunday, prompting about 250 school superintendents across the state — including Cohasset's — to call the first snow day of the 2003-2004 school year on Monday.

"After talking to the DPW in the interest of safety school was cancelled," Supt. of Schools Edward Malvey said. Malvey explained that while the parking lots could be cleared, walkways and sidewalks were still going to be covered with snow and ice for the most part.

"I felt it was in the best interests of students and staff to give the DPW ample time to clear out the buildings," said Malvey, adding this is the earliest snow day he can recall.

When it was all over, the 36-hour blizzard left anywhere from 10 to 20 inches of snow, providing many who tackled shoveling driveways and walkways, with an upper body workout they would have just as soon passed up for a visit to the gym.

"We worked almost non-stop since Friday morning," Thayer of the DPW said Monday afternoon. He said the DPW mounted the plows on the trucks on Friday in anticipation of the storm, so when the storm hit they could get right to work. Subcontractors, who usually team up with a DPW worker, were also called in to help with the streets.

"It was a heavy, wet snow that was hard to push," Thayer said. "It was hard on the equipment but nothing broke."

Thayer doesn't look at the early, snowy nor'easter as a sign of things to come. He said the DPW is ready for whatever Mother Nature may have in mind this winter. "When we wake up in the morning and see a bunch of snow, we know we have to get to work and remove it," he said.

Opening door to four-quad gates

We've made no secret of our support for the Greenbush project over the years to the dismay of local opponents. But at the same time, we have promised to be vocal advocates of getting the best train possible for our towns.

What's now before the state Secretary of Transportation Daniel Grabauskas, who ultimately oversees the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA), is whether four-quadrant gates make more sense at certain grade crossings in Greenbush towns.

Officials from Hingham, Cohasset, Weymouth and Scituate, along with state Senator Robert Hedlund, Grabauskas and MBTA General Manager Michael Mulhern and some MBTA technical people held a powwow last month to discuss using "four-quad" gates without median barriers at certain grade crossings.

To explain, two-quadrant gates with median barriers are the MBTA's preferred alternative for the Greenbush line, where train whistles won't sound on a regular basis. The MBTA, which has not used four-quadrant gates elsewhere, wants to stick with what it feels is a safer grade-crossing treatment. The MBTA thinks that stand-alone four-quadrant gates, which are more expensive because they are equipped with special sensors, are untested, unproven technology.

But the towns have data from several other states that shows four-quadrant gates, which have four arms that stop traffic in both directions, can actually be safer than the two-quad system that uses only two arms. And median barriers, which prevent a car from circumventing the gate to beat on oncoming train, can actually pose safety problems for emergency vehicles, as well as blocking driveways and being aesthetically unpleasing.

In fact the Federal Railroad Administration proposes four-quad gates be used when cross traffic, such as driveways, occur within 60 feet of the crossing.

The towns are submitting to the MBTA a list of grade crossings where they think the MBTA's current design employing the two-quadrant system with long, median barriers is unacceptable. In Hingham's case, the town wants the MBTA to employ four-quad gates at four crossings; Cohasset would like the technology used at three; and Weymouth at two.

The towns have clearly come to the middle ground on this issue by being open to the fact that the two-quadrant system might be acceptable in certain areas and the four-quad gates are better in others. We think the MBTA needs to meet the towns half way and be open to using four-quadrant technology without medians at these, selected intersections.

Hingham Selectman Melissa Tully put it best in her letter to Grabauskas.

"It is my sincere hope that the MBTA will be reviewing this policy design decision and will now recognize that the interest of public safety may be best served by four quadrant gates without median barriers at some intersections."

She went on to say, "the speediest way for resolution is an open-minded approach with a broad array of potential solutions that do not solely serve a policy but serve the public interest."

No rumor, innuendo

The Cohasset Mariner has used unnamed sources for its ongoing stories about the situation surrounding the two police officers who were placed on administrative leave pending the outcome of an investigation.

The Mariner is not using anonymous sources. In other words, we know who the sources are, and we are not using their names for their own protection.

Some town officials have accused us of relying on rumor and innuendo for the stories. Nothing could be further from the truth. Information in the stories has been corroborated by multiple sources and through documentation.

Mailing help appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

The following letter was provided to the Mariner.

Harborview Residents & Friends

Thank you all very much for helping with our mailing the other week. It was the largest such collaborative effort we have ever done to reach all of our residents here in Cohasset. You all helped to make this a successful endeavor.

Special thank you to the following:

Nancy Barrett, Rose Dooley, Carole Ann Goulart, Betty Grassie, Shirley Kehoe, Maggie Marshall, Minda McDonald, Synn McGlynn, Mary McNamara, Maria Perroncello, Jill Rosano, Kay Ryan, Arleen Tooehy and Marion Smith.

We appreciate your support and wonderful help with this special project.

Playoff game story was overly negative

TO THE EDITOR:

Does Mike Spellman live in Westwood?

As the wife of the Cohasset Skippers' defensive coordinator and the mother of one of the Skippers junior varsity players I was very disappointed by the "tone" of the article in the Dec. 4 edition of the Cohasset Mariner titled "Wolverines claw Skippers".

These kids have had one of the greatest seasons CHS football has ever experienced but instead of accentuating the positive aspects of a fantastic season, the author of this article chose to dwell on the negative outcome of the game. I was under the impression that the "Cohasset" Mariner was a hometown paper, now I am beginning to question that assumption.

History lesson

TO THE EDITOR

A few comments on R. Murray Campbell's letter titled "There is no painless response to terrorism." I have great respect for my friend, Murray, and I agree on nearly all his points: a. President Bush can't meet with the mothers of all Iraqi casualties, b. It is better to take the fight to the enemy and take casualties in the near term versus greater losses by procrastination, c. There is not painless answer to terrorism, d. Yes, we should have gone into Iraq (albeit with better coordination with our allies and better planning for post-war Iraq), e. We should demonstrate powerful and unflagging resolve in as many host states as it takes to force the remaining ones to abandon their support for terrorists.

I shuddered when Murray brought up GWB and FDR in the same breath. I am sure Murray remembers that FDR was Secretary of the Navy before WWI and that

HEALTH NOTES

Taking control of your health

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

I had a friend who bought an old Rolls Royce with hardening of the arteries. In early Rolls' there was an oil tank and pump with a network of tubes running to lubrication points all over the car. After years of running, the small amount of moisture in the oil had circulated throughout the system and caused the lube lines to rust and plug up, progressively depriving various components of necessary lubrication and causing them to fail one by one. This prompted some thought about the corollaries between the old Rolls and people since, as one gets older, our components degrade, one by one. Many of our problems come from inattention to maintenance.

Flu shots are an example. We inhale aerosol droplets from someone's cough or sneeze and soon we have flu symptoms. Currently available flu vaccine is reported as being about 80percent effective for the strain now affecting most people. Getting a flu shot is like painting a piece of iron to prevent it from rusting. Regular screening of maintenance items like blood pressure, glaucoma, prostate screening and many others can frequently lead to intervention early enough to prevent much more serious conditions.

In other cases long term habits like smoking or over eating or even eating the wrong stuff lead to accelerated degradation of function; often without a person realizing it. As we age, arteries and veins which carry our blood can become clogged and experience reduced flow; a condition which can cause all sorts of effects from small, such as dizziness to severe, such as heart failure. Controlling blood flow and pressure can be accomplished using a variety of so called blood thinners which modify the rate at which blood flows through arteries, capillaries and other elements of our vascular system. But it frequently requires precise dosages of medication administered every day exactly on time. For this reason, it is very desirable to have a physician whom you trust, periodically check those factors which he knows are signs of change of function of some part of your body's complex system and prescribe the appropriate medications.

The point is that aging involves many seemingly insignificant changes which can be caused by other equally seemingly insignificant factors. It amounts to a gradual degradation of literally millions of different components which make up the organism that is a human being.

What's to be done? Most of us have reached some accommodation with fate and take popular advice about seeing the doctor at some fixed period and essentially painting the iron before the rust sets in. But as the number of people grow, and science churns out ever better solutions to living longer or better or less painfully, we are beset by advice good and bad from all sorts of sources. For almost every ailment, there is an expert. There is a tendency to try to find cures of our ailments from the welter of information which bombards us each day. Particularly, since it's frequently sorted, classified and digested for us as in the internet. It's easy to collect data from all sorts of sources which we can seemingly apply to our ills and find solutions.

With all the authorities giving advice, there is the tendency to take the information and consider one's self an expert. Dear friends, it takes more than information to become an expert. The difference between a holistic practitioner and a doctor is many years of formal study and even more years of studying those who have the ailment, which the healer seeks to cure. Anecdotes are not proof. Proof is hundreds of cases, carefully analyzed and considered.

So, the advice is to stick with the doctor whom you trust; who prescribes the routine tests which give him the information he needs to see what's wrong. Keep and provide your records to the specialists you see. These add to the experience he can use in solving your's and many others' problems. Then listen and think about what the doctor has told you, but you yourself make the final decision from his choices. After all, it's you who've felt the things he's just read about. But go to see him. You ignore your car's new noises or performance changes at your peril. You should listen to and sense what's going on in your body, then find someone you trust and feel you can depend on to help tell you what it all means. Even if it's a twinge that seems unusual; that is not something you've experienced before, get advice. We lose too many good people because, being optimistic, they're sure it'll get better.

The gift of the labyrinth this holiday season

COMMON GROUND

AMY WHORF MCGUIGGAN

As is within
So is without

Walk into Fellowship Hall on most days and you'll hardly notice the design. But, on one Tuesday evening a month at the Old Ship Meeting Parish House, the chairs are pushed back, the room is cleared and a labyrinth, a single, meandering path with a six-petal rosette at its center, transforms the room from an everyday gathering spot to a sacred space. On that one evening, folks will come to walk the path, to hear what their soul is saying. They'll pause at the entrance, quiet their mind and open their spirit. They'll walk, with purpose, toward the center where they will pause again, with mindfulness and thoughtfulness. Then, they'll retrace their path and exit. They'll reflect on their walk, review their life, and with a new sense of empowerment take their new knowledge out into the world.

Unlike mazes that challenge our logic, confuse us with dead ends and wrong choices, and require us to use our analytical left brain to solve the puzzle, labyrinths are unicursal. The way in is the way out. That simplicity (though, paradoxically, the pattern is too complicated to be discerned at once), coupled with the labyrinth's geometric and spatial beauty, invites intuitive, creative right brain activity from which personal and spiritual discovery can flow.

The spiral or circular design of the labyrinth is an ancient and universal symbol representing wholeness (holiness?), oneness. Found across diverse cultures — from Peru, Crete, Scandinavia and Iceland to the United States, Britain, India, Egypt and France — spirals are also found throughout nature (Phi ratio/Golden Mean). The Hopi Indians, for instance, used the spiral to symbolize Mother Earth — the life source — and wove the spiral into clothing and baskets to represent man's union with his source. Other cultures, dating back centuries, carved the spiral into rock faces and stone tablets, cut spirals into turf, set spirals into mosaic pavements and etched them in sand. Often, the spirals were positioned out in nature at the entrances to sacred energy spaces.

It was a rite of passage in many cultures for individuals to spend time alone in such spaces, to receive nature's energy and connect with nature's divinity. Labyrinths, by inducing an altered state of consciousness through mind and body relaxation, become their own sacred spaces. They who give themselves to a labyrinth can step out of their own ego, inviting healing and restoration. Like nature's divinity, a labyrinth's divinity is an extension of our own potential.

Though various patterns have been used over the centuries for labyrinths, all share certain features: a starting point or mouth, the path or circuit, walls, and a goal or center. The classical pattern, also known as the Cretan pattern because the design was found on coins from Crete, is a seven circuit labyrinth whose paths are said to be associated with the seven primary chakras (from the Sanskrit meaning wheel of light) of the body, those centers of power and energy – crown, third eye, throat, heart, solar plexis, navel and root – that run from the top of the head to the base of the spine.

The Old Ship Labyrinth takes its design from the 13th century labyrinth at Chartres Cathedral in France. One of the most famous of all labyrinths, the Chartres labyrinth is typical of the elaborate pathways installed in Gothic Cathedrals during the Middle Ages. Its 11-circuit spiral is divided into four quadrants, between which the four arms of a cross are visible. The rosette at the center symbolizes enlightenment and divine love. For pilgrims who could not make the journey to the Holy Land during the dangerous days of the Crusades, the labyrinth offered an alternative. Often "walked" on knees, the faithful traced the long journey to the center, to the Kingdom of Heaven, and out again, symbolizing resurrection.

The modern day pilgrim finds his or own Kingdom of Heaven in the labyrinth. There is no right or wrong way to walk the sacred path. Some walk with joyfulness, others with somberness. Some walk with music, others with silence. Some dance. Some walk alone, others with companions. Some walk to purge worries and concerns. Others to give thanks or to celebrate. Some seek insight and answers. Others walk simply to relax. Whatever one's purpose, the labyrinth is a metaphor for the personal life journey, the journey to one's deepest self. There are twists and turns along the way, but no dead ends.

To honor this season of darkness and to celebrate the rebirth of the sun, a special Winter Solstice labyrinth walk, open to the public, will be held on Monday, Dec. 22 from 7:30-9 p.m. The evening will begin with a poetry reading in the parlor, followed by the labyrinth walk with candlelight, music and an atmosphere of winter's silence. Evergreens and pine cones will be scattered to represent the continuation of life and the assurance of rebirth and regeneration.

The labyrinth will again be open for a special New Year's Eve walk after which the regular Tuesday walks (second Tuesday of the month) will resume. For more information, visit the Old Ship website:

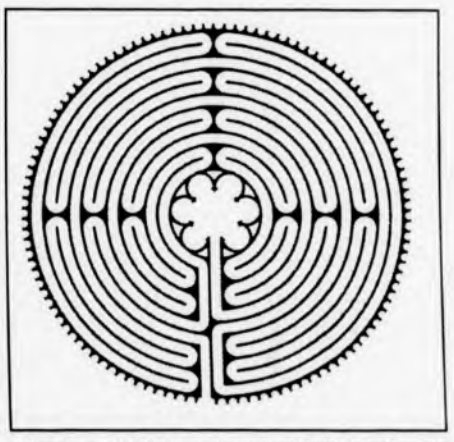
A maze requires us to use our analytical left brain to negotiate the confusing twists, turns and dead ends. Unlike the maze, the labyrinth offers one path, in and out.

The classical labyrinth pattern, also known as a Cretan labyrinth, has seven paths and is based on designs found on coins from Crete.



The beautiful labyrinth at the Old Ship Parish House in Hingham is based on the 13th century labyrinth in Chartres Cathedral in France. It is an elaborate design with 11 paths and a six-petal rosette in the center.

And you can quote me!

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

"You can fool all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

Abraham Lincoln said it. Right? Maybe not. At the very least, it's open to question.

Experts in Lincoln lore at the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency, who have been sorting through the volumes of quotes attributed to our 16th president, have their doubts.

As far as can be determined, the quotation never appeared in association with Lincoln until 1904 when a book called "Lincoln's Yarns and Stories," by Alexander K. McClure, hit the stands.

McClure was quoting, not Lincoln, but a man who said he heard Lincoln say it in a speech in Clinton, Ill., in 1858.

Of course, it may have been used earlier than that in an offhand comment by P. T. Barnum, the con man who founded the best known circus.

"It's simply Lincoln's own status as a cultural exemplar that make these spurious quotations seem credible," Rodney Davis, co-director of the Lincoln Studies Center at Knox College, told the Associated Press.

"He seems to provide validation for just about anything anybody wants to have validated, and if you can't find a Lincoln quote, you make one up."

If you ask me, and nobody did, the quote sounds more like Barnum than Lincoln.

Politics is full of misquotes, most of them deliberate.

Democrats of a half century ago made a lot of ground by quoting Charles Wilson, the former head of General Motors who served as secretary of defense under Eisenhower, as saying "What's good for General Motors is good for the country."

Almost but not quite.

What he really said was: "For many years I thought what was good for our country was good for General Motors, and vice versa."

Quotations have a habit of getting twisted around, even if they're written down, like in a movie script.

Probably the best known quote from a movie (until Arnold said "I'll be back!") is "Play it again, Sam." The problem is no one said that either.

The closest comes when Ilsa tells Sam, the piano player, to, "Play it, Sam. Play 'As Time Goes By.'"

It makes you wonder if Arnold really said, "I'll be back!"

Somebody rearranged the words in Mae West's most famous quote, too.

She never said, "Why don't you come up and see me sometime."

What she really said in the film "She Done Him Wrong," was "Why don't you come up sometime, see me."

The military is always on the prowl for a good quote, the kind that would inspire a nation.

As Andy Crewson, the Navy Cross-winning, anti-hero of the novel "Shore Leave," mourns to his friends, "If I had come up with a good quote I might have won the Congressional Medal."

And then there was the case of Gen. McCauliffe, the man in charge at the Battle of the Bulge, whose response to a German call for surrender was a single word — "Nuts."

Or was it.

The story making the rounds at the time was that the general's response had to be cleaned up considerably before it was released to the public, that it actually involved two words, one of them a four letter Anglo-Saxon functional verb.

his experience far exceeded GWB. He was Commander-in-Chief for nine years before Pearl Harbor as compared to the nine months for GWB before 9-11.

The world's only remaining superpower is always going to be a target and some terrorists cannot be reasoned with and must be killed. However, there are eight billion people on this planet and we are less than 5 percent of that number. We need to avoid radicalizing entire nations. Secretary of State Colin Powell (a retired four star general) is being undermined at every turn by the radical right. Israel (seven million people) has not bargained in good faith and has treated the Palestinians disgracefully. GWB should demand that the illegal West Bank settlements be torn down and the despicable "wall" be dismantled or relocated to the actual borderline between Israel and Palestine. Failing that, GWB should cut-off all financial and military aid to Israel. GWB needs to stop being influenced by political donations and Jewish lobbying in his "roadmap to peace"

Let us also remember that for the first time since the Civil War, the sons of the rich can easily avoid the hazards of military service because we legislated an "all volunteer defense force (AVDF). "The AVDF is better trained and more professional, but the pain of war is no longer distributed equally among our populace.

One last lesson from history: There is no "greatest American generation" as Dan Brokaw and others have characterized the armed forces of WWII. WWI soldiers commanded our magnificent young servicemen and women during WWII. WWII soldiers rose to command our magnificent young servicemen that served in the Vietnam debacle. There is no single generation; rather, it is a continum. What worked for Murray and Ariel Sharon in the WWII era is not going to work in fighting 21st century terrorism.

Jingle Bell Walk appreciates support

The South Shore Community Center in Cohasset would like to express its appreciation to the many merchants and volunteers who lent a helping hand at our Ninth Jingle Bell Walk.

As the bells rang out from St. Stephen's Church, thanks to Mary Kennedy, Santa and Mrs. Claus along with many elf assistants arrived at the Community Center despite the inclement weather. Although the outdoors events were cancelled, the volunteers were still ready to go with jingle bells, hot cocoa, and cookies waiting. Mrs. Claus and Santa, along with Frosty, Rudolph, and the merry Elves led a community sing-along of traditional holiday favorites. Photos with Santa, bowling, and face painting followed.

We would like to express our sincere thanks to the many, many contributors and volunteers who helped make the day successful including, but not limited to, the following:

PATRON SPONSORS

Sovereign Bank, Fleet Bank, Abington Savings Bank, Rockland Trust Co., Hingham Institute For Savings and Pilgrim Cooperative Bank

SPONSORS

Cohasset Harbor Resort, Cohasset Chamber of Commerce and Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage

FRIENDS OF THE CENTER

Dunkin Donuts, CVS , Coca Cola, Stop & Shop , Goodale Insurance, Village Wine & Spirits and Cards & Shards

We would also like to thank the following merchants and groups for their contributions:

Cohasset Lobster Pound, Adrienne Morris Salon, Pat the Barber, Hernan Salon, Ports & Co., Sweet surprises, Grapevine Caterers, Fitness First, Rudolph Adamo Salon, Hancock Paint, North River Frame, Papa Gino's, Village Greenery, Goodwin Graphics, Victoria's Pizza, Cohasset Pizza, Atlantic Bagel, Atlantica Restaurant, Buttonwood Books, The Good Sport, The Silver Spoon, The Red Lion Inn, Platinum Spike, Starbuck's, MaryLou's, Fleming's, King Jewelers, Blockbuster, Olympic Citgo, Noble's, Farsh Oriental Rugs, South Shore Art Center, Dependable Cleaners, Bernard's, Atlantic Brokerage Group, Cohasset Hardware, Jack Conway Real Estate, Walgreen's, Cohasset News, Curtis Liquors, Cohasset Food Mart, Maggie's Corner, Carousel, Coastal Countryside Properties, Tedeschi's, Dunkin Donuts, Hub Shipping, French Memories, Shaw's, All The Elves & Rudolph, Frosty, and Many Helpers, And, of course, Santa and Mrs. Clause!

We would like to thank all our volunteers. A special thanks to The Girl Scouts, The Rusty Skippers Marching Band, Cohasset Fire Dept., Cohasset Police Dept., The Patriot Ledger, and Mariner Newspapers. Thank you all!

Happy Holidays,

LIBRARY CORNER

Cohasset artist

Selected paintings by Cohasset artist JoAnne Chittick will be exhibited at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library from now through Dec. 31.

The subjects of these luminous, colorful watercolors include familiar South Shore coastal scenes, still life arrangements, flowers, and a variety of boats. In her paintings, Ms. Chittick depicts the effect of light on form, as it defines shapes and creates interesting patterns. She conveys her own sense of a subject through suggestion and impression as well as careful rendering. Ms. Chittick is a Gallery Artist of the South Shore Art Center and the Cambridge Art Association. Her work has been shown in numerous solo and juried exhibitions in the Boston and South Shore area and is represented in many private collections.

Bradley fights childhood obesity

State Rep. Garret Bradley, D-Hingham, joins federal, state and city officials, along with area education, healthcare and fitness leaders, in a new effort to fight childhood obesity. The Coalition for a Healthy and Active America (CHAA) was launched in September in Boston to promote increased physical activity and nutrition education for children.

Childhood obesity is a problem which continues to grow at an alarming rate. According to the U.S. Surgeon General, only 25 percent of today's youth exercise at the recommended level of 60 minutes a day. In fact, Business Week reported recently that today's children spend more than 38 hours each week watching television or playing video games.

"As our children are leading more sedentary lives, there needs to be a rededication to physical fitness in order to curtail climbing obesity rates," explained Bradley. "Parents are the most prominent influence in our children's lives, however, they cannot fight this battle alone. The community as a whole must join together to find solutions to this complex problem."

The Coalition for a Healthy and Active America is a national organization with coalitions in more than a dozen states.

In addition to Rep. Bradley, the Massachusetts coalition includes nutritionist Debra Wein, M.S., R.D., L.D.N., Massachusetts State Auditor (and former world-ranked boxer) Joe DeNucci, Congressmen Stephen Lynch and Bill Delahunt, Boston City Council President Michael Flaherty, Governor's Councilor Kelly Timilty, State Representatives Brian Golden, Paul Kujawski, James Murphy, and Martin Walsh, Norfolk County Treasurer Joe Connolly, the Boston Teachers' Union and Stop & Shop Supermarkets among many others.

Murdock Middle High School gives Romney an MCAS lesson

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

MICHAEL LEVENSON

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

So much for letters from grateful schoolchildren. Inside the packed gymnasium of Murdock Middle High School in Winchendon, Gov. Mitt Romney met the angry faces of students for whom the label "underperforming" is a very personal mark of shame, not an official sign from the state that help is on the way. The visit seemed, at least momentarily, to jolt the MCAS debate away from the good-news charts and graphs that education officials have proudly displayed at Statehouse press conferences over the last several years and throw it back into the realm of emotion and anger.

Romney, a staunch MCAS supporter, met face-to-face with students who care about the test not because it promotes institutional change, education reform, or district accountability. For them, it's about the future: fail the MCAS exam, and students in the class of 2004 won't receive a diploma.

There was a particularly poignant encounter as Kim Thurlow, a senior at Murdock, escorted Jeremy Dell, a special education student whom she tutors, and asked Romney, her eyes welling with tears, "What are these kids going to do? Where are these kids going to go to school?" Other students refused to shake Romney's hand or held signs saying "I am the under-performer" and "I am a Statistic."

Officially, MCAS has been declared a success. Scores have progressively risen, as more districts and more poor, minority and disabled students have reached the 220 grade needed to pass the test. And test supporters say it has cast a light on schools that have been failing students in the past with less attention and accountability.

But there is a significant portion of students — 11 percent or about 7,000 in the class of 2004 — who have not passed. Winchendon is one of the first two school districts in the state (Holyoke is the other) that has been deemed under-performing on account of students failing to meet their expectations and their districts having exhibited "deficiencies in management and educational services."

For students in these communities, the under-performing designation is shameful, and that was the significance of the visit for Romney. Several students openly voiced their displeasure with his presence. "He didn't come here to help us," junior Sarah Mungeam told The Boston Globe. "He came here to look good for his public relations."

Romney tried to take the long view, telling reporters that students should not feel personally denigrated by their district's woes. "A declaration of under-performing says nothing about the kids," Romney said. "It says a lot about the way we as a state and district are managing education." The MCAS test, he added, "points out to us where we as a group of old guys responsible for schools have some more work to be done. By testing our students, we're testing ourselves as educators and administrators and even political leaders to see where we are failing."

• Finneran: three options after SJC decision — House Speaker Thomas Finneran, a staunch opponent of gay marriage and the last of the big three leaders on Beacon Hill to weigh in on the historic SJC decision, said the Legislature has three options, none of which included enacting gay marriage statutes. Finneran, without making clear his preference, said lawmakers could do nothing, enact civil union legislation or ban same-sex marriages through a constitutional amendment. The speaker's view seemed in line with those expressed by Attorney General Thomas Reilly and Gov. Mitt Romney, who feel the court left the Legislature considerable latitude to take action over the 180 days since the Nov. 18 ruling.

• Romney shakes up public safety team— The governor is now putting together a new public safety leadership team, in part due to the jailhouse killing of former priest John Geoghan and other scandals. Romney and ' is aides made clear they would begin easing aside Corrections Commissioner Michael Maloney, Public Safety Commissioner Joseph Lalli, Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Richard Davis, and Emergency Management Director Stephen McGrail. The moves were expected by Beacon Hill observers, but showed the extent to which Romney is willing to start with a clean slate to reestablish confidence in those agencies responsible for safeguarding the public.

• MBTA changes tune on subway music ban — It could have been MBTA unplugged. Instead, the T, after announcing it would ban all amplified music, heard a loud chorus of criticism from buskers and agreed to reverse course, setting an 80 decibel limit for plugged-in musicians. Several subway troubadours said their livelihood depended on being able to play amplified instruments, and expressed some relief with the new rule.

• Romney's parole board nominees rejected — The Governor's Council rejected Gov. Mitt Romney's first two nominees to the parole board. A debate continues to simmer over whether to install members with law-and-order experience or social and behavioral sciences backgrounds. The council rejected long-time parole board employee Tina Hurley and former board chairwoman Joyce Hooley. Romney aides say they are weighing their next moves, including bringing the nominations to another vote.

• Pension fund gains return, tax revenues stronger, cash flow eases — Three more bits of encouraging economic news: the state pension fund gained $4.5 billion this year and is poised to end three straight years of losses. According to Department of Revenue figures, November revenues totaled $1.045 billion, up $31 million, or 3 percent over November 2002. And state Treasury officials say the state's once tight cash flow position has eased significantly and beyond their expectations.

• GOP sues to block special senate election date — The Republican State Committee filed an official complaint asking the court to halt the scheduled March 2 special election to replace Sen. Cheryl Jacques, D-Needham. The GOP is upset because Democrats will turn out in greater numbers that day to cast votes in the Presidential Primary in which John Kerry is a candidate, giving their Senate candidate an edge in a district from which a Republican could be elected. They will ask the court to reverse the Senate action setting that date on grounds that the Jacques seat will not actually be vacant until she resigns in January and therefore no election can be ordered. Senate President Robert Travaglini released a statement calling the lawsuit a PR stunt.

• Signature-gathering hurdle too high for all but one campaign — Eight proposed ballot questions, addressing concerns ranging from repealing tolls to whale-safe fishing gear to the MCAS test, will not appear on the November 2004 ballot after their sponsors failed to turn in the 65,825 certified voter signatures required under state law. One proposal appears to still be on track. A proposed constitutional amendment that would obligate the governor and Legislature to provide universal, affordable health care for every resident of Massachusetts appeared to meet the signature requirement, after the amendment's sponsors strode into the Secretary of State's office in Boston and dropped off 11 boxes containing what they said were 71,000 voter signatures.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local senators' votes on four roll calls from recent sessions. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

All four roll calls are on proposed amendments to the recently-approved Senate version of a bill banning smoking effective July 5, 2004 in most enclosed workplaces with one or more employees including offices, taxis, restaurants and bars. The amendments sought to strike some of the exemptions to the ban. Most opponents of the ban supported eliminating the exemptions and argued the exemptions were inconsistent, hypocritical loopholes. Most supporters of the ban supported the exemptions and argued the ban was a balanced one. Exemptions include rented rooms in hotels and motels, retail tobacco stores, smoking bars that derive more than 51 percent of their revenue from tobacco sales, patients in state hospitals, state-run substance abuse treatment centers, soldiers' homes, designated areas in nursing homes and assisted living facilities, religious ceremonies in which smoking is part of the ritual and performers engaged in a theatrical performance, film production or other artistic production. Another exemption is for "membership associations" when they are not open to the public. These associations range from some private country clubs to American Legion halls and other non-profit entities that are organized for a charitable, educational, political or social purpose.

BAN SMOKING IN NURSING HOMES AND ASSISTED LIVING (S 2130)

Senate 10-28, rejected an amendment banning all smoking in nursing homes and assisted living facilities. The amendment eliminates an exemption that allows smoking in designated areas of nursing homes if the area does not abut a patient care area and is not an employee workspace or other area used primarily by employees. Amendment supporters said it is hypocritical to allow workers in nursing homes to be exposed to second-hand smoke while protecting workers in other workplaces. They argued the exemption is supported by the powerful nursing home lobby and Senator Brian Joyce (D-Milton) on behalf of his mother who is in a nursing home and wants to be able to smoke. Amendment opponents said there is an element of personal residence in a nursing home and note that smoking would only be allowed in designated areas away from employees. They said the exemption is optional and pointed out that most nursing homes already ban smoking. (A "Yea" vote is for banning all smoking in nursing homes. A "Nay" vote is against banning all smoking in nursing homes). Y

BAN SMOKING IN VFW BUILDINGS AND COUNTRY CLUBS (S 2130)

Senate 11-27, rejected an amendment banning all smoking in the facilities of "membership associations." These associations range from some private country clubs to American Legion halls and any other non-profit entities that are organized for a charitable, philanthropic, educational, political, social or similar purpose. The bill allows smoking in these facilities only by members and only if a non-member or non-employee is not present. The amendment would ban smoking at all times. Amendment supporters said this outrageous exemption is being pushed by lobbyists for wealthy country clubs and noted it is hypocritical to expose lower-income workers in these clubs to second-hand smoke. They asked why a waiter or waitress at a posh country club is not entitled to the same protection as one at a regular restaurant or bar. Amendment opponents said the exemption is a narrow and reasonable one that allows these clubs to set their own policies when only their members, not the general public, are present. (A "Yea" vote is for banning all smoking in the facilities of membership associations. A "Nay" vote is against banning all smoking in the facilities of membership associations). Y

BAN SMOKING IN SMOKING BARS (S 2130)

Senate 9-30, rejected an amendment banning smoking in all smoking bars. The bill allows smoking in smoking bars that derive more than 51 percent of their revenue from tobacco sales and in which the sale of food or alcohol is incidental to tobacco sales. Amendment supporters said this exemption is the most egregious one and actually allows entire businesses based on cigar smoking to continue to flourish and endanger the health of their employees and customers. Amendment opponents said it is important to protect private businesses including cigar bars. They noted that employees of these bars make a choice to work there with the knowledge that they would be exposed to second-hand smoke. Amendment supporters countered that proponents of this exemption do not care about small businesses like restaurants and argued that there is no need to ban smoking in any restaurant or bar since those employees could also make a choice to work there with the knowledge they would be exposed to second-hand smoke. (A "Yea" vote is for banning smoking in smoking bars. A "Nay" vote is against banning smoking in smoking bars). Y

BAN SMOKING BY PERFORMING ARTISTS (S 2131)

Senate 7-32, rejected an amendment banning smoking by performers engaged in a theatrical performance, film production or other artistic production. The bill allows smoking in these circumstances. Amendment supporters said this is another special interest exemption that is hypocritical and would endanger workers and the audience in theaters and on movie sets. They also noted that the exemption continues the glamorization of smoking to impressionable children who watch movies. Amendment opponents said this is a tiny and reasonable exemption for a handful of performers in live theater shows and on movie or commercial production sets. (A "Yea" vote is for banning smoking by performers engaged in a theatrical performance or film production. A "Nay" vote is against banning smoking by performers engaged in a theatrical performance or film production). Y

POLITICAL NOTES

Logan launches her reelection bid

Polly Logan

Paula E. "Polly" Logan — Republican State Committeewoman for the Plymouth-Norfolk Senatorial District and Vice Chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee — will seek re-election for a four-year term in the March 2 GOP primary.

From grassroots town offices to the Statehouse to Washington, Logan has mentored and helped elect more Republican candidates than possibly any single figure in the history of the commonwealth. Acknowledged and respected by political activists of all persuasions, Logan was singled out for recognition by Gov. Romney at a recent fund-raiser for Rep. Rep. Daniel Webster in Duxbury as "the grand dame of politics in Massachusetts."

"I have a wonderful group of movers and shakers working with me — from Weymouth, Hingham, Hull and Cohasset to Norwell, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury — and I look forward to working tirelessly and full-time to continue to secure and elect good Republican candidates," Logan said.

Lt. Gov. Kerry Healy cites Logan as "the first person who offered me both moral and financial support when I began my political career — something for which I'll be eternally grateful." Both Presidents Bush; former Governors Swift, Cellucci and Weld; Congressional leaders Ed Brooke and Margaret Heckler; and prior area office-holders Fran Marini, Mary Jeanette Murray, Bob Stone, Bill Weeks, Peter Foreman, Charlie Mann, Ned Kirby and many others have all benefited significantly from Logan's personal involvement and expertise.

Logan's consistent and continual organizational and fund-raising skills over past terms have been instrumental in the election of state Sen. Bob Hedlund, U.S. Attorney and former Plymouth County District Attorney Mike Sullivan, current Plymouth County District Attorney Tim Cruz, Rep. Webster and others.

"It's simple," stated Logan's re-election chairman Guy Conrad of Hingham, "our district has maintained stronger Republican voter success and election of candidates from beginning offices to our nation's capital than any other in the Commonwealth, except perhaps the Cape. As we head into the critical 2004 election year, we need to take full advantage of the recognized experience, energy and successful track record of a Polly Logan. The loyalty Polly has engendered in all of us — as someone who has literally given her life to Republican candidates—will be critical to our success this coming fall and beyond."

Massachusetts Republican National Committeeman Ron Kaufman pledged assistance to the Logan effort, stating, "Having incumbents continue to run for the State Committee is necessary and vital to building a strong Republican Party because of the continuity it creates within our ranks. It has been my pleasure and honor to work with you."

At the Statehouse level, House Republican Leader Brad Jones has endorsed Logan saying, "Polly Logan has done more to encourage, enlist and elect Republicans than anyone I know — we need her and look forward to working with her in the four years to come."

The Logan steering committee, committee chairmen and town coordinators will be announced shortly, along with the initial series of events, activities, and additional endorsements. Those interested in helping out may contact Polly Logan directly at 781-383-0031, by e-mail at pollylogan1@comcast.net or, in early 2004, at www.GOPOLLY.net.

Many residents will see tax bills go up

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

While residents may notice a decrease in the tax rate when they receive their quarterly property tax bills at the end of the month, it doesn't mean the check written will be any smaller.

Town Manager Mark Haddad said the drop in tax rate is a result of many homes being valued higher this year than last. However, because the homes are worth more, taxes will go up, even though the tax rate is going down. Haddad explained the owner of a $560,000 home – the average value in town — will see an increase of roughly $400 in property taxes over 2002.

The tax bills reflect the Board of Selectmen's decision to continue with a uniform tax rate for all property classes based on the recommendation of the Board of Assessors.

Selectmen have signed off on a tax rate of $11.90 per $1,000 valuation, which could change by a penny or two after the state Department of Revenue reviews the town's financial information. "They certify everything, they make the decision," Haddad said about the DOR.

Last year, the average Cohasset home was assessed at $521,000 and with a tax rate of $11.99, the homeowner paid roughly $6,248 in property taxes. This year, that same home is valued at roughly$560,000 and with a tax rate of $11.90, the annual taxes are about $6,661 — an increase of roughly 6 percent over last year.

However, the price homeowners pay will vary depending on their home's assessed value. By taking the assessed value of the home, dividing it by 1,000 and then multiplying it by the tax rate, a homeowner can compute their property taxes.

Taxes on the average home in town have nearly doubled over the past 10 years along with their values. In 1992, the average home in town was assessed at $300,000 and the tax rate was $12, yielding a tax bill of $3,600. In 1993, that same home was assessed at $286,000, the tax rate was $13.48 and the tax bill, $3,855. Ten years ago, the average resident saw an increase in his tax bill from 1992 to 1993 of around $255 or 7 percent.

The Board of Assessors recommended selectmen approve the uniform rate for all property classes instead of a split tax rate because a split rate would shift more of the tax burden from residential to commercial, industrial, and personal property. Municipalities don't generally split their tax rate unless the combined valuation of commercial, industrial, and personal property equals 25 percent or more of the total taxable valuation of the town — in Cohasset, it is less than 10 percent. A split tax rate can also discourage businesses from locating in a community Haddad said, adding because the town only has around 7 percent commercial, "We don't want to discourage anyone from having a business here."

Legislative logistics create flap over mutual aid bill

By Jeanne M. Rideout
JRIDEOUT@CNC.COM

State Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, says he is a staunch supporter of a key police mutual aid bill, which would provide the same protections to officers responding to mutual aid as the officers would have driving within their own districts.

The measure is advocated by the Massachusetts Police Chiefs. "I support the bill," Hedlund said.

And two weeks ago, he sent out a letter to local police chiefs saying just that.

But a misunderstanding stemming from action in the Senate that Hedlund had flip-flopped in supporting the bill triggered outrage from angry police chiefs.

The proposed legislation passed in the House on Oct. 6 and zipped over to the Senate, where the problem started.

While the local chiefs supported the bill, State Police had problems with the wording dealing with jurisdictional issues.

Unbeknownst to Hedlund, the Senate president wanted the bill to go back to committee so the chiefs and the State Police could work out their differences. Traditionally, in an informal session, the presiding officer can make a motion in any legislator's name which is what apparently happened in this case.

The presiding officer chose to make a motion in Hedlund's name to send the bill back to the Legislature's Public Safety Committee.

"He has assured me he is completely behind this bill and I don't doubt his word."
— Hingham Police Chief Steven Carlson

With all the hubbub in the chamber, Hedlund did not know it happened util he was confronted by an angry police chiefs. "I should have picked up on it," Hedlund said.

Hingham Police Chief Steven Carlson, who is president-elect of the Plymouth County Chiefs Association, said he and Hedlund have a good working relationship.

"He has assured me he is completely behind this bill and I don't doubt his word," Carlson said.

The bill will be reworked in committee.

"When the bill was written, some of the language had us concerned," said Lt. Marion McGovern, State Police spokesman. "There are no concerns over indemnification. We agree with that.

"We will be submitting our version shortly," McGovern said. "We are working with the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police on the rewording of the bill."

Hedlund hopes that he will be able to continue advocating for the bill after it emerges from committee.

"I support the bill the way it is worded now," he said. "It is hard to respond before I see the reworked bill."

Plainville Chief Edward M. Merrick, who is president of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association, explained the scope of mutual aid has broadened significantly since 9-11. Towns need to pool resources on specialty services when faced with threats of terrorism or other activity that would put a strain on local departments.

As it stands now although towns have mutual aid agreements, a chief has to call each other chief to formally request help, which is a cumbersome process. The bill would not only help streamline the mutual aid system, but indemnify on-duty officers while they are travelling from their community to another on a mutual aid call. As it stands now when an on-duty officer crosses the town line he or she is a private citizen, Merrick explained.

"This bill would mean the officer is still a cop when traveling through another town (on his or her way to provide mutual aid)," he said.

He said the State Police are worried the bill will provide local police with state-wide jurisdiction. But Merrick said local police chiefs are not interested in changing the balance of authority.

Abbey priest subject of conduct investigation

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

"We are facing the situation head on and are dealing with it as it is."
— Fr. Nicholas J. Marcone, abbot

Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham is investigating allegations of inappropriate sexual conduct that occurred in another state by one of its monks more than 25 years ago.

The Rev. Andrew Quillen, who has been at the Abbey since 1994, has been suspended from his pastoral ministry until the results of an investigation — that he engaged in inappropriate sexual activity back in 1977 in Iowa before he became a priest — are known.

The police are not involved because the alleged activity was not criminal, said The Rev. Nicholas J. Marcone, abbot of the monastery, in a telephone interview Monday. He said the alleged activity did not involve a child.

Fr. Nicholas made the announcement at Mass on Sunday morning and explained that Fr. Andrew will not have any contact with the public until the investigation is complete.

"I received a letter from an out-of-state attorney telling me about this, so I had no choice but to put our own process in motion, which I have done," Fr. Nicholas said Monday.

He explained the Abbey has had a process in place to investigate allegations of inappropriate sexual conduct since the mid-1990s when incidents of sexual abuse by priests first surfaced, and well before the more recent crisis in the Catholic Church.

"We've tried to keep the process updated ever since incorporating changes in the law and church policy," he said.

Fr. Nicholas said the process involves first determining if there is some credibility to the report and in this case, he did simply because an attorney wrote the letter.

The next step is to initiate an investigation and to activate an advisory board of lay people to provide advice and oversight throughout the process, which will be open to public scrutiny, he said. The committee will also determine a recommended outcome.

Fr. Nicholas said he is contacting the attorney, who is representing the alleged victim, to learn more and is also consulting with Abbey attorneys. "In the meantime, Fr. Andrew has been suspended from any assignments in the pastoral ministry," he said, until the situation is fully clarified or resolves itself.

"We are facing the situation head on and are dealing with it as it is," Fr. Nicholas said.

He declined to elaborate on the allegations, explaining to do so could do more harm than good and that he wanted to protect the rights of those involved.

Fr. Nicholas read a statement regarding the investigation at Sunday's Mass. He said reaction from those at the Mass was initially one of shock and upset. They were invited to stay and ask questions, which many did.

"They were supportive of the way we're handling the process, that there are lay people involved and that we are not covering anything up," he said.

Fr. Nicholas said Fr. Andrew is cooperating with the investigation and said this was a very stressful and trying time for him. "He is doing everything we have asked of him to do," Fr. Nicholas said.

There are 11 monks who live at the Abbey, including Fr. Andrew.

Because of last weekend's nor'easter that kept many at home, Fr. Nicholas will read a statement on the investigation again at this week's Sunday service.

Fr. Nicholas' statement in part states, "Our focus through all of this is to be pastoral to all concerned, toward the individual making the report and toward Fr. Andrew.

"I ask your prayers for us through all this. These are difficult days for our community. We are committed to the principles of truth, honesty, and openness in respecting the rights of all involved. Our goal is an effective pastoral resolution to this matter."

Comments on draft Master Plan sought

The Growth and Development Committee, appointed by the Selectmen in 2000 to help draft a thoughtful and long term strategy to manage town growth, seeks public input on the draft Master Plan. There are a number of ways to review the draft Master Plan, including:

- At the Town Website – www.Cohassetmass.org – click on the link for the Master Plan in the upper right corner of the home page
- At the Town Clerk or Paul Pratt Memorial Library – each location has a full-color, printed copy in a loose-leaf binder, for ease of copying specific chapters, maps or sections
- At the Town Planning Office on a CD-ROM (by request at 383-3517)

Please submit your comments by Dec. 15 to Liz Harrington, Town Planner at Town Hall.

GIFTS of HOPE

Reaching out to help those in your community

The season of giving is upon us once again. Gifts of Hope can help you give to those in need in your community.

For the past 12 years, Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped our readers give to a cause that matters to them keeping them connected to the needs of their communities. Readers' donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

You can help. Through Gifts of Hope a local charity in your community has been selected to be the beneficiary of this years' donation campaign. Finding a way to help can be as easy as looking across the street.

Please join the Cohasset Mariner in giving the greatest gift of all — the gift of hope. A donation of any size goes a long way in helping those in need.

This year the Cohasset Mariner has identified The South Shore Womens Center as the recipient of the Gifts of Hope donations.

Please make your tax deductible check or money order payable to: The South Shore Womens Center Mail to: Gifts of Hope, c/o Anne Rodwell, 16 Enterprise Drive, Marshfield, MA 02050

(Please do not make your check payable to this newspaper or to Gifts of Hope as that will only delay disbursement efforts. Thank you.)

New coach, new attitude for CHS lady hoopsters

Evan Deutsch
CORRESPONDENT

For the Cohasset High varsity girls basketball team, energy piles up quicker than the December snow. The girls started practice last week and their enthusiasm has sparked a fire in their play. The girls eagerly sharpened their fundamentals in preparation of their first game.

Led by their new coach, John Levangie, the squad members cannot wait to strut their hoop skills. This winter marks the 25th season of John Levangie's coaching career, which has included runs at Wayland, Westwood and BC High Schools. He also knows what it takes to compete, having personally played for Merrimack College.

He describes his coaching skills as ordinary, but his players feel differently.

"Coach Levangie has helped us to improve our skills immensely just over the past week," says senior Jen Buckley. "We're ready to work as a team now."

Fellow team member Ashley Faber agrees

"He plans our practices well and focuses on the fundamentals," said Faber.

This electrifying team spirit has spread to Coach Levangie.

"I'm very excited to work with the girls," said the veteran coach. "Their willingness to work hard makes coaching them a real pleasure."

In a recent interview with The Mariner, coach Levangie compared Cohasset to other towns he coached.

"Cohasset pulls together far fewer players than other schools do," he notes, "yet the talent and will among the Lady Skippers are phenomenal.

"I find the parents and people of Cohasset very supportive of both the team and my efforts. Never have I seen a more impressive gym than that of Cohasset."

Looking forward, the Cohasset players travel this week to Westwood, Coach Levangie's old stomping ground, to do battle with a very tough team. This weekend, the Lady Skippers head to New York City via bus to face a local high school squad.

According to Coach Levangie, the teammates will put to the test their latest defens-

D.J. Silvia (#13) will have some big shoes to fill next fall as the heir apparent to two-time SSL all-star receiver Chris Bilodeau.

This was a special season

SSL champion gridders look back and ahead

With the book closed on the 2003 season for the Skippers, the accolades are many.

This year's squad finished undefeated in South Shore League play with a 5-0 record to win the league crown for the second time in three years. They bested SSL rivals Abington, Norwell, Mashpee and Hull to close out the season with a 9-1 record. The last CHS team to go undefeated in league play and become League Champions was the 1960 team. This year's gridders have left their mark in CHS athletic history.

The seniors— Chris Bilodeau, Rob Carpenter, Sean Connolly, Steve Davis, Mike Dooley, Jamie Litchfield, DeWayne Morris, Dan Tarpey, and Tony Truglia— exceeded all expectations. Their hustle, determination, and leadership set the example for the underclassmen to follow.

With a 26-6 record over the past three seasons, and eight juniors and two sophomores accounting for 13 starting positions this fall, the outlook is bright for Coach Tony Rolfe's 2004 squad.

Defensive Unit

Defensive Coach Robert Silvia will have eight starters back to defend their #1ranked defense in the SSL and in all of Division 5.

The defensive line will return three starters, junior Kelvin Ferriera (the team sack leader) at defensive end, and juniors Leo Clougherty and Matt Baroudi at the tackle positions. Both tackles had exceptional rookie seasons. Seniors Rob Carpenter and Sean Connolly split time at the other defensive end slot. So, if you like to chase QBs, please apply.

Juniors Matt Casey (second on the team with 71 tackles) and Ted Straughn will return for another season at linebacker. Unfortunately, senior captain Tony Truglia (the team leader with 98 tackles) will be

So now it's three coaches in three years for the Cohasset High hockey team. Might a third straight South Shore League championship also be in the cards?

Newly appointed Skippers head coach Ben Virga is certainly in no position to answer that question yet, but he is not the least bit hesitant to sing the praises of what he's seen from his own troops through the first week of official workouts.

"Quite frankly, I've been blown away by what I've seen so far," said Virga, 28, who succeeds as bench coach John Blake, who himself succeeded Dennis Walsh prior to last season. Blake, 29, moved on to take the head hockey coaching position at Duxbury High, where he is also a teacher.

"I've definitely got a great group of young men and women here," continued Virga, a former assistant coach at hockey factories B.C. High and Catholic Memorial, and, most recently, at Milton High. "They've already shown me a lot of character and a tremendous willingness to work, not to mention a lot of talent."

Cohasset lost four seniors to graduation—tri-captains John Durkin, Matt Davis and Tom Anderson, along with defenseman Mike Calorio. The three captains were also league all-stars, with Durkin and Davis topping the league champion Skippers in scoring, and Anderson one of the league's most talented and physical defensemen. Durkin, the SSL scoring champ, finished the sea-

All-Scholastic girls soccer team

Cohasset's Graham and Buckley named among area's elite

With a total of 27 girls selected here, this is by far the largest group we have assembled in four years of doing All-Scholastic girls soccer teams. Honestly, narrowing it down to this number wasn't easy. There seemed an inordinate amount of female soccer talent this fall, an observation bolstered by the fact that all 12 of the public school teams from which we draw for this team qualified for postseason play.

As is always the case with these kinds of things, the selection process with this team was not an easy one.

Several of the young women you see listed below as "Honorable Mentions" received serious consideration for All-Scholastic acknowledgement.

In the end, however, we limited ourselves to a team of just 27, and, after consulting with area coaches, we do feel secure that we chose the top girls soccer players in Marinerland for this honor.

Coastal Stars Youth Hockey report

Mite A

The Mite A Coastal Stars were on a mission against the Mohawks. With Will DeCoste in net, the Stars recorded their third straight shutout and their offense came alive for a 9-0 win. The Mohawks tested DeCoste on the games' first shift, but he flashed the left pad on a puck labeled for the right corner, and the Stars were on their way. With one minute gone, Will Golden passed out front to Jake McDonough. His shot was saved, but Terrence Doonan put the rebound away for the 1-0 lead. A minute later, McDonough skated the puck out of the left corner and beat the Mohawk goalie. Jared McCrystal's pass off the boards sprung Doonan for a break, but T-Dog's shot hit the crossbar. The offensive continued in the second period. Jake McDonough skated end-to-end and scored to the top right corner at the 6:40 mark. Terrence Doonan outraced everyone to the puck inside the Mohawk zone and slipped it inside the right post twenty seconds later. With four minutes left, Kenny Parnell kept the puck in at the blue line to Jonathan Spitz in the left corner. Spitz' shot was saved, and so was Connor Maher's rebound. But Colin Whelan fought out front and banged in the second rebound for the 5-0 lead. Whelan made a rush after the face-off, but his shot was saved. The game became a shooting gallery for the Stars in the third period. The Stars defense, including Kevin McDougall, Jeremy Duchini, Jared McCrystal, Kenny Parnell and Andrew Geddes, was aggressive at the blue line and kept the puck in the Mohawk zone. When the Mohawks did clear the zone, Frankie Lemieux and the other Stars forwards hustled to backcheck and regain the puck. Jonathan Spitz' shot from the left corner found the net for a 6-0 lead with nine minutes left. Terrence Doonan rushed the puck from the red line and put a backhander into the left side. After the face-off, the Stars put the puck on net. Tommy Dixon swept the rebound in. Kenny Parnell picked up a loose puck in the Mohawk zone and fired a shot from the top of the left circle. Chris Cohen hustled and scored on the rebound. The Stars changed up their lines after that, with the defense playing up front and the forwards playing back. The Stars played the final 1:35 shorthanded after a penalty, but Will DeCoste preserved the shutout and the Stars went home with their mission accomplished.

Mite C3

The Coastal Stars Mites C-3 team continued on their winning ways with a 9-0 victory over the Mites of Duxbury 3. The win improved the team's record to an unblemished 8-0-0. The game featured a balanced attack with seven different Stars skaters scoring and goaltender Declan Leahy recording a shut out. Defensemen Jeffery Powers and Jake Denton combined for the first Stars goal as Jeffery Powers took a mid ice pass from Jake beating the Duxbury goalie from between the offensive circles. Winger Sam Topham then received a pass off the sideboards from defenseman James Daley and streaked up the left side of the ice scoring on a wrist shot from the left circle. The line of Matthew Tautkus, Bryan Bowman and Max Hemingway applied constant offensive pressure when left wing Matthew Tautkus scored on a feed from Max Hemingway from behind the opposing net. Garrett Leahy scored the fourth goal of the first period with an unassisted rush up the right wing from his own defensive zone. The second period started with some aggressive play from forwards Curtis Golden, Timmy Cavanaro and defenseman Hugh Healey creating some quality scoring opportunities. Right winger Mark McGoldrick opened the Stars scoring in the second period sliding the puck past the Duxbury goaltender from a group of Stars players gathered in front of the net. In the same shift defenseman James Daley pressed from the left point and let a laser shot go, which found the inside corner of the Duxbury net. Center Andrew Tautkus closed out the second period scoring by redirecting a pass from linemate Sam Topham past the goaltender. Mark McGoldrick scored his second goal of the game midway through the third period firing a backhand along the ice past the Duxbury net minder after receiving a pass from Andrew Tautkus. Andrew Tautkus concluded the Stars scoring collecting his second goal of the contest slamming home the rebound of a shot by James Daley. Coastal Stars defensemen, Jeffery Powers, Jake Denton, Hugh Healey and Garrett Leahy played a solid game limiting the Duxbury skaters offensive opportunities. Stars goal tender Declan Leahy provided the "back stop" shutting down the Duxbury skaters to preserve the 9-0 shut out.

Mite C2

On Saturday, the Coastal Stars Mites-2 dropped a tough one to Braintree 5-2 at the Devine rink in Dorchester. The Stars battled for two periods before succumbing in the last period to the stronger offensive play of Braintree. Both squads came out strong and battled in the first period with end to end play and several scoring bids. It wasn't until midway into the first period that Patrick Graham logged the first goal, on a shot along the ice that beat the Braintree goalie left side. Braintree countered a minute later with an open breakaway bid but goalie Jack Evitts stood tall and made the pad save. Mike McPartlin had a couple drives to the net during the period, just missing on one shot that rang off the post. Jack Kaetzer played with great hustle at left wing, coming off last week's defensive assignment. Aidan Beresford and Robbie Bertone were a formidable pair on defense providing strong line play and keeping the puck in the Braintree end. Joseph Proctor made a key defensive play late in the first period, scooping up a loose puck in front his own net and clearing it out of the zone. As Braintree turned up the heat, Robert Reidy responded by skating the puck out of the defensive zone. The Stars controlled play for the majority of the first period but Braintree took advantage of a momentary lapse on defense to score with 5 seconds left in the period. The Stars continued to battle in the second period, with the front line of Joey Redfearn, Matt Boudreau and Patrick Graham combining for several fine passes and scoring opportunities. Center Matt Doyle contributed to the effort by winning key face-offs in the Braintree zone. Forwards John Leahy and Jeremy Archibald added tenacious play in the corners and around the net. Defensemen Thomas Coyne, Brendan Evitts and Kal Maier provided good coverage on defense, countering the Braintree attack with opportune puck clears out of the zone. But with less than six minutes in the period, Braintree struck again for another goal to take a 2-1 lead. Braintree would maintain this lead going into the final period. Braintree kicked it up a notch in the third with offensive attacks that produced two additional goals extending their lead to 4-1. But with 9:20 left, Patrick Graham answered with his second goal assisted by a Joey Redfearn pass off the boards. Moments later, Graham just missed getting the hat trick as he scored seconds after the line change buzzer. Trailing 4-2, with a couple minutes left in regulation, the Stars pulled their goaltender for the man advantage. However, Braintree scored on the open net making it 5-2.

Squirt C2

The Coastal Stars Squirt C2 team continued their winning role with a 6-5 win over Weymouth 1. The Stars jumped out to an early 6-1 lead before Weymouth came storming back in the third period to make things very close. The defense played a huge role in this game with Jack Nelson and Sarah Evans each picking up a pair of assists while playing terrific in their own end. Ryan Bertone lead the goal scorers getting the hat trick. Ryan was set up nicely on the first goal by Pat Shay and Jack Nelson. Things got interesting about ten minutes into the game when the electricity went out in the rink for about ten seconds. There were priceless comments and emotions from some of the players on the ice at the time, "coach we could have scored if they didn't blow the whistle, the goalie would have never seen us", "It's pretty scary in here when the lights go out, "can we play in the dark if all the lights don't come back on?" The lights returned and play continued after about 10 minutes. Andrew Fontaine came storming out after the break scoring two goals in a span of about 40 seconds, with great assists from David Greenwood and Matt Sullivan. Charlie Coffman came up with a very had working assist on Ryan's second goal with 37 seconds remaining in the first period. Matt Sullivan scored unassisted in the second period to extend the lead to 5-1. His goal was the result of great work in the defensive end by his line mates Kevin Friedland and Brian Craig. Things got tight in the third period when Weymouth came roaring back with four unanswered goals. Defensemen Girard Tierney and RJ Nuels really stepped up to make sure that was as close as things would get. Kevin Quinn also made some key stops at the end of the game to preserve the win.

PeeWee C1

The Coastal Stars Pee-Wee C1 team surrendered a goal late in the third period that enabled Weymouth-1 to escape with a 3-3 tie on Sunday in Hingham. Justin Yeager started the scoring halfway through the first period with a strong wrist shot that pinballed off players in front before getting to the net. Yeager's goal was assisted by Smith and Andrew Bell. Weymouth then scored the next two goals to take a 2-1 lead. Stars' winger Phil Murphy scored his first goal of the season to tie the game at 2-2 mid-way through the second period. Brian Meehan and Yeager assisted on the Stars' second goal. The Stars went ahead 3-2 late in the second period with a terrific wrist shot by Gordy Smith that slipped through the goalie's pads. Brian Meehan set up the strike when he dished a pass to Smith who was positioned perfectly for the score. Weymouth put pressure on Stars netminder John Carrigg in the third period but Carrigg held them at bay until very late in the period when Weymouth scored the tying goal. Despite a terrific last minute effort by the Stars, including a tremendous slap shot by Gordy Smith, the game ended with the score tied at 3-3. The Stars objective was to beat their opponents to the puck, and they accomplished that against a very competitive Weymouth opponent. Contributing to the Stars' strong offensive play throughout the game were Joe Fitzsimmons and Mike Caira. The Stars defense also put on an outstanding performance. Making big plays in the defensive end all day were Kevin O'Connell, Geoff Evans, Chris Fazzina, and Mike O'Halloran.

had a direct hand in many more goals...was key in leading the Lady Skippers to consecutive postseason berths after a decade of sub-.500 seasons...had 12 goals and four assists as a junior...voted team Most Valuable Player last year...two-time South Shore League all-star...an absolutely tireless worker with outstanding athleticism and speed...helped out considerably at the defensive end, and the counterattack almost always started with her in the middle of the field...also a standout in basketball at C.H.S...involved in chorus at CHS...top collegiate choices are Northeastern, UMass-Amherst, BU, URI, UNH and UConn...plans to major in physical therapy or nursing...will likely not pursue sports at the collegiate level, but will play intramural sports...Coach Deb Beal: "Jenn was just incredible for us at both ends of the field. Her teammates looked to her for so much. She'd go 100 miles per hour to support the offense and then 200 miles per hour to get back and help out if the other team counterattacked. She probably did twice as much running as anyone on the field, but she never complained."

Holly Graham - Senior (Capt.) Sweeper- Cohasset

Holly Graham

Cohasset's final line of defense the last three seasons...two-time South Shore League all-star...was voted team MVP in her sophomore season...a very strong instinctive player with good overall athleticism...was key in leading the Lady Skippers to consecutive postseason berths after a decade of sub-.500 seasons...four year varsity team member and three year starter...had one assist this year... also a sensational tennis player who played third singles for Div. 2 state champion CHS team last spring...was member of Cohasset-Scituate swim team her first two years of high school...Honor Roll student...a volunteer with Elder Affairs...hopes to play college soccer or tennis...top college choices are St. Michaels, St. Anselm, Manhattenville and UNH...undecided on a major...Cohasset coach Deb Beal: "Holly was our rock on defense. Everything Jenn (Buckley) was for us in the midfield the last few years, Holly was on defense. She just carried us on her shoulders at times."

Lauren Jentzen - Senior (Capt.) Forward - Marshfield

Lauren Jentzen

One of the best soccer players in the state, Jentzen was the leading scorer in Eastern Mass. racking up 47 points on 32 goals, 15 assists...A three-year starter on the frontline, Jentzen ended her career as Marshfield High's all-time leading scorer with 80 career points (53 goals, 27 assists)...A two-year Old Colony League and E.Mass. All-star, this speedy and highly skilled player led her squad to an OCL title (13-1, 19-2-1) and to the Div. 1 South Sectional finals, where they fell in a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to league foe Falmouth...In the tourney, Jentzen netted six goals, while adding two assists...Also a talented lacrosse player at MHS, Jentzen plans to continue her soccer career at Syracuse University next fall. Marshfield coach Fred Podbelski: "Most players receive the ball and take three to four strides to get up to full speed. Lauren takes the ball and within two strides is already gone. She can get by absolutely anyone and her ball control and foot skills are incredible."

Joanne Gueverra - Senior Fullback - Marshfield

Joanne Gueverra

A two-year starter at forward her sophomore and junior seasons, Gueverra graciously accepted her coach's call to arms, moving to the fullback position the day of the team's season-opening tourney at Newton North...There, Gueverra helped Marshfield capture a shutout win over the host team and established herself as one of the area's most formidable defenders...The Old Colony and Eastern Mass. All-star always marked the opposing team's best scorer and shutdown many as part of a defense that posted 13 shutouts in 18 regular season games...Tall, fast, and strong, Gueverra could run with anyone and distributed the ball well from the backline or in the midfield...Netted 9 goals, 8 assists as a junior and helped lead the Lady Rams (19-2-1) to an OCL title (13-1) and to the Div. 1 South finals this season...Also a talented trackster at MHS, Gueverra has competed at the All-State and New England level with the 4x400-meter relay team...She plans to attend Sienna College and continue her soccer career. Marshfield coach Fred Podbelski: "I asked her to move from forward to fullback and she said 'OK Pod. Whatever the team needs.' From that point on, she really made the team click. She would be the Coach's MVP."

Alex Eckhardt - Senior (Capt.) Goalie - Marshfield

Alex Eckhardt

This three-year starter and two-year Eastern Mass. All-star solidified Marshfield's impenetrable defense with her stellar play in the net...Height and great anticipation were among her greatest strengths in a season in which she allowed only five goals and shut out 13 opponents in 18 games...For her career, Eckhardt posted 21 shutouts for a 0.42 goals against average...Came up huge in the Lady Rams' semifinal game in the Div. 1 South Sectional tourney against Oliver Ames, making a stop on a penalty kick to ice a 5-4 victory and send her team to the South finals...Helped Marshfield (19-2-1) capture the Old Colony League title (13-1) and made the All-star team for the second-straight year as a top three pick...Also a talented tennis player at MHS, Eckhardt hopes to attend Stonehill College and continue her soccer career. Marshfield coach Fred Podbelski: "She was in charge of our defense. She told everyone where to go, who to mark. She was always talking. She plays the angles extremely well, knew when to come and when to stay back and was just so aggressive."

Hilary Eckhardt - Senior (Capt.) Sweeper - Marshfield

No, you're not seeing double... Hilary is Alex's twin and was the last line of defense before her sister as the Lady Rams' solid sweeper...So quick to the ball, Eckhardt could run with anyone and effortlessly deliver a one-touch clear...Wasn't afraid to play out of position and take the ball through the midfield if necessary, netting a goal and two assists in the process...A three-year varsity player at Marshfield, this Old Colony League All-star helped lead the Lady Rams to the title (13-1) and appearance in the Div. 1 South Sectional finals, where their season ended at 19-2-1...Eckhardt was part of a defense that shut out 13 opponents in 18 regular season games...A member of the National Honor Society, Eckhardt hopes to join her sister in attending Stonehill and continuing her soccer career. Marshfield coach Fred Podbelski: "Hilary was so quick to the ball and could break out of the backfield. She's extremely strong, hardly ever miss-kicked, and had a great release."

Hilary Eckhardt

Karen Bagley - Senior (Capt.) Midfielder - Hanover

Karen Bagley

In one word, Bagley could be described as "tough"... The three-year starter was literally everywhere on the field, most effectively at center midfield...Was a defender last season, but got back to her preferred position this year and was named a Patriot League and Eastern Mass. All-star for the second-straight season... Offensively, Bagley produced 17 points on 10 goals, 7 assists and defensively clogged up the middle against some of the area's best scorers...Her play helped the Lady Indians capture a share of the PL title, tying Duxbury at 8-2-2 (9-4-4 overall)...Also a talented softball player at HHS, Bagley is still considering colleges, where she plans to continue her soccer career. Hanover coach Garth Nelson: "Karen really enjoyed being back at center midfield after graciously playing stopper last season. It is her position of choice and is where she really excels."

Lindsey Arria - Junior Forward - Hanover

Lindsey Arria

Was leading the Patriot League in scoring before suffering an ankle injury that caused her to miss three games down the stretch and in the Div. 3 South Sectional tourney...Despite this, Arria still racked up 18 points on 13 goals, 5 assists and was named a PL and Eastern Mass. All-star for the second-straight season...Arria's speed and clever footwork on the frontline helped the Lady Indians capture a co-championship of the PL, tying Duxbury with a 8-2-2 record (9-5-4 overall)...Arria is also the point-guard on the HHS girls basketball team and a talented shortstop on the softball squad...She will return as a senior to all three teams next year. Hanover coach Garth Nelson: "Lindsey doesn't give up. She's a great athlete and is extremely competitive. She plays with a lot of confidence."

Morgan Mueller - Senior (Capt.) Fullback - Hanover

Morgan Mueller

It was a breakout season for this talented defender...Not flashy, Mueller's gritty and smart style of play at outside fullback helped shutdown some of the area's best goal-scorers as she was an important part of a defense that shut out seven opponents and allowed only 18 goals this year...Aggressive but quiet, her defensive play helped the Lady Indians capture its first Patriot League title in three seasons, tying Duxbury at 8-2-2...She was voted a PL All-star and was instrumental in leading Hanover to the Div. 3 South Sectional tourney...Mueller plans to attend Wake Forrest and play soccer on the club team. Hanover coach Garth Nelson: "Morgan has great defensive skills and deceptive speed. She's comfortable at outside fullback and in the midfield. She had a great season."

FILE PHOTO/DAVE GORDON

Jen Buckley (standing), a force at both ends of the field for the Lady Skippers, was an easy selection for the second time for All-Scholastic honors.

This was a special season

hard to replace at the outside linebacker position.

Juniors Joe Durkin, D J Silvia, and Crandon Leahy will all return to the defensive backfield as a more experienced unit. Chris Bilodeau's interceptions (6) and overall leadership on defense will need to be covered by the group as a whole.

Offensive Unit

The O-Line, which paved the way for over 1,700 rushing yards this season, will have three returning members, sophomore left guard Nick Arment will start his third year, junior Matt Casey will return at center, and sophomore Dan McCarthy will anchor the right side for a second season. Seniors Dan Tarpey, at left tackle, and Steve Davis, at right guard, will be lost to the caps and cowns, two crucial voids that will need to be filled.

Junior D J Silvia (14 receptions for 212 yards and 2 TDs) will return as the elder statesman of the receiving corp. Senior Chris Bilodeau's 28 receptions for 323 yards and 4 TDs will be the benchmark for his replacement to strive for. Connolly (4 receptions for 56 yards) was primarily a lead blocker at tight end. This slot is wide open for a number of underclassmen.

A replacement for senior QB Mike Dooley must be groomed. Dooley accounted for over 1,050 yards of offense, having rushed for 334 yards and eight touchdowns, and passed for 725 yards, with six touchdown passes. He also combined with Straughn and Morris to execute the option play with great success.

Half of the backfield will be back. Junior Ted Straughn, (25 carries for 67 yards and 3 TDs) at fullback was a devastating lead blocker for Morris all season, will return.

A big loss at tailback will be the graduation of DeWayne Morris. He rushed for 1,250 yards and 9 TDs, played the entire season and was the top surprise of the 2003 season. Underclassmen who saw limited action in the backfield included Joey Kehoe, Brendan Michaud, Dave McKenna, and Joe Durkin.

Special Teams

Punting is taken, as Joe Durkin had a solid year booting the ball, with the Norwell game a memorable performance. As with the below mentioned extra point trio, a long snapper will need to be found.

Kickoffs are available, as both Steve Davis and his backup Sean Connolly will be lost to graduation.

Senior Sean Connolly had one of the most successful extra point kick conversion seasons in quite awhile, as he converted 11 of 14 attempts.. Long snapper Steve Davis, and holder Mike Dooley, the other integral parts of the threesome, will need to be replaced as well.

Tony Truglia's exceptional play as a wedge buster will be passed down to Joey Kehoe, Rick Grassie, Brendan Michaud and Dave McKenna, to name a few.

Turf Awards

Coach Tony Rolfe has been selected to coach in the 2004 Shriners Football Game. Rolfe has a 39-22-1 record at CHS.

Receiver Chris Bilodeau and guard Steve Davis have been named to the 2004 Shriners Roster.

Steve Davis was the recipient of the Clark Chatterton Gridiron Club Award and the Cohasset Youth Football Award.

Golden Helmet Awards were presented to Bilodeau, Davis, DeWayne Morris, Sean Connolly, Mike Dooley, Dan Tarpey and Tony Truglia in recognition of three years of varsity team play.

Truglia, Morris, Dooley, Davis, Bilodeau, and Kelvin Ferriera were selected South Shore League All-Stars.

The following 2003 Team Awards were announced at the Annual Gridiron Club Break-Up Breakfast this past Saturday at the Atlantica Restaurant:

Team MVP-Chris Bilodeau
Coaches Award-Mike Dooley
Hustle & Desire-Tony Truglia
Best Back-DeWayne Morris
Best Lineman-Steve Davis
Unsung Hero(s)-Dan Tarpey & Sean Connolly
Hull Game MVP-Sean Connolly
Most Improved-Kelvin Ferriera
Matt Casey, Joe Durkin, Ted Straughn, and D J Silvia were named 2004 Team Captains.

Kudos to Trainer Jim Levenson for his professional assistance throughout the season.

Team Scoring

DeWayne Morris	56 points
Mike Dooley	50
Chris Bilodeau	24
Ted Straughn	20
Sean Connolly	17
D J Silvia	14
Tony Truglia	2
Crandon Leahy	2

2003 Results

beat Nantucket, 18-0 beat Arch. Williams, 23-19 beat Cardinal Spellman, 7-6 beat Carver, 28-0
beat Mashpee, 28-6

Quarterback Mike Dooley, who accounted for over 1,050 yards of offense, will prove difficult to replace.

Crandon Leahy (#84) returns to the defensive backfield, but the loss to graduation of Chris Bilodeau (left) will leave a big void back there.

Junior fullback Ted Straughn (#34) will be back to lug the rock and dish out punishment on both sides of the line of scrimmage next fall.

Senior tailback DeWayne Morris was the most pleasant surprise of the season by far, as he rushed for 1,250 yards and nine touchdowns.

Oops, they did it again

A big cheer for the Scituate/Cohasset youth cheerleaders. The cheerleaders participated in an Old Colony League Youth Cheerleading Competition at Bridgewater State College on Nov. 22.

The locals saw their dedication and hard works paid off, as they placed first in their division.

Thanks to coaches Cindy Harrington, Tricia Margolis, Linda Harris, Maria Connolly and Terri Pelletier. Also thanks to Mrs. Foley for providing safe transportation, and a special thanks to the board of the Scituate-Cohasset Youth Football and Cheerleading for all their support.

SPORTS NOTES

Youth lacrosse signups Jan. 10

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will hold its sign-up for the spring season on Saturday, Jan. 10 from 9 a.m. to noon at Cohasset High School.

This will be the only day to register. Spaces are limited at all age levels; while Cohasset Youth Lacrosse endeavors to accept everyone who files their paperwork on registration day, the program has had to turn children away at some age levels in the past.

Registrations will be taken for both boys and girls in the 14 & Under (7th and 8th graders) and 12 & Under (5th and 6th grades) age groups. At the 10 & Under level (grades 3-4), Cohasset will field teams for boys and sponsor a weekly skills-development clinic for girls.

The youth lacrosse program is dedicated to introducing children to the sport. All players receive roughly equal playing time regardless of ability. Cohasset participates in the Mass Bay Youth Lacrosse League, the nation's largest youth lacrosse organization, which does not keep standings or have playoffs. Every team makes several road trips per year, which be as close as games in Scituate or as far away as Martha's Vineyard.

In addition, the program is hopeful of attending a jamboree near the end of its season, and is working to develop a special Memorial Day weekend program with teams from Vermont. The season ends with Cohasset's annual Family Day in June.

The youth program may field as many as 12 teams this spring, depending on demand and available coaching. In spite of that growth, roster spots at all levels will be limited and it is possible that some youngsters will be turned away.

"As popular as the program has become, the challenge for us is to keep rosters small enough so that everyone gets the right kind of experience," says Chuck Jaffe, coordinator of Cohasset Youth Lacrosse. "To that end, we are willing to guarantee anyone who makes sign-up day a spot on our teams. But if our rosters are at or beyond the ideal size when we close our registration, there will be no late registration whatsoever."

Parents who can not attend the Jan. 10 registration should contact Jaffe by e-mail at CAJaffe@aol.com in sufficient time to have registration materials mailed and returned prior to Jan. 10. Include your name, address and the number of children being registered.

The registration fee is $135, which includes a uniform and a youth membership in US Lacrosse, the national governing body for lacrosse. US Lacrosse membership includes mandatory insurance coverage and a subscription to a magazine especially designed for kids. Cohasset Youth Lacrosse does offer discounts to families with two or more players; the cost is $250 for two players and $360 for three. The girls 10-and-Under clinic costs $85, or $75 if a family has two or more players in the program. Clinic players do not receive US Lacrosse membership.

Late registrations, if roster spots are available, will cost $225.

The program is limited to Cohasset residents; players at the 14-and-Under level can play regardless of whether they are active on Cohasset's Middle School teams, or if they play on the team of a private school.

In general, both boys and girls games are played Sunday afternoons. The spring practice schedule has not yet been set. The teams will begin practicing indoors in early March and begin playing games in April. The season concludes in mid-June.

In addition to players, the program is looking for additional coaches at all levels.

Lacrosse is a contact sport; at all levels for boys, practices and games include hitting. In accordance with Mass Bay Youth Lacrosse League rules, all boys must be equipped with sticks, gloves, shoulder and elbow pads, and helmets with mouthpieces. Hockey helmets are not allowed, although hockey arm and shoulder pads are (hockey gloves are not flexible enough to allow a child to manipulate and control a lacrosse stick).

The girls game has less contact, but practices will be every bit as physical and demanding as for the boys. All girls must be equipped with sticks, mouthpieces and approved goggles.

There will be more information on the Cohasset Youth Lacrosse program available at the Jan. 10 sign-up. If you need more information, or are interested in volunteering to coach, contact Jaffe at 781-383-9858 or CAJaffe@aol.com.

son with a team best 42 points in 22 games (22 goals, 20 assists), while Davis ended up with 34 points (15 goals, 19 assists).

These players will obviously be difficult to replace, but it sounds as if several returnees have come back much improved, just as an upbeat Blake predicted would be the case at the end of last season.

The three captains, seniors Mike Rasmussen and Mike Devine and junior Ted Straughn, have certainly hit the ground running, so to speak.

"Those three guys have given me just what you want from captains so far," said Virga. "They've helped a lot with the transition to my coaching style. They set the example and their teammates are following along. Those guys have earned respect."

The big and hard-skating Rasmussen and Straughn figure to be the wings on the first line this winter, where they'll be centered by fellow senior Rob Carpenter, who has put a smile on the faces of all CHS hockey fans by returning to Cohasset High after a year of private school. Two years ago, as a sophomore, Carpenter skated right wing on a top line with Durkin and Matt O'Connell and finished fourth in the team scoring race with 28 points (eight goals, 20 assists).

"Rob has already shown me some things in practice that have left me speechless," reported Virga. "He made an end-to-end rush in practice this morning that you just aren't used to seeing at the high school level. Obviously, getting him back is a huge lift for this whole team."

Although it is not cast in stone, Virga sounds as if he's leaning heavily toward using an all sophomore second line, with Matt O'Connell (Greg's brother) centering Matt Bouchard and Brandon Smith. The former two saw top two line duty the majority of last season, and Smith showed flashes on the third line.

"Those guys certainly have the ability," said Virga. "They just need experience and confidence. They have a chance to grow together."

The third line will also be a work in progress, with sophomore Ben Libby likely to center freshmen Corbin Faber and Austin Lancilotti.

Given the lack of size on the second and third lines, backchecking could prove a matter of some concern for the team. Fortunately, the defense is shaping up as one of the area's best.

Mike Devine, a previous selection as a Mariner All-Scholastic and South Shore League all-star, may well be the league's top blueliner this season. Devine is a superb skater, extremely strong in both ends of the ice, and rarely seems to make a mistake.

Juniors Tim Pilczak and Joe Durkin were both fixtures on the blueline last year as well in a two pair rotation with Devine and Anderson. For the time being, Virga indicated he'll go primarily with a three man rotation in the back while looking to bring a few youngsters along slowly.

"I don't know much about the South Shore League yet, but I can't imagine there being a defensive trio much better than those three I have," said Virga. "They've all been outstanding so far."

The rookie head coach had similar praise for sophomore goalie Stefan Parnell, who is coming off a superb freshman season. All the 15-year old netminder did in his first year of high school hockey last winter was post an outstanding goals against average of 2.24 (47 goals against in 21 games.)

The Skippers are slated to scrimmage Latin Academy tomorrow and then open the season for real Saturday night (8 p.m. start) at Pembroke's Hobomock Arena versus 2003 powerhouse Scituate. The Sailors defeated Cohasset twice last season on their way to a 15-2-1 season and reports suggest they may be even more talented this season.

"Obviously, that a big early test," said Virga. "We should get a pretty good indication of where we stand on Saturday, and the things we might need to work on."

Scott Leaver of Hingham works on one of his abstract paintings in his living room. Leaver discovered he could paint after having emergency surgery to remove a brain tumor.

Nothing abstract about the message behind his pictures

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Until one August day last summer, Scott Leaver of Hingham was a typical 33-year-old upwardly mobile married man with a promising career in the software industry.

None of that has changed with one exception: a tumor the size of the child's fist that has been removed from his brain.

An athlete who had always enjoyed great health, Leaver brushed off the headaches he treated with aspirin until an August flight to Atlanta for his job that caused him to feel dizzy and lightheaded. He ended up in the hospital there where surgeons took out the malignant tumor.

Where Leaver's story turns remarkable is that somehow, Leaver feels, the removal of the tumor released a creativity that he didn't know he had. With no formal training, he is taking out any frustration he has with his illness on the canvas and has become a painter, who wants his artwork to benefit worthy causes.

"After surgery, it was like something broke loose and enabled me to do this kind of stuff," Leaver says.

"After surgery, it was like something broke loose and enabled me to do this kind of stuff."
— Scott Leaver, painter

At 6-feet, 6-inches tall and carrying a little less weight than he'd like due to chemotherapy treatments, Leaver — who is as self-effacing as he is soft spoken — is reluctant to call himself an artist. And he's worried those "true" artists, who depend on their work for their livelihood, won't understand his motives.

But, nevertheless, Leaver hopes his abstract paintings will attract "buyers" and their purchase price will be donated 100 percent to one of four causes that are close to Leaver's heart for personal reasons. The charities are: brain cancer research; the American Heart Association (in honor of his father-in-law, who died of heart disease); the Hingham Interfaith Food Pantry (because of the Leavers' fondness for Hingham); or the Mary Martha Learning Center (Leaver, whose father died in the Vietnam War, was raised by a single mother).

As payment, Leaver will accept a photocopy of a check or a thank you note from the organization; no money will pass through Leaver's hands.

Leaver's paintings are decidedly abstract; he works only with a painter's knife that gives the artwork a rich, layered texture, and the colors and treatment provide a van Gogh-like feeling. His first works have involved waves. Leaver, who grew up in San Diego, loves the water and found painting waves following surgery was therapeutic and healing. But he's moved on to total abstracts using deep color and light, to a mixture of primitive art and abstract painting. A painting of his dog, Lucy, uses that combination and is both colorful and engaging. He is currently working on a piece that features Turkey Hill that will be recognizable but still unique.

Although he is back to work full time, Leaver is anxious for "commissions" in other words, specific orders for his work. To that end, he's launched a web site that will feature pictures of his paintings and interested customers" can also contact him by email.

Ironically his wife, Sharyn, bought Leaver the easel he uses for his creations for Christmas about two years ago in the hope he might take up painting. Having to take a month off of work after surgery and not able to exercise the way he'd like to, Leaver turned to the easel to release his pent-up nervous energy.

"It all came together and I didn't know how or why," recalls Leaver, who discovered painting was a release from the stress of living with cancer.

"It's a nice escape like going fishing," he says about the paintings that he initially thought would just fill up the walls of his home. But soon Leaver's friends and family were asking for paintings and Leaver decided to use the artwork to raise money to help others. He is asking for a minimum of $100 per painting, all of which will go to charity. The supplies for each painting are $60-$70, but Leaver isn't looking to recoup his costs.

Leaver hopes people will buy the paintings for art-sake first, not just for charity. He says those interested in the latter can write a check directly to the organization and bypass the art altogether.

"I'd love them to be interested in the art first and foremost," he says, adding there might be an art gallery in his future someday based on the same charitable premise.

Leaver describes his work as "empowered art" because the investor not only empowers the charitable organization with a contribution but empowers Leaver to continue to do what he has grown to love.

Long-time Hull Flying Santa to pass reins to other elves

George Morgan, Flying Santa, is going to give up his wings.

By JohnGalluzzo
SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Hull's George Morgan first donned the red suit and hat of the Flying Santa of the Lighthouses 22 years ago, and in that time he's seen the highs and lows of the annual gift-giving program. At one point, the once-proud tradition, established by Rockland, Maine, pilot William Wincapaw in the 1920s, diminished to a single symbolic helicopter visit to the Coast Guardsmen serving at Boston Lighthouse on Little Brewster Island.

But, after taking full charge of the program and forming a new nonprofit organization, the Friends of Flying Santa, Inc., after a split with the Hull Lifesaving Museum in the mid-1990s, Morgan helped to build the Christmas tradition back to its Depression-era glory, when Wincapaw and his son delivered gifts to dozens of lighthouse keepers along the New England coast. This year, three Santas — Morgan and Coast Guardsmen Tom Guthlein and Dave Waldrip — will visit 30 lighthouses from the Canadian border to Long Island Sound, delivering more than 1,000 personalized gifts to children of Coast Guard families, as well as boxes of goodies to the crews at the lighthouses and Coast Guard stations.

And then, after making the last run of the year, Morgan will hang up his red suit for good. "I guess this is my last hurrah," he said from his Nantasket Avenue home. "I'm just getting too old to do it. I'm definitely not tired of it. I'm just physically tired." Recuperating from knee surgery, Morgan knows that he will have trouble getting in and out of the helicopters that have become synonymous with the Flying Santa tradition for the rest of his days. "It's time to let someone else take it over."

But the last run will be an important one for Morgan, as he says good-bye to a labor of passion that has been, in essence, a full-time job since 1981. Bad knee and all, Morgan will be visiting 11 lighthouses and Coast Guard stations from Portsmouth, New Hampshire, to Jonesport, Maine, for the last time. This year, he'll have a special helper with him, his own personal "Elf," Admiral Vivien Creigh, Commander of the First Coast Guard District.

Morgan has accomplished much of the work of Friends of Flying Santa, Inc., from the upstairs office of his Hull home. After a two-week hiatus every year to celebrate Christmas with family and friends, he has traditionally started work again on or around Jan. 1, planning bus trips and cruises, collecting raffle prizes, printing tickets, and generally figuring out how to raise thousands of dollars worth of funds for the helicopter fees needed to make the flights each year. Each year he has made personal appearances, visited schools to collect letters from children, sought donated goods for the special lighthouse keepers' goody boxes, and written and personally signed hundreds of thank you letters to donors.

This January, for the first time in more than two decades, he'll have to find something else to do.

Morgan takes with him 22 years of memories, most of which are recorded in photographs, but some tales that nobody outside of the nonprofit organization ever knew about. For the first 13 years of life as Flying Santa, Morgan held a full time job as a food service director for a chain of nursing homes, a job that came in handy when searching for goodies to put in the keepers' gift boxes. He began his own mini-tradition, cajoling his helicopter pilots into stopping at the nursing homes for which he worked — from Cohasset to Brockton to Connecticut — after the day's run was over, an act of kindness completely unrecognized until now. "I used to love seeing the looks on their faces when their own Santa came walking in," he said.

Then there was the story of the daughter of a Coast Guardsman who watched as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy stepped out of a helicopter at the service's facility at Woods Hole to personally thank the crewmembers that searched for the remains of his nephew John F. Kennedy, Jr.'s, plane after its fatal descent off Nantucket. The young girl, recognizing the

Holiday House Tour tickets are available

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is delighted to present "Christmas Gatherings", a tour of five beautifully decorated and uniquely different homes, a holiday tea, and a Christmas boutique. The tour is Saturday, Dec. 13, from 10 a.m.-4p.m. The featured homes, each with a theme, include: a string quartet at the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph on Jerusalem Road; an elegant afternoon tea at the Flanagans and a wintry evening dinner at the Flints, both on South Main Street; a cocktail party at the Shockmans on Border Street; and a Christmas tea at the Ulmers on Margin Street.

Tickets for the tour include maps and are still available. They are $20 in advance, $23 the day of the tour. Tickets, a holiday tea, and a gift boutique will be at the Second Congregational Church on Cohasset Common. The Church will also be decorated.

Tickets are also available in Cohasset at Flemings, 24 Elm St., The South Shore Community Center, 5 North Main St., Nobles Camera Shop and Buttonwoods Books on 3A. In Hingham they are available at Nobles Camera Shop, 29 Main Street. In North Scituate, they are available at Emporium Naturals, 763 Country Way. Or send a check to The Community Garden Club of Cohasset, c/o Windy Hill Road, Cohasset MA 02025. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope. For more information and tickets call 781-383-9689. Adults only

Proceeds from the house tour will be used to support the numerous projects of the garden club, which include historic restoration and preservation, civic beautification, scholarship grants, and community education programs. In addition, the club contributes time and money to various environmental and conservation agencies.

helicopter as one similar to the one used by Flying Santa, took one look at the white-haired senator, and said, "Daddy, why doesn't Santa have his suit on?"

"I'm going to miss everything about it," said Morgan. "I'll miss all the people — I've got a personal mailing list I started in 1982. I'll miss the way the kids at Brown's Head Light in Vinalhaven [Maine] came over the hills like the Native Americans in the Old West movies when they got the OK signal. I'll miss the way kids would tug on my beard and whisper to their friends, 'He must be the real one.' And then they'd tug again, just to make sure. And I'll miss that moment when I was in my car at the end of the day, alone with my own thoughts for the first time in hours, when I would say to myself, 'Geez, did I have fun today.'"

From its earliest days, the Flying Santa has visited the lighthouses of Boston Harbor and the South Shore, from Boston Light to Scituate Light to the Gurnet, and the tradition continues today. Wincapaw, the original Flying Santa, and Winthrop and Marshfield's Edward Rowe Snow, who kept the ritual alive for 47 years, used to fly over the light stations in prop planes and drop heavily-wrapped packages out windows, to hopefully bounce to safe landing places. Morgan has had the benefit — and added pressure — of face-to-face meetings with children, landing at each site by helicopter and handing out presents. It's a role he's grown to love over the years.

"I made a lot of good friends over the years," he said, scrolling through his personal contact list, generated from 22 years of handshakes and smiles. "Because of the way the Coast Guard rotates, every year I met new people."

But now, though, his Nantasket Avenue home will go from being Santa's Workshop at the North Pole to just the plain old Morgan residence. He'll have plenty to do, though, as his three grandchildren will now get much more attention from their grandpa. "Believe it or not, they can take up a lot of your time," he said with a smile.

Morgan hasn't ruled out making flights in the future if called upon in an emergency, but for now, he's happy with his "retirement."

"All in all, it was a great experience," he said, "and I hope that anybody that stays with it from here on out has as much fun and loves every minute just as much as I did."

Cohasset Chamber names new board

Over the new couple of weeks Dr. Mike Conlon, owner and clinic director of Conlon Family Chiropractic located at 814 Rte.. 3A, Cohasset will meet with vice president-elect Ron Goodwin, Jane Higgins Norton and Frank Campbell of Pilgrim Cooperative Bank to make plans for an exciting 2004. Conlon says he has talked with numerous Cohasset businessmen and women over the past month who have expressed interest in serving on the board of directors.

Conlon will take over from former president Domenic Micarelli.

Conlon and his wife, Dr. Christina Conlon, have been providing chiropractic health are in the community since 1997. In addition to their Cohasset office, they provide service at two satellite clinics located in Quincy and Brockton. They have two young boys, 5-year-old Liam and Brady, almost two. A Quincy native, Mike Conlon and his family now reside in Scituate. He is a graduate of Palmer College of Chiropractic in Iowa; received his undergraduate degree from Norwich University in Vermont; and is a 1983 BC High graduate.

Ron Goodwin, a Cohasset native, has been a member of the Cohasset Chamber for many years. He has previously served as a director of the chamber. Active in the Cohasset Rotary, he is a past president of that organization and received one of its highest honors when he was named a Paul Harris Fellow.. Since 1976 he has owned and operated Goodwin Graphics, a promotional marketing company, located on Rte. 3A in Cohasset. Goodwin and his wife Mary have two daughters.

A graphic design and illustration professional for 18 years, Jane Higgins Norton founded Oceanside Design in 1999. Jane provides clients with custom design and print services — from logo design, corporate identity packages, and brochures to creative maps and illustrations. Norton also markets her illustrations to greeting card, stationery and textbook companies in the U.S. and Canada. After living in Scituate for 10 years, she moved back to Cohasset with her husband, Chris, in May of 2003. She has served as a Member on the Board of Directors for the Scituate Chamber of Commerce the past two years and is the editor/designer of its newsletter "Sails." As an officer on the Cohasset Chamber she will be responsible for the newsletter.

Connie Zanoni, manager of Sovereign Bank New England, Cohasset Branch, has been involved with the Chamber for a number of years as treasurer and membership chairman. In 2004 she will take an off-board position in which she will be responsible for membership mailings, financial reports and other duties. Zanoni and her husband John are Scituate residents.

Melissa Clark of Cohasset, Melissa Clark Designs, will continue to put out a first rate web page only she will do this off-board.

Board members not returning but are "on call" if the new board should require their services are; Dom Micarelli of Christopher Gallery, Cohasset; John Flanagan, president of John Flanagan Investment, Cohasset; Nancy Butler, Image Acoustics, Cohasset who has served as clerk of the board and kept in touch with town hall through her position of government relations liaison; Deb Andrew of Rockland Trust, Cohasset and Tanna Kasperowicz, publisher of the Tinytown Gazette, Cohasset.

Spreading awareness and hope through heartfelt words

Author shares stories about ovarian cancer

By Mary Jane Hanron
CORRESPONDENT

"I had known for some time deep down that something was wrong with me," reflects Maureen Ryberg, Hingham resident and noted author.

After spending her childhood in Liverpool, England, Ryberg married and moved to the United States. She found joy in researching historical information about her family and how they lived in Europe during the war years. This project approached completion when she received news that would change her life forever. She was diagnosed with an advanced form of ovarian cancer, which instantaneously shifted the direction and focus of her emotions, her family and her very will for survival.

Maureen Ryberg of Hingham, author of "Warnings, Sighs & Whispers."

"Rather than be angry and frustrated, I decided to see it as a duty to spread the word to other women about the symptoms and possibilities of earlier detection of this disease."
— Maureen Ryberg, author

"I felt as though I had not been describing my feelings and symptoms clearly enough to my physicians," she continued. "Though I was completely frustrated and shocked by my diagnosis, I felt it was my duty to give back. As a person whose passion is writing, it was natural to seek solace in the stories of others. I reached out across the internet, looking for others who might have had similar experiences. Instead of feeling alone, I was overwhelmed with the responses of empathy and hope."

In her search for support from women in similar situations, Ryberg discovered a new purpose and way to use her gift of words.

"Rather than be angry and frustrated, I decided to see it as a duty to spread the word to other women about the symptoms and possibilities of earlier detection of this disease," Ryberg says. "More and more stories from affected women and their families touched me and I was fortunate enough to become connected to doctors Arlan Fuller and Barbara Goff, both of whom are experts in the field of ovarian cancer.

"There has been research done indicating that there are early symptoms of the disease," she says. "Often they are general, however and can be dismissed as aging, stress, fatigue, or digestive problems. It is up to us as women to insist upon further testing or investigation when disturbing symptoms persist. If women are unable to be advocates for themselves, or find someone to speak for them they tend to give up. I want to spread the message that it is vital to listen to your own body. If persistent symptoms lead to abnormalities in life, it is not healthy!"

A collection of stories from people around the world became Ryberg's vehicle to communicate her message to as many people as possible. "Warnings, Sighs and Whispers", a book of "true stories that could save lives" is the culmination of unending hours and emotions Ryberg contributed to the project. The publication became her passion and, as she expressed, her "duty and mission to raise awareness, and spread a message of hope."

The cover of Maureen Ryberg's new book that shares the heartfelt stories of women who have ovarian cancer.

Speaking of her new book with deep sentiment, Ryberg described several of the women who tell their stories in the various chapters. It has been possible for Ryberg to meet several of these survivors face to face, however many have communicated only via the internet, phone or letters. Sadly, some have died since submitting their accounts; others thrive, living healthy and active lives. All have essential information to share that could save the life of any woman who reads the stories.

"So much in the world encourages us to ignore minor physical symptoms," continued Ryberg. "Even television ads use humor, or indicate that symptoms like bloating, discomfort or indigestion are normal. In most cases they are harmless, but when symptoms are persistent, they require further investigation. Everyone needs to know this. Even doctors need to be more aware; I hope the message is conveyed that they must listen to their patients."

Ryberg explained the book is not meant to create fear, but to inform and indicate the hope and fulfilling existence can follow a cancer diagnosis. Those who tell their stories her book speak in their own words to describe courage, tragedy, victory, laughter and joy. The depth of strength found in ordinary people touched by a life threatening illness is extraordinary and inspirational. Even the book cover by K. Ann Gibson depicts lovely tranquil colors, the eternity of nature and the soothing renewal of life.

Ryberg continues to live with ovarian cancer and receive treatment for the condition. "At this point, it is my understanding that I will never be free of the disease (barring the discovery of a miracle cure) but my treatment is intended to keep the cancer under control. Now, I am trying to make sure that I maintain a certain quality of life.

Hingham is a happy and peaceful home for Ryberg and her husband, Ed. "I don't know what I would do without him," she states. "He not only makes things bearable, he makes most times really fun!"

Their two daughters live nearby in Cambridge and Brookline. "We love Hingham!" she continued. "It was a wonderful place to raise children. The downtown area has such a great sense of community. One of my favorite things about the town is its closeness to the ocean. Being near the sea is like having a security blanket. The wide open feeling it stirs in me affirms a connection with something Greater than ourselves."

Ryberg has been a faithful volunteer for many years at the Hingham Food Pantry. Her health issues have kept her from participating there recently, but her commitment to the cause remains firm. Walks in the fresh air accompanied by her husband and dog are treasured moments. "We have each day and each moment," she declares. "....And most importantly, we have hope."

"Warnings, Sighs and Whispers" is available at the Bookport, Buttonwood Books, www.1stBooks.com/bookview/16449 , or by calling toll free:888-280-7715.

Possible symptoms of ovarian cancer

Please note that the symptoms listed below are most likely to be an indication of other, less serious conditions. However, if they persist, they should be investigated with a view to ruling out the possibility of ovarian and related cancers.

- Abdominal swelling, feeling of pressure, bloating
- 'Full' feeling, even after a light meal
- Pain in the abdomen or pelvic region
- Backache
- Bleeding from the vagina; prolonged, heavy menstrual bleeding, mid cycle spotting, or post-menopausal bleeding
- Fatigue
- Constipation
- Diarrhea
- Indigestion, gas or nausea
- Frequent or urgent urination
- Pain during intercourse
- Weight gain or loss with no known reason.

Dr. Wayne S. DeWald

Dr. Wayne S. DeWald, 86, of Cohasset, died at his residence Dec. 3, 2003, after a brief illness.

He was a retired member of the South Shore Anesthesia Group at the South Shore Hospital. A physician at the South Shore Hospital for 20 years, he retired in 1987.

Dr. DeWald was born in Picture Rocks, Pa. He was educated at St. John's University and the Long Island School of Medicine, N.Y. He began his career at St. Mary's Hospital and Knoxville, Tenn. Prior to moving to Cohasset 30 years ago, he was the chief anesthesiologist at St. Mary's Hospital, Waterbury, Conn.

He was a member of the Fellows of College of the Anesthesiology. In his retirement, Dr. DeWald was active in the Grandparents Program, giving his time to the elementary schools in Cohasset and Hingham. He volunteered his time as a driver for the Senior Citizens and was a member of the Chantecleer Club of Cohasset.

Husband of the late Grace S. DeWald (Sullivan), he leaves his children, Kathryn S. Nee of Chincoteague, Va., John W. DeWald, Attorney of Rockland; Diane M. Sale of Richmond, Va., Stephen J. DeWald of New Bedford. He was the brother of Aldine DeWald Pa.; many grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces, nephews.

A memorial mass was celebrated Saturday, Dec. 6, 2003 in St. Anthony's Church. Internment was private.

In lieu of flowers, contributions in Dr. DeWald's memory may be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Dr., Braintree, Ma., 02185.

The arrangements were handled by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, One Summer St., Cohasset, Ma.

Virginia Nast

Virginia Robinson Nast, 80, of Cohasset, a longtime member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, died Dec. 1, 2003, at Southwood Long Term Care Nursing Facility from complications of Alzheimer's disease.

She was the daughter of the late Mae and Harold Robinson of Newton and West Yarmouth.

Before her marriage, she lived in Newton. She received a medical secretarial degree from Lasell Junior College.

During her daughters' school years, she was active in the parent teachers association and supported the Cohasset Swim Team.

At the church, she was a choir mother for the junior choir and a member of the altar guild. She served as head of the guild and treasurer.

She enjoyed arranging flowers, baking; needlepoint and taking photographs of family and events.

She leaves her husband of 52 years, W Roger Nast, and two daughters, Cynthia Nast of Westborough and Deborah Carey and her husband, Michael, of Braintree.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. at Jan. 3, at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Cohasset.

There are no visiting hours.

Arrangements were handled by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

Contributions in her memory may be made to St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset, MA 02025.

Clark N. Young Jr.

Clark N. Young Jr., 67, of Cohasset, a retired machinist and project manager for several South Shore companies, died Friday, Dec. 5, 2003, at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth of a heart condition.

Mr. Young retired from the Seavey Engineering Firm in Pembroke in 2000.

He was a member of the Dramatic Club in Cohasset and the Second Congregational Church in Cohasset.

He enjoyed his boat, the C-Lark 11, a 35-foot wooden cruiser built in 1930. Beginning in the late 1980s, he and his family spent each summer on the boat moored in Oak Bluffs Harbor on Martha's Vineyard. His father, the late Clark N. Young, had brought the boat there since the early 1950s. Mr. Young also had a pilot's license during the 1960s.

He enjoyed playing the piano and had restored a 1912 player piano. He also enjoyed traveling and was an avid reader of novels and current events. He also enjoyed helping friends with their boating projects, fixing appliances and feeding birds.

Born in New Bedford, he was raised in Cohasset and lived there for 61 years.

Mr. Young was a graduate of Cohasset High School, attended the Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston and earned teaching credentials from Northeastern University.

Husband of the late Margaret J. (Gibson) Young, he leaves two sons, Clark N. Young III of San Jose, Calif., and David J. Young of Hingham; a daughter, Susan Y. Willette of Whitman; three grandchildren; and a close friend, Susan Barron of Scituate.

A memorial service officiated by the Rev. Gary Ritts, was held at Second Congregational Church, Cohasset. Interment was private.

Arrangements were made by Mortimer N. Peck-Russell Peck Funeral Home in Braintree.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham 01701, or to Second Congregational Church, Cohasset 02025.

BONE CONDUCTION HEARING INSTRUMENTS

A bone conduction hearing instrument performs the same task as a conventional hearing instrument, but in a different way. A conventional hearing instrument amplifies sounds and delivers them to the ear canal and on to the eardrum, which then vibrates. This is what is meant by "air conduction. " These vibrations are passed to three small bones in the middle ear, which, in turn, transmit them across the oval window to the cochlea, in which signals are generated that pass along the auditory nerve to the brain. A bone conduction device works by conducting sound through the bone in the skull. Sounds are then heard when vibrations are transmitted directly to the cochlea, bypassing the middle and inner ears.

The many marvels that exist today in the hearing industry make it easier than ever to enhance your hearing. And you can always expect the best when you visit FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER. You'll find innovative hearing instrument design, you'll find personalized service, and you'll find friendly faces ready to help. Don't put up with a hearing loss. There are lots of ways today to get back the sounds of life. The first is a call to 781-337-1144, located at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth. We accept most HMOs, State GIC, Union Benefits, and Mass Health.

P.S. A bone conduction hearing instrument may be suitable for those with conductive hearing loss that prevents sound from reaching the inner ear, usually because of a blockage or abnormality of the outer middle ear.

Unicorn Singers in Christmas concert

The annual Unicorn Singers Christmas Concert will be on Saturday, Dec. 13, at 8 p.m. at the Hingham House of Prayer, Lutheran, in an event cosponsored with the First Parish in Hingham (Old Ship Church), Unitarian Universalist. This marks the second year that Old Ship and House of Prayer have shared in presenting the Unicorn Singers Christmas Concert to the people of Hingham and the South Shore.

The Unicorn Singers, under the direction of Margo Euler, will perform the beautiful Magnificat of John Rutter. The seven movements set the text as found in the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, with the addition of a tranquil setting of the 15th century "Of a rose, a lovely rose." The remainder of this hour-long concert will feature favorite carols for the audience to sing with the choir. This is the 25th anniversary Christmas Concert for the Unicorn Singers, and promises to be a splendid celebration of the season's spirit. Following the concert, all are welcome to stay for holiday refreshments and fellowship.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit Renewal House, a shelter program of the Unitarian Universalist Urban Ministry which serves women and children who are victims of domestic violence, and the Woods Mullen Shelter for the Homeless, in Boston.

Tickets are available for a suggested donation of $10 ($5 for children/youth); a donation of whatever is possible from those with low income is welcome. For further information or for tickets, call the Parish House of Old Ship Church at 781-749-1679, weekdays, 9 a.m.-2 p.m.. Tickets will also be available at the door and beginning Dec. 1 at Noble's Camera in Hingham Square. House of Prayer is at 916 Main St.

Police have a quiet month

November was a very quiet month for the Cohasset Police Department. There were two arrests: one for Violation of a Restraining Order, and one for Protective Custody, Police Chief Robert Jackson said.

During the month of November, the police department investigated eight motor vehicle accidents; two of which resulted in personal injury. There were 67 motor vehicle citations issued totaling $1,275 in fines. Additionally, there were 35 parking tickets issued for $950 in fines, Jackson said.

Also in the month of November the Emergency Dispatch Center received a total of 765 calls for police services, of those 125 were emergency 911 calls.

In the month of November, there was one breaking and entering of a residence. Additionally, there were four criminal complaints issued for the month, Jackson said.

Toys for Tots at the CPD

The Cohasset Police Department is participating in the Toys For Tots program again this Christmas.

Unwrapped toys for needy children may be dropped off in the lobby of the police station on Elm Street 24-hours-a-day through Christmas, says Officer John Small.

Second time's a charm for 'Jaques Brel' and Cohasset's Caroline deLima

Even after reading a raft of rave reviews, Caroline deLima admits she wasn't expecting last season's Gloucester Stage Company production of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" to became such a hit that a separate team of producers would assemble to remount it in Boston for its current run.

"It's been surprising that something like this has been received so well," says the Cohasset native of the musical review that blends the romantic, funny and often bitingly satirical poetry of the Belgian-born Brel with his sophisticated music ('Carousel," "If We Only Had Love").

"Jacques Brel, the man and the show, both seem to have their own subculture of followers," explained deLima by telephone last week. "It doesn't matter where we perform it, there are always people in the audience who seem to know the lyrics to every song."

After spending her third summer as a counselor and assistant at the Britney Spears Camp for Performing Arts in South Yarmouthport, deLima resumed her stage career this fall with not one, but two appearances on Boston stages. In addition to reprising her Gloucester role, she was also featured with her sister, Kate, and her "Brel" costar, Leigh Barrett, in last month's acclaimed staging of "Follies In Concert," which starred Tony Award winner Len Cariou.

While deLima's three fellow performers from the first production joined her for the transfer the same could not be said for the entire creative team. Other commitments prevented original director Scott Edmiston from continuing with the Boston production — which is being re-staged by Musical Director Todd Gordon and Assistant Director Nicole Jesson — but deLima feels Edmiston's concepts have been key to the show's success in both venues. "Scott was our original director in Gloucester and he really invested a lot in reconfiguring this show and really making it work today. When I was first approached about the show, I thought the music was very dated," says deLima of the musical which made its New York debut in 1968. "Now that I've had the privilege of performing them, I've really come to like the songs a lot. They are so vivid and create such great imagery. Brel was brilliant, because he wrote music with messages that are very specific to their context and yet they also often have a larger, more global meaning."

While deLima may be booked with "Brel" for the foreseeable future, she doesn't rule out a return to a venue a little closer to home. "If the Company Theatre would have me, I would go back there in an instant," says the singer whose portrayal of Sally Bowles was a highlight of the Norwell theater's production of "Cabaret" just a few seasons ago.

"Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" will be at the Stuart Street Playhouse/2nd Stage, 200 Stuart Street, Boston, through at least Dec. 21. For tickets and information, call 800/447-7400.

Selectmen: DA's office wrong to dismiss prosecutor

Ask for patience during ongoing police investigation

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Selectmen say the First Assistant District Attorney of Norfolk County acted inappropriately by dismissing former police prosecutor Rick Grassie from the court for not processing the paperwork following an arrest.

The news came via a prepared two-page statement read by Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris to the live TV camera during the board's weekly meeting Monday night.

But David Traub, spokesman for the DA's office, said the District Attorney is the final arbiter of who prosecutes on behalf of the Commonwealth. He said the DA's jurisdiction to allow prosecution by police officers is clearly established in state law.

First Assistant District Attorney Dennis Mahoney removed Grassie from the court when he didn't file the complaint charging three men with malicious destruction of property, affray and disorderly conduct following an arrest outside the American Legion Hall the night of Oct. 11 when the men allegedly broke the railing on the handicapped ramp.

The selectmen's statement also criticized media coverage of the ongoing police matter involving two officers who were placed on paid administrative leave Oct. 20 pending the outcome of an investigation into their fitness for duty. One of the officers made the Oct. 11 arrests; one of the men he arrested was Keith A. Jackson, the police chief's son.

"The town believes the ADA does not have authority to dismiss the town's prosecutor and his actions relative to this matter are inappropriate," McMorris stated. [The complete text of the selectmen's remarks is on page 13.]

McMorris said Grassie acted to protect the best interests of the town. She also referred to the nine-page decision by Judge Mark S. Coven granting Mahoney's request to bring the malicious destruction charge forward to arraignment, citing its complexity.

"It is clear that a police prosecutor faced with these issues would have to proceed cautiously in order to protect the town," she stated.

Presented with a letter from Legion Post commander Steve Wigmore stating the railing was already broken and on the advice he would perjure himself to do so by Keith Jackson's attorney, Ron Rice, Grassie didn't file the complaint in Quincy District Court.

McMorris read the prepared statement during the selectmen's

9-1-1 calls on cell phone are not enhanced

Home phones show address

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Thinking of going totally "cellular" by giving up your home telephone?

You may not be alone. Thanks to a new ruling from the Federal Communication Commission – which allows consumers to transfer their home telephone number to their cell phone – more people may decide to give up the "land line" altogether.

But emergency management officials want residents to be aware that when it comes to dialing 9-1-1, there's a difference. Through enhanced 9-1-1 – which is available when someone calls from a home or business telephone in town —

Bleak budget season looms

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Town Manager Mark Haddad has been working on preliminary budget figures and at this early stage, the financial situation for Cohasset doesn't look good for fiscal year 2005. At this point, Haddad said he is not planning to recommend an override, but with an estimated 5-10 percent cut in state aid, the money will have to be made up somewhere, and it could come in the form of personnel cuts.

"The 2005 budget is about as bad as we thought it was going to be," Haddad said, adding state aid has gone down 30 per-

Restored cemetery gates complete project

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

After decades of rusting in a shed at the Beechwood Cemetery, the intricate wrought iron gates which guarded its entrance more than 100 years ago have been restored and are now standing proudly back at their post. Like a hidden treasure, the gates could have easily been overlooked, but have been given a new life, serving as a shining example of fine craftsmanship and a piece of history the town

"Our wrought iron expert said we had an unusually good specimen of 1870s craftsmanship. We were told it would be a crime not to restore them."

Center's support groups bring abused women together

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

These women are not like her—the way they dress and talk, their jobs and families. How could they possibly understand? She doesn't belong here, not with women like the one who's speaking now. What's she saying?

Oh. That is what it's like. Yeah. That is how it feels. Yes. That is what no one else has ever understood before....

She reaches across the table to the woman who is just like her.

For women who have suffered physical, mental or emotional abuse, the support groups coordinated by the South Shore Women's Center offer a safe place to speak openly of their feelings and experiences. In group they find the acceptance, understanding and inspiration that can only come from someone who's been there.

"What they talk about is pretty typical, but each has a different twist," says Carolyn (last name withheld), coordinator of SSWC's center-based community services. "It's all about power and control. Society doesn't have an idea yet how far it does go."

Carolyn is facilitator for three of the groups that meet weekly in locations throughout the 16 towns served by SSWC. Each woman meets with the same group of five to 10 other women and two facilitators for 10 weeks. Child care is available for many of the groups.

"Right off the bat, they just look at each other. They're hesitant. They're learning who to trust," says Carolyn. "Before long, they've bonded and they start to open up. Once they open up, they all become pretty close. It's amazing."

Upcoming meetings

The following meetings were posted at Town Hall this week:

Board of Assessors, Jan. 13, 4 p.m.

Paul Pratt Board of Library Trustees, Jan. 14, 7 p.m. at the library

School Committee, Dec. 18, 7 p.m., high school library.

ZBA, Dec. 18, 7 p.m., 40A executive session.

All meetings are at Town Hall unless indicated otherwise.

Hedlund office hours

The December office hours for state Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) will be held at the Cohasset Town Hall on Thursday, Dec. 18, from noon to 1 p.m. on the second floor in the 2A vestibule.

Hedlund also maintains a district office at 66 Sea St., North Weymouth that is accessible Monday through Friday for constituents and appointments. The telephone number is 781-340-9866 or at the Statehouse at 617-722-1646.

Watch your waste over the holidays

There are a few things that people tend to do a lot of over the holidays. One is the purchase of cards, gifts, wrapping paper and decorations. Another is throwing things away. Between now and the end of the year, for example, Massachusetts residents will buy:

- Nearly 70 million holiday greeting cards.
- About 1 million cut Christmas trees.
- Roughly $10 in packing materials and wrapping paper for every $100 they spend on gifts.

There are a number of ways to reduce the environmental impacts of all this holiday spirit, according to the commissioner of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP).

"With a little effort, each of us can make a big difference in reducing the holiday season's toll on the environment," said Commissioner Robert W. Golledge Jr. in offering a series of DEP tips for conserving resources and reducing waste over the holidays:

- Consider buying a live tree that you can plant in the spring, or one of today's life-like artificial trees. Either way, you'll help spare a tree from being cut down.
- If you decide to purchase a cut tree, see if your community is one of more than 200 across the state with a program for recycling cut Christmas trees into compost or mulch — important, since landfills and incinerators no longer accept trees for disposal.
- Send electronic greetings instead of traditional holiday cards and recycle cards others send you.
- Use children's artwork, fabric, the Sunday comics or reusable gift bags instead of single-use wrapping paper, and recycle the boxes and packaging from presents you receive.
- Save packing "peanuts" and bubble wrap to either reuse when shipping gifts next year or drop off at a collection center near you (call 1-800-828-2214 for locations).
- As you make room for new holiday treasures, consider donating old, unwanted toys, electronics and clothing to charity instead of throwing them away.

The Department of Environmental Protection is responsible for ensuring clean air and water, safe management of solid and hazardous wastes, timely cleanup of hazardous waste sites and spills, and the preservation of wetlands and coastal resources.

Apply for CPC funds

Anyone wishing to petition the Cohasset Community Preservation Committee ("CPC") for a funding recommendation at the March 2004 Town Meeting must submit an initial application to the committee no later than Jan. 15. Please note that the CPC may only recommend to Town Meeting those projects involving the acquisition and preservation of open space, historical preservation and/or promote low to moderate income housing.

Qualifying applicants will be asked to make formal presentations to the CPC during January and February.

Copies of the application may be obtained at the Town Hall or by calling the committee Chairman, Stuart Ivimey at 383-2604.

Protecting water supply from an act of terrorism

The Water Commission has awarded the contract for the preparation of a Vulnerability Assessment to Applied Risk Management (ARM), LLC of Boston.

ARM was the lowest qualified bidder, at $17,500. The proposals received from the 9 bidders ranged from $9,500 to $66,570. The project should be completed by April 15, 2004.

"The purpose of the Vulnerability Assessment," said John McNabb, chairman of the Water Commission, "will be to comply with the requirements of the federal Bioterrorism Act to identify any existing weaknesses and to strengthen our security measures to protect our drinking water supply.

"Since the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001," said McNabb, "the Water Commission has been taking every reasonable precaution to improve the security of the water system, including improvements to physical security and changes in procedures. This project will help us to further improve the security and safety of the public drinking water supply."

ARM will also prepare a revised Emergency Response Plan for the Water Dept., which will outline the action steps to follow if a primary source of drinking water becomes contaminated or if the flow of water is disrupted.

The federal Bioterrorism Act requires water systems such as Cohasset's that serve more than 3,300 people, to prepare a Vulnerability Assessment no later than June 30, 2004 and to update the Emergency Response Plan by December 31, 2004.

Restoring the bridge over troubled waters of Straits Pond

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Cohasset is joining forces with the towns of Hingham and Hull to replace and expand the deteriorating West Corner culvert and tide gates which have caused major problems for Straits Pond over the years. The culvert, which not only serves as the only source of in and out-flow for the waters of Straits Pond, supports one of the two major roads in Hull and carries telephone and cable wires, as well as water and gas for Hull, and sewer lines for parts of Cohasset and Hingham. The structure is of major importance to the three towns as well as the ecological environment and is in dire need of an overhaul.

The pond, which is located between the southeast portion of Hull and the northeast portion of Cohasset, and is flanked by Atlantic Avenue in Hull and Jerusalem Road in Cohasset, has been in need of major improvements for years. Stagnant waters have provided a perfect breeding ground for algae and non-biting bugs called midges, which have been distracting from the natural beauty of the setting as well as causing problems for neighbors.

Because of its unique location, ownership of the culvert is 50 percent Hull, and 25 percent each Cohasset and Hingham. In light of the situation, members of the Straits Pond Watershed Association (SPWA) have been coming before boards of the three towns, asking they chip in their share to help fund a restoration project, which will cost roughly $1 million for the replacement of the culvert and $125,000 for the design and permitting of the project. Although grants have been given to the towns to help with the project, Cohasset, is being asked to pay $25,000 for its share, which will be included as an article on the annual Town Meeting Warrant.

"We're trying to focus on the causes," of pollution in the pond, said SPWA President Lawry Reid from Hull. Until now, any ecological improvements to the pond have only been temporary, but through the improvement of the culvert and tide gates he and SPWA members believe permanent changes can be made.

While ideas for cleanup efforts have been brewing for years, Reid said funding has been a problem until recently. Since 2001, SPWA has been working with the towns of Hull and Cohasset to bring in $66,000 of state and federal grants. In addition, SPWA has held more than 15 activities to help get the community involved, including semi-annual pond cleanups and annual coast sweeps. SPWA has also taken the time to learn about the region's geological history, native landscape plants, and bird population, and has constructed and installed 22 tree swallow birdhouses to help control the midge population. Insecticides have also been applied to the area in an effort to control the midge population. However, monthly samplings of midge larvae were taken after insecticides were applied to the area, and no conclusive results were found, Reid said.

Because Straits Pond has had problems for more than 100 years, Reid said SPWA's goal is to solve the causes of the pollution problems and avoid having them continue for another 100. With all three towns behind it, it seems the cleanup of the area is not far off.

"This is a unique opportunity and a compelling project," Reid said.

The tentative timeline for the Straits Pond Restoration Project will include the issue of an RFP in December 2003, the selection of a design consultant in February 2004, the finalization of a project design in July 2004 and project permits are expected to be secured in December 2004.

The project would have two distinct phases, the first of which will include engineering design, environmental restoration site work and permitting and the second would be implementation. The anticipated benefits to the area include the restoration of 92 acres of coastal tidal pond habitat and ecological function to a critically impaired system. The project will hopefully restore fish habitats which support the higher members of the food chain, and with an increase in tidal range, it is anticipated the inter-tidal flats and bordering wetlands will attract many wading and diving birds.

An increase in pond salinity and tidal variation may also help reduce fringing areas of the pond which have been infested with phragmites, or invasive freshwater marsh grasses that choke out other marsh plants and affect the surrounding environment. With an increase in salt content, the phragmites will not be able to survive and the ecosystem will balance itself.

Bleak budget season looms

cent over the last three years, which is having a huge impact on the town. One of the most desperate situations is the school budget, which Haddad said is slated to receive roughly $325,000 over last year when he knows they have a base need of around $600,000.

"I'm recommending a $300,000 reduction (to the proposed school budget), but my job is to present a balanced budget," Haddad said.

The schools had an increase in utility costs last year which caused a $260,000 deficit. Last year's spike in utilities costs was a result of school construction so the cost was partially covered because it was construction related. However, that was a one-time piece of financial aid and because the buildings are now larger, costs are expected to remain high in the years ahead.

In light of the problem with the school budget, Haddad said there are three options. One, the town will have to decide it will fund the schools and make cuts on its side to help accommodate the situation; two, the town tells the schools it will have to come up with the money it needs and they make cuts on their side; or three, the town goes for an override, which Haddad does not want to do.

Haddad said the most likely places cuts would be seen on the municipal side would be personnel from the Department of Public Works, the library, and/or the Town Hall.

"That's the only place there's money," he said referring to personnel.

Other items which cause trouble in the budget are legal cases, overtime for the fire and police departments, and costs associated with snow and ice removal, because they are very hard to estimate ahead of time due to their unpredictability.

"I have to give my best guess — sometimes I'm right and sometimes I'm wrong," he said.

Because the budget is finalized by the town in January and the town votes in March, budget decisions have to be made well in advance of when the town is notified of what state funding it will actually receive.

"I would have had to know Cedarmere was going to sue the Sewer Commission last March," in order to prepare for that in the budget, he said. While the legal budget is set at $170,000, some cases are more expensive than others and there is no way to predict if the town's going to be sued.

Overtime costs are also unpredictable, and with the storm last week, many members of the fire department were called in to cover for other members out on calls. Haddad said Frank Mahoney of the fire department told him the department responded to more calls in a 24-hour period during the storm than they ever had before.

"The money for fire department overtime for this year has already been spent," Haddad said.

However, the police department overtime figures aren't as worrisome to Haddad as the fire department. He said in the six years he has been serving as Town Manager for the town of Cohasset, the police department has never been operating at full capacity at any one time, because there is always someone out on leave for various reasons. There is no way to predict when someone might have an injury or other circumstance which will require them to be off the job for a while. He said therefore, the two officers who have been put on paid administrative leave are not affecting the overtime budget for the police department any more than a regular year, even though they have been continually absent from the department, in addition to those who are working and might need to take time off.

"We've never been fully staffed, maybe once we've been at full staffing. To me, it's not a big deal," he said.

As it stands right now, the budget for fiscal year 2005 for Cohasset is roughly $29 million. While there are still many details to be worked out before he presents the finalized budget to Selectmen on Jan. 6, Haddad said he has meetings planned with various town departments and the budget will be ready by then.

"I need to present a balanced budget and I'll present one in January. That's my job," he said.

Who's the top citizen in Cohasset this year?

See form this page

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

In keeping with a nine-year tradition recognizing an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement — the Cohasset Mariner is now accepting nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year Award.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset. This is a community award: the Mariner is the mean by which we are able to recognize, thank and honor those around us who make the quiet, generous contributions that make our town a wonderful place to call home.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Arthur Year as Citizen of the Year for a lifetime of service to the town including myriad good works, and always as a volunteer — whether that be mowing the "cap" of the town landfill with his red tractor or serving as the town's Civil Defense Director.

The deadline for nominations for the 2003 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan 2. Please see the nomination form on page 4. The form may be photocopied. Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931.

This is not a popularity contest. Following the close of nominations, a selection panel — after reviewing the names submitted by poring over the nomination letters and comments — will select the 2003 Citizen of the Year, who will be named in January 2004.

Nominees may be someone in elected office, a member of an appointed town committee, teacher or school administrator, clergy member, firefighter, police officer or other municipal worker. And the nominee may be a person in the business community, sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has freely given of his or her time and energy for a worthwhile Cohasset project or cause.

This year's recipient will be the11th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year, joining past recipients:

1993: the late Gerard T. Keating, "Mr. Cohasset": for his more than half-century of contributions to the community, including serving as chairman of the Council on Aging, chairman of the school committee, president of the hockey boosters club, vice president of the Cohasset Historical Society, director of veterans services, and lector, eucharistic minister and usher at St. Anthony's Church.

1994: Joseph D. Buckley, for his work behind the scenes helping seniors understand the complexities of the healthcare system and to access health benefits through SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), his service on the Council on Aging, and volunteer work over the years with the Boy Scouts, Little league, Sunday School and more.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Arthur Year as Citizen of the Year for a lifetime of service to the town.

1995: Dr. Robert T. Sceery, for his more than 40 years of dedicated service as a pediatrician in town and school doctor. He also served on the board of health and led the fight back in the 1970s to sewer the town. He is also a familiar figure at town meetings where he speaks his mind on important issues.

1996: The Rev. Gary Ritts, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, for being a positive force for good through his work with the Appalachia Service Project (ASP), an ecumenical volunteer effort involving Cohasset teenagers. ASP is a home building ministry in central Appalachia.

1997: Anna Abbruzzese, for all her volunteer work including preparing and delivering meals for the Pine Street Inn, driving the senior shuttle and coordinating the Gourmet Cooking Club at the Council on Elder Affairs; and her many efforts to help revitalize Cohasset Village through the Farmers' Market and much more.

1998: Katherine Stanton, for her tireless service to the town and its citizens over the years. She also volunteers as a case reviewer for the state Dept. of Social Services, served on the school committee and recreation committee, and along with her family was involved with the creation of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

1999: the late Clark Chatterton, for his generosity of spirit and deep caring for his fellow man, his years of work as a teacher and athletic director at the high school, including innumerable efforts helping others behind the scenes. He also helped raise money for many causes including Alumni Field and the American Cancer Society.

2000: former state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray for a lifetime of service to her hometown, first as den mother and Little League mother and Girl Scout leader, and then as selectman. She was also honored for her public service as state representative for more than two decades and for always putting her constituents first.

2001: Glenn Pratt for his dogged determination over 20 years to see more cemetery space in town, remembering local soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice, helping to lead the effort to expand the community center, serving as an elected official, and spearheading the effort to build a memorial to local mothers who lost sons in wartime.

2002: Arthur Lehr for more than 50 years of volunteer service on worthwhile projects including the Boy Scouts; serving on the Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Registrar of Voters; Clerk of the Works for the DPW garage, Little League Complex, and Mariners Park; serving on the Recycling Committee, as town Civil Defense Director, on Gravel Pit Reuse Committee and more.

Charges to change at RTF

As of Jan. 21, some charges at the RTF will change. For residents who wish to dispose of a mattress or box spring, the fee will be raised to $20. For construction and demolition debris, the charge will be $40 a pickup load.

Selectman Merle Brown said the fees are changing because the Department of Environmental Protection has raised its fees. Brown joked residents now have three options to dispose of old mattresses. Either have the company the new mattress is from take the old mattress out, pay the $20 and leave it at the RTF, or take the time to break it into small pieces and throw it away yourself.

Selectmen say DA's office was wrong to dismiss prosecutor comment period that usually consists of each board member having the opportunity to share an issue, activity or some information that doesn't appear on the agenda but the particular selectman thinks is worth mentioning.

Monday's comment period began in typical fashion with Selectman Merle Brown talking about increasing fees to recycle mattresses and box springs at the Recycling Transfer Facility. The discussion included a little joking among members of the board about potential options that included residents taking their mattresses apart so they could fit into Pay As You Throw Bags to avoid paying the higher fee.

But the jovial mood of the board turned very serious moments later when chairman McMorris announced she had a statement she would like to read on behalf of the board relative to the Cohasset Police Department.

McMorris stated the board is concerned its silence on this matter has contributed to a "media frenzy which has distracted public attention from the serious matters under investigation, and focused attention elsewhere." McMorris, who asked the Mariner to print the statement in its entirety, asked for the town's patience while the investigation continues.

"The town believes the ADA does not have authority to dismiss the town's prosecutor and his actions relative to this matter are inappropriate."

— Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris

"As indicated earlier, this process began in September of this year and will continue until the town is satisfied that all issues have been fully addressed," she stated.

This can't be good news for the two officers, Sgt. William Quigley and patrolman James McLean, who have been on paid administrative leave since Oct. 20 amid serious — but unnamed — allegations that may be putting their careers in jeopardy.

To date, neither Quigley nor McLean, have been told why they are on leave.

Their attorney Doug Louison said the statement has left him more bewildered than before he read it.

"It's plainly wrong for the Board of Selectmen to make inferences of misconduct about officers placed on administrative leave and not give them the basic right or courtesy of advising them what the allegations are," Louison said. "My understanding based on information I have received, is that town and police department are going on a fishing expedition, hiring an investigator to try and come up with something about the officers.

"This is not the proper exercise of managerial power."

Louison explained that under Civil Service law the police chief has the power to immediately suspend officers for up to five days if he is aware of misconduct and thereafter, the town manager can take further action bringing charges against the officers – neither of which has been done.

He described the selectmen's statement as "two pages of nothing."

"Clearly the judge got involved and granted the DA's request. Apparently selectmen know more than the DA's office and the district court judge," Louison said.

He also accused selectmen of hiding behind "personnel matters" as their reason for not commenting.

"On personnel matters that is generally true," Louison said about officials declining to comment. "But as the officers' counsel I have asked to be advised and they won't tell me."

Traub, the DA's spokesman, said the DA's office considers the matter relating to Grassie resolved and welcomes the presence of the officer newly assigned as prosecuting officer for the Cohasset Police Department in Quincy District Court.

Regarding the role of the press, Traub said, "the judge in this case ordered that a felony charge issue against the defendants and a felony prosecution begin — a charge that never would have seen the light of day if the local media had not uncovered it and brought it to the attention of the District Attorney."

The pretrial hearing on the case has been continued until Jan. 7.

Fence talks resolved for now

Town Manager Mark Haddad said for now, the problems with George Roukounakis, owner of Olympic Citco, 55 South Main St., and the Red Lion Inn have been resolved. Roukounakis had been denied a permit by the Building Commissioner to build a fence on his property, which was overturned by the Zoning Board of Appeals, when it was found his property line runs through James Lane. The Red Lion Inn is encroaching on James Lane, which has caused a smaller roadway than is allowed and caused confusion as to where property lines are.

Roukounakis has wanted to build a fence on his property line, but that would cause a public safety issue, and at the request of Haddad, agreed not to build anything until a resolution can be found. The town is going to try to get an easement for James Lane, which will require a Town Meeting vote.

Haddad said the Red Lion Inn has agreed to reimburse Roukounakis for damage done to his fence and will put a new fence up on his property line at some point in the future.

"I am confident we'll be able to work it out for both Mr. Roukounakis and the Red Lion Inn," Haddad said.

Cedarmere senior project public hearing comes to a close

Still no decision on special permit

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The public hearing phase of the Cedarmere special permit application process is over, and while developers will have to wait until January to receive a final decision on whether they will be approved, the majority of Planning Board members seem eager to vote in the affirmative.

While Chairman Al Moore stated at the beginning of Monday's meeting he expected to close the hearing that night, other members weren't so sure that would be an option. In light of a confidential Town Counsel opinion received by the Board, some members felt voting on the special permit would violate the Senior Overlay District Bylaw. A copy of the opinion, which was leaked to the Mariner, clearly states, "In our opinion, Cedarmere is not eligible to receive the special permit because the project as currently configured does not satisfy the requirements of the bylaws regarding disposal of septic waste."

Since early summer, the Cedarmere team, consisting of David and Kelli Calhoun of Sheldon Road and Tom Ragno of Lexington, and their consultants, have sought feedback from town boards and their consultants, and abutters on the proposed senior housing development. The project is first to be filed under the town's new Senior Overlay District bylaw, which requires a special permit from the Planning Board. The project is slated for 41-acres on the former Hayes Estate off Beechwood Street on the east side of 3A. Cedarmere would consist of 105-units of both affordable and market rate apartments and condominiums for seniors 55 and older.

While Cedarmere has applied for a sewer connection, its request was denied by the Sewer Commission. The developers have filed an appeal and will let a judge decide whether that decision will be upheld. However, it is the opinion of Town Counsel that an appeal for a connection does not qualify as a plan for wastewater and therefore part of the criteria to file under the bylaw is not being met, meaning the application is not complete and cannot be voted on.

Members Peter Pratt and Chris Ford agreed with the opinion of Town Counsel. Pratt said he would like to see the hearing continue for another 30 days in order to give applicants a chance to come up with a plan for wastewater. He said a feasibility study for an on-site system, much like the one John Cavanaro prepared for the Cook Estate, would count as a plan for Cedarmere, and the project would then be in accordance with the bylaw.

"He says we cannot vote on the special permit without the 'either or'," said Pratt in reference to the letter from Town Counsel. The "either or" pertains to the overlay bylaw's stating a project needs to provide, "Sufficient information, including soil evaluation and percolation test data, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Cohasset Board of Health and applicable Department of Environmental Protection regulations, to make a determination that adequate provision is made for the disposal of septic waste or written confirmation from the Town of Cohasset Sewer Commission detailing an agreement to accept the proposed wastewater flow."

Ford said he shared Pratt's opinion, adding the wastewater issue is too large an issue to look past when deciding whether to grant a special permit. He added the decisions made for this project will affect projects which come forward in the future and, "I have a true uneasiness," about the way the process is unfolding.

However, Chairman Moore was not going to let some legal advice stand in the way of his approving the project.

"Town Counsel's opinion is this board should not act on this application without a sewer connection. What are the ramifications of us doing what we want?" he asked. Moore then asked Town Planner Liz Harrington, who had spoken to Town Counsel Paul DeRensis that afternoon what he had said to her. She said DeRensis made it clear, if the Planning Board goes ahead and votes on the special permit, "it puts the Sewer Commission in a very bad position."

"The ability to deal with wastewater if of great significance," said Pratt, adding that is an opinion which is shared not only by Town Counsel, but the attorney representing abutters. "That part of the bylaw is very clear," he said.

However, member Bob Sturdy took the opposite approach and was more than ready to grant the permit for Cedarmere, provided the sewer information be included as a condition to the project.

"It's really at the point where the application depends on the applicant's being able to obtain a sewer permit," he said, adding if the courts decide not to overturn the decision of the Sewer Commission, the developers will have to come back to the Planning Board with some other plan. "I think there is adequate strength behind it as a condition," he said.

Attorney Robert Tuchmann is appealing the case for the developers and said he believes they have been denied improperly. Whether all members of the board agree with that, he said the fact is, they are going to wait for their decision by the court and would like to move forward as much as they can until that decision is made.

"We shouldn't be held hostage while we wait," he said.

Sturdy said he has a strong belief the courts will overturn the Sewer Commission's decision and he feels all senior housing projects should be allowed to hook up to the town's sewer lines.

"I have my own prejudices. I don't really want to see elderly housing with an on site septic system," he said, adding because many seniors are living on fixed incomes, and even though a system meets Title 5 requirements there is no guarantee the septic system will work. He doesn't want to see seniors faced with that burden and hooking up to the town's sewer would eliminate that in his view.

In addition, Sturdy said he believes the Sewer Commission sees it as its duty to deny sewer hook-ups in order to prevent development. "I'm not looking to see the town double in size, but this is a project that will benefit the town. It's time to cut out the nonsense," he said.

He said he believes there is adequate capacity to hook up Cedarmere and other projects, and the real reason the capacity is not being given out is to control development. He also said he "doesn't want to stick the elderly in some swampy area behind the Stop & Shop." He went on to say "I will not vote approval on the Cook property based on an on-site septic system. I will not expose the elderly to that."

Sturdy added he thinks Selectmen are looking for a reason to shoot down Cedarmere, "Maybe to benefit the Cook property." Selectmen have been brought into the decision making process of the Cedarmere special permit because the affordable portion of the project, which has been filed as a Local Initiative Program "Units Only" project requires Selectmen submit that portion of the project to the Department of Housing and Community Development for approval. The opinion given from Town Counsel to the Planning Board was forwarded to members as part of an inquiry Selectmen made as to what their role should be in the special permit process.

After much discussion, a vote was taken to close the hearing and Peter Pratt was the only one in favor of continuing the hearing, possibly for another 30

Abutters speak out for last time

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

While the Cedarmere team hasn't been granted a special permit by the Planning Board for its senior housing project yet, the closing of the public hearing process has taken them one step closer. For abutters who have been opposed to certain aspects of the project, this next step is not a welcome one, and their next step could be preparing to take legal action should the project be given the go-ahead in January.

Monday's meeting was the last opportunity for abutters to state their concerns, and of major significance is the proposed density of the project. Abutters who are used to living next to primarily open space on 41-acres of land aren't sure a 105-unit development will blend into the neighborhood.

John Kennedy, 115 Beechwood St., said from the very beginning, his major concern has been the density of the project. However, every time it is brought up, the conversation seems to die, he said. He added the majority of the land on the property is open space right now, and the trees on the plans do not exist. He said he was also under the impression the Senior Overlay Bylaw was meant to "build a senior community, not to cram as many houses as we can," onto a site.

But Planning Board Chairman Al Moore said density is at the heart of the bylaw. Last year, voters approved the bylaw which permits higher-density housing than would otherwise be allowed. It requires the development include a percentage of affordable housing, and that those units be "counted" by the state Department of Housing and Community Development as part of the town's affordable housing inventory. He added by increasing what is allowed in terms of density, the town gets the trade-off of acquiring affordable housing. The town is currently trying to meet a 10 percent affordability threshold set by the state.

But Kennedy said the plans show the main building, dubbed the "Manor House," at six times the size of the Hayes house which is currently on the property.

"The Manor House is the size of a hotel," he said, adding it's 44 feet high to its peak and compared it in size to the Sunrise Assisted Living Building on 3A. "I don't think it fits into the lay of the land."

However, Cedarmere architect Jim Sandell had heard the comparison to Sunrise before and had prepared an overlay of the building to show a size comparison with the Manor House. Although the Manor House is only two stories in comparison to Sunrise's three and is smaller in height, the layout of the Manor House actually extends farther lengthwise than Sunrise.

But even with the comparison, Town Planner Liz Harrington pointed out under the bylaw, developers are allowed to build10 houses per acre. Moore added the developers could have built much more and still be in accordance with the bylaw and said the plans, "are not a maximum of what the bylaw permits."

But Kennedy said he thinks the land is a beautiful piece of property and asked, "Why destroy it?"

Charlie Flint, 215 South Main St., echoed Kennedy's point and said he believes the development will be disruptive to the neighbors. He said it feels way out of scale and "we think we're being violated here."

Abutters speak out for last time

But Moore was quick to point out that "somebody had the right to buy the land and somebody had the right to develop it, and I don't believe it's in the purview of the board to tell a neighbor we're going to deny it because you don't like it." Moore went on to say the developers came to the board and asked members what they wanted to see in a project and he said he thinks they continue to do a good job in explaining their plans and making necessary changes.

"I personally believe [the project] works," he said.

David Calhoun, one of the developers of the project said under the bylaw, 330 units could have been developed, but the proposal only calls for 105. He reminded the board they gave their unanimous support two months ago during the preliminary hearings and said, "I ask the board to stay with their original opinion."

Flint said if the board votes to grant a special permit and plans for the project move forward, he is going to file against it.

Members of the Cedarmere team have been coming before various town boards since early summer, seeking feedback from the boards and their consultants, and abutters on the proposed senior housing development. The project is first to be filed under the town's new Senior Overlay District bylaw, which requires a special permit from the Planning Board. The project is slated for 41-acres on the former Hayes Estate off Beechwood Street on the east side of 3A. Cedarmere would consist of 105-units of both affordable and market rate apartments and condominiums for seniors 55 and older.

The Planning Board will meet again Jan. 14 and will have a finalized application with conditions for the project, ready to be voted on.

days, to give developers the chance to file an alternate plan for wastewater and comply with the bylaw. However, the other four members voted to close and the discussion on what conditions the permit should have were brought to the table.

After the meeting, Pratt said he had hoped Ford would have voted with him and worries that while both this project and Avalon wait for a decision from the courts, there is nothing to stop anyone else from applying. His major concern is what will happen if suddenly another project is approved and then the courts make their decision and Avalon and Cedarmere can move ahead, the town will be faced with an enormous amount of housing all at once.

With the hearing closed, Harrington said she will meet with town engineer John Modelewski and Tuchmann, who had drafted an permit with waivers and conditions. Over the next few weeks until the next Planning Board meeting on Jan. 14, the three will fine-tune the language and come up with a final permit, which will most likely be voted on that night.

GIRL SCOUT COOKIE SALE

The Girl Scout cookie sale is around the corner and the sale is on Jan. 2- 25 for the door to door sales. We will also be having booth sales around town until March 13. If anyone is looking for cookies or has a neighborhood they would like to visit, they can contact me at 383-1811. We also have several troop leader openings- especially for the younger girls (K-2) and would love some volunteers! The girls are waiting!

HELPING LYDIA AND LAURA

I received this message from some very warm and caring friends of this family and it has touched me greatly. After reading this, please see if it is possible to make a donation to help this family. Lydia Vigneau is a beautiful, bright 2-1/2 year old who just weeks ago was playing with her friends at Sandcastles Nursery School here in Cohasset. Today, she is in Children's Hospital undergoing intensive chemotherapy for Lymphobastic leukemia.

Lydia's mom, Laura, is a single mother of two little girls from Hull and has been on unpaid leave for the past few months while she was in China adopting her second daughter. Just as she was to return to work, she was given this traumatic news and had to resign from her job to care for Lydia.

Laura has shown tremendous resolve over the past few weeks as she has watched her little girl undergo painful procedures and side effects, yet we know she is worried tremendously about how she will support her family in the months ahead. Given the critical nature of Lydia's treatment, we very much want to enable Laura the chance to focus 100 percent of her energy on helping Lydia receive appropriate care rather than worrying about feeding and supporting her family.

The Lydia Vigneau Fund has been established to pool financial support from friends, family, and businesses in the South Shore Community. We encourage you to consider making a tax-deductible donation. All proceeds from this fundraiser will go directly to help the Vigneau family. In addition, the Red Lion Inn has graciously donated their function hall and appetizers for a March 5, 2004 cocktail party/silent auction. Anyone interested in purchasing tickets or donating an auction item, please contact Jeanine Buckley Perrone at 781-383-6764. Thank you in advance for your kind consideration; we wish you prosperity and good fortune during the holiday season.

COHASSET BALLERINA!

Anya Gruber, 9, and a fourth-grader at Deer Hill School, is performing in Boston Ballet's The Nutcracker at the Wang Center in Boston this year. It is her second year in the production and she is having a wonderful time dancing in the role of a cherub. She is the daughter of Elizabeth Gruber and granddaughter of Alan and Helen Gruber, also of Cohasset. We are really proud of you!

Anya Gruber is dancing in The Nutcracker.

NEW BABY GIRLS

Thank heavens for little girls..... Congratulations go out to two wonderful families who are welcoming a beautiful new granddaughter and daughter into their lives. Lizanne(Buckley) Kondrat and Chris Kondrat(both grew up in Cohasset) welcomed Bridget Buckley Kondrat, born on Dec. 5, 2003 at 2:05 p.m.weighing in at 6 pounds even. Grandparents are Cleida and Jack Buckley of Cohasset(their seventh grandchild) and Dr. Rick and Cheri Kondrat of Cohasset(grandchild #1).

Chris, Liz and Bridget are all enjoying each other in these wonderful first days together. Make sure to congratulate the happy parents and the beaming grandparents when you see them around town.

WARM COATS FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

Winter is approaching, and no child should have to go without such a basic necessity as a coat! The Cohasset Girl Scouts are collecting clean, gently used coats for children of all ages. The coats will be donated to Boston's Home for Little Wanderers, a non-profit service agency whose mission is to ensure the healthy development of children at risk through an integrated system of prevention, advocacy, and direct services. The Girl Scouts have made donating a coat simple. Just bring your clean, reusable coats to one of the drop-off boxes before Saturday Dec. 20, and the girls will take care of distributing the coats to kids who need just One Warm Coat.

Drop-off boxes will be located at Osgood and Deer Hill schools, and at the Paul Pratt Library. If you have any questions please call either Lori McCabe (383-2166) or Leslie Bryan (383-8860). Join the Cohasset Girl Scouts by embracing the holiday spirit of warming the heart of a child! One Warm Coat is a community service effort assisting in the collection and donation of coats to individuals free of charge. Since its inception in 1992, OWC has provided more than 90,000 coats to those in need.

TOY DRIVE AT PILGRIM

Pilgrim Co-operative Bank will be accepting toys to benefit local families this holiday season. You may drop off your unwrapped toy at either location. Pilgrim wishes you a joyful holiday season, and thanks you in advance for remembering those who are less fortunate. Please join Pilgrim as it strives to make a difference.

The women come from all walks of life and all points on the continuum of domestic violence. Some have left abusive relationships. Some still live with their abusers. Still others haven't recognized the extent of the abuse in their relationships. Their abusers are lawyers and laborers, technicians and tradesmen, executives and ex-cons.

"The one who comes in the best clothes may have the worst situation at home," says Carolyn. "They come from across all lines, but there's no distinction when they're in Group, and they don't act like it."

"Basically they want to hear their feelings validated, that they're not going crazy. One woman said, 'It sounds like we all got the same guy and we're just passing him around.'"

Some women describe Group as "an island of peace," says Carolyn. "A lot of them like to talk, but they're always being told not to. This is a safe place for them to let the feelings flow, and no one will put them down. They're not being judged."

The facilitators suggest topics for discussion, make sure everyone has a chance to speak, and watch for signs that a woman may need additional help outside the group, she says. They may arrange for guest speakers or movies that deal with domestic violence, like the Tina Turner story, "What's Love Got to Do With It?"

GIFTS of HOPE
YOUR COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER CARES

"It's their group," says Carolyn. "We'll check in, see who has a court date coming up, because that's pretty hairy and scary. Then they'll support them, root them on. At the end, we'll wind down and ask, 'How does everybody feel?'"

The women come to the group for validation and empowerment, she says, and they end up giving it back.

"They love it when someone comes in and they say, 'Look, this is what you gotta do,' and they're giving support to this lady they've taken under their wing."

Part of the empowerment process is giving the women in the group the information and resources they need to understand the continuum of domestic violence and what they can do about it. One group, Carolyn says, helped her revise SSWC's list of "red flags" that help women to spot an abuser.

At the end of each 10-week session, members often say the group has helped them to come to terms with the fact of their abuse, to re-gain their confidence and self-esteem, to put the past behind them and to focus on the present and rebuilding their lives.

"I tell them, 'You're the ones who did the work,'" says Carolyn. "'We just made it safe for you to do it.'"

Some women come back for another group after the 10 weeks, and new members are always joining at the start of the next session. A weekly drop-in group provides support for any woman who needs it, whether she's in a regular group or not.

The Center also organizes groups for women with particular issues or traits in common, including groups for women age 55 and older, women age 18 to 30, women who don't have custody of their children, and women abused by other women.

All groups are set up to respect the confidentiality and protect the safety of the members. The women's identities, meeting places and times are not disclosed, and the members are cautioned to keep everything discussed within the group.

"Out in public, at the mall, I never recognize them unless they approach me first," says Carolyn. "That's their space."

The South Shore Women's Center is a private, nonprofit organization funded in part by the Mass. Dept. of Social Services, federal grants and private fundraising. SSWC is a member agency of the Old Colony United Way and the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women's Services Groups.

Help is available at any time by calling the SSWC Hotline at 888-746-2664.

Wartime holidays

Thanksgiving, and now Christmas.

Then there will be his birthday, Easter, and the Fourth of July.

These are all important holidays in our family that include loved ones getting together at the same house. They also comprise a meal, big hugs, tons of conversation, and a lot of love.

But this holiday season, I find myself among a very special group of mothers – there are some 154,800 of us nationwide. We have a son or daughter in harm's way either in Iraq or Afghanistan.

We're naturally frightened for our child's welfare while we try to focus on the positive. We wait anxiously for a letter, e-mail message or precious phone call.

Some, like me, listen to or watch the news. So much of it is so very scary. We pray for peace and we search for strength.

We know far away on the other side of the globe, our son or daughter waits for any news from home. He or she most likely sleeps on a cot in a makeshift barracks, retrofitted from some other use.

What goes through their mind at the end of a long day, when they have a few minutes alone to reflect?

Do they know our thoughts are always with them?

How much we miss them?

Are they homesick?

Are they frightened?

Do they really know how much we love them?

How proud we are?

We wish we could tuck them in, like we did when they were little. We wish we could whisper in their ear that we love them and to be safe. Please, please be safe.

"Life in Iraq is going OK," my son writes. "Staying focused and determined on the mission at hand. A lieutenant was killed this week. I didn't know him, but he was a peer and I am sure I have seen him on post I am positive he gave his life for a cause that is just.

"I hope America doesn't forget the sacrifices we are going through everyday here in Iraq. We are making our nation proud."

As we watch others going bustling about as they shop for the holidays, we appreciate those we see wearing American Flag pins, or with bumper stickers on their cars that say "Support Our Troops." We're thankful to the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, schools, veterans groups and other organizations that have sent "care" packages and adopted soldiers or entire platoons.

We're grateful to all those who haven't forgotten our sons and daughters in the all-volunteer Armed Forces, who are answering our country's call. For many it will be their first Christmas away from home.

Early deadline next week

Due to the Christmas holiday, the Cohasset Mariner will go to press this Monday, not Wednesday.

That means all community copy needs to be dropped off at Cohasset News by 8 a.m. Monday morning (Dec. 22) at the latest. Copy sent by email should arrive by 5 p.m. Sunday. Please email copy and photos to mford@cnc.com. For more information, call Mary Ford at 781-741-2933.

The case for early childhood education

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing to comment on an issue that should be of great concern to all of us statewide — early childhood education. During this past year, the Legislature and Governor Romney began the process of making the delivery of early education and care services to the state's families more efficient. Especially during a budget crisis, I thank them for their foresight and for realizing the importance of high-quality early education to our children, our economy, and our community.

As a parent, I am compelled by the scientific research has shown that the first five years of life are a time of enormous cognitive, emotional, physical and social growth. In fact, 85 percent of who you are is developed by the age of 5. Children in high-quality early childhood education programs develop better language skills, score higher in school-readiness tests, have better social skills and fewer behavioral problems once they enter school, and are more like to graduate high school and go to college. And, as one renowned economist has stated, high-quality early education "...is economic development with an extraordinary level of public return."

I would like to thank Rep. Garrett Bradley and Sen. Robert Hedlund for their bipartisan support, and urge all of our state legislators to join a growing coalition of leaders from business, labor, religion, health care, education, child care and philanthropy in making An Act Establishing Early Education for All (H.1838, S.239) a priority when the Legislature returns to session in January.

Some good news out of the runway ruling

LOGAN VIEW

DONALD LEVI

The impacts of the recent ruling by Judge Margot Botsford are not devastating to the goals of the SSJPC (South Shore Jet Pollution Council). While we are clearly disappointed, we did not expect complete rejection of Massport's attempts to lift the 1976 Injunction [prohibiting further runway construction at Logan Airport].

What is the good news that comes out of the ruling?

It is clear that, if the runway is built, Massport must, according to Judge Botsford, comply with the MEPA and FAA usage restrictions left in their approvals of the project. Specifically, that is:

- Wind-restricted – limitation to use only when winds are blowing at 10 knots or more from the Northwest AND at least three of the existing five runways have to be shut down for weather reasons
- Runway usage – only approved aircraft [generally private planes and commuter jets] can use the runway
- The runway must be used unidirectionally, that is for both take-offs and landings

Additionally, MEPA and the FAA, in their approvals, required a number of other mitigations to which Judge Botsfort refers in her ruling:

- A complete Noise Study [under FAA Regulations] must be completed prior to the construction of the new runway. The FAA also specifically required that the Communities involved [the CAC] be a party to that study.
- Peak Period Pricing – this is the implementation of a landing fee pricing scheme that would [hopefully] discourage take-offs and landings at particularly busy times thereby reducing delays and eliminating Massport's perceived need for an additional runway.
- The South Shore-proposed mitigation routes need to be studied [either as a part of the Noise Study] or not and implemented to the extent practical. This is absolutely key to the future of the South Shore communities. For more information, see the SSJPC website: www.southshorejetpollution.org

There is another issue regarding this lawsuit. It was initially brought by Massport against the original parties to the 1976 Injunction [those parties included the City of Boston, The Towns of Chelsea, Somerville & Winthrop and a community organization, MAPNAC which no longer exists. The South Shore Jet Pollution Council and CARE petitioned the court to allow us to intervene in this action. She declined; saying that the other parties would adequately represent our interests. However, no where in her Ruling does she mention the interests of communities other than those who were originally in the suits. In fact, she specifies that the noise and pollution to those communities may actually be lessened by the usage of new runway. Even Massport's own maps and diagrams point to increased impact on the South Shore. While financial resources are clearly an issue, we will be discussing the appealability of the ruling on these grounds.

While we concur that Massport may ultimately get to build the new runway, its usage will be heavily encumbered by rules.

So, while we were not a party to the suit just completed, we were disappointed in the outcome. However, we are a party to the US Court of Appeals action which we brought against the FAA and Massport. That suit was argued on Nov. 24 in Washington DC. In it, we allege that the FAA and Massport used misleading, incomplete, and inappropriate data to seek the approvals – in fact, in our view – they colluded in doing so, not only breaking their own rules, and Federal Law, they committed a fraud against the US taxpayers in doing so.

It is not clear when the Court will rule on this litigation – it is likely to be several months.

In the meantime, the FAA has stated publicly that they will not fund the construction of the new runway until this suit is resolved.

Finally, there is the lawsuit brought against Massport by the Town of Hull [and funded by Hingham and Cohasset as well]. While that suit was dismissed from the Plymouth County Court in October 2002, it is currently under appeal with the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court.

The bottom line to all of this is: it is not over! While we concur that Massport may ultimately get to build the new runway, its usage will be heavily encumbered by rules. Additionally, while we disagree with the need for the additional runway, if we are able to achieve our other objectives, we will be satisfied.

Those objectives:

- Permanent noise monitors on the South Shore to ensure that we are included in any future discussions about noise and community impact.
- South Shore route mitigations which will push all air traffic which would otherwise be likely to take off or land over our communities, to the North and East over the mouth of Boston Harbor.
- The implementation of a Peak Period Pricing system
- The elimination of overland flights between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.
- A comprehensive Health Study to consider the impacts of airplane-caused pollution on our citizens and ecosystems.
- A guaranteed place at the table — the Massport Board of Directors is currently comprised of business and labor leaders who have no particular interests in the impacts on specific communities. In our view, the Board make-up should be modified to include representatives from Boston, North and South Shore Communities and in-close communities [Winthrop, Chelsea, etc.]. Appointments should be made by those towns [or inter-town organizations], not the Governor as "political candy."

In the meantime, we must call on the Governor, the legislature, the FAA and Massport not to begin construction on the runway until these open issues are resolved.

Donald A. Levi of 8 Paige St., Hingham, is co-chairman of the South Shore Jet Pollution Council.

Selectmen's statement on police matter

TUESDAY, DEC. 16, 2003

The Board of Selectmen, in consultation with Town Counsel, issues the following statement relative to the Cohasset Police Department:

In early September, 2003 the Board of Selectmen and the Town Manager received several statements alleging misconduct by officers employed by the Cohasset Police Department. The seriousness of the allegations and the public's interest required that the Town begin an investigation at that time. Following an initial inquiry into the matters alleged, the Town Manager, Mark Haddad, decided it was in the best interest of the Town of Cohasset to place two officers on administrative leave. They remain on paid administrative leave at this time, as all matters continue to be the subject of an ongoing investigation conducted under the auspices of the Town's attorney. To the extent that these issues involve personnel matters pertaining to individual employees, it is the policy of the Town not to comment on those matters. The Town will safeguard every employee's right to privacy. There are however certain issues that the Board would like to speak to at this time.

First, the Board of Selectmen would never condone retaliation against a Town employee for an action taken by that employee. We are fully aware of the reasons for the Town Manager's decision relative to those two employees and support that decision wholeheartedly. Our foremost interest in this matter is the protection of the Town and its residents. We are concerned that the Town's silence to date has contributed to a media frenzy which has distracted public attention from the serious matters under investigation, and focused attention elsewhere. References to "Fencegate" insinuate that these issues involve a cover up of illegal activity. These insinuations are far from fact or truth. The Town Manager has acted affirmatively and deliberately to best protect the interests of the Town and its residents. As indicated earlier, this process began in September of this year and will continue until the Town is satisfied that all issues have been fully addressed.

As indicated earlier, this process began in September of this year and will continue until the Town is satisfied that all issues have been fully addressed.

Second, relative to the dismissal of the Town's police prosecutor by the ADA for Norfolk County, the Town states:

1) The police prosecutor at all times serves at the discretion of the Chief of Police. The Town believes that the ADA does not have authority to dismiss the Town's prosecutor and his actions relative to this matter are inappropriate.

2) With reference to the prosecution of three individual arrests that occurred on Oct. 11, 2003, at the American Legion Post in Cohasset, the Town's police prosecutor Frederick Grassie has acted to protect the best interests of the Town of Cohasset. In a nine page decision entitled Findings of Fact and Rulings of Law issued on Nov. 20, 2003 by the Honorable Mark S. Coven, Associate Justice of the Quincy District Court, the complexity (if the law and the facts surrounding this case are discussed. It is clear that a police prosecutor faced with these issues would have to proceed cautiously in order to protect the Town. We believe that Officer Grassie acted responsibly and appropriately in his handling of these cases.

Finally, the Board of Selectmen and the Town Manager cannot emphasize this point enough. The Cohasset Police Department, the Chief and the members of the department, continue to provide this community with the high level of service that we expect and demand. We are proud of the job they are doing and feel it is unfortunate that the media focus detracts from that effort. Cohasset continues to be a safe, well protected community. The Board of Selectmen also emphasizes the following point: The Town of Cohasset will not tolerate the use of police power to "send a message" to any individual, whether that individual is a member of the Board of Selectmen, a member of the Advisory Committee or any other Town board, the Chief of Police, or any officer in the police department, any resident of this Town or any person, period.

We ask for your continued patience and for your understanding and respect with regard to the Town's obligations. As always it is the goal of the Board, the Town Manager and the Police Chief to maintain a quality police force in which the public can place its confidence.

— Cohasset Board of Selectmen

HEALTH NOTES

When something harmful can be helpful

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Science has permitted us to detect the presence of ever smaller levels of toxic activity in our environment. Two decades ago, detection levels of parts per million were common and parts per billion were considered outside the range of practical detection for purposes of regulation except in extraordinary cases. Now, such ranges are not uncommon. In many ways, the technology of detection of trace amounts of pollutants in our environment has become a problem for regulators. Selenium is an example. Until the 70s, selenium was considered toxic, even in the smallest quantities. It was then discovered and demonstrated that selenium was required in some minimum amount for healthy human beings. But, in some dosage, selenium is highly toxic to most life forms. The EPA regulates minimum toxic dosage levels of a great number of elements and compounds. After much deliberation and experiment they decided that the maximum exposure level of selenium should not exceed about five times the margin of exposure above the recommended dietary allowance, determined by extensive testing and research.

This characteristic of some materials, and also some forms of radiation, to possess beneficial characteristics to humans in smaller dosages while being harmful in larger amounts is called hormesis. Many common materials have hormetic properties. Take zinc, as many people do. The EPA has determined the so called Reference Dose (RfD) and Reference Concentration (RfC); which, if taken by humans, is harmless. But this level is less than the dosage required for healthy pregnant and lactating females. Fortunately, zinc isn't that harmful, and one appears to be able to ingest amounts somewhat above the RfD without harmful effects. The EPA states that excursions above the maximum level are acceptable. The data is based on life expectancy statistics, and therefore represent lifetime ingestions of zinc.

Vitamin C in large doses can be harmful, while in smaller doses, as recommended by dietary experts, it is a vitally important dietary supplement.

There are many other materials with hormetic effects: Radon found in rock and which is leached out of the rock and goes into water, and then into the atmosphere has been found to reduce the death rate from lung cancer by a significant amount. At higher levels Radon can cause cancer. Many forms of radiation have a hormetic effect. Vitamin C in large doses can be harmful, while in smaller doses, as recommended by dietary experts, it is a vitally important dietary supplement.

A major center for studying the biological effects of low level exposure(belle) to various environmental factors is at the Public Health Center of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. For more information see their web page www.belleonline.com

The lesson which we can take from this foray into the esoteric realms of health science is that moderation is good. Too much of anything is bad; but then, so also may be too little. After all, look at alcohol where we have hormesis aplenty. We're in a world which is becoming more complex by the day, and it's difficult to be sure what is to be done in any given situation. The best we can do is to find people whom we can trust and get their advice, then think it out for ourselves . A good start is by talking to our public health nurse at Town Hall at 781 383-2210. Judy Fitzsimmons is there three days a week, and otherwise is out visiting those who can't make it in to her office.

When stretch jeans won't give — the weight war is on

ON THE BRIGHT SIDE

JEANE DALY

I was crawling on the floor in pursuit of my eight-month old granddaughter, Elizabeth, when I heard it. The shrill scream of abused fabric ripping through the air. My stretchable jeans had stretched to the limit. My pajama bottoms had said adios the same way last week and were now assisting Mr. Clean in wiping up spills.

The following morning I dug out the scale and dusted it off. Stark naked, I climbed on. Darn thing must be wrong. I got a 10-pound bag of potatoes and weighed that. Ten pounds, right on the button. Lordy, what had I done to myself? Knowing I had to, I peeked at my reflection in the full length mirror hanging on the back of the door. There I was, a living rolly-polly pear. I ran to the phone book, looked up Weight Observers, and made the call.

Two days later I attended my first Weight Observers meeting. I paid the dues, received umpteen booklets, free coupons, a pat on the back and was directed to the weigh-in line. I stood in line behind a young woman who introduced herself as Cheyenne. Then watched in amazement as she stripped herself of shoes, socks, nail polish, a belly button ring, and purple colored contact lenses. The woman working the scales shook her head sadly and told the stripper she had gained an ounce. Cheyenne slunk away, muttering something about a lousy graham cracker. I was next. My scale was right. All I could hear was whose got the beef? Me, I sighed.

Barbara, our leader, was a Crystal Gale look-a-like with long raven hair down to her tush. She was an enthusiastic speaker who spoke with her hair instead of her hands, which was entertaining to watch as she flung her long black hair from side-to-side to make a point.

"What's been happening this week ladies?" she asked, as her hair flew to the left and back. Silence.

I discovered where every bathroom on the South Shore is located. If anyone is interested in this information, I'll be happy to give you one of my maps.

"Did you all get outside in this beautiful weather and take your 30-minute walk?"

Her hair wasn't moving at this point. Silence.

"By a show of hands let me see how many of you are eating your five servings of fruits and veggies everyday."

One brave hand went up. The mop of hair was ecstatic.

"Would you like to share with us what those fruits and veggies were?"

"Well, I hate fruit — but I did have a bottle of V-8."

"Oh." The hair was immobile. "Remember group, the importance of drinking your eight glasses of water a day. Flush, flush, flush."

Armed with the WO scale, the special measuring cup, the food value wheel, food journals, exercise journals, water journals, and of course WO T-shirt, I was ready for my first week. I bought one WO dinner and had it the first night for supper. As directed, I heated the Tuna Noodle Casserole in the microwave, let it sit a minute, then poured it onto my plate.

Gagging, my son asked if a skunk got in the house. I told my darling (cough) to be still as I took a bite. It not only smelled disgusting, it was disgusting. I placed the meal (joke) back into the plastic container and placed it on the floor for Tom, our cat. He circled the dish twice, sniffed, hissed, and bolted out of the room.

Faithfully I kept all the journals, spun the food value wheel, and drank the eight glasses of water. My sleeping pattern suffered because of all the trips to the bathroom during the night and wee hours of the morning.

Something interesting did happen; I discovered where every bathroom on the South Shore is located. If anyone is interested in this information, I'll be happy to give you one of my maps.

Two months passed, tonight I weighed in and reached my goal weight. My peers applaud as Barbara happily, thank heavens she's wearing a pony tail, pins a blue ribbon on my blouse.

I'm out the door to buy my new, smaller jeans, then onto Elizabeth's house to play her favorite game, Gramma Kitty-Cat. To her delight, I get down on all fours, meow furiously and hiss loudly. Round and round the kitchen table we fly until we both collapse from laughing. To my amazement, I'm still in one piece. My bones and stretch jeans have cooperated nicely. Hallelujah!

Buying for the dog who has everything

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

Here it is a couple of weeks before Chri — oops, I mean the Winter Solstice Holiday — and already I have almost all my shopping done.

Almost but not quite.

Somehow, in the past few years, four dogs have wandered onto my Winter Solstice Holiday list and I have no idea what to get them that I haven't gotten them before.

My problem is this: What do you get for a dog that has everything?

Maybe I'll send away to the Blue Dog Bakery in Seattle for a box of Bark Bars. A 36-ounce box can be had for a mere $8.99. And I am told they are so good that their human companions have been known to sample them when no one is looking.

That's because Bark Bars, as well as Blue Dog's Peanut Butter and Molasses treats, are known to be "low-fat, natural and containing no animal byproducts," which combats obesity in dogs and fits in with the Weight Watchers program as well.

Weight-watching in dogs is every bit as important as dieting is to humans.

The National Academy of Sciences' National Research Council took a long and expensive look at the situation and came up with a 500-page report that concluded at least 25 per cent of the dogs in the Western World are obese and need to lose weight.

Active dogs that weigh 35 pounds should consume about 1,000 kilocalories a day, according to the report, so you had better buy a set of apothecary scales or send away some boxes of Bark Bars or Peanut Butter and Molasses treats from the Blue Dog Bakery.

If that isn't enough, maybe I'll get the dogs on my Winter Solstice Holiday list something called a "Bow-Lingual," a device that, for a mere $120 at pet stores, can analyze barks and translate them into English, or so it is claimed.

It is made up of a dog collar equipped with a wireless microphone that records the barks, which are interpreted and transmitted as texts to a receiver. If I put one on the dog that lives at our house, the only messages would be "When do we eat," and "Let's play ball."

Of course, if I really want to splurge on the animals I could get them gift certificates for their summer vacations like the Beverly Hills Hotel, where dogs are greeted by name on arrival and find water bowls, dog cookies and doggie bed in their rooms.

Or line them up with one of Chicago's Skyline Cruiseline "Canine Cruises," a 90-minute ride, escorted by a human, on Lake Michigan and the Chicago River on a boat with a newspaper lined rest room. It's $5 for dogs and the escorting adult is soaked for $17.

Or I could get them Cloud Star's all-natural travel kit, which includes collapsible dog bowls, lavender and mint wash and biscuits free of sugar, salt, eggs or dairy products, suitable for vegan dogs. It's only $9.

Pass the Bark Bars — in case I get hungry.

Children's party sponsors thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

Thank you to the sponsors and individuals that helped us out with donations for the children's Christmas party which was held at the George H. Mealy Post 118, Cohasset on Sunday Dec. 14. The party was not only for members children and grandchildren, but we invited the families of the 1058th Transportation Company out of Hingham, which are currently deployed in Iraq. The following were extremely supportive:

Corporate Sponsors — American Legion Post 118, Cohasset; Sons of the American Legion Post 118, Cohasset; Atlantic Brokerage, Cohasset; Precious Petals, North Scituate; Goodwin Graphics, Cohasset; Stop & Shop, Quincy; Building 19, Hingham; South Shore Music Circus, Cohasset; Penniman Hill, Hingham; Boka Bakery, Atkins, NH; Wing and a Prayer, Norwell and Acradian Farms, Hollistan.

Santa's Helpers — Glenn Pratt & Engine 4, Jim Gerrard, Kristen & Brian Curran, Mary Beth Butman, Dee Wigmore, "Jack & Jill", Ed Hamilton, Toni Holland, Nancy Buchannan, Betty Maree, Tara Tradd, Mariruth Castle, Ruth Eaton, Bob & Diane Jackson, Joe & Jane Hamilton, Kaitlin Jackson, Megan Pratt, Tom & Lauren Koncius, Ron Goodwin, Patrons and donors to the "Christmas Can". If we neglected to mention someone who helped us out, we are sorry. Everyone has been so supportive of this great deed.

Concern surfaces over life after the Big Dig job-wise

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

Recap and analysis of the week in state government.

Beneath the dustup — over the propriety and cost of a party to celebrate the opening of I-93 South under Boston — lies the story of the next century.

On the surface was a minor scandal about a celebration planned for under the surface — of the Central Artery project, that is. Turnpike Authority Chairman Matthew Amorello had a big party planned in the new tunnel, as the ribbons were to be cut to herald completion of the lion's share of the Big Dig.

But House Speaker Thomas Finneran denigrated the idea, citing the project's overruns and delays. Gov. Mitt Romney — who's already marked Amorello expendable by proposing the merger of the Turnpike Authority and the state Highway Department — said he wasn't going to attend. The contretemps worsened when it emerged that state taxpayers may have to pay upwards of $100,000 for security and other costs attendant upon the Dec. 19 event.

The flap heralded the beginning of the end of the Big Dig era. It's an era in the capitol region's economy, with thousands of jobs and billions in spending now disappearing along with the corpse of the elevated Artery.

With the trade unions, design firms and contractors wondering what's next, top-dog lobbyist Tom O'Neill put on a breakfast to ask, "What's after the Big Dig?" Attendees such as Jay Cashman, of the construction Cashmans, and Derek Sanderson (yes, that Derek Sanderson) of Boston Private Bank and Trust got together and seemed to agree: there's no Next Big Thing for Boston.

That led some attendees to criticize the Romney administration for lacking a vision of the state's economy. In the void left by the completion of the Big Dig are many small and medium-sized projects — the Greenbush rail line, biotechnology incubators, improvement of the Worcester Airport and the like.

But no mega-project looms, and the administration hasn't articulated what it wants to focus on next, some at the O'Neill forum complained, grumbling as well that the governor won't acknowledge it takes revenue, i.e., taxes, to get projects moving.

Development leaders on the Romney team gathered to update their view of the era beyond the Big Dig, and said the big picture consists of connecting all those smaller pieces, and fixing the ones that are broken now.

At MassInsight's 4th annual Infrastructure Summit, Chief of Commonwealth Development Douglas Foy and others said the administration is continuing to build a coordinated state strategy for infrastructure and development. They emphasized how important it is to repair what the state already has, and has neglected — an approach the administration calls Fix it First.

William Guenther, CEO of MassInsight, said if the strategy becomes more than paperwork, it is in fact the next big thing, and could be the biggest thing ever. "Fix It First is exactly what the business community is recommending," Guenther said. "It may not be sexy, but it is very much in line with the big picture. Snow removal is not the only thing we underfund in the Legislature – there's our parks, UMass, roads and our water systems. It is the next big thing, and that's what the administration said."

It's an era in the capitol region's economy, with thousands of jobs and billions in spending now disappearing along with the corpse of the elevated Artery.

Beyond Fix it First, Guenther said the administration has the chance to promote transportation links between regions of the state, transcending the notion of "regional" economic development and creating a true statewide economy. A first rate system of roads and rails would give corporate leaders the ability to build anything, anywhere in state because it's so easy to move people, products and equipment around.

The final piece, Guenther said, would be a massive investment in the University of Massachusetts. Such a public higher ed upgrade, such as North Carolina undertook, would give business leaders everything they need: good transportation, lots of expertise, and an steady supply of highly-skilled workers.

But: first things first. Generally, the big picture people agree that for the vision to become reality, the economy has to get better. That will not only create the revenue to pay for some of the upgrades, it will allow the governor and his Cabinet to shift their attention from crisis management to future-building. As it happens, with nearly every leading economic indicator now swinging upward, it would appear Massachusetts is about to find out how well the Romney people manage abundance.

In the best case, they'll make good on what Romney said was his reason for running, when he stood in his driveway last March and said he was entering the governor's race: that he could improve the management of Massachusetts' resources, and improve the quality of life for everyone. That's his big picture.

Of course, most of the news of the week was more about incremental change than grand visions.

• Senate asks sjc for opinion on civil unions — With the state's future policy on gay marriage the biggest open question on Beacon Hill, the Senate asked the SJC for advice on whether a "civil union" law would satisfy the court's November ruling that the state must grant full recognition of same-sex couples. At the same time, the Senate gave initial approval to its bill codifying civil unions, under which couples may register as being in a partnership and qualify for spousal rights, without the issuance of a marriage license by the state. The SJC may provide guidance for lawmakers or decline to answer.

• Big Dig plans to sue contractors — A working group headed by retired Judge Edward Ginsburg is recommending that the Big Dig's managing contractor, Bechtel/Parsons Brinkerhoff, be sued for $150 million for allegedly helping to cover up the project's true cost, the Boston dailies reported. The overage boosted the firms' profits, the lawsuit would claim.

• Finneran: we'll give our GOP challengers what-for — After Romney gathered about 200 legislative candidacy recruits at the Seaport Hotel for advice and inspiration, House Speaker Thomas Finneran told the Herald that the wannabes will face more than they can handle as they challenge incumbents next year. "There is an impressive record of stability and leadership and initiative here, and that to me is always the best defense," Finneran told the Herald.

• Most Quinn Bill programs can't pass muster — A state review of the 42 programs under which police officers have qualified for extra pay showed only 14 ready to meet new, higher standards that go into effect Jan. 1. The so-called Quinn Bill became controversial after media examinations of the questionable value of some of the courses and programs officers were taking to merit the pay bonuses. Standards were raised this year, and less than half of the institutions that participated in Quinn Bill education met those standards during a review by outside evaluators this fall.

• Storm wiped out what remained in snow removal budget — State officials acknowledged it will cost at least $11.4 million to clean up from the Dec. 6-7 storm – and that's 79 percent of what the Legislature budgeted for the entire winter. For whatever reason, lawmakers prefer underfunding the snow and ice removal account. This year's budget included $15 million, but $17 million has been expended already, before the first day of winter. It's unclear how the underfunding will affect the state's already frayed relations with its road-clearing crews, who now face the prospect of working all winter for a paycheck that may not arrive until the spring.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

By Bob Katzen

beaconhill@aol.com

December 12, 2003

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local senators' and representatives' votes on three roll calls from November sessions. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

MORE TIME TO ACT ON GOVERNOR'S VETOES

House 136-23, Senate 33-6, approved an order allowing the legislature to act in 2004 on Gov. Romney's vetoes of sections in the $102 million supplemental budget and $100 million economic development plan that were approved by the House and Senate in November. Under current rules, the legislature cannot act on these vetoes in 2004. The order also requires that any vetoes be listed in advance on the calendar prior to action. Current rules do not require vetoes to be listed in advance. Supporters said that these two bills were approved in November but under current rules the legislature would not be able to consider the governor's vetoes because there are no more formal legislative sessions scheduled for 2003. They said it is unfair to allow the governor to veto items unilaterally without the legislature having an opportunity to override them. Opponents said the legislature could have approved these bills weeks ago and then had the opportunity to override the governor's vetoes. They said it is outrageous to have rules and then simply change them because the legislature does not complete its work in a timely fashion. (A "Yea" vote is for allowing action on the vetoes in 2004. A "Nay" vote is against allowing action in 2004)

STUDY PUBLIC SECTOR PAY (H 4004)

House 134-24, overrode Gov. Romney's veto of a budget section creating a 15-member commission to study the pay and benefits of government employees in Massachusetts and compare them to those of public employees in other states and to workers in the private sector. The commission would report with recommendations to the legislature by April 1, 2004 and include any proposed legislation necessary to carry out the recommendations. Override supporters said this is simply a worthwhile, information-gathering effort to help get a handle on how Massachusetts compares with other states in providing pay and benefits to public employees. Some override opponents said the legislature has many more important matters to consider and should not be wasting time debating and voting on this questionable commission. Others said the commission should be established by the executive branch. (A "Yea" vote is for establishing the commission. A "Nay" vote is against establishing the commission).

CONTINUE NIGHT SESSION

House 123-36, suspended rules to allow the House to meet beyond 9 p.m. and continue until midnight. Supporters of rule suspension said it is important to remain in session and act on several key bills that are pending. Opponents of rule suspension said late-night sessions are irresponsible and noted the legislature has had an entire year to act on these matters. (A "Yea" vote is for rule suspension to allow the session to continue beyond 9 p.m. A "Nay" vote is against rule suspension).

MEDICAL BOARD DISCIPLINARY HEARINGS (S 2151)

Senate 37-1, gave near final approval to and sent to the House a bill allowing a victim to give an impact statement at the disciplinary hearing of the doctor who is the subject of the proceeding. Other provisions include allowing a family member to give the statement if the victim has died or is not competent to testify and permitting the victim or the family member to be represented by an attorney and to recommend a punishment for the doctor's actions. Supporters said the bill, known as "Taylor's Law," is named after Taylor McCormack, a 13-month old girl who died in October 2000 at Children's Hospital. They noted that doctors testified at the closed hearing but members of Taylor's family were not allowed to present their side of the story and express their feelings. They argued that patients and their families should not be victimized a second time by not being allowed to testify. Opponents offered no arguments. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against the bill).

POLICE MUTUAL AID (S 1342)

Senate 39-0, approved and Gov. Romney signed into law a bill allowing Massachusetts cities and towns to enter into police mutual aid agreements with cities and towns in border-states. Current law only allows communities to enter these agreements with communities within Massachusetts. The agreements allow a community to share its police officers, equipment and supplies to help another community that has insufficient resources for special events or emergencies. The bill also provides that police officers that are temporarily helping another community have the same arrest and powers that they enjoy in their home community. Supporters said expanding the agreements to communities in other states is important in the post-911 world in order to help communities during a crisis or emergency. They noted that the bill also ensures that police officers that cross borders will have the powers of arrest and not be considered private citizens as they are under current law. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).

he'll start a pilot program for the purchase of medications from lower-cost Canadian sources, Speaker Finneran lambasted the idea. A longtime opponent of drug price controls, Finneran said such schemes, made nationally famous by former Springfield Mayor Michael Albano, rob pharmaceutical and biotech companies of the revenues they need to conduct research. That, Finneran said, hurts the Massachusetts economy more than Canadian purchase plans can help municipal coffers.

Runway critics fail to ground injunction

State Sen. Robert L. Hedlund, R-Weymouth, and state Rep. Garrett J. Bradley, D-Hingham, have expressed their disappointment with the recent Superior Court ruling on the expansion of Logan International Airport. Hedlund and Bradley have adamantly opposed the construction of a new runway and are disturbed with the blatant disregard of the concerns expressed by affected communities.

The legislators are members of the Noise Task Force and the Legislative Caucus on Air Transportation, and have worked closely with the South Shore Jet Pollution Council. Each of these organizations have put forth a tremendous effort to bring to light the detrimental impact Logan Expansion will have on the surrounding communities. South Shore Communities, as well as communities surrounding the City of Boston, have been fighting the proposed Logan Expansion for decades for reasons ranging form noise pollution to environmental impacts.

"The misinformation put forth by Massport is so egregious that maps released to the media by Massport this week demonstrate flight paths with no current or future flights over Hull. This is a joke," said Hedlund. "Anyone living on the South Shore knows the current and future flight paths include significant air travel over the Town of Hull. With the addition of a new runway, air traffic is expected to increase dramatically."

"Why Massport does not accept the premise that post 9/11 the main concern now is safety not delay. Any additional funding should be spent on ensuring safe travel. This decision is unfortunate but it does not put an end to this issue by any means," Bradley said.

The Superior Court ruling lifts an injunction imposed by former Governor Edward King in 1976 that prohibits the construction of the new runway. The Federal Aviation Administration approved the construction of the new runway in January of this year despite the decrease in air travel and projected increase in noise and air pollution.

Several lawsuits are still pending and Hedlund and Bradley said they will continue to support all responsible efforts to prevent the construction of the new runway.

POLITICAL NOTES

Boating association honors Sen. Hedlund

The Massachusetts Boating and Yacht Clubs Association have named state Senator Robert L. Hedlund its 2003 Legislator of the Year. Association members Frank Callahan and John Spillane recently presented the award to Hedlund at his district office in Weymouth.

The Massachusetts Boating and Yacht Clubs Association (M.B.Y.C.A) is made up of 80 different boating and yacht clubs across Massachusetts, including several south shore clubs such as Green Harbor Yacht Club, Hingham Yacht Club, Hull Yacht Club, Marshfield Yacht Club, Scituate Harbor Yacht Club and Wessagusset Yacht Club. The M.B.Y.C.A. promotes a fun, safe and active environment for the boating community while also protecting the rights of boaters and yachtsmen in Massachusetts.

Association members Frank Callahan and John Spillane present Hedlund with the Legislator of the Year award.

Hedlund was named M.B.Y.C.A.'s 2003 Legislator of the Year in recognition of his long-time concern and aid to the advancement of boating interests in Massachusetts. Representing several coastal communities on the South Shore, Hedlund has been an active supporter and friend of the boating community. Hedlund's efforts on behalf of the boating community include leading the fight against tax increases for boat owners and working to prevent the raiding of the waterways account, which is partially funded by the marine gas tax.

"It is an honor to receive this recognition from the Massachusetts Boating and Yacht Clubs Association," Hedlund said. "I represent many boat owners in my senate district, so I truly appreciate the partnership with the Boating and Yacht Clubs Association. I thank them for this honor and, more importantly, I thank them for their dedication and advocacy on behalf of Massachusetts boat owners."

Restored cemetery gates complete project

can be proud of.

"They were in terrible shape," said Cemetery Study Committee member Glenn Pratt, who spearheaded the project, adding from a layman's viewpoint, it was hard to tell if the gates were worth saving.

Two sets of gates, one for each entrance, were being stored on the property and were discovered during the cemetery restoration project. Pratt said by looking at the damage, it was estimated one set of gates had probably been stored in the shed since the 1970s, and the other could have been there since the 1870s. While all the gates were covered in rust, some portions had missing pieces and others were badly broken. However, upon inspection from the experts, it was determined they were worth saving.

"Our wrought iron expert said we had an unusually good specimen of 1870s craftsmanship," said Pratt. "We were told it would be a crime not to restore them."

The gates were worked on for almost a year, and they came back as good as new this September. They were installed at both the cemetery's entrances on Sept. 9.

But the new gates are not the only addition to the grounds. Because there had never been a sign officially identifying the cemetery's name, one crafted to resemble a typical 1870s sign was hung at the cemetery's entrance. While people in town may have identified the land as being the Beechwood Cemetery, "It was all local folklore," Pratt joked, as there was nothing officially naming it as such.

A new Beechwood Cemetery sign looking as though it could have been made in the 1870s hangs near the entrance.

In addition to the sign at the entrance, another was installed to designate the ancient burial ground portion of the property. Because the land can be divided into two distinct sections, the working cemetery and the ancient burial ground, which is no longer open to new graves, the sign helps set the historic area apart.

Funding for the gates and signs was provided by the Community Preservation Committee, which allocated $20,000 to cover expenses associated with both. Because the Cemetery Study Committee previously spent $700,000 on major expansions and renovations for both the Beechwood Cemetery and Woodside Cemetery, including expanding the available grave space and the repair and rebuilding of the existing infrastructure at both, the cost of the gate restoration project was outside of the committee's finances.

"Nothing had been done to the cemetery since the early 1970s," said Pratt, adding the improvements were long overdue. Problems with the cemetery date back to 1977, when the Planning Board, which Pratt sat on, began discussions on how the town would deal with its lack of cemetery space. At that time, the Planning Board estimated the town could run out of cemetery space in two years, and decided to write a letter to the Board of Selectmen to address the problem. From there, the Cemetery Study Committee was formed, and Pratt has been a member ever since.

"In 2001, we added 300 new plots," which were developed in the area at the back of the cemetery, said Pratt. Other expansions over the years include one in the early 1900s when the property was squared off, and another in the 1990s when an additional section on Beechwood Street was cleared.

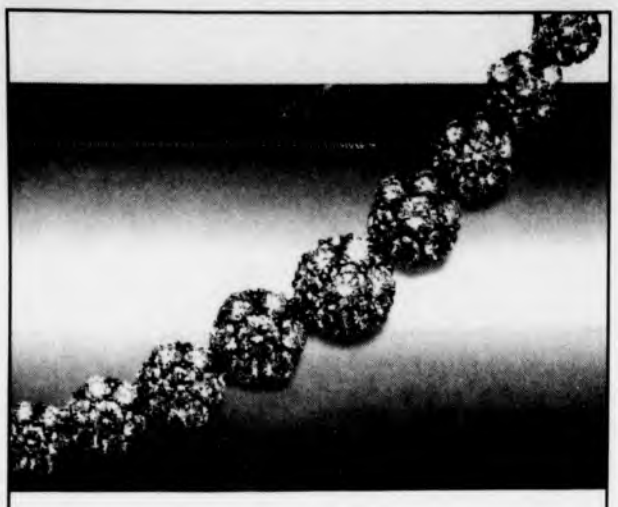
Pratt said the original land was donated to the town by a pair of Pratt brothers in1737, and that year is cast in one of the iron gates at the entrance. Additional land was donated in 1874, from another generation of Pratts, and it seems Pratts have been involved with the cemetery ever since.

"If you look around the cemetery, Pratt is one of the very predominant names," Pratt said, adding the original Pratts settled in Cohasset in 1681.

"The cemetery has quite a long history," he said.

With the restoration project complete, there won't be many other large projects before the Cemetery Study Committee for a while. However, Pratt said he's glad to be a part of the committee all the same. He said if something came before Selectmen or any other board in town which had to do with the cemeteries, he expects the issue would be deferred to his committee.

"We're cheap. We don't charge much," he joked.



Keep it simple.

9-1-1 calls on cell phone not enhanced

the address automatically pops up on the screen at the police-fire headquarters in Cohasset. Other pertinent information that is on file also appears such as, whether the caller is hearing or vision impaired or is in a wheelchair and has mobility problems.

But if a resident dials 9-1-1 from a cell phone, no address appears. In fact that call goes doesn't go directly to Cohasset but to the State Police wireless Public Safety Answering Point or PSAP in Framingham where the call taker receives the wireless telephone number and the location of the nearest cell tower that is transmitting the call, not the specific home or business address. Framingham then transfers to the call to the local PSAP — based on the ability of the caller and the call taker to determine the call's actual location.

"I'm encouraging people to keep their hard lines," says Cohasset communications supervisor Thomas Wigmore. "You just never know.

"If you have difficulty breathing or pass out, at least we have a location where you are. Cell phones are great but if you don't have your home phone anymore – you're not in our data base."

As of Nov. 24 Cohasset became one of about 170 Massachusetts communities in which consumers have the ability to switch wireless carriers and keep their existing telephone number within the same geographic area. In addition, they can switch phone numbers from a wireline (land line) to a wireless carrier and visa versa under the FCC's local number portability rule. The rest of the state will have the option by May 2004.

But consumers need to know when they switch from a wireline to a wireless phone, their home address will be deleted from the emergency 9-1-1 data base and they will only get the 9-1-1 features associated with wireless 9-1-1, according to the Statewide Emergency Telecommunications Board (SETB).

Paul Fahey, SETB executive director, says 9-1-1 wireless technology is changing but won't be up and running in the state until 2005. The SETB will provide technical support, training, equipment and software for wireless 9-1-1 mapping capabilities at every local PSAP at no charge to the municipality. Receiver chips embedded in the consumer's telephone device will help pin a caller's location down. Dispatch centers equipped with new mapping software will be able to determine the latitude and longitude and track a wireless signal to within 50 meters.

The initiative is covered through a 30 cent surcharge on wireless telephone bills. (Wireline 9-1-1 is paid for through an 85 cent surcharge on regular phone bills and charges for directory assistance calls).

But in some places near busy highways, new wireless 9-1-1 technology could translate into a lot more calls and the need for more staff, which would be an added cost to the municipality. It would not be unusual for a dispatch center near a state highway to receive dozens of 9-1-1 wireless calls about an accident, for example. Therefore, while communities will all have the new wireless mapping technology, they can choose whether to take the calls directly or have them routed through the state police PSAP.

But in the meantime, Fahey said the SETB urges consumers not to make the decision to give up their home telephone without careful thought. Also, the new wireless 9-1-1 technology will still not provide an exact address.

"We're especially concerned about people who don't speak English well or the elderly, who have a high instance of using 9-1-1," he said.

He concedes that some young adults and working people, who have cell phones with them all the time and are not home that much, are opting to go without home telephones to save the money.

But consumers also need to realize their cell phones can run out of power.

"People should think long and hard before giving up their home phones," he said.

If they do, it's also important to note there may be a period of "mixed service" when transferring to a wireless phone when there would be essentially two phones with the same number. The enhanced 9-1-1 service could be affected and the 911 operator may not be able to call the consumer back if they get disconnected, the SETB says. The consumer should ask the wireless provider how long the "porting" process will take how that will affect 911 service.

When calling 9-1-1 from a cell phone:

- Stay calm, speak clearly and listen carefully to the call taker's questions.
- Know your location — if uncertain about your location describe any surroundings, landmarks, highway route number, closest exit, or anything that will help emergency personnel locate you. If at home, provide your address.
- A State Police Public Safety Answering Point or PSAP will initially answer your call — in most cases you will be transferred to another public safety agency that will send out the appropriate emergency response.
- If traveling in a vehicle, know its make, model, color and license plate number.
- Know the number of the mobile phone you are calling from.
- Describe the nature of the emergency and be sure to give your name.
- Be aware of your wireless signal limitations — if moving your call will be lost.
- If you are at home and have both a cell phone and a regular home phone, call 9-1-1 from your regular phone.

Young CHS skaters shock Scituate in opener

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Yeah, you can probably assume Ben Virga will remember his coaching debut for a while.

The rookie Cohasset High hockey coach directed his Skippers to a huge 4-2 upset win over perceived preseason powerhouse Scituate, Saturday night at Pilgrim Arena, behind some strong play from his top guns and solid play from his role players.

"What a way to start," said a smiling Virga, 28, the third CHS head coach in as many year, "but if there are many more like that, they're going to need a fourth coach next year."

Virga, who succeeds John Blake as the Skippers bench boss this winter, was obviously joking, heart palpitations and all.

The deep and talented Sailors, coming off a 15-2-1 season, which included a pair of lopsided wins over the two-time defending South Shore League champion Skippers, as expected, came out firing, and much of the early play was in Cohasset's end. However, the defensive trio of Tim Pilczak, Joe Durkin and senior captain Mike Devine did stalwart work in front of sophomore goalie Stephan Parnell (30 saves), who likewise came up big.

"We got a great game from a lot of players," said Virga, a former assistant coach at B.C. High, Catholic Memorial, and, most recently, Milton High.

"I thought our top line did an excellent job," he continued, referring to senior Rob Carpenter between big and skilled wings Mike Rasmussen and Ted Straughn, "And I thought all of our defensemen did an outstanding job against some very talented players, and Stephan was just immense a few times."

The one obstacle preventing the coach from calling this a perfect win was the seven penalties his team took, to Scituate's five, three of them coming in the third period with his team in the lead. On the upside, though, he was thrilled with the job his penalty killers did against the cavalcade of talented forwards Scituate coach Mike Breen trotted out.

The view from the opposite bench was, not surprisingly, quite a bit different.

"I hope that will be a bit of a wakeup call for some of our guys," said Breen. "A few of our big players like Chris Travis and Jamie Phinney and Sully

CHS boys basketball team eyes a bounce back season

By Mark Goodman
CORRESPONDENT

The best thing that could happen for Ron Ford is that his team learns from last year's mistakes and tough times.

The worst is that they could be repeated.

Ford's Cohasset boys basketball team finished 7-13 last season, a record that easily could have been five games better, considering the number of close calls that saw the Skippers come up just short.

There will be a new, young cast of supporting players surrounding the talented inside-outside combination of Chris Bilodeau and Sean Connolly.

Bilodeau is a six-foot senior shooting guard who led the team last year in scoring, averaging over 16 points per game. He may have to bump that number up into the 20s this year, but Ford feels his top player is up to the task.

"I think he's going to be number one or two in the league in scoring," the coach said. "He is very talented, both offensively and defensively."

In addition to scoring and defense, Ford will be looking to Bilodeau for some leadership. Outside of the top four returning players, which includes Connolly, John Andrade and Dan Tarpey, the Clippers will be laden with

CHS wrestlers dominate Tri-County in first meet, 51-9

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Even with their lineup decimated by illness and injury, the Cohasset High wrestling team got off to a great start on Saturday, knocking off Tri-County in decisive fashion, 51-9.

Seven members of the Pilgrim Conference defending champion Skippers recorded pins to open the season in grand fashion.

Sophomore Jake Watts got things rolling with a pin at 103 pounds, and freshman Ryan McLellan followed with a pin in his first high school match at 112.

Junior Kevin Dinsmore bumped up from 125 to 130 to help fill in for absent teammates, but had no problem going against the bigger opponent, as he too notched pin for six points.

Sophomore Dave McKenna bumped from 130 to 135 with the same result.

Pins were also recorded by sophomore John Keniley at 152 and junior Matt Casey at Improving in leaps and bounds

Return of injured gymnasts has Norwell-Cohasset squad eyeing league title

By Lou Molinari
CORRESPONDENT

The Norwell-Cohasset girls gymnastic team could be one of the best in the Pilgrim Conference II this season.

"We've had one of our best turnouts ever," said coach Kara Connerty, who is starting her seventh season as coach. "We have a total of 20 girls on the team. We have one senior returning and a lot of juniors, sophomores and freshmen.

"On top of that, we have two girls back this season who were out injured last year."

The Norwell-Cohasset team will get its first look at regular season competition Thursday afternoon when it takes on Randolph-Milton at Randolph. It will also be the league's opening meet.

The lone returning senior is Shelly Carter, of Cohasset, one of the three captains on the team. Shelly specializes on the beam and vault.

The other two captains are Norwell juniors Carly Arena and Samantha Rosen.

Samantha was one of the two gymnasts who missed last season due to injury. The other is Jen Guiney. Samantha and Jen both compete in the all-around.

Also looking for a big season in the all-around is junior Nancy Durkin, of Cohasset, a returning Mariner All-Scholastic.

Gymnastics Season opener
@Randolph-Milton
Tonight, 7:30 p.m.

"We have a strong team," said the coach. "We have plenty of depth and, most of all, we have the two players who were injured last year, back and quite healthy, ready to go."

The coaches are still anxious to see how a rule change affects the teams this season. Scoring values have been changed and requirements are a bit different, according to coach Connerty.

Last year's Norwell-Cohasset team finished second in the league, but led in scoring.

"Our players have been looking very good in practice," she noted. "However, Thursday will certainly tell the story just how well we've progressed."

sophomores and maybe freshmen with no varsity experience.

Ford says he is confident that Bilodeau, who could become the fifth boy in school history to score 1,000 points, will be up to the task.

"He's a good leader," he said. "He works hard, and he pushes his teammates to be better. He's just a tremendous athlete."

Helping Bilodeau will be Connolly, another senior who is penciled in to be Cohasset's starting power forward this season. Ford described Connolly as a versatile player who can score from inside and outside, and also pass well from his position.

Running the point this year will be John Andrade. As with Bilodeau and Connolly, Ford is hoping that Andrade will be able to contribute to several facets of the game.

"I think he'll do a nice job running the offense," Ford said. "He can get to the line, and shoots free throws very well. He's also able to step up on defense."

Rounding out the main core of players will be Tarpey, who Ford envisions as his starting center. Tarpey will provide some rebounding and inside toughness.

The fifth starter and main players are still to be determined, Ford said. He has a few games this week to begin to figure it out, as the Skippers took on Holbrook in the opening round of the South Shore Voke Tech tournament on Tuesday, face league power Norwell on the road tonight (7 p.m. start), and finish up the SSVT tournament on Saturday with Avon (4:30 p.m. start)

Due to the recent nor'easter and the school's participation in postseason football, the team did not get a chance to practice as a whole until last Tuesday. Despite that, Ford said his team is starting to come together, and played a more up-tempo game at a recent scrimmage in New York.

The coach said he expects to play a lot of zone defense this season.

Ford said things will be different in close games this year, saying that those tough losses made the team stronger and gave them experience in those kinds of situations. He also said that having a bona fide go-to guy in Bilodeau will help pull out games late.

Either way, Ford said the upcoming year should be enjoyable.

"I like this group a lot. They're fun to coach," he said. "They pick things up quickly; they're very smart."

Skippers 54, Holbrook 48

The boys got their season off to a nice start against Holbrook, which is being coached by former CHS JV coach Tim Owens.

Bilodeau led way with 26 points, 11 rebounds and six assists, and, according to Ford, also played a "very strong game defensively."

Connolly chipped in with eight points, and sophomores Nick Arment and Trevor Brady (filling in at point guard for the flu-ridden John Andrade) added six points apiece.

Coach Ford gave four sophomores — Brady, Arment Chris Ofthsun and Chris Bryant) and freshman Jeff Brown meaningful minutes in the opener, and reportedly was quite pleased with the way they all responded.

Brady split the point guard duties with fellow soph Chris Ofsthun and the pair turned the ball over only four times between them.

"I'll take that from the point guard position any time at the high school level, and these two guys did that in their first varsity game," lauded Ford. "They did an excellent job."

Senior Chris Bilodeau was the Skippers main man in Tuesday's win over Holbrook in the first round of the South Shore Voc Tech Tourney, as he led all scorers with 26 points and also grabbed 11 boards and dished out six assists.

As is always the case with these kinds of things, the selection process with this team was not an easy one.

Several of the young women you see listed below as "Honorable Mentions" received serious consideration for All-Scholastic acknowledgement.

In the end, however, we limited ourselves to a team of just 12, and, after consulting with area coaches, we do feel secure that we chose the top girls volleyball players in Marinerland for this honor.

Skippers ice Sailors

(Steve Sullivan) were looking to do too much on their own tonight, and that cost us. They shouldn't feel the pressure to carry it all on their shoulders. They've got good players around them. Hopefully, what happened tonight will help them figure that out."

The Sailors opened the scoring just 1:47 in when returning Mariner All-Scholastic defenseman Andrew Elsmore took a feed from Sullivan just above the right circle and let fly with a high shot that got just over the screened Parnell's catcher on the near side.

Scituate would threaten to add to the lead several times before the first horn, but Parnell and crew stemmed the tide.

The Skippers offense would begin to get on track late in the opening period. Rasmussen swooped across the crease with six minutes to go, but couldn't get the puck off the ice over the pad of flailing Scituate goaltender Andrew Souza. Souza would make another nice save inside the final two minutes on a slapper straight out by Devine.

Cohasset would finally break through with the equalizer 91 seconds into the second period when Carpenter took a centering feed from Straughn in the high slot and whistled a slapper over the right shoulder of Sousa.

Momentum seemed to shift with this score, as the Skippers suddenly appeared to be skating stride-for-stride with the deeper and more experienced Sailors. Particularly noteworthy in this stretch was the strong up and down play of Cohasset's all sophomore second line of Matt O'Connell, Mark Bouchard and Brandon Smith.

Sousa made a pair of big stops on Carpenter and Rasmussen during a flurry in front of him midway through the second frame Parnell was equal to the challenge, however, stoning sophomore Tyler Hall on the doorstep a few minutes later and junior Garrett Callahan not long after that. In the waning moments of the period, Parnell stuffed Travis on an electrifying end-to-end rush, one of many the talented junior center had on the night.

After this relatively evenly played second period, Straughn would get the Skippers the lead for good just 1:09 into the third when he punched home the rebound of a Rasmussen shot from the bottom of the right circle.

Devine and Parnell combined to prevent the game from being tied up less than a minute later when petite but scintillating Scituate freshman Colin Donahue swooped in from the left circle with a nice solo move. His first shot from the low circle was taken off the pads by Parnell, but Donahue collected his own rebound with a wide open net in front of him. However, Devine raced into the crease and took the follow up attempt off his pads, and then cleared it away.

The agony over this missed opportunity increased less than a minute later when Devine put a slap shot by Souza from the right point, making it a 3-1 with 12:03 to go.

The Sailors weren't done yet, though. The deficit was cut back to one on the power play with 8:45 to play when Sullivan collected a feed from Tim Zona with his back to the net in the slot 15 feet out and, in one motion, spun and fired low. Parnell was able to get a pad on it, but the puck trickled over the line just inside the nearside post. Elsmore got the other assist for his second point of the night.

Thoughts of a Scituate comeback were extinguished two minutes later. After Travis barely missed tying the game on a pretty wraparound attempt, his shot going behind Parnell but right across the goalline, Devine fed the puck between the drawn-in Scituate defensemen to a breaking Bouchard. The Cohasset sophomore got Sousa to bite on the break-in with a nice backhand fake, and then wrapped it behind him on the forehand, pushing the lead to 4-2 with 6:43 to play.

Scituate had a couple more power plays down the stretch, but the extra man made no difference.

Scituate got back into action Monday night at Rockland, and is slated to host Norwell tomorrow night at Hobomock (8 p.m. start). The Skippers, meanwhile, weren't scheduled to play again until Saturday night, when perennial Div. 3 state power Blue Hills comes to Pilgrim Arena (5:40 p.m. start).

Cohasset welcome draws crowd to holiday house tour

Decked halls and homes were splendid!

By Sandra Durant
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

After a week of storms, the weather was brisk and sunny on Saturday —perfect for the hundreds who were determined not to miss The Community Garden Club of Cohasset's Christmas Gatherings House Tour & Holiday Tea — and perfect for showing off the homes sensational outdoor settings and breathtaking water views. Although there was a steady stream of visitors through the five already spectacular homes made extra special for the holiday season, there were no lines or difficulty in parking.

"I am absolutely delighted with the success of the Tour," said event chairman Kathy Gray, "it was especially successful for the attendees as so many commented that all of the homes were so beautiful that it was impossible to choose a favorite".

The Tour began at the Congregation of the Sisters of Saint Joseph where the sisters mingled with the Garden Club hostesses warmly greeting the visitors to their spacious villa. Sisters Carol and Dorothy had been unusually helpful to the decorators as they transformed the pristine interior, with four beautifully decorated trees, crèches, and impressive garlands winding up the staircase leading to the Chapel, into a festive setting for a holiday afternoon string concert.

Opening the door of the stately Queen Anne Victorian home on Margin Street was like stepping back in time. The owner's antique furnishings, the sage greens and shades of wine in the stunningly arranged decorations, and the spectacular dining table holiday centerpiece made it a perfect home for a Victorian Christmas Tea. Especially breathtaking was the Christmas tree with dried hydrangea and roses hand-tied with ribbon, sheer voile and the owner◊s antique ornaments spiraling around it as it filled the round bay in the living room.

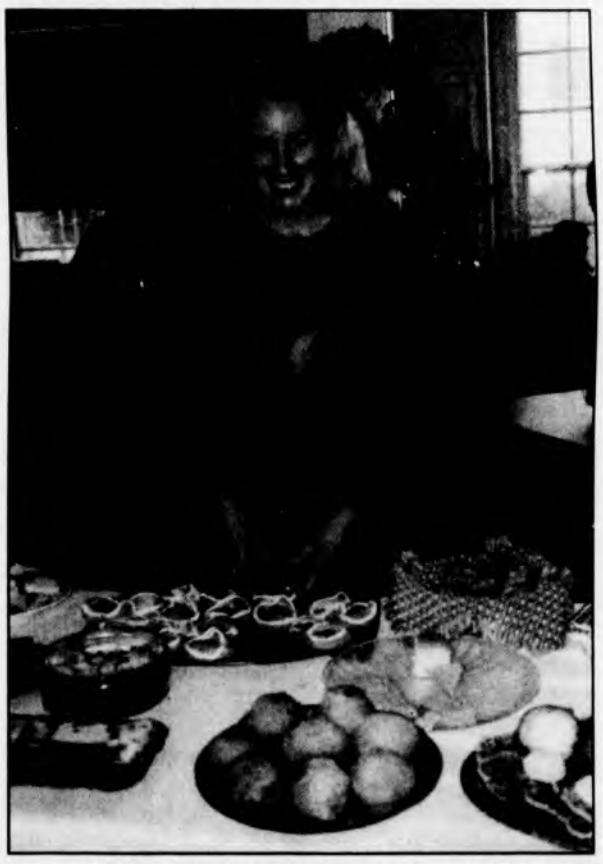
The biggest surprise and truly the most discussed home was on Border Street. Although it appeared small on the outside, it was spacious and breathtaking on the inside‹a tribute to the careful planning and the exquisite taste of the owners. The holiday decorations were simple yet elegant, reflecting the outstanding artistic talent and cumulative experience of the decorators who worked on this lovely home.

When Fran O'Toole, the head decorator of the Flanagan home, was asked about her holiday decorating approach she said, "this home is so beautifully decorated to begin with that it will be difficult to enhance such good taste". Nonetheless, every room was skillfully turned into a warm holiday setting using all natural materials and collectibles from the decorator's homes. One tree was lavish with hand-painted gingerbread men, popcorn and garlands of cranberries, another had clusters of rhododendron leaves sprayed silver, bowls were piled high with artfully made red cardinal Christmas cookies, and classic Christmas toys crowded sofas in the family room. As each visitor exited there was a Santa Claus suit once used by a decorator's grandfather hanging by the back door.

After winding down a long beautiful driveway through this 40-acre estate off Beachwood Street, visitors were captivated by the creativity of the decorations inside. In fact, the decorations on the dining room table, which was set for a wintry evening dinner party, fascinated virtually everyone. As an example, each place setting had a sparkly white Christmas ornament that was used as a small water-filled vase holding white roses and baby's breath. This understated elegance was carried throughout the house where everyone lingered, eager to learn how the decorations were created.

"I am overwhelmed by the generosity of the contributors to the Holiday Tea at the Second Congregational Church this year", said Claire Cardell, the chair of the Hospitality Committee. More than 100 gallons of coffee were donated by Cohasset's new Starbucks, Hingham's Fireking donated

A cherub sitting in a bed of Christmas roses, berries and greenery is the perfect start to the spectacular garland on the banister leading up the stairs to the Chapel in the villa belonging to the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

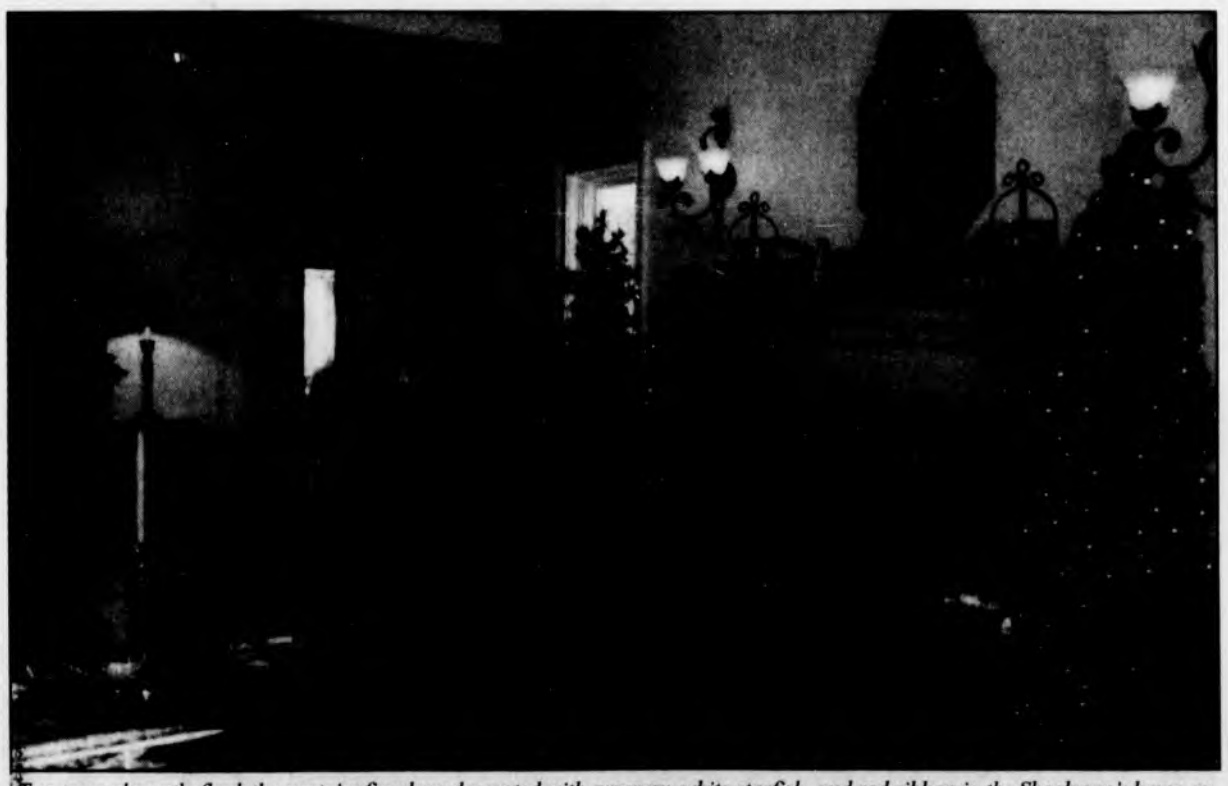


Hostess Cindy Alexander can no longer resist one of the pastries at the Holiday Tea in the Second Congregational Church Bates Hall.

500 scones and muffins, Cohasset's Red Lion Inn's pastry chef created 500 holiday cookies, Hingham's Zia's created custom cookies and cakes, and Plymouth's East Bay Grille contributed six overflowing trays of sandwiches. In fact, everyone was looking for seconds of their lobster sandwiches that were filled with chunks of lobster. Added to all this were the sandwiches and desserts made by the Club◊s volunteers making this year's Tea a feast for all its visitors.

"I was thrilled to find, for my grandchildren, the Audubon plush birds with their authentic calls. I've been looking for them everywhere", said one visitor to the boutique this year. Vendors chosen by the garden club displayed delightful items appropriate to the club. The birds were part of North Scituate's Emporium Naturals selection of truly natural herb scented soaps and candles. Nancy Wholley, an artist and member of Hull Studio Connection displayed her handmade and hand-painted Christmas decorations. Almost immediately sold out were Kathy Morgan's hand-decorated gift boxes. And the Club's own Debbie Jenks, of 1725 House Productions, original photos of flowers on blank greeting cards and calendars were eagerly purchased. In fact, she had a selection of cards with photos of cats taken at the Scituate Animal Shelter. "Every time I go there to photograph the cats, I want to take them home with me, said Debbie. This is my way of helping them find loving homes".

Finally, ticket purchasers and contributors will be pleased to learn proceeds from the house tour will be used to support the numerous projects of the garden club, which include historic restoration and preservation, civic beautification, scholarship grants, and community education programs. In addition, the club contributes time and money to various environmental and conservation agencies.



Two trees elegantly flank the upstairs fireplace decorated with greenery, white starfish, and red ribbon in the Shockman's home on Border Street.

IT'S HAPPENING

Holiday shopping at the Art Center

The South Shore Art Center's Dillon Gallery currently features an exhibition certainly to be of great interest to art enthusiasts and holiday shoppers alike.

The Small Works exhibition showcases the artwork of many of the Art Center's 150 Gallery Artists. The work, in all media, is small in size and affordably priced for holiday giving. The gallery walls are rich with hundreds of watercolors, oil paintings, acrylic paintings, photographs, monoprints, collages, pastel paintings and one of a kind ceramic pieces. Favorite South Shore artists with a number of works on display include Irma Cerese, JoAnne Chittick, Nancy Colella, Ros Farbush, Becky Haletky, Anne Heywood, Brooks Kelly, Margaret McWethy, Mary Callahan, Jeanne Replogle, Sarah Roche, Diana Rousseau and Diane Panarelli Miller.

The South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset is open Monday-Friday from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Sat. 10a.m. -4 p.m. and Sunday noon-4 p.m.. The Art Center closes for the holidays on Dec. 22. For more information call 781-383-2787 or visit www.ssac.org. Monica McKenney Director of Development and Public Relations South Shore Art Center 119 Ripley Road Cohasset, MA 02025 781-383-2787 ext. 13.

Dramatic club holiday fundraiser

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will hold a Holiday Family Night Fund Raiser on Saturday, Dec. 20 from 6-9pm at the Cohasset Town Hall. Enjoy food, raffles, crafts, holiday music provided by a brass quartet and staged readings of "The Polar Express" and "The Snowman." The evening will end with a special visitor. Tickets are $15 for adults and $5 for children. Then again on Sunday enjoy music and the staged readings. All tickets $7. Tickets are available at the door and by phone at 781-544-0304.

Neoclassical art is subject of new exhibit

South Shore Art Center is hosting "Piranesi and His Contemporaries" from the collection of Elizabeth Morse and Richard Wendorf from Jan. 9–April 10 at the Dillon Gallery. The opening reception is from 6-8 p.m., Jan. 9.

This collection of 18th-century old-master prints has been assembled over a20-year period, with a focus on the work of Giovanni Battista Piranesi and other artists who depicted neoclassical culture, particularly in Rome and its environs. In addition to two dozen prints by Piranesi, the exhibition includes many plates from the publication of Sir William Hamilton's vase collection and an early twentieth-century architectural drawing directly inspired by Piranesi's work.

Don't miss the gallery talk at 4 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 25, "Living With Piranesi" with Richard Wendorf and Stanford Calderwood, director and librarian, the Boston Athenaeum. Free to the public.

For more information: 781-383-ARTS or www.ssac.org

American Indian exhibit coming to science center

Start your New Year off on the right foot by following the tracks to an exceptional and educational art exhibit entitled, "Getting Acquainted with American Indian Artists" in the Vine Hall Gallery at the South Shore Natural Science Center off Jacobs Lane in Norwell, Jan. 1-31. Hosted by Betty Bourgault of Hanover, the exhibit features artwork in a variety of mediums representing a wide range of American Indian artists from different tribes across the U.S. and Canada. Many of the original paintings and prints are for sale, with a portion of the proceeds to benefit the Science Center. Artists include Wo Peen, who has ties to Massachusetts, and the famous Kiowa Five painters, who were prominent in the development of contemporary Indian painting during the 20th century.

The public is invited to an opening reception on Sunday, Jan. 4 from 4p.m. The exhibit can be viewed free of charge during the Center's regular business hours, Monday through Saturday, 9:30am - 4:30pm. The South Shore Natural Science Center is a non-profit environmental education center serving the entire south shore. We are located at 48 Jacobs Lane in Norwell, less than one mile from exit 13 off Route 3. Mediterranean fare with flair at new Village bistro

Brian Houlihan in his new restaurant, Bia, on South Main Street in the Village.

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

For the past three months, the former Really Great Pizza, or RGP, restaurant has been undergoing some significant changes. Not only has it changed owners, it has become a European-style bistro, with walls the color of wine and elegant tapestry window treatments. While diners will still have the option of ordering grilled pizza, chef Brian Houlihan has created a menu of what he calls, "European comfort food," to ensure an elegant yet relaxing dining experience.

"It's French bistro food with Italian influence," he said, adding he wanted to create a restaurant similar to what might be found traveling through southern France and into northern Italy. Although he grew up in Ireland, he has been trained by the "creme de la creme," of French and Italian chefs and said, "I love the whole Mediterranean-type thing."

Houlihan has been cooking in restaurants and hotels since the age of 14. Growing up in Ireland, he needed to gain at least two years of experience in the field before applying to college. Because college is free for students in Ireland, "You've got to show that you are really serious," he said, and the training he received has paid off.

After graduating from culinary school in Ireland in 1993, Houlihan moved to the United States. For the past 10 years, he has been working as a chef in various Boston area restaurants. His first job upon arriving was as a chef at the Harvard Club where he worked for two years. He then continued on to the Four Seasons Hotel, where he was the head Saucier at Aujour d'hui for another two years. The next six years he served as the Executive Chef at Seasons Restaurant at the Bostonian Hotel, across from Faneuil Hall Marketplace.

At Seasons, Houlihan said he was responsible for every aspect of food service in the hotel, including 24-hour room service, breakfast, lunch, and dinner for the restaurant in the hotel, hors d'oeuvres in the Atrium Lounge, and banquets. He had a staff of 25 chefs to prepare all the food, but at the Executive Chef level, he was in more of a management position than a chef.

"I wanted to get back to cooking really great food," he said.

To that end, Houlihan decided he would leave the busy city life and open his own small restaurant somewhere on the South Shore. He knew he wanted his restaurant to be located in a small town with almost a European Village type feel, and not only did Cohasset fit that description, it's not far from Houlihan's home in Quincy, where he lives with wife Tristen and their three children, Conor,7, Hailey ,5, and Aiden, 2.

"I was looking for two years," Houlihan said, but eventually found what he was looking for, and his lifelong dream of operating his own restaurant has come to fruition.

While bia is now open for business and has received rave reviews, it's grand opening was not without complications. During the weekend before his grand opening on Dec. 9, Houlihan sent out invitations for local merchants to attend a "sneak preview" on Friday and Saturday nights. However, Saturday night's storm left portions of Cohasset without power, and bia was included.

"Everyone thought it was romantic eating by candlelight," he said, but without the power to ventilate, the ambiance was soon disturbed when the fire engines started rolling up in response to the smoke alarms. "Suddenly you have Captain Trask over here with all his buddies," Houlihan said. "It was a fun way to experience your second night open," he said sarcastically.

Bia is a 40- seat restaurant and Houlihan said he and a friend will be doing all the cooking. While Houlihan said he doesn't have one dish in particular which is his favorite to prepare, "Our signature dish is a local seafood bouillabaisse," which is served with saffron risotto and lobster nage. Other entrees on the menu include citrus glazed long island duck breast, grilled angus sirloin, roasted chicken provencal with herbed potato gnocci and hand cut pasta with tiny veal meatballs. Bia also serves appetizers, and lighter fare such as grilled pizzas and salads.

Houlihan's menu will be ever-changing to reflect the seasons, as well as take advantage of the local produce available. He said whether he has been on this side of the Atlantic or the other, his cooking style hasn't changed.

"I've always cooked the way I cook and it doesn't matter where you are."

Bia's doors are now open and dinner hours are currently Tuesday through Sunday from 5-10 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. for brunch. To make reservations please call (781) 383-0464.

Stop & Shop joins fight against hunger

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company announced that the Cohasset Stop & Shop store raised $2,040 for the Cohasset Food Pantry to help provide hunger relief to area residents.

The money was raised as part of the annual Food for Friends campaign. Through the sale of paper turkeys and fundraising events held at the store, Stop & Shop associates and customers supported the effort to provide assistance to local hunger relief agencies. In total, Stop & Shop raised more than $1.1 million to benefit local hunger relief agencies and Second Harvest Food Bank partners.

Kathleen Mansfield

First woman VP of United Group

Kathleen Mansfield has been named Vice President of Human Resources of the United Group, New England's largest liquor distributor, United Group Chairman of the Board A. Raymond Tye announced.

"Kathy has been an outstanding leader for us, and will continue to be an integral part of the United Group," Tye said.

Mansfield, of Cohasset, is the first woman to be named a vice president at the United Group and the first woman named to its Executive Committee.

Mansfield has been with the United Group for two years and has 28 years in the field of human resources. She has a Master's Degree in Clinical Social Work, and is currently working on her Doctorate in Clinical Psychology.

The United Group is a holding and management company for many affiliated businesses, among them United Liquors, which does business primarily in Massachusetts, United Beverages, which services Maine and New Hampshire, and Hannah and Dunn, which supplies Virginia and North Carolina.

"I'm honored to be given this opportunity," Mansfield said. "The United Group is a family and I will make sure that it is one that continues to grow. I learned from Ray Tye to honor our history, but to never stop focusing on the future."

English children send Christmas message home

Stayed in Hingham during World War II

By Peg Charlton
CORRESPONDENT

Sixty-three years ago, in the month of August 1940, a dozen young English children arrived in Hingham after being evacuated from the unrelenting air blitz of bomb-ravaged London. They would leave behind their families, who for months to come would endure the German Luftwaffe's nightly air assaults on the city.

That summer, as war raged throughout Europe, and with civilian fatalities escalating from the fire bombings of British cities, the now- extinct "Boston Transcript" presented a London newspaper with a plan for evacuating its children to safer shores.

Parents indicated their preference for the overseas' destination where sponsors would be waiting. High on the list was the United States; followed by Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

With the necessary preparations complete, each youngster (wearing a nametag and carrying a single suitcase) said his "goodbyes." On their own, they stoically boarded a night train which transported them to an area close to the Liverpool docks, later to embark on an ocean-going liner that would make its way down the Mersey, en route to America.

The anticipated "adventure" of the crossing, in reality often became an unpredictable and dangerous voyage – with lifejackets carried at all times. The Port of New York was the usual destination, and several of the youthful sailors (the "Sea-vacuees") would later recount their own harrowing passage.

Joan White, the oldest at 12, and David Douglas, 11, sailed on the liner "Samaria" reaching New York in 12 days. Aboard the ship, according to Douglas, was a child-minder called "Miss Honeybun." She took care of the toddlers, leaving the older ones to their own devices. Siblings, Jan and Mildred Kennard, 11 and 9, embarked on the "Western Princess." There was a scare off Iceland, and though not in convoy, they arrived safely in New York. Later, that same ship, was torpedoed and sank on her return trip. Other siblings, John and Doreen Wright, ages 11 and 8, left Liverpool on the "Scythia" — often called the "singing ship," as the youngsters had composed a ditty titled "We are the Little Seavacuees." A normal 10-day crossing became one of three weeks as they were chased around the North Atlantic by German submarines.

Shortly after, another ship, the "City of Benares," was torpedoed with a huge loss of life — many of them children. With the sinking of the "Benares," the evacuations ceased immediately. [Recently PBS aired a dramatic documentary of this event.]

Sailing on other vessels, the remaining six of the "plucky dozen" were Derek-Dale Glossop, 12; Gerald Fishe, 11; Diana Crane, 11; and John and Maggie Pope, ages 10 and 6. (All went to Derby Academy on scholarship. Sisters, Cherry and Rosemary Leigh, ages 8 and 6, attended Center School.)

Upon arrival in New York, the group was held first in a place called the Seaman's Institute until it was decided exactly where they would be sent. Within a short time, the 12 young Brits were Boston -bound; but before heading for the South Shore, they were deposited at the New England Home for Little Wanderers (a place one evacuee remembered "as forbidding as it sounded." After what seemed a lifetime of waiting and filled with sudden anxiety and emptiness, each child was eventually "collected" by the couple whose home they would share for the next five years.

At the close of 1940, after three lonely and bewildering months in a strange new land and with Christmas just days away — they found themselves in for a much needed treat: All 12 would participate in a short-wave broadcast beamed to their war-weary families in England. On Friday, Dec. 20 (along with Derby headmaster Harrison Davis) they gathered at Station WRUL in the Back Bay to send holiday greetings to their parents — 3,000 ocean-miles away.

As described in the Boston Daily Record, "They stood tense, clutching each other's hands in excitement, and soon wished England 'a happy, safe and courageous Christmas.' Signing off with a final goodbye, their hands went up in a 'thumbs-up' salute."

A heartwarming and poignant moment — indeed, a very special Christmas.

This is part one of a two-part series.

Johnny Pope hams it up as he sends his Christmas greeting to his home in Surrey, England.

Sisters Rosemary and Cherry Leigh share a happy thought.

WORSHIP NEWS

Christmas worship at St. Stephen's

Christmas worship at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave, features a variety of worship celebrating Christ's birth. The Christmas Eve Family Holy Communion service will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 24, at 5 p.m. The Saint Gregory's Children's Choir will sing and the star of Bethlehem will be lit on the church tower. The Rev. Beth Wheatley-Dyson will tell a story for children in place of the sermon. The three kings and their camels will be in the east at the altar ready to begin their journey to Bethlehem.

A second service, new this year, will be held at 7:30 p.m. This will be a more contemplative worship with music accompanied by string quartet. A candle for peace will be lit in acknowledgement of God's work of "peach on earth." This candle will stay lit throughout the Christmas season.

The Festal Candlelight Christmas Eve worship will take place beginning at 11 p.m. This is a worship reflecting the angel song, "Glory to God in the highest." A special program of Christmas music will precede the service beginning at 10:30 p.m. Musical selections sung by the Saint Stephen's adult choir will include "Torches" by John Joubert, "Good King Wenceslas" arranged by R. Jaques, and a composition by our Music Directory Fred Guzasky entitled "O Bethlehem, Receive." At this midnight worship, the traditional story from the Gospel of Luke is read from the King James Bible, the Eucharist is celebrated, and candlelight will illumine the singing of Silent Night. The bells of the church carillon will ring out the music of Christmas across the town under the stars of the still night sky.

Christmas Day, Thursday, Dec. 25, will be celebrated with the worship of Holy Communion at 10 a.m. highlighted with the singing of Christmas carols. The church school is busy preparing an Epiphany Pageant to take place on Sunday, Jan. 11, at the 10 a.m. worship celebrating the appearance of Jesus to the Three Kings representing all the world. Children will portray angels, shepherds hurrying to Bethlehem, Joseph and Mary with baby, and the Three Kings bearing their gifts.

Hingham labyrinth holiday openings

Special openings for the holiday season present opportunities for personal meditation in a peaceful nondenominational setting on Boston's South Shore. Labyrinth walk take place in the Old Shop Parish Hall at the rear of 107 Main St. in downtown Hingham. The walks feature candlelight and meditative music thus providing a suitable contemplative atmosphere for individuals and companions. A sharing of poetry and walk will be held on the Solstice, Dec. 22. Individuals are invited to read a favorite poem appropriate to the season.

A New Year's Eve walk is scheduled for Dec. 31. The events take place from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Admission is free of charge and there are no religious services. The Labyrinth is an ancient means of personal meditation, which features a circular path leading to a center place and back out again.

The Old Ship Labyrinth is modeled after an example in the ancient Cathedral of Chartres and fashioned in the form of a terrazzo floor. Each individual walk is a different personal experience. How one walks and what one receives differs. Persons may experience a sense of healing or other profound experience, or it may be just a pleasant walk.

Reaching out to help those in your community

The season of giving is upon us once again. Gifts of Hope can help you give to those in need in your community.

For the past 12 years, Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped our readers give to a cause that matters to them keeping them connected to the needs of their communities. Readers' donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

You can help. Through Gifts of Hope a local charity in your community has been selected to be the beneficiary of this years' donation campaign. Finding a way to help can be as easy as looking across the street.

Please join the Cohasset Mariner in giving the greatest gift of all — the gift of hope. A donation of any size goes a long way in helping those in need.

This year the Cohasset Mariner has identified The South Shore Womens Center as the recipient of the Gifts of Hope donations.

School Committee says a Prop. 2-1/2 override needed

Raises, utilities drive the budget

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

While Town Manager Mark Haddad said he won't ask for a Prop. 2-1/2 override this year — the School Committee said it doesn't see how the budget can be balanced without one.

Principals from all three schools as well as Special Education Director Karen Watts presented draft budgets to the School Committee last week, outlining their needs for fiscal year 2005. However, School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn said while many requests seem necessary, everything is going to be subject to funding.

Supt. Edward Malvey said in light of the tight fiscal situation facing the town, the school department would try to pare its budget request down.

"In summary, I know it's a lot," Malvey said after the administrators' presentations. "We've already started to look at adjustments."

In fiscal year 2004 the school budget was $11,218,297. However, schools have increased that number by 13.8 percent, or roughly $1.5 million, and are asking for $12,769,849 for fiscal year 2005, which starts July 1, 2004.

Haddad has allocated an increase of $325,000 for the schools for fiscal year 2005, but school department salary upgrades alone are going to jump to $496,000. Couple that with the $223,000 necessary to cover higher energy costs, and the schools need at least $394,000 more than what Haddad can give them for salaries and utilities alone.

Prop. 2-1/2 is a state law that caps the amount a municipality can raise its tax levy from year to year. Voters can "override" the tax cap through a majority vote at the ballot box.

Here are some highlights of what the schools are looking for.

Osgood Principal Janet Sheehan had an additional special education teacher as number one on her budget. The school currently has three special education teachers, one for third grade, one for second grade and one for first grade and kindergarten. Because the school has seen an increase in the number of students with multiple disabilities, it has required the schools to increase instructional time, coordination of services, and case management responsibilities, which requires additional support.

"We are looking to have one for each grade level," Sheehan said.

For the one teacher to be added to the Osgood staff, it would cost $42,000.

Other items on the Osgood budget include three part-time activity aides at $7,000 each, $4,500 for new window shades, $5,200 for rubber stair treads to replace the worn carpeting on the forum stairs.

Deer Hill Principal Keith Gauley had three part-time activity aides at the top of his

Tips for fending off the flu bug

Town has run out of vaccine

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

Judy Fitzsimmons reminds people who are feeling even the slightest bit under the weather, not to visit with the elderly and young babies.

The holidays are a time for giving, but the present no one wants to get this year is the flu. With the numbers of cases on the rise and news of flu deaths spreading across the nation, many Cohasset residents have been searching for a flu shot in vain, as the town has already run out.

"I gave my last shot of the regular supply on the eighth," said Cohasset Public Health Nurse Judy Fitzsimmons. Every year, the town is given a supply of the vaccine from the state, and for the last two years the number of doses has been smaller than previous years due to budget constraints. Overall, the town administered roughly 1,000 doses, including 20 doses the town bought on its own. Fitzsimmons said while the last dose of the state's allotment was given on Dec. 8, the last of the additional 20 carried through to Dec. 18. While she said she was thrilled to get the additional vaccine, it was not enough to cover the 40 people on the waiting list.

"I doubt very much we'll get any more," she said, but for a small town, Cohasset did very well in terms of being able to service the amount of people it did.

Because the flu has received such widespread attention this

Breaking the silence to help end domestic violence

Awareness and action needed

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

One woman was struck twice with a hammer, another beaten with a household iron. One woman was shot in front of her five children, another just 20 feet from a police station. One woman was strangled and then her 9-year-old daughter was raped and smothered. A 14-year-old girl, seven months pregnant, was stabbed, hit with a brick and then buried alive.

These are just a few of the domestic violence victims killed in Massachusetts in the past five years. Despite the efforts of agencies like the South Shore Women's Center, thousands of women live in fear, in shame and in constant danger of serious injury or death.

Because of agencies like the South Shore Women's Center, there is hope for these women and their children and for future generations of men and women to overcome the destruction of domestic violence.

YOUR COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER CARES

"We hear so much these days about other countries and the oppression of women and the need for world peace," says Barbara Fuyat, executive director of SSWC. "The truth is, we first have to take steps to attain peace in our families and our homes. Domestic violence is still the number one cause of injury to women in our own country."

In the fiscal year 2003, domestic violence homicides in Massachusetts increased almost 50 percent with the deaths of 21 women, men, and children, the youngest only five years old. Jane Doe Inc., which collects the statistics, also reports that more than 3,900 women and children sought safety at shelters or safe homes. More than 40,000 restraining orders were issued, and every domestic violence hotline in the state answered an increased number of emergency calls.

"We had no deaths this year in our service area, but we had many women with very serious injuries. Some came to us straight from the hospital intensive care; some we had to go pick up," says Fuyat. "Thank God, we had no deaths."

Safety is always the first concern in all SSWC's contacts with the women who call the hotline or ask for shelter or come to the Center for support and assistance, she says. "It's the first question we ask: Are you safe? How do we get you somewhere

Citizen of Year nominations due

Time is running out to submit nominations for Citizen of the Year. In keeping with an 11-year tradition, The Cohasset Mariner will recognize an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset.

The deadline for nominations for the 2003 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan 2. Please see the nomination form on page 11. The form may be photocopied. Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed, sent by email, or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931 and our email address is mford@cnc.com.

Following the close of nominations, a panel will select the 2003 Citizen of the Year, who will be named in January 2004.

Free Cohasset bottled water

Bottled Cohasset Water Department tap water is available for free in the lobby of the Lily Pond Water Treatment Plant, 339 King St.

"We bottled it as a novelty for our 25th Anniversary Celebration for the Aaron River Reservoir and Treatment Plant on May 11," said John McNabb, chairman of the Water Commission. "But it was so popular we decided to bottle some more of our water and make it available to the public for free."

"This bottled water comes right from the Treatment Plant," said Water Commissioner Glenn Pratt. "Monadnock Water pumped the water into one of their trucks here and bottled our water at their plant in Quincy."

"We think our water is just as good or better than any bottled water you can pay high prices for at the store," said Pratt, "and we urge all Cohasset residents to try our bottled water and see for themselves."

Upcoming meetings

The following meetings were posted at Town Hall this week:

Board of Assessors, Jan. 13, 4 p.m.

Board of Health, Jan. 5, 7 p.m.

Conservation Commission, Jan. 8, 7:30 p.m.,

Paul Pratt Board of Library Trustees, Jan. 14, 7 p.m. at the library

Planning Board, Jan. 14, 7 p.m.,

Recycling Committee, Jan. 10, 10 a.m. at DPW

Selectmen, Jan. 6, 7:30 p.m.

Sewer Commission, Jan. 12, 6 p.m.

Water Commission, Jan. 7, 8 p.m., at King Street plant

All meetings are at Town Hall unless indicated otherwise.

High school writers published in magazine

Cohasset High School English teacher Christine Berman's students have been published in "Teen Ink," a print magazine written entirely by teens. Any student can submit creative writing, art, and photographs at no charge, and those published will be read by teens in other schools nationwide. Those former and current students printed from Cohasset include: In the October 2003 edition — Ross Lieb-Lappen, Julie Shea, Gillian Weber, David Kupsc, John T. Oronte, Maura McKenney, and Leah McMorris. In the November 2003 edition — Kristin Howard, Andrew Busk, Drew Musto, and Brittany Novak.

Snow day reminders

With winter weather now upon us, Supt. Edward Malvey asks that in the event it looks as if school could either be delayed or cancelled due to inclement weather, parents and students should tune into the major media outlets for information. Television stations 4, 5, and 7 as well as WBZ 1030 AM and WATD 95.9 FM will all be notified of the decision, which is made after multiple calls to the Highway Department, which is able to determine if the roads will be clear and safe for travel.

"It does not help to call the police or fire. Watch the media stations, it will be there," Malvey said.

Malvey said on most occasions, the media outlets will be notified by 6 or 6:30 a.m., and should be included in the early morning reports. "We like to let our students know before they get out of their comfy beds," he said.

School building update is provided

The construction of the middle school is nearing completion. While it had been anticipated for completion on Dec. 20, there are still some items to be finished before the moving of furniture can take place.

"We may or may not be done by the 20th," said Supt. Edward Malvey told the School Committee Dec. 18. He added if construction is not complete, there is no harm in moving furniture after the holidays, perhaps sometime in January. He said he would like to make sure the area is properly cleaned before the move takes place, and he sees no problem in letting the cleaning company come in over the holiday break to make sure it has enough time to properly clean the area.

"I'm in no rush to get in there over the Christmas holiday," Malvey said, adding if the move takes place in January or even during February vacation, that will be fine with him. "We're really in very good shape," he said.

Interested in serving on town committees

Two Cohasset residents would like to get involved in town government.

Nathaniel Palmer, 9 Little Harbor Road, has expressed interest in serving on the Cohasset Historical Commission.

"Recently, at the invitation of Noel Ripley, I have participated in meetings of the committee. I would very much appreciate your assistance in being appointed to the committee," Palmer wrote in a Dec. 11 letter to Town Manager Mark Haddad.

David H. Farrag has applied for an open seat on the Conservation Commission. Farrag, who is a lawyer, stated he is committed to the protection of the environment and conservation of natural resources. "I strongly believe that my professional experience coupled with my familiarity with the town will be beneficial to the Conservation Commission," he stated in a Dec. 15 letter to Haddad.

Protecting natural estuary is focus of tri-town committee

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

The Committee would like to create a park, including much of the estuary's remaining unprotected shoreline, through a public-private partnership.

It was standing room only at a recent brainstorming session about preserving the Weir River Estuary.

Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset are joining together in the effort. The estuary features many species of birds and rare volcanic and glacial geology.

With nearly 17 miles of shoreline, the estuary is considered by many to be one of the South Shore's most valuable natural resources. At the same time, only a small percentage is permanently protected open space. The Weir River Estuary Committee is working to identify key parcels of privately owned land which could be incorporated into a park to prevent the land from being developed in a manner that could be harmful to the environment and its aesthetic value.

The Weir River is already a popular place for fishing, bird watching, kayaking, sightseeing, and painting.

"The Park is a pathway for people in kayaks and canoes to observe and build an awareness of the estuary's natural resources, including habitats for more than 100 species of birds and other wildlife," said Faith Burbank, Hingham's representative on the Committee.

The recent discussion was a follow-up to a visioning session held last May. "The tri-town Committee and four subcommittees on land protection, habitat protection and restoration, education, and recreation and access are continuing the work started in the visioning workshop and this month's follow-up workshop," said Burbank. "Key priorities, implementation steps, and action plans are in progress. Participation by residents at the tri-town or subcommittee meetings is welcome."

The Committee would like to create a park, including much of the estuary's remaining unprotected shoreline, through a public-private partnership. Recently, the Town of Hull, which has drafted several plans for a Weir River Estuary Park, invited the other towns to join the effort. The purpose behind creating a park is to preserve wildlife, protect water quality, provide recreation, and promote education and awareness and complement existing parks and conservation land, including World's End, the Boston Harbor Islands National Recreation Area, and Wompatuck State Park. A building in Hull has been earmarked for a future educational and welcome center, serving schools in the three towns and visitors from many communities.

"The Weir River Estuary is one of the South Shore's and Boston Harbor's most valuable natural resources and is distinguished by the state as an Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC)," Burbank said.

A report entitled "Building a Vision for Our Weir River Estuary," an inventory of open space and public access around the Weir River ACEC, also funded by the grant, was presented at the meeting. The document, which includes a summary of the prior visioning session, was prepared for the Massachusetts Dept. of Conservation and Recreation (formerly the Department of Environmental Management) by the Urban Harbors Institute, University of Massachusetts, Boston. Copies of the report are available at http://www.uhi.umb.edu/publications.htm. Some of the information was provided by Hingham, Cohasset, and Hull Committee members and town officials.

The report supplements the towns' existing open space and master plans and includes maps which relate to each community as well as water access and undeveloped land inventories. It is also meant to form a base from which the three communities can "work toward the common goals of preserving scenic beauty and local character, providing better access to the estuary and improving awareness of its natural and recreational resources." The state designated the estuary an ACEC in 1986, which provides an extra layer of protection for the area's cultural and ecological resources.

Through an ACEC Stewardship Grant, Urban Harbors Institute is working with the Committee to draft a protection plan for the estuary and develop a canoe-kayak access guide, which will be available next Spring.

For further information, including meeting schedules, call Faith Burbank at (781) 740-4913; Richard Avery of Cohasset, (781) 383-6043; or Committee Chair Judeth Van Hamm, (781) 925-5665.

The estuary goes from the end of the fresh river portion of the Weir River at Foundry Pond Dam in Hingham to the tip of World's End and Sunset Point in Hull, where it enters Hull Bay. It also includes Strait's Pond between Hull and Cohasset, which is partially tidal and flows to the estuary through a pipe at West Corner. The river originates in Hingham and empties into the Bay. The protected land at World's End borders the estuary.

About the Weir River Estuary

The Weir River Estuary straddles the communities of Hingham, Cohasset, and Hull.

The Weir River Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) consists of 922 acres, 31 percent of which is land and 69 percent water. Forty-two percent of the ACEC lies within Hingham, including upland areas and wetlands. Hull encompasses 55 percent and Cohasset, 3 percent.

Most of the land in the Hingham portion is undeveloped. The open fields and forests of World's End located in and adjacent to the ACEC comprise the largest protected undeveloped natural landscape in the area.

The economic makeup and function of the three now-suburban communities has changed greatly since the first settlers arrived during the 1600s. The area originally served as pastureland and homesteads. Major fishing, shipbuilding, and salt works industries developed in the 1700s, followed by dairy farms, tanneries, and foundries in the 1800s and tourism in the early part of the 20th century.

Committee goals:

Weir River Estuary Committee goals are as follows:

- preserving the wildlife habitat
- protecting and improving water quality
- creating an educational outreach program
- providing recreational access

Keith Jackson takes his name off Civil Service List

Keith A. Jackson, whose father is Police Chief Robert Jackson, has decided not to pursue a career as a Cohasset police officer and will stay in the U.S. Navy.

In a Dec. 18 memo to Town Manager Mark Haddad, Keith Jackson said he is in the process of requesting removal from any affiliation with the Cohasset Police Department and Massachusetts Civil Service hiring process. Keith Jackson was listed first on the Civil Service "local preference list."

Keith Jackson, who was arrested by Sgt. William Quigley on Oct. 11 outside the American Legion Post after an alleged fight, is facing a charge of malicious destruction of property (broken railing) along with two other men. Keith Jackson, who is due back in court on Jan. 6 on the malicious destruction charge, said recent events influenced his decision.

"I have currently decided to continue my career in the United States Naval service due to recent and upsetting events within the Town of Cohasset and in direct relation to the Cohasset Police Department," he stated. "These events have destroyed any chance of effectively competing against any other candidates for service as a respectable police officer within the community of Cohasset.

"Effective retroactively to the date of these fore mentioned events, I feel that I have lost an option of employment and the privilege to pursue an excellent opportunity. I have worked very hard towards my goal of becoming a police officer through impeccable service within the military and continuing my education.

"In addition, I am one class away from having an associate degree in criminal justice from Roger Williams University. I pursued this field of education for two years during active duty and in the time of war, only to find out it was a waste of time, effort and not to mention the expenses of continuing my education."

Although the District Attorney's office said probable cause exists to believe the Keith Jackson committed domestic assault last summer, the alleged victim (his former girlfriend) and her family have requested the District Attorney's Office not require her to testify. Therefore, the DA's office said it could not proceed with the prosecution. Sgt. Quigley was on duty last July when the alleged victim and her father went to the station to file a report.

Sgt. Quigley is currently on administrative leave with pay pending the outcome of an investigation into his fitness for duty. Haddad and selectmen have denied his arrest of Keith Jackson is related to his being placed on leave.

Town pays $5K retainer for private investigator

The town has paid a $5,000 retainer to Town Counsel to retain the services of a private investigator to investigate the police department, Town Manager Mark Haddad said. Kevin G. Powers, an attorney representing Sgt. William Quigley, asked Haddad for the information under the Public Records Law. At Powers' request, Haddad also stated in a Dec. 15 letter the town has been charged $250 for a physical examination on Sgt. Quigley and at that time had not received any bills for a psychologist to evaluate the police officer. Quigley is one of two Cohasset police officers on paid administrative leave pending the outcome of an investigation on unnamed allegations of misconduct.

CHRISTMAS IN COHASSET - 1953

Learning to dance and other memories of life in Cohasset

By Joel S. Pratt
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Throughout the '50s and '60s, young teens attended dancing lessons in the Cohasset Town Hall. Each month our teacher, John Knott, drove from New Hampshire with two ladies: a pianist and his dancing partner. His Wife? His Girlfriend? We never knew. They taught us the classic dances (waltz and foxtrot), Latin dances (cha-cha) and fun dances (Mexican hat dance and polka). Jazzy dances (bebop and boogie-woogie) were not taught. Had it existed, rock 'n roll would definitely have been off limits. Mr. Knott and his partner danced with poise and elegance. We did not.

We were supposed to learn etiquette as well. Boys asked girls to dance and thanked them afterward. Girls wore dresses and white gloves. Boys wore jackets and ties. Girls liked dancing class. Most boys went under compulsion. We wanted to be near girls — but not that near! You had to change partners for each dance. Fifteen-year-olds — boys or girls — did not want to dance with 12-year-olds. Girls tried to avoid partners who stepped on their shoes. No one wanted to be the last one chosen. Mr. Knott earned his money overseeing this tangle of teenage anxiety. When the 1952 – '53 classes ended in June, I told my mother I did not want to go again.

In 1953 I was 15. Not yet old enough to drive, at least to drive legally. Mother often let me drive. She would say, "you're a better driver than I am — we won't tell your father." Mowing neighbors' lawns was an excuse to drive our old pickup truck. To do lawns further away I rode my bike, towing the lawnmower on a little trailer. Grandmother Pratt's yard on Ripley Road was one of my jobs. One hot and sticky June afternoon a raging thunderstorm interrupted my mowing. As I watched from her porch, bits of shingles, splinters of wood and shredded leaves whirled down with the rain. The Worcester Tornado of 1953 — one of the worst storms in New England history — carried the debris 55 miles from Worcester to Cohasset!

On another very hot and sticky day that June, the Pratts drove to Winchester, Mass. for Uncle Burt Pratt's wedding to Helen Carroll. My sister Cynthia could not be there: she was working as a housekeeper at the Spruce Mountain Lodge in Jackson, New Hampshire. Mother and I drove up to see her — more accurately, I drove mother there and back. We were not the only visitors she had that summer. Bob Pensinger, a young Navy officer stationed at the Hingham Ammunition Depot, made the trip several times to visit her.

In addition to yard work I had my first real job that summer. I took the train to Boston every day to work at my father's company. I swept, did chores, ran to the deli with lunch orders and delivered packages all over the city. It was a great way to learn Boston's tangle of MTA subway and bus routes.

Many of my classmates also had summer jobs. Nonetheless we found time for fun. We hung out at the beach. From my house on Little Harbor I could get there by water in my kayak or our family rowboat. We caught flounder and dug clams in Little Harbor and dove from the rocks on Keene's point.

Family get-togethers at Grandmother Pratt's were a summertime tradition. Two of her eight children lived far away — John in Maryland and Honey in Florida. Their visits were reason for the clan to gather. When Grampa Pratt was alive, the family parties were clambakes. He would dig a large pit in the driveway. A fire would burn overnight to heat stones. In the morning, clams, lobsters, potatoes, corn and fish would be layered with seaweed in the pit. By the 50s, a grill for hotdogs and hamburgers had replaced the clambake pit. New grandchildren were arriving regularly. Nana always said the newest was 'the best baby ever'. Later each new great-grandchild became the best baby ever.

In October my sophomore class held a Halloween party. Our chaperones, teachers Marion Sullivan and Constance Trickett, watched as we bobbed for apples and joined us in a noisy conga line.

That fall, my sister Cindy and Bob Pensinger were engaged. They planned a Christmastime wedding for Dec. 19 - her 20thbirthday. I had outgrown my one suit so mother and I went to Sidney Gates in North Scituate for a new one. Grey Flannel, of course. Bob's parents and his best man came by train from Decatur, Illinois: they had never been to New England. Again and again Mr. Pensinger commented on Cohasset's ledges and the abundance of stones in our garden.

The wedding was held in our living room. Never had there been so many people in our house. My sister the bride sat on the stairs to don her shoes then walked into the living room to be married. After the newlyweds and all the guests had departed, I started upstairs to change out of my new suit. Mother stopped me. "Don't change," she said, "dancing class starts at seven." I said, "I'm not going." She said, "You are — we paid for it and that was that." So my sister set off on her honeymoon and I set off for another season learning dancing and etiquette.

Joel S. Pratt has been sharing his memories of Christmases past in Cohasset for 10 years. He lives in Roque Bluffs, Maine and can be reached by email:

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Happy Holidays to everyone here in Cohasset as well as to all our family and friends who are spread out all over the country and world. Enjoy the special celebrations over the next week that you are spending with loved ones and make sure to help spread some holiday cheer to people who may not have anyone to spend it with them. Although it looks like we are not going to have a white Christmas… I am sure that someday soon, winter will hit again with some of the white stuff and everyone can have a chance to use their sleds. Stay safe, enjoy all the festivities and let us all remember to share what the true meaning of the holidays are to our children.

LOCKS OF LOVE

Marie Giman wanted to do something very special this year to make a difference. She decided to cut her hair and donate it to Locks of Love in honor of her uncle and godfather, Brian Marsden. So, on Dec. 6, she cut off 10 inches and shared the day with her uncle at the U.S. Tennis Awards in New Hampshire. Locks of Love is a charity that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children with medical hair loss.

ST. SEBASTIAN'S HONORS

Paul Cotter has been named to the honor roll at St. Sebastian's School in Needham. Paul's proud parents are Dr. Paul and Margaret Cotter. Paul received honors with distinction, meaning he maintained a B or better in all subjects.

AT GEORGETOWN

Georgetown University in Washington, DC, has welcomed David Francis Crowley-Buck of Cohasset as a member of the class of 2007. David as already begun classes as a freshman. The class of 2007 includes 1,510 students selected from 15,420 applicants! David is a 2003 graduate of Boston College High School. Fantasic work Paul.

VO-TECH HONOR ROLL

Congratulations go out to Kristen James ard Elyse Poranova as they both have strong accomplishments to report from South Shore Vo-Tech. Kristen made high honors and Elyse made honors for term 1. Great job, ladies.

NEW PUPPIES!

The puppies are here, the puppies are here! Billy and Melanie Schwantner's dog, gave birth to 11 beautiful golden retriever puppies on Dec. 12. The whole Schwantner family, especially the dog's human kids, Alex, Derek and CarlyJane are thrilled. Congratulations times 11 to all of you as you play with and learn all about the new additions.

COOKIE SALE TO BEGIN

The Girl Scout cookie sale is around the corner and the sale is on Jan. 2- 25for the door to door sales. We will also be having booth sales around town until March 13. If anyone is looking for cookies or has a neighborhood they would like to visit, they can contact Beth Marsden-Gilman at 383-1811. We also have several troop leader openings- especially for the younger girls (K-2) and would love some volunteers!! The girls are waiting!!! If interested please contact Thresa Dewar, 383-1130.

NEW YEAR'S DAY WALK

The North & South Rivers Watershed Association welcomes the public to join us for this annual event, which will take place on Jan. 1 starting at 1 p.m. This year's walk will be at the Trustees of the Reservation's Norris Reservation in Norwell. We will explore a recent addition to the property with a new

HOMES FOR RUSSIAN ORPHANS

Next summer a group of Russian orphans will arrive in Massachusetts for the first time in their lives to experience a taste of American family life, through the Journey of Hope program.

The Home for Little Wanderers and the International Orphans Foundation is co-hosting a free informational meeting for families and individuals looking to take a child into their home this summer, with a view to adopting. Refreshments will be served. The meeting is scheduled for 1 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 17 in the Fearing Conference Room at the Hingham Public Library.

To reserve a space for the meeting, contact Vicky Wu at 617.876.3838 or vwu@orphans-foundation.org. Or contact Paula Wisnewski at The Home for Little Wanderers on (617) 927 0642. Participants must RSVP by Jan. 5.

The first annual Journey of Hope program, a collaboration of The International Orphans Foundation and The Home for Little Wanderers, will be bringing Russian orphans age 5 through 11 to the Boston area. The children are also available for adoption.

The program is designed to create an opportunity of a lifetime for these children to experience American culture. Since host families can interact with the child within the comfort of their own home, Journey of Hope's unique environment allows families reassurance in their decision to adopt. There is no up-front commitment to adoption, just a big heart and room for a child in your home. Come learn more about this unique experience.

Plein Air artist exhibit in Cohasset, Hingham

Award winning, South Shore "Plein Air" artist Dianne Panarelli Miller is having two important shows in January to showcase her recent oil paintings.

Jan. 3- Feb. 29, her work will be displayed at the Paul Pratt Library, 35 Ripley Road in Cohasset. The public is invited to a reception with the artist Jan. 11, from 5 to 7 p.m. The library is a satellite gallery of the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset. She will be showing her versatility as an artist with her paintings of portraits and life drawing, still lifes and intimate local scenes.

Jan. 23-Feb. 5, Miller will be sharing the South Street Gallery, 149 South St. in Hingham with Cape /Cod artist, Hillary Osborne. Together they will show fresh and colorful oil paintings of your favorite local scenes.

Miller has achieved success as a oil painter and has recently received "Best of Show" at the Captain Forbes Museum in Milton and "Award of Excellence" at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset. She has exhibited regionally at many of the important galleries and museums and is a prestigious "Copley Artist" at the Copley Society in Boston. She has also exhibited nationally at the Avenue Art Gallery and the Patel Society of America both of New York and the North Valley Art League in California. She is currently teaching at local art associations while maintaining her studio in Abington.

Count Your Blessings

~ Wishing Us All the Blessings of the Christmas Spirit ~

- If you woke up this morning with more health than illness, you are more blessed than the million who will not survive this week.
- If you have never experienced the danger of battle, the loneliness of imprisonment, the agony of torture, or the pangs of starvation, you are ahead of 500 million people in the world.
- If you can attend a church meeting without fear of harassment, arrest, torture or death, you are more blessed than three billion people in the world.
- If you have food in the refrigerator, clothes on your back, a roof overhead and a place to sleep, you are richer than 75% of this world.
- If you have money in the bank, in your wallet, and spare change in a dish someplace, you are among the top 8% of the world's wealthy.
- If your parents are still alive and still married, you are very rare, even in the United States.
- If you can hold someone's hand, hug them or even touch them on the shoulder, you are blessed because you can offer a healing touch.
- If you can read this message, you are more blessed than over two billion people in the world who cannot read at all.
- If you hold up your head with a smile on your face and are truly thankful, you are blessed because the majority can...but most do not.

Count your blessings daily, and remind yourself how truly blessed we all are.....excerpted, author unknown

'Twas the Night Before Christmas or Account of a Visit from St. Nicholas by Clement Clarke Moore (1779-1863)

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;

The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And mamma in her 'kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled down for a long winter's nap,

When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from the bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.

The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow
Gave the luster of mid-day to objects below,
When, what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer,

With a little old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name;

"Now, DASHER! now, DANCER! now, PRANCER and VIXEN!
On, COMET! on CUPID! on, DONDER and BLITZEN!
To the top of the porch! to the top of the wall!
Now dash away! dash away! dash away all!"

As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the house-top the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas too.

And then, in a twinkling, I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my hand, and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.

He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.

His eyes — how they twinkled! his dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow;

The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly,
That shook, when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly.

He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf,
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself;
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread;

He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose;

He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"HAPPY CHRISTMAS TO ALL, AND TO ALL A GOOD-NIGHT!"

According to sources cited at University of Toronto English Library, the original 1823 version has the last two reindeer named, "Dunder and Blixem." Also according to the UTEL, this ballad was written in 1822 for Moore's two daughters, Margaret and Charity, and a year later was anonymously published in the Troy [New York] Sentinel on December 23, 1823.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Help with 'Margie' is much appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

The Figueiredo family would like to thank everyone who came to their aid in the recent sinking of their lobster boat the "Margie." We are very appreciative to all of the lobstermen, friends, family, and even strangers who helped make it possible to bring it back into Cohasset Harbor. With a lot of work, it is now back in the water.

Misuse of alcohol by teens we love

TO THE EDITOR:

We wanted to write this letter anonymously in order to protect the innocent, however, we have been informed that anonymous letters are not printed. We are the parents of football players. My husband and I are very involved with Cohasset's football program, dedicating many hours each week from the summer into the winter and spring in order to support the football teams.

So it is disheartening to us that a few of these players and their friends would come into our home, leave what was regurgitated from their stomachs in the hallway, entryway and closet of our home, as well as samples from their urinary tracts on the deck. Brand new rugs were ruined and jackets were soiled. We know our family is not the only one who has had to deal with incidences like this.

Therefore, we called the police to find out what other people do when this happens to them. We were told that it is up to us how we handle it. My husband and I considered calling parents; we were told the ones close to us would care; some would turn their anger towards us, while others would be ambivalent about the situation. Quite frankly, we don't even know who we should call since we did not do a DNA analysis of the deposits left in our home.

This is the Christmas season. We were angered that instead of pursuing the pleasurable events of such a time, we were dealing with the effects of the misuse of alcohol among the teens we love so much.

Then, we remembered that it is indeed the Christmas season, which is really not at all about the insignificant missed Christmas activities that we were dwelling on as we dealt with the situation at hand. Rather, the real meaning of Christmas has so much more to do with the thoughtless things people do to each other and themselves. We realize that God came into the world because we do abuse the gifts He gave us, hurting others and ourselves as a result. Christ came to save us from our selfishness and to reveal His perfect plan for all humankind.

This alcohol related incident, reeking of disrespect, reminds us that no one is perfect, that we all need to turn to God to seek forgiveness for our hurtful ways and ask Him for help in order to change and live our lives according to the principles God has set before us in the Holy Bible. Now we thank God that He gave us two simple rules to live by: Love God with all your heart, mind and spirit, then love your neighbor as yourself.

The death of our neighbors and relatives due to drivers driving under the influence of alcohol, the abuse we suffer because a loved one chooses to make alcohol their god and the destruction of property at the hands of those who have too much to drink is going to continue no matter what we do to resolve the incident that interrupted the happy traditions our family celebrates at this time of year. We rejoice though, because Christmas is a reminder that God wants all of us to turn to Him to receive the most perfect gift that is offered to everyone born throughout the ages...the life changing spirit of God!

Our family has chosen to resolve the thoughtless acts perpetrated on us and others this season by praying that those abusing alcohol will turn to God and that they will ask to receive His life-changing power. May the joy, peace, hope and especially love, born as a baby over 2000 years ago be with you all now and forever!

Broader look at history

TO THE EDITOR:

In response to Joe McElroy's Dec. 18 letter.

Much as I appreciate my good friend Joe McElroy's endorsement of my ideas on aggressive pursuit of the war on terrorism, I must disassociate myself from his statements about Israel. Beats me how he can segue from advising against radicalizing other nations to a recommendation that we abandon the only functioning democracy, and our one certain friend, in the Middle East!

The Palestinian problem resulted from the intent of Israel's neighbors to destroy it as soon as the British mandate ended and Israel seemed defenseless. Encouraging Arab residents to move out until the destruction was complete was part of the murderous plan. But the Israelis beat back their enemies, then and later, and have had to remain in a constant state of military readiness ever since. In the half century since the Palestinians became the collateral victims of the Arab world's hatred of Israel, no Arab country has moved to provide a haven or significant assistance for the Palestinian pawns. They have been deliberately left to fester in their crowded areas and to gestate generations of terrorists.

Rather than having treated the Palestinians disgracefully, as Joe contends, the Israelis have tried with great fairness to achieve peace, but have had to endure countless attacks on school buses, crowded markets, private homes, farmers working in the fields, and the vicious dissembling of Yasser Arafat. Joe's "despicable wall" is part of the eternal defense against the Palestinian terrorists, as are preemptive

Christmas hours

The library will be closed on Christmas Day and will reopen on Friday, December 26 with our regular 9 to 5 schedule.

Homebound delivery service is available

If you love to read but are unable to come to the library due to an illness or disability, we are very pleased to announce a new home delivery service. For those interested, a volunteer from the Friends of the Cohasset Library will visit you at your residence to discuss your reading preferences and take your requests for library materials. Selections will be delivered to you and picked up and returned to the library on a regular schedule. If you, or anyone you know, might be interested in our program, please telephone the library and speak to our Reference Librarian, Judy Simons at 781 383 1348.

Cohasset artist

Selected paintings by Cohasset artist JoAnne Chittick will be exhibited at the library through Dec. 31.

Upcoming events

• Award winning, South Shore 'Plein Air' artist Dianne Panarelli Miller's paintings will be on display at the library from Jan. 3 through Feb. 29. The public is invited to a reception with the artist Sunday, Jan. 11 from 5 to 7 p.m.

• An introduction to Tai Chi with author and teacher John Loupos will be held in the library Meeting Room on Monday, Jan. 12 from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. Learn about the ancient art of Tai Chi and its benefits for modern living. The evening will also include a book signing of the author's books "Inside Tai Chi" and "Exploring Tai Chi."

• On Thursday Jan. 22 at 1 p.m. in the Meeting Room, LinLin Choy will introduce Qi Gong, a Chinese self-healing art that combines movement and meditation.

Microsoft publisher

Microsoft Publisher 2000 is now available on most of our library's computers. Microsoft Publisher is an easy-to-use desktop publishing program that will help you create professional looking newsletters, flyers, brochures, programs and web sites. No design experience is necessary and the finished publication can be printed on our color printers.

Sgt. Bill Quigley responds to selectmen's police statement

This is in response to the accusation of serious police misconduct that Selectmen Chairman Ronnie McMorris refers to in the statement that was read at the Dec. 16, 2003 selectmen's meeting. As a superior officer and union president with concerns about other officers' reputations as well as my own, I can't remain silent any longer amid these allegations that amount to character assassination.

The town has already paid a $5,000 "retainer fee" for a private investigator, who has been hired to "dig up some dirt" on Officer James McLean and I. If this was truly "serious police misconduct" the town should have called the Norfolk County DA's office and had the State Police investigate these allegations. This is a free service.

The only problem is that State Police would conduct the investigation fairly and with integrity and this seems to be the last thing that some want. Troopers would not be under the control of the Police Chief, Town Manager Mark Haddad, or Board of Selectmen. There would be no witch-hunt and no fishing expedition – just a fair and impartial investigation into the facts.

By way of background, Red Lion Inn owner Gerd Ordelheide in early September 2003, penned various rantings to the Board of Selectmen after being called on the carpet about public drinking, fights, and parking concerns at his establishment. In his Sept. 12, 2003, letter to Haddad, Ordelheide admits to violations of his liquor license and then goes on to accuse me, the police official that alerted the police chief of the problems at the Red Lion Inn, of "drinking a six pack of beer" while on duty at the department's annual firearms training last May. Ordelheide also says that I was "lurking" around his property. But the fact is, I was following two written directives from the police chief himself. These directives, issued on July 21, 2002 and on June 25, 2003, to all police personnel, advise officers to "pay particular attention to patrons removing and consuming alcoholic beverages outside the Inn and the Barn."

Also, in early September 2003, Officer Brian Curran, the chief's son-in-law, resigned from the police department, after a two-year career. Officer Curran was assigned to my shift, and in Spring 2002, I was directed by the town manager to counsel Officer Curran relative to his interactions with a female employee of the department. Even though I was under orders from the town manager, this didn't go over well with the chief or Officer Curran. Neither did subsequent counseling sessions having to do with his on duty and off duty behavior.

Add those incidents to charges of domestic violence against the chief's son, Officer McLean admonishing Officer Curran relative to union grievances, and the arrest of Keith Jackson outside of the Legion, and the story begins to come together. As the private investigator told one of the people that he interviewed, "The town is looking for enough to either fire him or at least send him a message."

The only thing that I do know is that since the arrest of the Chief's son, I have been put on administrative leave, barred from the police station, sent to a medical doctor, ordered to a forensic psychologist three times, and had my name dragged through the newspapers.

With that said, after firearms training on May 22, I left the Scituate Rod and Gun Club at 3 p.m. and resumed my duties back in Cohasset. I worked until midnight that night. The department's log and other records easily corroborate this information. There were several officers at the Scituate Rod and Gun Club late that afternoon, drinking beer from a cooler after they were finished qualifying and off duty. These officers were neither in uniform nor carrying weapons. They were guests of a member of the club and sitting in the clubhouse, talking and having a beer. Although I'm not a member of the Scituate Rod and Gun Club, I understand that having a beer in the clubhouse is perfectly acceptable. I have stated in my written reports more than once, I was not drinking at the Scituate Rod and Gun Club in May 2003 or any other time, ever!

Notably, the police union and the town have a collective bargaining contract that clearly states that all officers "shall be informed in writing of any and all pending charges". I don't know why the town will not tell our lawyers or us what the charges are. The only thing that I do know is that since the arrest of the Chief's son, I have been put on administrative leave, barred from the police station, sent to a medical doctor, ordered to a forensic psychologist three times, and had my name dragged through the newspapers. I have also answered two internal affairs complaints. One having to do with the drinking at the rod and gun club, the other having to do with missing a court date that I was never summonsed to. Based upon my current treatment, it's hard to believe that prior to the arrest of Chief Jackson's son and the resignation of Officer Curran, I had no disciplinary record whatsoever. I was never even late to work in eight years!

As the town and private investigator pore over the last 15 years of our lives, and visit places where we worked in the late 1980's and early 1990's, Officer McLean and I sit at home, collecting approximately $1,000 each per week, asking repeatedly through our attorney, "What are the charges?" The only answer that we have received so far is Ms. McMorris's cryptic statement in which she alleges that the town is protecting us and then states that she and the town manager are proud of the job that the police officers in Cohasset are doing.

After an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the Cohasset Police Association earlier in December, in which informational picketing of town hall was authorized, the executive board of the union decided to take the high road and not resort to such tactics. No matter what town hall is telling the citizens of Cohasset, one thing is fact. Based on the secret ballot that was cast, a majority of the members of the Cohasset Police Association believe that there is a serious problem with the way this "investigation" is being conducted and morale is at an all time low. A majority of the officers are afraid that they are one citizen complaint away from receiving the same treatment that Officer McLean and I have been subjected to over the past eight weeks.

Private detectives have been given private information from our personnel files and photos of us. They have been coming to our homes uninvited, and soliciting complaints against members of the union. When the union complains that our members fundamental rights to privacy are being violated, we are either ignored or sent a terse letter from town counsel stating that police officers have a diminished right to privacy and that the town has the right to supply the private investigator with our home addresses and telephone numbers.

We would propose that the money being spent on this investigation would be better spent on a complete independent study of the police department by a reputable outside firm that has no ties to the Town of Cohasset. We call for the Town of Cohasset to honor our contract and advise officers on administrative leave of any and all pending charges. Finally, if this fishing expedition does result in departmental charges against any officers, we call on the town to hire an independent mediator, with no ties to the Town of Cohasset, to hear and fairly judge the case(s). On behalf of the members of the Cohasset Police Association,

— William P. Quigley

The diversity of Ch——as

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

I can't for the life of me understand why folks go running to the ACLU for protection at the drop of a C-bomb.

The C stands for Christmas (there, I said it!) to us unwashed who fail to see how fresh reindeer tracks in the snow on Dec. 25 can be a threat to the First Amendment.

The Christmas holiday in these United States is about as diverse as a holiday can get with being endorsed by the Boston Globe.

Take Dec. 25 as the birthday of Jesus Christ, for instance. They say He'd be 2,004 years old this year and still drawing Social Security, much to the consternation of the Republican Party.

But there is no more evidence that He was born on Dec. 25 than on any of the other 364 days in the year (365 if it's a leap year). It's just that, in the year 354 AD, Pope Julius I told his flock that "Christ was born on Dec. 25. Learn to live with it."

Red poinsettias were once banned from the Ramsey County Courthouse in St. Paul, Minn., because they offended one person who thought of them as symbols of Christmas.

Since the pagans celebrated the winter solstice on that day, the Persians saw it as the birthday of the sun god Mithra and the Romans observed Saturnalia and all that it means, the new holiday slipped smoothly into place.

The symbol of Christmas in the States is Santa Claus, a corruption of the name Saint Nicholas, who actually lived in the fourth century but probably not in the manner preserved in myth and legend.

In real life, he was probably born in Patara in what is now Turkey; he was bishop of Myra; he was jailed for his faith by the Emperor Diocletian; he was present at the Council of Nicaea; he died at Myra.

In myth, he saved three girls from a life of prostitution by paying their dowries; saved three innocent men who were condemned to death; and rescued three more by appearing to the Emperor Constantine in a dream.

Everything came to Nick in threes.

The Dutch called him Sinter Klaes and the money he paid for the girls' dowries became gifts, which led to the practice of giving gifts to children on that day, to the eventual delight of FAO Schwartz and WalMart.

The Christmas tree has no connection with Christmas at all but was adapted from the old Norse custom of worshipping the oak tree as the sacred symbol of the god Odin.

Do you suppose it's a coincidence that Odin's son Thor rode around in a chariot drawn by two goats named Cracker and Gnasher long before old Santa made his rounds on a sleigh drawn by the reindeer Dancer, Dasher, etc. Rudolph, America's contribution, joined the team later.

The fact that Santa has eight reindeer and enters by chimney to deliver his gifts also comes from the Norse, who had the god Wotan riding a horse with eight hooves and descending from the skies to enter homes by way of smoke-holes in the roofs.

Red poinsettias were once banned from the Ramsey County Courthouse in St. Paul, Minn., because they offended one person who thought of them as symbols of Christmas.

Actually, poinsettias in the United States only date back to 1829 when an amateur botanist named Joel Poinsett brought a sample back from Mexico as a window sill and table top decoration. He was later elected to Congress.

Quick now, while the ACLU isn't looking — Merry Christmas!

SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

On Dec. 5, about 25 students from the high school went to the former Hagerty building at Mariner's Park at the end of Parker Avenue to prepare reports of last summer's work for the Board of Health. In the building, now named the Cohasset Center for Student Coastal Research, the students from freshmen to seniors found six computers, all connected and loaded with appropriate software and other equipment ready to do the necessary work. The equipment was made available by generous donations from numerous people in town augmented by help from a large number of dedicated volunteers, who gave of their time and services to get the building ready for the kids.

Data, collected by field work by the students over the whole summer, was organized and structured in the form of useful data to be added to data collected in former years. Such data has been used by the Board of Health in determining the origins of pollution entering our estuaries and permitting planning for remedial action. The pictures were taken during a day which was as exciting for the kids as it was for the teachers: Jack Buckley, Ann Thomae, and Patty McGrail. The Board thanks the Dr. Malvey and the others from the school system who worked to make this important liaison with the Board of Health possible.

Students write reports and analyze data for their Summer Institute Research Projects.

Steve Bobo is chairman of the Cohasset Board of Health.

Early deadline next week

strikes at focal points of terrorism. And who but the people displaced from their ancient lands by the Diaspora, and at long last restored, are best equipped to decide where the borders should be? Occupation of the West Bank is an essential part of Israel's defense against its dangerous neighbors. How the Israelis must despair of the specious advice from far-distant governments and opinion makers; advice that is inapplicable to the implacable enemies on the borders of that tiny nation!

Of the oceans of words on the subject, one of the most insightful summaries is a recent editorial by Mortimer Zuckerman on page 71 and 72 of the Dec. 15 2003 issue of U.S. News and World Report.

As Joe says, there is no "greatest generation" of military men and women. In each generation, in other countries as well as in the USA, people rise to the occasion and serve their country. Tom Brokaw's book annoyed me. I thought it was a disservice to people like my father who served in WWI from 1914 to 1918, and to the veterans of Korea, Vietnam, Iraq, the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, and numerous less-remembered actions.

Joe opines that what worked in WWII won't work in fighting 21st century terrorism. That's true for the technology, but willingness to keep slogging, despite reverses, partisan politics and the protests of the quitters, will always be extremely important. And unwavering determination by the leadership is essential always!

Auto insurance fix was really about Reilly eyeing gov's job

STATEHOUSE ROUNDUP

CRAIG SANDLER

A recap and analysis of the week in state government.

When both Mitt Romney and Tom Reilly announced they were ready to fix auto insurance, in the same week, you knew it wasn't just about auto insurance.

On one level of course, it was, in fact, about auto insurance. After years of moderation and even serial decreases in insurance rates, Commissioner Julie Bowler decided on a 2.5 percent hike for 2004, sending the average rate to $1,047. Taking their cue from the Globe, media statewide locked on the four-digit figure, and the issue was in play. The attorney general went first. Responding to the decision, Reilly said competition should be returned to the market, using a phase-in process to avoid the debacles attendant on the last experiment with competition, in 1977. Massachusetts is the last state in the nation where a government official sets insurance rates, and Reilly said a plan could surely be crafted to deregulate the industry without destroying the household budgets of motorists.

Two days later, Romney was in the paper saying the issue has been one of his top priorities for six months, and he is developing his own plan to fix the system. He said he wasn't ready to release details, but did tell the Globe: "Our auto insurance structure is a mess" characterized by policyholders subsidizing fraud and inefficiency.

The reaction of the two state leaders, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, turned the heads of many in the Statehouse, not for the first time. As with the gay marriage issue, Reilly wants to make sure Romney's not the only high-visibility state leader opining on potential public policy solutions.

And Romney, who'd get asked anyway, wants to take care of the biggest political problem of what was generally a good year for him – a perception that he's reactive, focused more on image than substance, and doesn't stand for much beyond lower taxes (not that that's a terrible thing for a politician to stand for).

But in this case, as was true to some extent on gay marriage, Reilly beat him to the punch, and no doubt is intent on continuing to do so. Reilly is signaling his party he's prepared to be their leader in a few years, as they seek their first gubernatorial victory since the heyday of Duran Duran, Ronald Reagan and Bill Buckner.

For his part, Romney is so bent on becoming a change agent he's taking on unpopular members of his own party. That's what he did with scornful comments about Matthew Amorello, chairman of the Turnpike Authority. On what should have been a happy week for Amorello, as he prepares to open the biggest remaining part of the Big Dig to traffic, he had to read quotes from the governor like: "If Matt is going to get paid, then he is going to work for his job." On the Big Dig front, at least, one thing Reilly and Romney have in common is that they're both criticizing Republicans.

But the main point is it seems clear they're both after the same job – the one Romney currently holds. Of course, there's one wild card: will Romney run at the state level in 2006, or seek to move on? Interesting question for another day. For now, Romney and Reilly appear on a collision course.

• Sagamore rotary not a done deal — Though drivers and Capegoers may soon be expecting a new, much faster approach to the Sagamore Bridge, it turns out one formidable impediment to the rotary-bypass project remains. The Legislature must pass a bill, bottlenecked in committee for almost six months now, allowing land transfers and acquisitions in order for the Highway Department to proceed with construction of the bypass. Given opposition on the Cape and from the Conservation Law Foundation, the fate of the bill – and thus the project – remains unclear. The land bill requires a two-thirds vote of support in each branch to pass.

• Romney calls for development near transit — Riding the Blue Line to his media availability, Gov. Romney said his administration will press in a systematic way to encourage communities to direct new growth near existing transit resources. Kicking off the "Take It To the T" campaign, Romney told reporters: "Smart growth is good for Massachusetts . . . With smarter development, we can build more housing, create a better tax base, nurture active communities, create shorter commutes, and protect precious land resources." The state will do this by making development easier on state-owned land and assisting communities in steering growth around T facilities.

• With Boston residents shocked, Finneran anticipates solution — Without specifically endorsing a legislative approach, House Speaker Thomas Finneran said he believes a special commission by early January will develop a balanced solution to assist communities where residents are being hit with skyrocketing property tax bills. Finneran issued a statement from his home, where he's recovering from hip surgery, saying he expects his leadership team and members to pass some sort of relief plan this coming session. Boston Mayor Thomas Menino has been lobbying for a plan that would allow businesses to be taxed at a higher rate than the law now allows, so residents' rates could drop to compensate for the recent big rise in property values.

• Pozen to depart as Romney's top economic advisor — Robert Pozen, who oversaw $900 billion in fund investments at Fidelity and was expected to bring that expertise to bear on the economic problems of the state, departed his job last week. Pozen was rumored to be frustrated by the wheeling and dealing necessary under the Golden Dome, and the slow and complicated path of policy development.

• Flynn won't seek jobs in Boston or Maryland — Though both Montgomery County, Maryland and Boston were interested in his services (Boston as police commissioner), state Public Safety Secretary Edward Flynn said he won't pursue either of those opportunities, in return for a pay increase.

• SJC asks for briefs in gay marriage debate — The Supreme Judicial Court, having been asked by the state Senate whether a "civil union" bill would satisfy the dictates of the court's recent decision on gay marriage, asked interested parties to submit legal briefs on the matter this week. Briefs are due Jan. 12.

• Ex-MTA official headed to jail for stealing $802,000 — The former finance director of the Massachusetts Teachers' Association was sentenced to two years in jail after pleading guilty to charges that he stole $802,000 from the union over a six-year period. Richard Anzivino, 49, of Needham, pleaded guilty in Suffolk Superior Court to five counts of larceny over $250 and six counts of making a false entry in a corporate book, Attorney General Thomas Reilly announced. Judge Carole Ball sentenced Anzivino, with one year to be served and the balanced suspended for five years with probation.

• Flu worrisome but not yet a crisis, officials say — As Massachusetts joined the list of states where influenza was said to be "widespread," officials at the Department of Public Health said it's too soon to know if this is an unusual year. The death of a Worcester State College student brought national attention over the past weekend.

Better budget plan needed at schools

TO THE EDITOR:

The Cohasset School Committee meeting on Dec. 18 lasted into the late hours of the evening as one discouraging fiscal matter was communicated after another. A case in point, and one of major importance to the taxpayers of Cohasset, is the override that will be necessary to pay the Deer Hill and Middle-High School utility bill which looms around $470,000. This is nearly double the budgeted amount.

In 2001 these schools were budgeted $199,000 for heat and electricity. In 2002, the same $199,000 was budgeted. In 2003, the School Building Program increased the square footage of these buildings by nearly 65 percent. The utility budget, however, was increased by only $35,000 to $235,000 or 18 percent. The School Committee must now look for funds to close the gap on the $470,000 utility bill for actual usage.

This same situation occurred when the Osgood School moved from Ripley Road to Sohier Street. The result being a costly override expense to the taxpayers of Cohasset. Can we learn from history?

Yet, once again the draft budget estimates FY2004-2005 allow only $235,000 for energy costs at the Deer Hill and MS/HS. No longer do I ask can better planning, better communication, and common sense help to avoid an override. We shall see at the March Town Meeting.

QUESTIONS

BHRC is sponsored and underwritten by Fleet Bank as a public service for readers of the Mariner. It is written by Bob Katzen who has covered the legislature for more than 25 years and has been providing this feature to newspapers since 1975.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. BHRC records local senators' and representatives' votes on two roll calls from November sessions. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

All four roll calls are on proposed amendments to a bill making changes in the state's unemployment insurance system. The legislature approved the bill and Gov. Romney recently allowed it to become law without his signature. The law increases the unemployment insurance tax paid by employers to fund the unemployment trust fund that provides benefits to laid-off workers. Estimates of the increase range from $450 million to $578 million. Other provisions include higher tax rates for businesses that frequently lay off employees and lower rates for those that do not; an increase from $10,800 to $14,000 in the amount of a worker's wages on which an employer pays the unemployment tax; stronger anti-fraud measures and a reduction from 30 to 26 in the number of weeks laid-off workers can collect benefits when the unemployment rate is below 5.1 percent. Supporters of the law said these reforms will combat fraud and argued that the increased taxes are fair and necessary to generate revenue and prevent the insolvency of the fund. They noted that without legislative action, an automatic scheduled hike of $610 million would take effect on January 1 and would not include any reforms of the system. Opponents said the bill would make Massachusetts' unemployment insurance costs the highest in the nation, drive employers to move out of state and result in the loss of tens of thousands of jobs. They argued that the bill puts the entire new burden on businesses and noted that they support Gov. Romney's plan that takes a balanced approach by sharing the burden between businesses and employees. Romney agrees with opponents but said he allowed the bill to become law without his signature despite the tax hikes because he supports some of the bill's reforms. He echoed supporters of the bill in noting that if the measure did not become law, an automatic scheduled hike of $610 million would take effect on January 1 and would not include any reforms of the system.

REDUCE BENEFITS FROM 30 TO 26 WEEKS (S 2150) — N

House 23-135, rejected an amendment reducing from 30 to 26 weeks the length of time a laid off worker is eligible to collect benefits. Amendment supporters said all 49 other states offer only 26 weeks and argued the reduction will save $90 million for employers and require workers to share in the burden of making the unemployment fund solvent. They noted that the federal government picks up the tab after 26 weeks only during periods of high unemployment. Amendment opponents said Massachusetts cares about its workers and should provide the additional four weeks. They noted that the federal government often picks up the tab after 26 weeks so the state in reality often pays for only the 26 weeks. They also said the bill already includes a compromise provision that reduces the period to 26 weeks when unemployment is below 5.1 percent. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment reducing the collection period to 26 weeks. A "Nay" vote is against the reduction).

TRIGGER A REDUCTION IN BENEFITS FROM 30 TO 26 WEEKS (S 2150) — N

House 23-136, rejected an amendment changing a provision of the bill that triggers a reduction from 30 to 26 weeks in the length of time a laid off worker is eligible to collect benefits when the unemployment rate is 5.1 percent. The amendment would trigger the reduction to 26 weeks when the unemployment rate is 5.5 percent. Amendment supporters said the 5.1 percent is a very low and unrealistic threshold because the unemployment rate rarely reaches 5.1 percent. They argued that the reduction to 26 weeks would rarely take effect unless the threshold is raised to 5.5 percent. Amendment opponents said the threshold is a reasonable one and noted the state's unemployment rate has reached 5.1 percent in four quarters over the past five years. They said raising the threshold to 5.5 percent would hurt many laid off workers. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment raising the trigger to 5.5 percent. A "Nay" vote is against raising the trigger).

REDUCE TAXABLE WAGE BASE (S 2150) — Y

Senate 8-31, rejected an amendment reducing from $14,000 to $12,800 the amount of a worker's wages on which an employer pays unemployment taxes. Prior to passage of the bill, the taxable wage base was $10,800. Amendment supporters said the hike to $14,000 is excessive and would cost employers an additional $175 million. Amendment opponents said the increase to $14,000 is a fair way to generate an additional $175 million and noted the wage base has not been raised since 1992. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment reducing the wage base to $12,800. A "Nay" vote is against the reduction to $12,800).

RAISE TAXES IF FUND IS IN JEOPARDY (S 2150) — Y

Senate 7-32, rejected an amendment eliminating a provision in the bill that allows the director of the department of labor to raise the taxes paid by employers if the solvency of the unemployment fund and/or the continuation of payments to laid off workers is in jeopardy. Amendment supporters said this gives too much power to one nonelected person to raise taxes and argued the legislature can act quickly to solve these problems by raising taxes or by other means. Amendment opponents said the power is only granted in an emergency situation and noted the director is appointed by an elected governor. (A "Yea" vote is for striking the provision and therefore against giving the director the unilateral power to raise taxes. A "Nay" vote is against striking the provision and therefore favors giving the director the unilateral power to raise taxes).

METCO program could suffer from funding cuts

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

The Cohasset School Committee said it will join forces with the Lincoln, Mass. public schools in lobbying the State Legislature and Governor for increased funding for the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity (METCO) program.

Members of the Lincoln School Committee have sent letters out to METCO participating communities, asking for support in their efforts to help with the dire financial situation surrounding the program. Across the state, schools are feeling the impact of a 10 percent decrease in funding for fiscal year 2004, which started July 1, that is causing individual districts to absorb many of the costs associated with the program.

The METCO program is a voluntary, state grant funded desegregation program, which Massachusetts schools have been participating in since 1966. Cohasset has been participating since 1968. The program is intended to expand educational opportunities and reduce racial imbalance, by permitting students in certain cities to attend suburban public schools in other communities which participate. Cohasset currently has 50 students participating in the program.

This year, state assistance for Cohasset has dropped to $175,000 from $190,000 last year. While the numbers show a $15,000 reduction, that doesn't take into account the necessary salary adjustments for employees, which really means the schools will be facing a $22,000 reduction.

"This year, we're facing a reduction in allotment of around $22,000 and some change. That is going to have a severe effect on us," said Supt. Edward Malvey.

"It's a slippery slope, each year our costs go up and funding goes down," said School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn.

However, on Nov. 25, the Mass. Board of Education voted to restore METCO funding to its fiscal year 2003 levels, which is encouraging for the schools. The Lincoln School Committee said it has sent a letter to the State Board of Education expressing its support for the increase in spending, but would like other schools to help keep the pressure on to make sure the increase goes through.

Malvey said there is only so much schools can do in terms of funding because school budgets are already stretched very thin. Cohasset has been sharing some METCO transportation costs with the town of Hingham, but with the reductions in funding, it's not enough to help cover what the state is asking the town to pay.

"I believe if this continues it will have serious state-wide implications for METCO," Malvey said. While he said he has not heard of anyone from the Department of Education coming forward to say the state would like to cut the METCO program, he doesn't see how the towns can be expected to keep moving on at the rate they're going.

Vice Chairman Chartis Tebbetts said from reading the letter from Lincoln, another major consideration is what would happen to the schools in the Boston area which many METCO students would attend, if the program cannot continue. Those schools would suddenly be faced with a sudden insurgence of roughly 3,200 students who currently participate in the program.

"We're going to continue to lobby. Lincoln wants to get the ball rolling and I'd be pleased to send something off on behalf of the Cohasset School Committee," Malvey said.

To show support for the METCO program, please contact State Senator Robert A. Antonioni at (617) 722-1230, or State Representative Marie P. St. Fleur at (617) 722-2070. Support can also be directed to Governor Mitt Romney's office at (617) 725-4005 or the State Board of Education at (781)338-3000.

School board wants Prop. 2-1/2 override budget. Because the school will eliminate morning recess with the reconfiguration of grades next year, having three part-time aides will be enough to cover for the three hours during lunch and recess. He said currently, teachers are covering many of the duties aides could cover, and are missing out on valuable meeting time with parents and other staff. Part-time help will save on salary and benefits costs, and will cost the school $21,000.

Other items on the Deer Hill budget include a clerical aid for$14,821, additional copy supplies for $10,756, an increase for current services and the addition of a monitoring contract by ProtectionOne, and alarm service by Siemens for $1775.

Middle-High School Principal Mike Jones said one of the major problems at his school is there is not enough staff to offer the kinds of courses students are looking for. Currently, he has some teachers doubling up on subject matter, in an effort to give students more variety. He said one Social Studies teacher is teaching an outdoor education class which students can take for physical education credit. But of major concern was his request for an additional math teacher for $42,000. He said with the projected increase in enrollment of high school students, "If I don't get this position, we'll still have the same problem we have this year, it'll just be more acute," he said.

If an additional teacher cannot be funded, Jones said it could require a math class be cut, which would then affect the number of students in each class. But to cut any classes is something Jones said he would not like to do.

Depending on the changes that take place during the reorganization of schools, Jones may need additional staffing, but those needs will have to be addressed as the changes become finalized. He also said a system-wide technology aide, which could cost $18,000 would be highly appreciated as Ken Cisneros, the current technology specialist, "has a full plate."

Karen Watts said part of the Special Education budget will depend on whether the school decides to hire a school psychologist at $45,000. She said there are some students which will require more assistance as they get older, and without the proper help available, the school would have to pay to send them to another district that provides the service. If a school psychologist is not hired, she expects it could cost the schools $172,705 in tuition costs for its special education students to be sent out of district. In addition, schools are required to pay for their transportation.

But the bottom line is, there has to be enough money to cover the requests and still take care of the bills that are essential.

"We can't not pay utilities," said Flynn.

"And we're not going to take it out of education," said member Mark DeGiacomo.

Flynn said when the town has budget troubles, it can go to the Water Commission or Sewer Commission and ask if the costs can be put off for a while. For the schools, that is not an option.

"Somebody somewhere is going to pay this cost. We're in this thing together. It's a town issue," said Flynn.

The School Committee said it would like an override to cover the utilities costs and contractual raises, which are the most pressing issues. Vice Chairman Chartis Tebbetts said any new positions in the schools will need to be looked at as trade-offs because the schools can't come close to being able to fund anything right now.

DeGiacomo said in his opinion, the schools will need to "increase fees, make cuts, and we'll need an override."

Rec dept. issues safe ice advisory

With the winter season here, residents of all ages look for outdoor areas for ice skating. Elm's Meadow, located at Cushing Road and Spring Street has been prepared by the DPW for skating and lights, until 9:30 p.m. are also on for night skating. Elm's Meadow offers a regulated, shallow area for safe skating.

However, as with any outdoor skating area, the ice should be tested before venturing on it. There are specific. ways to test ice safety which do not include throwing debris such as rocks, sticks, etc. on the ice making it hazardous for everyone.

Rather, test the ice by the edge of a skating area by carefully stepping out 6 to 8 inches proceeding carefully to about 2 inches out from the edge only if the ice appears to be safe under your weight. Chip the ice with a tool or stick until you can ascertain a rough idea as to the thickness of the ice. You should always have another person with you when doing this.

Many outdoor skating areas do not have the same thickness of ice universally over the area. Always be on guard for soft spots or thin ice which manifest from underground springs, drain pipes, etc. This is especially true at Elm's Meadow by the Spring Street/Cushing Road corner of the area due to drains off the hillside.

General Safe Ice Standards

Ice Safe For:	0-30 Degrees
30-40 Degrees	40-50 Degrees
Single Skaters:	1-3/4 inches
2-3/4 inches	6 inches
Couples:	2-3/4 inches
3-3/4 inches	8 inches
Crowds:	3-3/4 inches
4-3/4 inches	12 inches

Stay off of salt water ice completely.

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add 2 inches; for water logged ice, add 3 inches, if skates cut in - go home! Salt water in mild climates is always treacherous - keep away from it.

Also thickness in 40 to 50 degree column are safe depths for short periods of time only.

Tips for fending off the flu bug

year, the flu vaccine has been in much higher demand. Cohasset Board of Health Chairman Steve Bobo said the town has received an unprecedented amount of calls this year, and they are still coming in. Residents were being referred to Norwell for their shots after Cohasset ran out, but Bobo said Norwell ran out of its supply quickly as well.

"Every other year we've had plenty," said Fitzsimmons, adding this year it was important to prioritize the shots to cover residents over 65 and high risk cases. In addition, Bobo said the flu this year is attacking a different demographic than in years past and younger people are being unusually affected. Fitzsimmons said many mothers brought their children in looking to be vaccinated as a precautionary measure.

Flu shots are typically administered beginning in mid-October. The town typically receives its vaccines in late September and soon after begins advertising for flu shot clinics. It takes roughly two to three weeks for the vaccine to become fully effective, and it then stays active for three months, which is long enough to offer protection through the height of flu season, which is generally from January through March.

"This year it's earlier," said Fitzsimmons, adding it's still not too late to get a vaccination and be protected.

Fitzsimmons said every year the three strains of flu expected to be the most troublesome that winter are included in the vaccine. This year, the strain which has caused many deaths in the mid-west was not estimated to have been as strong as it has been, and while a similar strain is included in the vaccine, it is not an exact match. However, if someone has received the vaccine, Fitzsimmons said she was originally told the similarity in the strains are enough that a person will be protected about 70 to 80 percent from the more serious strain, but that number has since changed to around 40 to 60 percent.

If a person has been vaccinated, Fitzsimmons said the shot will provide at least some measure of protection, which is more than those who have not received the shot. It has been shown that those who have been vaccinated do not become as sick as those who have not been vaccinated, and are less likely to develop a secondary infection like pneumonia or a bacterial infection, which are usually what causes death in those infected, she said.

As far as precautionary measures, Bobo said the best advice he could give people is, "Wash your hands!" He said if a person is not near a sink, one of the best things to do is to use either alcohol or antiseptic wipes to kill germs on the hands, which are very effective because they don't need to be moistened. Fitzsimmons said she agrees totally and will hopefully be receiving some posters on how to properly wash your hands, which she is planning on putting up in the restrooms in Town Hall and other places around town.

"It sounds like a very basic thing," she said, but added while most people are accustomed to washing their hands after using the restroom, not many people wash their hands at regular intervals throughout the day.

In addition to keeping hands germ-free, Fitzsimmons also advises people become very aware of others who are coughing, reminding those who have been afflicted to remember to cough into the crook of the elbow to prevent both the spread of germs onto hands and reduce the amount of germs which are spread up into the air. She also reminds people who are feeling even the slightest bit under the weather, not to visit with the elderly and young babies because while it might be nice to pay a visit, it won't be worth it to get others sick.

But above all, Fitzsimmons advises, "Drink lots of fluids and rest — even if you do feel well. It's the best way to get through the winter."

For more information on the flu or flu vaccinations, please contact Cohasset Public Health Nurse Judy Fitzsimmons at (781) 383-2210. In the event the town receives more doses of the flu vaccine, Fitzsimmons said she will let the public know via both the newspaper and in her voicemail message at the office.

Grade reconfiguration could create bus transportation headache

By Samantha Brown
SAMBROWN@CNC.COM

While nothing is currently set in stone, the School Committee has begun discussing possible solutions to the transportation problems that will arise when the reconfiguration of grades at Cohasset schools takes place in September.

The reconfiguration will move the third grade from Osgood to Deer Hill and the sixth grade from Deer Hill to the middle-high school. Because Deer Hill currently houses three grades, there will not be a significant change in the number of students who will need transportation to that school on a daily basis. However, the middle-high school will take on an entire grade level of students, which will require a change in the way the transportation program is currently operated. With an additional estimated 150 students, adding the extra children to the five buses currently running will not be an option because the buses can only operate to a certain capacity. Couple that with the concerns of parents, who do not want to see their middle-school aged students riding with older students on the bus, and the transportation issue becomes even more complicated.

"Transportation is an issue we have grappled with for the past few years," said School Committee member Pat Martin. Although the schools are in the process of inspecting one new bus to be added to its fleet, and the funding for an additional seventh bus was recently approved at Town Meeting, the School Committee does not want to see its buses pushed beyond capacity. Originally, one of the seven buses was slated to be reserved as a spare bus, which could help handle the transportation of students should problems with one of the buses cause a transportation crisis. However, if all seven buses are needed at once because of the influx of students at the middle-high school, it could put the district in a bind in the case of a mechanical problem.

Possible solutions to the transportation situation include staggering the start times for the middle and high schools, which would allow enough time for both schools to have their own, separate bus routes. With construction nearing completion at the middle-high school, next year will see facilities very much separate for the two schools, with only the cafeteria, gymnasium, and library serving as common areas.

In addition to easing the minds of middle school parents, School Committee members say by starting the school day a little later for high school students, it could help students in their academic work, as studies have shown teenagers perform better in school when they have had a good night's rest.

However, Martin did not feel separate start times would be beneficial for two reasons. She said the School Committee needs to remember most students who are in the seventh grade and attending the middle school are 13 years old and are teenagers as well. They too could benefit from some additional rest, and she thinks asking sixth graders, who will be included as the youngest members of the middle school, to wake up at 6 a.m. for school "is an awful young age." Also, because the schools are both in one building, it would make much more sense to have them run in harmony, rather than set up two different schedules which could pose problems for teachers and staff who work with both schools.

The middle-high school will take on an entire grade level of students, which will require a change in the way the bus transportation program is currently operated.

"I think it's going to make for strange issues," she said, of having one campus with two start times.

Some proposed schedules for the schools included having bus runs for the middle-high school from 6:50-7:15 a.m. with a start time of 7:20 a.m., bus runs for the high school from 7:45-8:10 a.m. with a start time of 8:20 a.m., bus runs for Deer Hill from 8-8:25 a.m., with a start time of 8:35 a.m., and bus runs for Osgood from 8:25-9:05 a.m. with a start time of 9:05 a.m.

However, the School Committee did not think the schedule was set up in the best possible fashion for the schools and students and they suggested taking other alternatives into consideration.

"There's a one hour gap between the middle and high school," said member Mark DeGiacomo, adding he thought the difference in time was much too large.

But middle-high school Principal Michael Jones said a similar program is currently working very well for Hingham. "They love it and the parent feedback has been great," he said.

Not only does the difference in start time give students a little extra time to sleep in the morning, it could provide an opportunity for extra help before school, Jones said. Because band and chorus involves both schools, a 45-minute practice before school would not be out of the question, he added. With students already in the building, extra help with various teachers could be set up during that same time period.

Jones said a later start time would also prevent students who participate in community service projects from having to wait for Town Hall to open before their work can begin. In addition, with the high school students leaving a little later in the afternoon, middle school students would essentially be provided with a late bus should they need to stay after school for any reason. But again, Martin said having a late bus which mixes younger children with older children will be a concern for parents.

Legally, the schools are only required to provide transportation for students up through grade six, whose houses are located beyond a two-mile distance from the school. All kindergarten students are given transportation regardless of where they live. Malvey said if it wanted, the School Committee could choose to impose a fee for students in grades seven through 12 who want to ride the bus. However, imposing fees could increase the traffic at schools as parents opt to drive students instead of paying a fee, and the school is already experiencing problems with morning traffic congestion.

Students in the upper high school grades do not ride the bus as frequently as the younger students, which has caused some speculation as to whether there would be adequate space for all students in grades six through 12 to ride the bus together, or if it should be mandatory for students in 11th and 12th grades to be responsible for their own transportation. If parents were assured the oldest students on the bus would be in 10th grade, the School Committee wonders if that could be seen as an option. Also, if students were required to either sign up or pay a fee to be ensured a seat on the bus, which would also provide drivers with the information necessary to determine whether buses would be running at capacity, it might alleviate some problems. Questions such as these will hopefully be answered in the coming weeks.

"I don't think we want to make a decision quickly," said School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn, adding changing the schedules of the schools and its transportation is a major decision and should not be taken lightly. "I think we have to live within the transportation means we have," he said.

Martin said she would like to gain feedback from the community and the idea was floated to perhaps send home some kind of survey to parents, which would give them the opportunity to provide input for some of the questions brought up at the meeting, and the issue will be an ongoing discussion.

A tie that binds

Lack of aggressiveness costs CHS skaters in Blue Hills showdown

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

There are some messages a coach can deliver hundreds of times over, and yet, until his or her charges see first hand the evidence supporting said messages, it simply does not sink in.

Hence, something positive may yet be taken by the Cohasset High hockey team from its disheartening 3-3 tie to Blue Hills on Saturday night on their home Pilgrim Arena ice.

"When we show up with a halfway effort, this is the kind of thing that's going to happen to us; these guys have got to see that," said first year Cohasset coach Ben Virga following the game. "I can't believe this is the same team that beat Scituate just one week earlier. That team was no where to be found tonight."

The Skippers seemed the stronger skating and more skilled team right from the beginning of this showdown with the perennially strong Warriors squad, a position bared out by their 22-9 advantage in shots on goal.

However, time and time again, the Cohasset players seemed a half step short of cashing in on solid scoring chances. And, at the other end of the ice, they at times seemed to have an inordinate amount of trouble working the puck out of their end. It was this latter failing that really got under the skin of Cohasset captain Chris Bilodeau goes strong for two of the South Shore Voc. Tech Tourney best 46 points. In the two wins for the Skippers, Bilodeau also grabbed 19 boards and dished out 11 assists on his way to being named to the All-Tourney team.

For the Cohasset girls varsity basketball team, wins are piling up faster than the traffic at the South Shore Plaza.

With a 3-0 record, they have clearly started off in the right direction. To reach this point, they have worked very hard in practices and scrimmages.

As an example, the girls set off on December 12 to show their skills in Long Island, New York. The following morning the girls battled a tough Carle Place High School squad. Although no one kept score of the scrimmage, the Skippers' tough defense led them to an obvious victory.

Reflecting on the scrimmage, coach John Levangie stated: "This scrimmage greatly built the girls' confidence. Playing a respectable team like Carle Place prepared the girls for the season ahead."

Coach Levangie's hypothesis later proved accurate. The Skippers prevailed in their season

All-Scholastic football team

Cohasset's Davis, Dooley, Truglia and Bilodeau named among area's elite

As is always the case with these kinds of things, the selection process with this team was not an easy one.

Unlike individual league all-star teams, we did not choose our team in deference to positional considerations. The only criteria we considered was overall value these players had to their respective teams.

Several of the young men you see listed below as "Honorable Mentions" received serious consideration for All-Scholastic acknowledgement.

In the end, however, we limited ourselves to a team of just 30, and, after consulting with area coaches, we do feel secure that we chose the top public school football players in Marinerland for this honor.

Avon calling? not this time

Bilodeau and Connolly lead Cohasset boys to SSVT tourney championship

By Mark Goodman
CORRESPONDENT

Call it a clean sweep for Cohasset basketball.

After watching the girls win their championship game of the South Shore Vocational Technical tournament, the boys followed suit with a 57-44 victory over Avon.

The Skippers dominated with their rebounding, defense and hustle. Cohasset out-rebounded the Panthers, 36-23, while the pressure of guards Chris Bilodeau, John Andrade and Trevor Brady forced Avon into 26 turnovers for the game.

The effort on the boards was particularly pleasing to the eye of head coach Ron Ford.

"I'm going to watch this game tape over and over again," he said. "It was great. Fundamentally, we couldn't have rebounded any better than we did today."

Bilodeau and fellow senior Sean Connolly were named all-stars of the tournament for Cohasset. Bilodeau finished with 20 points, eight rebounds and five assists on Saturday, a good follow to his great all-around game in the win over Holbrook on Tuesday.

Connolly, meanwhile, had 12 points and five boards against Avon, while also playing a solid game defensively, shutting down most of Avon's attempts at driving the lane.

A case for a third all-star could be made for freshman Jeff Brown. The 6-0 forward cleaned up the glass with a game-high 11 rebounds, six coming on the offensive end. Ford had nothing but good words for the freshman following Saturday's win.

"Jeff gave us a great effort," he said. "I love his game right now. He's getting better and better."

Ford also gave credit to center Dan Tarpey for clearing out space for Brown to get a lot of his rebounds. The senior played a solid game of his own, chipping in with eight points and five boards.

Avon opened the scoring with a three-pointer from freshman guard Kevin Miranda. Cohasset quickly went on an 8-0 run, however, and never looked back.

The Skippers' defense carried the way through most of the first half. While they were struggling to find their shot, their consistent pressure in the back court forced the Panthers into 11 first-half turnovers. At one point, Cohasset forced turnovers on four straight possessions, spurring another 8-0 run.

Any chance for an Avon comeback was lost in the last seven minutes of the half. With Bilodeau on the bench because of foul trouble, Cohasset played their opponents even during that stretch, and went into the locker room with a 29-17 lead.

The start of the second half was more of the same, as Skippers guards did a magnificent job of playing the passing lanes for steals and fast break chances.

Ford said it was the defense and rebounding that keyed his team's victory.

"When I talked to the team before the game, that's exactly what I said would win it for us," he said. "I challenged Connolly and Tarpey to board and to play big down low."

Judging by the results, Cohasset certainly answered the Norwell-Cohasset gymnastic squad kicks off season in dominant fashion

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

The members of the Norwell-Cohasset gymnastics team was not so much competing against the Rockland-Milton squad in last Wednesday's opener as they were feeling out the new scoring system.

A win, of course, was expected, so the 123.2-83.1 win by the locals was hardly surprising.

What was a slight surprise to Nor-Coh veteran coach Kara Connerty, of the pleasant variety, was how well her girls' skills translated to the new scoring system, which has seen a change in a few performance requirements.

"I was pretty happy with our scores right across the board," said Connerty. "Trying to predict what level we would be at as a team was kind of tough, so it was encouraging to see a score of 123.1 the first time out."

Cohasset junior Nancy Durkin led the way for the Nor-Coh squad, winning the all-around competition with a score of 31.7. This score included winning performances in the floor exercise (8.5) and uneven bars (8.3).

Sophomore Erin Kelly took third in the all-around (30.3) and won the balance beam competition (8.0).

Norwell junior Samantha Rosen was the winner on the vault (8.1) and classmate Jen Guiney was third on both the uneven bars (7.6) and for her floor exercise (7.7)

Cohasset junior Lisa Spirito added points with her third place finish on the beam (7.5)

The Nor-Coh team will have to wait until after the school vacation for meet number two. On Jan. 5, they'll host Pilgrim

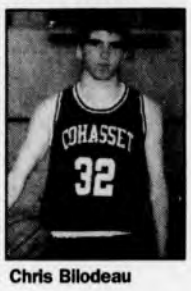
CHS…a weight room warrir who trains all year with former Scituate High star trackster and gridder Joe Hayes…will play college football and is being actively recruited as an offensive lineman…Westfield State, Bridgewater State, Merrimack and Mt. Ida are among the possibilities…plans to major in Law Enforcement or Criminal Justice with an eye toward a career in law enforcement…Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe: "In my opinion, Steve was the top offensive lineman in the South Shore League this year. He was our anchor. He's a workhorse who'll make some college coach real happy."

Chris Bilodeau- Senior (Capt.)
WR/DB - Cohasset



Chris Bilodeau

A superb all around athlete with some of the best hands on the South Shore…made South Shore League All-Star team as a sophomore and senior, but missed most of his junior season to injury…the 6-foot-1, 175 pound athlete had 28 receptions for 323 yards and 4 TDs this fall…had team best six interceptions, and was also among the team leaders in tackles…four year starter…also a Boston Herald and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic…has been chosen to play in the annual Shriner's Football Game this summer…not bad considering football is his second favorite sport: basketball is number one… SSL All-Star and Mariner All-Scholastic for basketball this past winter…Honor Roll student…hopes to play college basketball and become the third Bilodeau brother to go on from CHS to play college sports:: TJ (Class of 2001) was a star in basketball and baseball and now plays JV basketball at Harvard, Matt (class of '02) starred in basketball and soccer and now plays soccer at Williams College…Chris is looking at NESCAC schools Bowdoin, Williams, Amherst and Middlebury…leaning toward majoring in Business….Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe: "We saw all that Chris meant to this team when he was out last year. He's just a phenomenal talent on both sides of the ball. He has just about the best hands I've ever seen at this level, and he has great instincts and athleticism too. He's the whole package."

Four year CHS starter Stephen Davis anchored an excellent offensive line that paved the way for three different runners to have 1,000-yard rushing seasons over the last three years

Tony Truglia- Senior (Capt.)
OLB/FB - Cohasset

Tony Truglia

A warrior…at 5-foot-10, 180 pounds, one of the toughest players pound-for-pound on the South Shore…the Skippers went 26-6 over his three years as a starting linebacker, which included two South Shore League championships…led the Skippers in tackles this fall, finishing with over 100 for the season…first and foremost, a true football player…also started three games at fullback in the absence of Ted Straughn and one at center…a good student with a 3.15 GPA…currently helps run family landscaping business… hoping to play college football…is looking at Bentley, Northeastern and Stonehill…leaning toward majoring in Business… Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe: "Not the biggest kid, not the fastest kid, but you'd have a hard time finding a harder nosed kid. He just loves football and goes all out every play. He just makes plays."

Mike Dooley- Senior (Capt.)
Quarterback- Cohasset

Mike Dooley

The South Shore League's version of Doug Flutie…made up for relative lack of size (5-foot-9, 160 pounds) at his position with a surprisingly big arm and, noted coach Tony Rolfe, "an even bigger heart"…South Shore League All-Star…succeeded two-time SSL all-star QB Mike Snowdale this fall…a true "field general" who knew how to take control in the huddle… a double threat as a QB, Dooley accounted for over 1,050 yards of offense, rushing for 334 and eight touchdowns, and passing for 725, with six TD passes…ran the option very effectively… finished second on team in scoring with 50 points…compiled a 10-2 record as starting QB…was a superb defensive back as a sophomore and junior, but coach Rolfe does not, as a rule, play his quarterbacks on the defensive side of the ball…also a standout with the CHS baseball team varsity, starting since his freshman year…played shortstop and pitched last year and has been named a captain this year… Honor Roll Student…looking at Bryant College and Providence College…Cohasset coach Tony Rolfe: "If Mike were over 6-feet tall, I'd be talking to a lot of college coaches right now. He had everything else, a strong arm, great toughness, a great work ethic. He held things together for us offensively and just had a way of finding a way to get the job done."

Todd Faiella - Senior (Capt.)
Linebacker - Marshfield

Todd Faiella

A two-year captain on the Marshfield team, this talented linebacker was one of the best all-around players in the area…A linebacker on defense and receiver on offense, Faiella (6'2", 205) made his mark on both sides of the ball…Offensively, he was among the leading receivers and provided solid downfield blocking for others…Was a terror at linebacker, though, leading the team in tackles and seemingly always being right where he's supposed to be…His play was instrumental in leading the Rams (9-3-1) to an Old Colony League title and appearance in the Div. 1 Super Bowl…Scored a TD and added another on the first of two interceptions in a league title-clinching win at Barnstable…Also a very talented lacrosse goalie at MHS, Faiella led the squad to the Div. 2 South finals last spring…He is currently being heavily recruited in both sports. Marshfield coach Lou Silva: "He has an undeniable presence on the field, is a great leader, and was very enthusiastic. His vision and anticipation came naturally to him and that's something you can't teach. He's right up there with the top players we've had here."

FILE PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

At 5-foot-10, 180 pounds, Tony Truglia (seen here making one of his team best 100-plus tackles this season) was clearly one of the toughest players pound-for-pound on the South Shore.

Austin Giles - Junior Defensive End - Marshfield

Austin Giles

Following in the footsteps of older brother and Notre Dame star Zach, Giles is quickly becoming one of the area's better linemen…An undeniable presence on the line at 6'4", 272, Giles is extremely fast for size and his overall quickness made it difficult for opposing offenses to run against him…His play on both sides of the ball (offensively as a guard) helped Marshfield (9-3-1) capture the Old Colony League title (6-1) and berth in the Div. 1 Super Bowl…The two-time OCL All-star made his mark on the team last year, kicking the game-winning field goal in a Thanksgiving Day victory over rival Duxbury…Just a junior, Giles still has another year at MHS, where he also plays basketball and baseball…He also volunteers for several youth organizations, including Camp Swish. Marshfield coach Lou Silva: "Other teams know where he is and did a lot of running away from him. He's agile and runs extremely well. He's a junior and is still growing and learning, but it's clear he's going to be a player."

Star two-way performer Chris Bilodeau is a superb all-around athlete with some of the best hands on the South Shore.

Jason MacDonald - Senior (Capt.)
Offensive line - Marshfield

A three-year starter on the offensive line, MacDonald was the guy every running back wanted to run behind…Another one of the Rams' big boys (6'2", 285), MacDonald's play on the right side was instrumental to the team's trip to the Div. 1 Super Bowl and in capturing the Old Colony League title (6-1)…Stood out all season long, but was a force in a crucial 3-0 win over Bridgewater-Raynham, in which the Rams rushed for 200 yards behind MacDonald, despite not finding the end zone…Defensively, the OCL All-star was extremely effective at tackle and was among the team's leaders in that category. Marshfield coach Lou Silva: "When we needed the tough yards, we'd run behind Jason. He had good leadership qualities despite being pretty soft-spoken. He extremely tenacious and never wants to lose."

Scott Doherty - Junior
Running back - Marshfield

Scott Doherty

Was the leading rusher for the 9-3-1 Rams this season, racking up more than 1,000 yards…An Old Colony League All-star, Doherty also scored 10 touchdowns…As a defensive back, Doherty recorded two interceptions, one of which he ran back for a touchdown against Falmouth…His play on both sides of the ball was instrumental to the team winning the OCL title (6-1) and appearing in the Div. 1 Super Bowl, thanks to his 76 yard, fourth-quarter TD run in a semifinal victory at Brockton that put the game out of reach…His ability to read opposing defenses and find running room behind MacDonald was among his greatest strengths…Just a junior, Doherty still has another year to play at MHS, where he also plays basketball and lacrosse. Marshfield coach Lou Silva: "He was like (2001 grad Sean) Morris as far as his ability to go on long runs. He has great overall speed and quickness and some nice moves. He sees the field pretty well and did a good job of finding holes."

Steve Lyons - Senior (Capt.)
Defensive End - Hingham

Steve Lyons

A two-time Patriot League All-star and Mariner All-Scholastic, Lyons helped key one of the Harbormen's best seasons in years going 10-1 overall and 5-1 in the PL, good for second…A three-year starter on both sides of the ball, Lyons (6'1", 190) was a defensive stalwart…He was second on the team in tackles with 95, recorded six sacks, two interceptions, recovered a pair of fumbles, and forced two others…Two of his most important sacks came in a thrilling 35-27 Thanksgiving Day victory over Scituate, in which he also scooped up an on-side kick and ran it back for a crucial touchdown in the closing minutes…Also a talented receiver on offense, Lyons' speed and good hands made him equally effective…Lyons will captain the HHS lacrosse team in the spring and is hoping to continue his football career at Merrimack, Stonehill, or Bryant next fall. Hingham coach Paul Killinger: "As a leader, Steve did a great job. He just stepped up and took care of business both in and out of the locker room. I can't say enough about him."

Kevin Devine - Senior (Capt.)
Defensive End - Hingham

Kevin Devine

Another leader on defense, Devine led the Patriot League in sacks with 10…At defensive end, Devine (6'2", 185) was third on the team in tackles while added a fumble recovery, forcing two others…A three-year starter for the

POWER TOOLS AND HEARING LOSS
According to a study recently commissioned by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, those who work with power tools must use hearing protection. To measure the cumulative effect of construction noise, the hearing of more than 700 carpenters was measured. The tests revealed that the average 55-year-old carpenter, who has spent a lifetime at noisy job sites, had suffered hearing losses on the order of 60 decibels (db.). A 25-db. loss is the threshold beyond which someone is considered to be hearing impaired. At the other end of the spectrum, the average 25-year-old carpenter has a hearing loss of 20 db., which is about on a par with a 50-year-old who was not regularly exposed to loud noise.
You don't have to be a math wizard to figure out when noise levels are too high. Sounds that are so loud they actually hurt your ears are dangerous to your hearing health. If you suspect your hearing is less than it should be, FAMILY HEARING CARE CENTER invites you to come see us. We carry most hearing aid makes and models and a full line of accessories including batteries (we offer FREE batteries for the life of any hearing instrument purchased). We're located at 534 Main Street (Rte. 18), across from the Stetson Bldg. in Weymouth. PH: 781-337-1144. We also have an office in Abington.
P.S. According to the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, almost all the power tools used by carpenters exceed OSHA's permissible exposure limit of 90 db. Hammer drills, chainsaws, and shopsaws were the worst offenders (exceeding 105 db.).

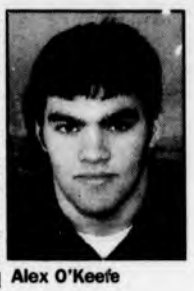
Harbormen, Devine's play on defense, and as an offensive guard, helped Hingham capture second in the PL (5-1) and its best overall record in years at 10-1…Played a solid game in the team's annual Thanksgiving Day contest at Scituate, with five tackles including one sack and another for a loss…Also a talented hockey player at HHS, Devine hopes to continue his football career in college next fall. Hingham coach Paul Killinger: "He always runs on a high motor and loves to go out and hit. He's at full speed all the time. He's a great kid who never complained."

John Murphy - Junior
Tailback - Hingham

The leading rusher on the Harbormen team this season, Murphy racked up 1,385 yards…A Patriot League All-star, Murphy (6', 180) averaged 23 carries and 7 yards per game…Scored a handful of TD's and set up several others for Hingham, which used Murphy primarily to drive downfield…Was a very consistent tight end his sophomore season, but was moved to tailback the last few games and proved very effective…His play helped fuel a season in which the Harbormen captured second in the PL (5-1) and went an impressive 10-1 overall, falling only to league champs Duxbury…Murphy has already been selected to captain the football team next season. Hingham coach Paul Killinger: "John made the move to tailback and has just done an outstanding job. He's tough as nails, is very dedicated, and has a great work ethic. On game day, he's ready to go. Great kid."

Alex O'Keefe - Senior (Capt.)
Center - Hingham



Alex O'Keefe

A Patriot League All-star, O'Keefe's leadership and determination are qualities his coach felt were instrumental in the Hingham football program's turnaround this season…A three-year starter at center, O'Keefe led the team in tackles with 97, helping the Harbormen to a 10-1 record (5-1 PL) after going 1-10 a year ago…A student of the game, O'Keefe (6', 210) made all the line calls and defensive adjustments…Always wanted to improve himself and his team, O'Keefe studied game/practice films at home to better prepare for upcoming contests…Also played some special teams for Hingham…Was instrumental to the team's 35-27 Thanksgiving Day victory at Scituate, where he snagged an interception as a linebacker and cleared paths all day long for Murphy…Also a member of the wrestling and baseball teams at HHS, O'Keefe plans to continue his football career at either Merrimack, Stonehill, or Norwich. Hingham coach Paul Killinger: "Alex had a lot of responsibilities and he fulfilled every one of them. He's a very intelligent kid and really enjoys the mind game in football."

Joe Coppens - Senior (Capt.)
Quarterback - Rockland

Joe Coppens

A solid receiver last season, Coppens' leadership was needed at the quarterback position this year and he was up for the challenge…The three-time Patriot League All-star and two-time Mariner All-Scholastic passed for 700 yards and 8 touchdowns in his first full year at QB…Also used as a defensive safety, Coppens (6'4", 175) made several stops for Rockland The senior's overall vision and technique were among his greatest strengths on the football field…Helped the Bulldogs to a 5-5 record (2-4 PL)…Perhaps better known for his prowess on the basketball court, Coppens helped lead the Bulldogs hoop squad to the Div. 3 South Sectional finals last winter and is a captain this year…Being heavily recruited for basketball, Coppens is still exploring his college options. Rockland coach Ken Owen: "We were very happy with his decisions. He did a great job looking off the first option and going at the second, knowing when to tuck it up and run. Basketball is his main game, but he could be a good college quarterback."

Mark Killinger - Senior (Capt.)
Running back - Rockland

Mark Killinger

A Patriot League All-star, Killinger was the leading rusher for the Bulldogs (5-5), hauling 1,240 yards, scoring 17 touchdowns, and averaging 6 yards per carry, despite playing behind a very inexperienced offensive line…As is the case with may running backs, Killinger seemed to only get better as the game wore on and was the team's go-to guy when tough yardage was needed…Had his best game of the season in a 35-6 win over neighboring rival Abington, rushing for 217 yards and all five touchdowns…Also a talented sprinter on the RHS outdoor track team, Killinger (5'11", 200) competes in the 200-meters and runs a leg on the 4x100-meter relay…He is also a member of the Leadership Committee…Killinger plans to attend either Bentley, Merrimack, or Endicott next fall. Rockland coach Ken Owen: "He's a quiet leader and his performance speaks for itself. He works really hard in the weight room and loves to put the ball in the end zone."

Nick Riordan - Senior (Capt.)
Linebacker - Hanover

Nick Riordan

A Patriot League and Eastern Mass. All-star this season, Riordan was a standout on both sides of the ball…This three-year starter was most effective as a linebacker, where the led the team in tackles with 99 and recorded a number of quarterback sacks thanks to his impressive speed off the line…As a fullback, Riordan rushed for 700 yards and 6 touchdowns…The senior was also very effective on kickoffs, both as a kicker and on returns, while also long snapping Hanover's punts and PAT's…Had a key interception in the Indians' (4-7) Thanksgiving Day victory over Norwell and was named the Most Dedicated Player…Also captain of the wrestling and lacrosse teams at HHS, Riordan currently holds a 3.75 GPA…He plans to continue his football career at either Holy Cross, Bentley, Merrimack, Tufts, or Wesleyan. Hanover coach Paul Costello: "Nick is a very complete player. He had a lot of roles for us and was outstanding at each one. He was very intense and just ran, ran, ran."

Kevin McLaughlin - Senior (Capt.)
Tight End - Hanover

Kevin McLaughlin

This Patriot League All-star was the equivalent to a utility man in baseball… McLaughlin had several roles on the Hanover (4-7) squad, starting the season at quarterback before becoming one of the squad's most reliable receivers…Threw for 400 yards and 7 touchdowns in eight games at QB, later as a receiver, McLaughlin racked up 28 receptions…Defensively, McLaughlin teamed with Riordan for one of the better linebacker cores in the PL…Caught a crucial 27-yard TD pass in the Indians' Thanksgiving Day win over Norwell, one that gave Hanover the lead for good…Also a talented lacrosse player at HHS, Riordan also enjoys surfing…He plans to continue his football career at either Salve Regina, Bryant, or Merrimack next fall. Hanover coach Paul Costello: "Kevin would have to be the Unsung Hero of the team. We asked an awful lot of him and he just did it. We were a much better team because of him."

Brian McSharry - Senior (Capt.)
Quarterback - Abington

Brian McSharry

Arguably one of the most efficient quarterbacks in the area, McSharry capped a great career racking up 30 touchdown passes in his varsity stint, which is a new AHS record…This season for Abington (8-3), McSharry went 81-for-157 for a total of 1,361 yards…Always solid under pressure, the two-time South Shore League All-star had a flare for the dramatic tossing several game-winning TD's…Threw one TD pass with 30 second left to defeat Hanover 16-12 and also connected for a fourth down, four quarter TD against Thanksgiving Day rival Whitman/Hanson which forced an overtime…There, McSharry sealed the victory hitting a TD pass with just 11 seconds remaining…As a junior, McSharry was instrumental in the Green Wave's drive to the SSL title and Div. 5 Super Bowl crown…Also a talented basketball player at AHS, McSharry plans to attend college in the fall. Abington coach Jim Kelliher: "He came through in the clutch. That's just the kind of thing he can do. Brian is easily one of the top three quarterbacks I've ever seen or coached. He's a fierce competitor and has great field sense."

coach Virga.

"What's really frustrating is we spend around four hours in practice every week working on getting the puck out of our end," said Virga, whose team went to 1-0-1 with the tie. "I give Blue Hills credit. They're a well coached team that works hard, but we made it a little too easy for them. We had chances to put them away and we just never took advantage of those. We just weren't skating the way we are capable of skating."

The rookie head coach did make a point exonerating captains Mike Devine and Ted Straughn from any culpability, however, noting: "Mike and Ted work as hard as any two players I've ever been around.

"Mike did a great job on defense all night even though he was out there for a lot of shifts, and Ted bailed us out with his backchecking more times than I can count. He was doing all I could ask. If I had a few more players like those two, we'd be 2-0 right now."

The Warriors top line of Jim Nelson, Justin Bobollier and Rob Parker tormented the Skippers all night with an aggressive forecheck and all of their offensive damage was reaped via this means, with each of these forwards scoring once.

Nelson opened the scoring 6:17 in, but Cohasset senior Rob Carpenter answered a little more than a minute later, as he finished on a pass from captain Mike Devine.

Sophomore Matt O'Connell gave the Skippers their first lead of the game at 10:20 of the second period, with assists going to linemate Mark Bouchard and defenseman Tim Pilczak.

Bobollier tied the game at 2-2 on a wraparound 1:04 into the third, however, after getting the puck free with a nice effort along the backboards to the right of Cohasset goalie Stefan Parnell.

Devine would get the lead back for Cohasset with 9:25 to play, as he took a feed from Carpenter and put a slap shot from 35 feet straight out over the stickside shoulder of Warriors goalie Al Burt.

A nice rush by Nelson would set up Blue Hills' equalizer just 50 seconds later. Nelson's shot was deflected over the net, but the hard working forward won the battle behind Parnell and fed back to Parker between the circles for a quick wrister that deflected in off the tip of Parnell's glove.

The Skippers do not play again until next Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 31, when they host revenge minded Scituate (3-1) at Pilgrim (3:20 p.m. start).

"If this team tonight turns up to play Scituate in 11 days, you won't have enough room in your sports column to describe all the goals they're going to score on us," said Virga. "Scituate is a very talented team, and I'm sure they're anxious to play us again after we beat them the first time. We'd better be ready to meet that challenge or we'll be in big trouble."

Conference arch-rival Hanover (7 p.m.) in the first of two scheduled meetings. These two teams have finished first or second in the conference each of the last four years.

Both teams lost top gymnasts to graduation— Hanover Kerrianne Hart and Cohasset Meredith Bixby— but both return several key gymnasts as well.

"Hanover might be a little smaller than they've been the last few years, but they're still a good team," noted Connerty, who's seen her own roster swell to an all-time high of 20. "Hanover still has quality depth."

Spring outdoor soccer signups

Registration for this Spring's Cohasset Soccer Club outdoor soccer season for Under 14 / Under 16 / Under 18 players is now underway. Teams will play in the Coastal League throughout the South Shore area. Players under 12 or younger that registered for the Fall season are automatically registered for the Spring season.

Registration will remain open through December 26th. Following that date late-registering players cannot be assured a position on a team. Registration forms are available at the Town Hall. For additional information please call Mark Richardson @ 383-0998 or Wallace St. John @ 383-2552.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse Looking for Coaches

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse is looking for volunteer assistant coaches at all levels for its spring season, with a particular emphasis on finding coaches for its girls teams.

Cohasset currently expects to field at least 10 teams this spring, although the growth in the number of participants could push that number even higher, provided there is adequate coaching available to protect and develop the youngsters involved.

In all, Cohasset will field boys teams at the 14 & Under (7th and 8th grade), 12 & Under (5th & 6th grade) and 10 & Under (3rd and 4th grade) levels, and girls teams at the 14-U and 12-U levels, plus a weekly clinic for girls players in grades 3 and 4.

The shortage of coaches is particularly acute for girls, where the current coaching staffs are so limited that roster sizes may be kept particularly small unless more coaches volunteer.

In the younger boys' age groups, more coaching volunteers could enable the program to add additional teams, keeping roster sizes smaller and more manageable, resulting in a better experience for all kids involved.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse currently has head coaches at all age levels, but with the probability of more than 300 children spread throughout the program this year, increasing the size of coaching staffs is essential for player development.

Through its nine-year history, the foundation of the Cohasset Youth Lacrosse coaching staff has been volunteers who do not have children on the teams involved. In seeking additional coaches, the program is hoping to get both community volunteers and parents whose children will play. Experience playing or coaching the game is desired, but not necessary; coaches must be able to throw and catch with a lacrosse stick in order to teach others and facilitate drills. Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will pay registration costs to coaching clinics for those individuals interested in participating.

At all but the youngest age levels, Cohasset Youth Lacrosse holds two practices each week, and has games on Sunday afternoon. The youngest boys have one weekly practice, while the girls clinic program will be one weekly 90-minute session. Assistant coaches are not expected to attend every event, although they should be able to appear often enough to be perceived by the players as a team leader.

In addition to coaches, Cohasset Youth Lacrosse is interested in developing referees who can work its games. Interested individuals will be required to take some officiating instruction classes during the winter, and may then be eligible to work games either with a partner or solo in the spring.

For more information or to express your interest in coaching or officiating, call Chuck Jaffe, coordinator of youth lacrosse, at 781-383-9858.

Breaking the silence to help end domestic violence

where you can be safe? Then we take it from there."

Some women mistakenly believe they can't turn to the Center for help while they are living in an abusive situation, says Fuyat. "It doesn't matter. We will serve them wherever they are in the relationship. We can explore all kinds of options."

All services are completely free and confidential and women don't even have to give their names, she says.

Ultimately, the key to combating and preventing domestic violence lies in education and action within the larger community. South Shore Women's Center works in partnership with schools, civic groups, businesses and legal, law enforcement and health professionals to raise awareness of the issues and take positive action.

"We have preventive programs in the grammar schools, junior highs and high schools," says Fuyat. "We work on nonviolent conflict resolution, gender roles and relationships, respectful communication. We work with young men who are at risk for violence and already have a violent history. We work with young women on self-esteem and the 'red flags' of an abusive relationship."

"Too many of the messages they get through movies, TV, music and video games are actively violent and disrespectful of women," she says. "The research is showing just how it's affecting them."

And for all the progress society thinks it has made in redefining gender roles, Fuyat says old attitudes persist. "We don't want them to feel locked into the idea that men only show anger and only girls cry. Boys can have feelings they need to express."

In addition to school programs, professional workshops and civic presentations, SSWC provides a 30-hour training program for volunteers and others in a position to recognize and assist victims of domestic abuse.

"We're training Human Resource people. If they have an employee whose attendance is down, who gets a lot of personal phone calls at work, they can ask them 'Are you okay at home?'" says Fuyat. "What do they have around their company to encourage employees to come forward and ask for help without fear of being fired?"

Domestic violence is the responsibility of the whole community, she says. "These are your family members, coworkers, friends. It crosses all lines. The more people who know, who can identify the problem, the more chances we have to bring help to families."

Breaking the silence that surrounds domestic violence is the only way to end it, says Fuyat. "As long as it's a secret, it will continue. We need people saying 'This is not appropriate. This is not acceptable.' And we need consequences for the abusers."

What victims need most from those around them is an invitation to talk in an open, nonjudgmental way, she says. "Ask 'Are you in trouble? Are you being hurt?' Tell them 'I can get you information. If you don't want to talk to me, I know places you can call.'"

South Shore Women's Center and other agencies that deal with domestic violence have packets of information for concerned family members and friends, including resource materials that can be easily concealed.

"You never know when the person will make that call, what response you will get by being the one to reach out and say 'Nobody deserves to be abused. I'm here for you,'" says Fuyat. "Be simple, be gentle, be kind, and have a resource for them."

The South Shore Women's Center is a private, nonprofit organization funded in part by the Mass. Dept. of Social Services, federal grants and private fundraising. SSWC is a member agency of the Old Colony United Way and the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women's Services Groups.

For more information, call the Center at 781-582-0078 or visit the web sites at www.janedoe.org <http://www.janedoe.org> and www.ncadv.org/publicpolicy/intimidate.htm <http://www.ncadv.org/publicpolicy/intimidate.htm>. Help is available at any time by calling the SSWC Hotline at 888-746-2664.

Christmas worship at St. Stephen's

Christmas worship at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave, features a variety of worship celebrating Christ's birth. The Christmas Eve Family Holy Communion service will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 24, at 5 p.m. The Saint Gregory's Children's Choir will sing and the star of Bethlehem will be lit on the church tower. The Rev. Beth Wheatley-Dyson will tell a story for children in place of the sermon. The three kings and their camels will be in the east at the altar ready to begin their journey to Bethlehem.

A second service, new this year, will be held at 7:30 p.m. This will be a more contemplative worship with music accompanied by string quartet. A candle for peace will be lit in acknowledgement of God's work of "peach on earth." This candle will stay lit throughout the Christmas season.

The Festal Candlelight Christmas Eve worship will take place beginning at 11 p.m. This is a worship reflecting the angel song, "Glory to God in the highest." A special program of Christmas music will precede the service beginning at 10:30 p.m. Musical selections sung by the Saint Stephen's adult choir will include "Torches" by John Joubert, "Good King Wenceslas" arranged by R. Jaques, and a composition by our Music Directory Fred Guzasky entitled "O Bethlehem, Receive." At this midnight worship, the traditional story from the Gospel of Luke is read from the King James Bible, the Eucharist is celebrated, and candlelight will illumine the singing of Silent Night. The bells of the church carillon will ring out the music of Christmas across the town under the stars of the still night sky.

Christmas Day, Thursday, Dec. 25, will be celebrated with the worship of Holy Communion at 10 a.m. highlighted with the singing of Christmas carols. The church school is busy preparing an Epiphany Pageant to take place on Sunday, Jan. 11, at the 10 a.m. worship celebrating the appearance of Jesus to the Three Kings representing all the world. Children will portray angels, shepherds hurrying to Bethlehem, Joseph and Mary with baby, and the Three Kings bearing their gifts.

Watch your waste over the holidays

There are a few things that people tend to do a lot of over the holidays. One is the purchase of cards, gifts, wrapping paper and decorations. Another is throwing things away. Between now and the end of the year, for example, Massachusetts residents will buy:

- Nearly 70 million holiday greeting cards.
- About 1 million cut Christmas trees.
- Roughly $10 in packing materials and wrapping paper for every $100 they spend on gifts.

There are a number of ways to reduce the environmental impacts of all this holiday spirit, according to the commissioner of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP).

"With a little effort, each of us can make a big difference in reducing the holiday season's toll on the environment," said Commissioner Robert W. Golledge Jr. in offering a series of DEP tips for conserving resources and reducing waste over the holidays:

- Consider buying a live tree that you can plant in the spring, or one of today's life-like artificial trees. Either way, you'll help spare a tree from being cut down.
- If you decide to purchase a cut tree, see if your community is one of more than 200 across the state with a program for recycling cut Christmas trees into compost or mulch — important, since landfills and incinerators no longer accept trees for disposal.
- Send electronic greetings instead of traditional holiday cards and recycle cards others send you.
- Use children's artwork, fabric, the Sunday comics or reusable gift bags instead of single-use wrapping paper, and recycle the boxes and packaging from presents you receive.
- Save packing "peanuts" and bubble wrap to either reuse when shipping gifts next year or drop off at a collection center near you (call 1-800-828-2214 for locations).
- As you make room for new holiday treasures, consider donating old, unwanted toys, electronics and clothing to charity instead of throwing them away.

To learn more about buying green, reducing holiday waste and recycling as much as possible, visit Earth's 911 at www.cleanup.org.

Young evacuees adjust to life and school in Hingham

By Peg Charlton
CORRESPONDENT

As an old year gave way to the new, January 1942 found the evacuees closer to their classmates, more secure in their surroundings (even mastering a few Yankee colloquialisms) and for one boy — a special triumph — as he reeled off most of Howard Johnson's 28 flavors.

Their foster parents and extended family at school were always ready to help them over the rough spots, the lonely times, the longings for home. Still one 10-year-old expressed "the actual fact of being a 'war refugee' gave us a very special status, and because we seemed 'different,' were considered to be quite apart from them."

Attending Derby Academy was a far cry from the more structured school routine in England. Because of the challenges of the times, the Derby experience was somewhat unique. Coping day after day with wartime restrictions and shortages, backup-strategies were formed and held in reserve. Improvisation was the rule of the day. One such example comes to mind: early in the '40s the school was struggling with a temperamental, over-the-hill "Timken" furnace. To replace the burner (or even some of its parts) was next to impossible. Frequently, the balky boiler took its time cranking up, so after a period of not much happening, the afore-mentioned coping mechanism was put into place. The daily schedule was reversed — sports in morning until heat kicked in, then back to the classroom after lunch. This odd, but workable arrangement was known as a "Timken Day," and seemed quite strange to the young Brits.

With ongoing wartime labor shortages, one lone man would oversee maintenance of the entire Upper School. When unforeseen problems arose, all students (boys and girls alike) pitched in with the sweeping, raking, shoveling — whatever might need immediate attention.

School lunch was also another fine example of "improv." Schools, as well as householders, were subject to food rationing; and though vegetables were grown on Derby's own sizeable "victory garden," the planning and allotting of meat stamps became a weekly challenge. However, a memorable luncheon favorite — a 1940s adaptation of American chop suey (which came to be known as "Derby Slush") was served on a regular basis — sometimes with hamburger meat, sometimes without. "Thrift, Sharing and 'Can Do'," the motto of the school and of the times.

John Pope, who learned to play baseball during his stay in Hingham, shows his expertise on the catcher's mound.

Their memories of Derby and friendships made in Hingham would stay with them for a lifetime; and on the few times they met after the war, they would always refer to themselves as the "Blitz Kids."

Thrift held a special meaning for the Rich family household on their Jones Street "farm" — keeping pigs, chickens and goats and tending their "victory garden."

Naval Officer Vincent Rich and his wife Edyth with their son, Ricky, and daughter, Susie, would welcome into their home two very young Brits, Maggie and John Pope. Though not from the English group, two other evacuees, Swedish nieces Sissi and Vippa Wistrand, having fled the Swedish embassy in Japan, would also join the household. (See photo).

Susie Rich would later recall, "We did not grow up in easy times (with four of us separated from parents and my father serving in the South Pacific). We kept livestock and took care of our one-acre garden to feed us all."

Once in the lunchroom at Derby, there was a short silence after grace at which time a loud voice from the kitchen bellowed, "Don't throw that away. Save it for the Rich's pigs." With her husband off on duty, Edyth managed for a long time to pull it all together while overseeing her "international" flock as well.

Among the other evacuees Jan and Mildred Kennard lived with a family in Cohasset, Diana Crane in Scituate, and the other seven were living in Hingham homes.

Their memories of Derby and friendships made in Hingham would stay with them for a lifetime; and on the few times they met after the war, they would always refer to themselves as the "Blitz Kids."

Of the many lasting impressions, one particularly stands on its own — the legendary and exacting teacher Mme Van Brunt who instilled in her pupils discipline and a solid mastery of the French language. Fondly remembered too, math teacher and athletic coach, Buster Talbot, and numerous others skating and ice hockey on the Creek (Broad Cove); and special nostalgia for the outdoor pageant presented each Derby Day on the hill overlooking the Creek. Baseball and girls' hockey were high on the list, but in springtime the rage was the Great Marble/Aggie Tournament — playoffs every recess.

On the whole, these were mostly enjoyable carefree days, however, marred early on by a tragic event for one young boy. In May 1941, David Douglas learned his older brother was lost when the British battle cruiser, the HMS Hood, was torpedoed and sunk by the German battleship, Bismark. Away from his home and family, this was an extremely low point for him. David later recounts in reviewing his stay in American, one thing that bothered him time and again was "that even after Pearl Harbor, he was classified as an alien and had to register each year he was here."

Just before D-Day in June '44, it was thought safe enough for some of the older ones to return to England. David and John Wright embarked on a Royal Navy aircraft carrier (at one time a merchant ship, later fitted out with a flight deck) and arrived home at the height of the 1944 V1 rocket bombardment of London. Doreen Wright was scheduled to depart in January '45, but this trip was cancelled because of a submarine sighting near New York. She finally sailed on the "Franconia," which had been used as a troopship, and as she remembered, "seemed to run wild most of the time." By the close of 1945 (with the exception of Diana Crane and Gerald Fishe, who stayed in the U.S.) all had returned to England. Even though more than half a century has passed, Hingham is still remembered by the evacuees as the distant place that welcomed and watched over them during one of the most difficult times in their young lives.

A brief summary would find John Wright, upon his return to England, conscripted for work in a sugar beet factory; Doreen Wright became a teacher, now retired; Joan Hobbs, a teacher as well, today serves as a substitute teacher; Gerald Fishe, a consulting forensic engineer, lives in Florida. David Douglas, conscripted into the Army in 1974 — then attended college, worked for a British company that posted him to Singapore and other parts of Malaysia. He returned to Hingham several times to visit his foster parents, the Prestons. Diana Crane currently lives in Scituate; Mildred Kennard, after schooling in England, moved to France, becoming a TV and radio music producer/presenter. Jan Kennard, her brother, graduated from Cambridge University after compulsory military service, joined a bank in 1953 and was posted to Hong Kong. Later, British Overseas Administration took him to West Africa, Bangkok, Jeddah, Madagascar, Yemen, Central American (the list goes on).

Maggie Pope returned to England and now lives in Tenerife, Canary Islands, Spain. John Pope, her brother, died in the 1970s. Sissi Wistrand lives in England.

Deceased British evacuees: David Douglas, John Pope, John Wright; from Sweden, Vippa Wistrand; and Ricky Rich who lost his life in Korea.

This was the second of two parts. Peg Charlton of Hingham is the author of "The War Years Remembered, Memories of Hingham in Wartime," which is available it is available at Hewitt's Cove Marina in Hingham Shipyard.

Now quite grown up, the young Brits are seen in a photo taken at the end of their stay in Hingham. Front from left: Mildred Kennard, Diana Crane, Joan White, Maggie Pope, Doreen Wright. Back row from left, Gerald Fishe, John Pope and David Douglas.

Proper house numbering critical for 9-1-1data base

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

"We want emergency help to get there as soon as possible – time is of the essence."
— Mary Quill, deputy assessor

Having the correct address information in the 9-1-1 data base can save precious time in an emergency.

To that end, emergency communications supervisor Thomas Wigmore says he and Deputy Assessor Mary Quill are working together to see that certain houses are "renumbered" or have needed address changes that will be reflected in the 9-1-1 data base maintained by the town.

When a 9-1-1 call comes in on a regular home or business phone, the caller's address is displayed on the screen. But if that address says Atlantic Avenue when the person lives on Whitehead Road, which is off Atlantic Avenue, that can present a problem to police and firefighters.

Therefore, houses on Whitehead Road, that were using Atlantic Avenue addresses, and the homes on Lily Pond Lane that were using King Street addresses have been changed to reflect their actual street addresses. That information will now appear on tax bills and has been stored in the 9-1-1 data base.

There have also been some minor changes on Norman Todd Road, Cedar Street and other areas scattered around town.

"It's a safety issue," Quill explained, noting that two recent 9-1-1 calls reinforced the importance of accurate addresses. "We want emergency help to get there as soon as possible – time is of the essence."

She said the Assessors Office is also making sure that new housing developments are properly numbered. Often, new houses, which were never assigned a number, use the lot number that is not in line with the other addresses,.

Quill also said homeowners should make sure their house number is visible from the street.

Wigmore said new police officers and firefighters may not live in town and therefore, don't know all the streets.

"I've sat at the board (dispatch center) and heard officers ask if the address is Atlantic Avenue or Whitehead Road," he recalled.

Wigmore is also making sure that phones in town buildings show which floor or room the 9-1-1 call is coming from. If someone collapses at Town Hall, for example, the paramedics and police need to know which floor to go to.

Wigmore also asks that homeowners who have installed alarm systems call him at the police department so he has a contact name and the alarm company on file. Businesses owners, who have not already done so, should also call him with that information. Wigmore can be reached at 781-383-1055, Monday through Friday.

"Urinetown: The Musical" opens Jan. 6 at the Colonial Theatre in Boston.

Wellfleet native flush with Broadway success

The idea for "Urinetown: The Musical" — which opens at Boston's Colonial Theatre next month — first came to Wellfleet native Greg Kotis during an under-funded backpacking trip through Europe in 1995. Playwright Kotis was attending a theater festival in Transylvania when he decided to take a side trip through Western Europe. A leaner than lean budget soon led to more problems than he ever anticipated, however, when even pay-per-use bathrooms proved cost prohibitive.

Kotis soon got the idea that the story of a community where all public amenities in town were controlled by a single corporation might make a good book for a musical. He teamed with his fellow fringe theater alum Mark Hollman, who became the show's composer, and the musical comedy with the unusual title was on its way to Broadway. In 2002, Kotis was among the big winners when the show was awarded the Tony Awards Triple Crown for Best Music and Lyrics, Best Book, and Best Direction of a Musical.

The story of two kids who fall in love amidst a water-shortage crisis, the musical is a comic tale of greed, corruption, love and revolution in a city where water is worth its weight in gold. Along the way, the show manages to celebrate the best of Broadway traditions by spoofing everything from "Annie" to "West Side Story."

Pilgrim Hall Museum presents Bringing Up Baby: 300 Years of Childhood in the Old Colony, now through May, 2004 a new exhibit that explores the world of the very young in the Old Plymouth Colony from its beginning to the 20th century. What was it like to be a child 1620, 1850, or 1920? What can we learn from furniture, clothing, toys, games and other objects from the children who used them? What were the beliefs and sentiments of the parents who provided for them? How do letters, journals, literature, and other writing help to tell the story of the children of the Old Colony? Who were their teachers, what kinds of knowledge were important to learn? What did they do for fun? The exhibition is free with Museum admission. Pilgrim Hall Museum is located at 75 Court St. (Route 3A), Plymouth. Information: 508-746-1620; web address: www.pilgrimhall.org Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. seven days a week.
